PORTUGUESE TERRITORY PRACTICALLY BRITISH

The Importing of Munitions of War Will no Longer be Tolerated by Britain

WAR WILL STOP FOR LACK OF AMMUNITION.

Latest from the Seat of War--The British Making Progress--Where Is De Wet ?

The Mail's special says that two columns are moving against De Wet The utmost secrecy prevails as to the programme, but it is thought in Cape Town that the present movement will be effective.

NO MORE SUPPLIES.

Cape Town, Sept. 12.

A Lisbon cable reports the seizure by the Portuguese officials near the Transvaal frontier of another large supply of war material intended for the Boers. The incident is illuminative in more ways than one. It shows that the war treasury of the Republics is not exhausted; otherwise they could not be still buying large quantities of war material in Europe and shipping them to South Africa. It shows further that the Portuguese territory, through which alone fresh supplies of arms and ammunition can reach the struggling burghers, is for all practical purposes British territory. The Boer forces that still keep the field are, in fact, completely cut off from communication by sea with the outside world. British control of the South African coast, with Portuguese aid, now to be absolute.

IGNORANCE CONCERNING AFRICA.

London, Sept. 12.

The public of England are quite in the dark as to the scope of the military operations now progressing in South Africa. Lord Kitchener is taciturn. Individual successes are reported. As to failure and mishaps. Lord Kitchener's practice varies. Sometimes they are reported; sometimes the press and the public only learn the fact of an engagement from the War Office list of killed and wounded. Certain facts, however, are clear. Notwithstanding the enormous expenditure on horseflesh and the highly organized mount department, British mobility is still inferior to that of the Boers, although the latter have no fresh horses except those they can capture. It is also clear that the early winter in South Africa was not utilized as it might have been, owing to the fact that our War Office sent out a large number of men whom Lord Kitchener describes as "untrained," because "many of them were unable to ride or shoot." A considerable number had heart disease or congenital disorders of various kinds; onne was paralytic. All these yeomen had passed a doctor in England, and the explanation given is that it was necessary to medically examine 10,000 men within three of four days and that, therefore, some undesirables were included in the yeomen reinforcements. However this may be, it is certain that out of 400 officers who accompanied the newly raised yeomen to South Africa, no fewer than 103 had to be sent home. The plain result of these various blunders is that the Boers have survived the winter when they were in a more or less helpless condition. The young grass on the veldt will be next month available for their horses, and there is nothing except lack of ammunition and the failure of men to prevent the war from continuing for many months.

THE END APPROACHING.

The Paris Figaro says that Portugal has acceded to Britain's demand that no further military stores will be permitted to enter the Transvaal or Orange Free State. This can only mean that the Boers must quit for want of ammunition.

PRESIDENT McKINLEY'S CONDITION.

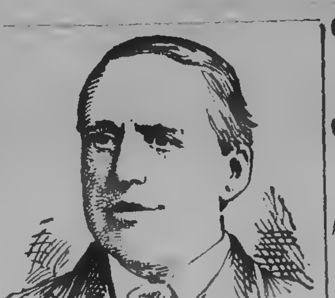
Buffalo, N. Y. Sept. 12 District Attorney Penney and Secretary of War, Root will confer today on the legal steps to be taken for the prosecution of Leon Czolgosz and Emma Goldman. The police have encountered difficulty in finding evidence of overt acts within the state of New York on the part of the Goldman woman, and seem inclined to favor her prosecution in the Federal courts. It is expected that the conference between the Secretary of War and District Attorney will result in some definite plan of action.

Under the common law in force in the State of New York, which has not with reference to treason, been modified by statute, it will adjudicate the crime as an act of treason, the punishment of which is death. The State of New York can prosecute Czolgosz for treason in attempting the life of the sovereign executive recognized in New York, for he has committed common law treason against the higher allegiance owed by all citizens of New York to the Chief Executive of the United States.

STRICT LAWS AGAINST ANARCHY DEMANDED



Crimes Such as Czolgosz's May be Made High Treason.

Congress Urged to Act for the Protection of the President

A Movement for International Police Co-operation

Washington, Sept. 12. — Whatever may be the outcome of the attempt on the life of President McKinley, there is reason for the hope and belief that public sentiment has been so thoroughly aroused that legislation will follow by Congress and the State Legislatures against organizations for the propagation of treason, murder and anarchy, and individual efforst for inciting to the perpetuation of such crimes by public declamation and lectures, such as have been given by Emma Goldman and other self proclaimed Anarchists. It may be assumed that legislation of this character will include the prevention and suppression of the numerous publications that are disseminated by Anarchist leaders, and from which they derive revenue to send their murderous agents and infernal machines to various parts of the world. But while legislation may have a most salutary effect in this direction, it has become plainly apparent that the meaningless and tiresome custom of handshaking by the President at large and promiscuous gatherings should be largely curtailed and restricted, if not abolished entirely. The most careful and constant vigilance cannot, perhaps, insure the President against the bullet of the assassin when in the performance of public duty he is required to appear in public, but at least anything that encourages and invites assault should be rigidly avoided. For the President to stand in a position for hours merely that people may have the unrestricted privilege of taking his hand, as was the case at Buffalo, and as has been the custom with his predecessors for years, furnished the opportunity so eagerly awaited by the assassin. This fact has been recognized by persons who have had experience with these public hand-shakings, and they have not hesitated to admonish the President of the lurking danger. Secretary Wilson, who was with President McKinley at Buffalo, was impressed with the folly and danger of the custom, and discussed it with Secretary Cortelyou, who was also impressed with the same feeling. President McKinley had been admonished, but could not be induced to believe a man could be found in America so lost to all human feeling that he would attempt the life of the President, and especially in a time of unparalleled prosperity and universal fraternal feeling. That President McKinley is the victim of this custom of unrestricted hand-shaking there can be no doubt. His would be assassin admits, in a reported conversation, that it furnished the opportunity which he had been seeking for two days, and covering the period of the President's visit to the Exposition. After describing his efforts to get close to the President during the delivery of his address on Thursday, and subsequently when he was going to or departing from the grounds, Czolgosz says: "My plans were all carefully laid. I had failed on other occasions, but when I heard that President McKinley would have a public reception, I knew that fortune had thrown my opportunity in my way." The officers charged with the protection of the President at Buffalo are being sharply criticised because they did not see in the young man who approached with a bandaged hand the assassin he proved to be, but it must be apparent to every thinking person that it is impossible to detect any and every scheme for assassination under such conditions as obtain at these unrestricted hand-shakings. As declared by Czologsz, it was this public reception that afforded the opportunity for successful assault. Of course, an assault cannot be made upon such occasion without instant apprehension of the assailant, but the assailant gives no thought to himself nor the consequences that will come to him.

CONGRESS WILL BE URGED TO ACT.

Nothing is more marked in the discussion of the attempt on the life of President McKinley than the promptness with which men in official life have demanded that Congress shall place adequate safeguards around the life of its Executive. it is instantly recognized that the assassin's shot was not directed so much against the man as at the office, and on all sides criticism is general and decisive of the neglect of Congress to invest the Chief Executive with a sanctity which shall avail to protect the life of the man who may happen to occupy the office. It is not unlikely that Congress will be asked to make it high treason to utter, or print, or publish, or disseminate any statement which threatens the life of the President, the Vice President, or any of the Cabinet, who are by statute in the line of succession to the Presidency. The Acting Attorney General, James M. Beck, has promptly expressed his opinion that an attempt on the President's life should be made the subject of legislation which shall afford protection. He urges that the penalty should be no less than that for high treason, and would make any attempt on the life of the Chief Magistrate punishable by death. This position was taken by the late Senator Conkling, at the time of the assassination of President Garfield. The day after the shooting of Garfield by Guiteau. Mr. Conkling wrote a letter to Attorney General MacVeagh, urging this course.

VIOLENCE TO A PRESIDENT AS HIGH TREASON.

Acting Attorney General Beck, discussing the legal aspects of the attempt on the President's life, says:

"I know of no statute which makes it a criminal offence to attempt the life of the President. That there ought to be such legislation is perfectly clear. There are statutes which make punishable personal violence to minor officials, such as internal revenue agents, but it is passing strange that, notwithstanding the fact that two Presidents have been assassinated, and attempts have been made upon the lives of two more, no law has ever been passed to place an attempt on the life of the President on the same plane as high treason. Where such attempt had no reference to the Presidential office, and was committed within the territorial limits of a State, there might be some question as to the power of Congress to legislate, but where it is clear that the attempt has been made, not upon the individual but upon the President, for the purpose of promoting anarchy, and thus subverting the Government, the right of the Federal Government to protect its Chief Executive seems too clear for question. If the President should be spared to the American people it is to be feared that the assassin can be convicted for no higher crime than an assault, with an intent to kill. Having regard for the immense consequences which follow the assassination of a President an attempt upon his life.

DOCTORS EXPLAIN THE PRESIDENT'S OPLRATION

They Say Re-Opening Of Wound Cannot Cause Serious Complications

NO NEED FOR ALARM.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 12.

The President has passed a very comfortable night, said the four o'clock bulletin of Drs. Rixey and Wasdin, the two physicians who remained at the President's bedside throughout the night. A few minutes later Dr. Rixey, the President's regular physician, was seen by an Associated Press representative. He displayed no evidence of anxiety, and was emphatic in his characterization of the sensationally alarming reports put in circulation in the early hours of the night as a result of the former bulletin. Dr. Rixey was asked about these reports and he replied earnestly and without any hesitation whatever.

"Those statements are not true. The President is not in a serious condition, and there is no alarm felt over him. The facts are just as stated in the regular bulletins of the physicians, who are anxious that the public shall be fully acquainted with them."

The scare caused by even the faintest indication of trouble in connection with the President's wound coming on the heels of steady and continued improvement was only natural under the circumstances. But there is absolutely no reason to doubt the frankness of the official statement of the physicians, that the opening of a few stitches of the wound last night "cannot give rise to other complications," and Dr Rixey this morning was flat-footed and emphatic in his insistence of the complete truth of this statement. The opening of the wound was in no sense an operation. It was more in the nature of a redressing oof the wound, an antiseptic dressed to allay the slight irritation that had appeared.

The fact that the wound in the President's abdomen is not healing by "first intention" is not a feature at all unusual in such cases, explained by one of the President's physicians. On the contrary, it is usual for gunshot wounds to heal by what is termed "second intention" through granulation. Especially is this the case with older persons, whereas in the case of young people they usually heal by "first intention."

There is absolutely no indication of blood poisoning in the President's case, said the doctor, when a newspaper man hinted that the irritation which had appeared at the exterior wound might have partaken of that nature. As the morning advanced and the usual activities of the day began, the feeling of confidence grew stronger.

At 8.30 o'clock the physicians began arriving for the morning consultation. They came in accordance with the usual understanding that a consultation would be held at 8.30, preparatory to the 9 o'clock bulletin.

EMMA GOLDMAN ARRESTED.

Chicago, Sept. 11.

Emma Goldman, the Anarchist firebrand, was arrested here yesterday on a warrant charging her with conspiracy to murder President McKinley. She was discovered at the home of a family named Norris, living at 303 Sheffield avenue. She denied that she was the Goldman woman, and said that her name was Lena Larson, a Swedish woman. Officer Hartz began to question her in Swedish, and she could not answer him. A pen with her name engraved on it brought her to admit her identity. She made her statement to Mayor Carter H. Harrison and Chief O'Neill, and was then taken to the Central Police Station, where she is held. She denied all knowledge of Czolgosz and his crime, admitting only that she met him once on July 12. She said. It was early last July when I came to Chicago to visit the Isaaks family. On the night of July 12 Isaaks was out of the house. The bell rang and I went to the door. The man, who I learn through the newspapers was Czolgosz stood there. He said he wanted to see me. I was about to catch the Nickel Plate train, as I and Mr Isaak's daughter were about to go to Rochester. He went to the Rock Island depot with us, but I was so busy taking leave of my friends that I scarcely noticed him. It was not a time when one would want to make new friends. At the depot I had the few words with him of which I have told. That was all there ever was between us She denies that she ever advocated violence in her lectures.

PRELIMINARY FACTS.

Facts leading up to the arrest of Emma Goldman have developed as follows:— On Saturday night a telegram reached Chicago from the Goldman woman addressed to Albert Verral, 508 Oakdale avenue, asking if it was true that the Isaaks and their associates had been arrested by the Chief of the Chicago police on charges in the attempted assassination of President McKinley. A few hours later a reply was sent to Miss Goldman to the effect that the facts as stated were true, and that the Isaaks and associates were under arrest. It is impossible to learn whence emanated the telegram from MMiss Goldman, or to what point the answer was sent, although the popular belief is that Miss Goldman was in St. Louis at this time. Still Government officers are holding to the idea that she was at a point much nearer Buffalo, or in the city of Buffalo itself. In response to the reply from her telegram sent to Albert Verrall, a message was received from Miss Goldman to the effect that she would be in Chicago on Sunday night. A watch was set on the Verrall house, but no evidence of life was developed until late on MMonday evening, when an unaccompanied woman approached the Verrall house at 508 Oakdale avenue. Failing to gain admission at the front she passed to the side of the house and then to the rear. She was unsuccessful in securing admission into the place, and left, going east on Oakdale avenue to Sheffield, and down Sheffield avenue to 303, where she gained access to a flat building, where Emma Goldman was arrested. United States secret service operatives are absolutely positive that no person has entered or come from these premises since this unknown woman entered there last night, until Emma Goldman, the anarchist lecturer, was captured when a Chicago city detective scaled a rear wall, and passing through a window, put the much-wanted woman under arrest.

Will Not be Moved For Six Weeks--Emma Goldman Arrested.

CORROBORATION.

Corroborative circumstances in connection with the case, and in consonance with the statement made by Miss Goldman to the Chicago police after her arrest, gave the following direct chain of evidence: Miss Goldman admits she has been in Buffalo, but sets the dates at variance with the police theory. Miss Goldman Says she has met Leon Czolgosz in Chicago, and sets the time of their meeting at July 12, when she says she was departing for a trip to the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo.

NEW ERA PREDICTED FOR CHINA

Emperor Orders Upheaval In Ancient Methods.

THE TROOPS RE-ENTER PEKIN

Pekin, Sept. 12.—China's awakening to the influences of western civilization is at hand. A new era in government, education and industry dawns today. By imperial decree the old systems, honored since the days of Confucius, are overturned.

Emperor Kwang-Tsu promises to become a modern ruler in every sense of the word.

Liberals are now in control of the entire court of the empire, it is said, and when the imperial household re-enters Pekin the new regime is to be inaugurated. That day is near, for the palace is already undergoing renovation preparatory to the entrance of the emperor.

STUPENDOUS CHANGES TO COME.

Changes of a stupendous nature hinge on the imperial decree issued to enlighten the 400,000,000 people in China. The edict provides that the official examinations must include western sciences and industrial methods. It abolishes the traditional eight part classical essays and verbatim reproductions of the classics, proficiency in which has been the chief qualification for office holding. It relegates the classics to the background, requiring only expositions of their meaning.

General Yuan Shi Kai's troops are reentering Pekin and are assuming the work of policing the city. They are a stalwart, welldrilled body of men.

Great forces of workmen are engaged in repairing the palaces and streets.

JAPAN DELAYS A CEREMONY.

London, Sept. 12.—The Times prints a despatch from Tokio stating that there will be no official reception of the special mission sent by China to apologize for the murder of Sugiyama, the Japanese chancellor of legation at Pekin, until it is presented by the Chinese minister to Japan. No complications are feared, as the Japanese ceremonial only will be required.

GOD FOR HIS FAMLILY.

Kaiser Wilhelm Says the Almighty Preserves House of Hohenzollern.

Korniberg, Prussia, Sept. 12.—Emperor William, replying to a toast during the luncheon given at the landeshaus to-day, spoke at length, eulogizing the founders of the house of Hohenzollern, which he said emphatically, existed by God's grace alone. He urged his hearers to be inspired by the example of his illustrious ancestors and to go forth and reap the rich harvest they have sown, furnishing by their own lives an example of devotion to the common welfare of the whole fatherland.

EMPEROR WILLIAM GREATLY ALARMED

He Wants Powers to Unite to Crush Anarchists.

TO TAKE VIGOROUS ACTION

Berlin, Sept, 12.—It is reported in diplomatic circles here that the kaiser has already caused a strongly worded note to be communicated to the ambassadors of all the great powers urging that an international congress be held with a view to agreeing upon common measures against militant anarchists who seek to paralyze governments by striking at their figureheads. If Washington approves. It is considered probable that such a congress will assemble, though no clear idea of measures efficacious in preventing such crimes has even been given.

Public interest in the condition of President McKinley continues very keen. The papers print a vast amount of matter on the subject, which is the chief topic of conversation. Expressions of sympathy on the part of the people are heard on all sides.

SPEAKS FOR THE REICHSTAG

The United States ambassador, Andrew D. White, received to-day the following message from Count Ballestrem, president of the reichstag:

"Permit me, in the name of the reichstag and in behalf of myself to express to your excellency our most profound execration of the atrocious attempt upon the life of the exalted ruler of the United States, President McKinley, and at the same time to express the hope that the gracious God will preserve the precious life of the president and grant him a speedy recovery."

Dr. Dickie, pastor of the American church, in his sermon yesterday spoke in the most feeling manner of the attempt on the president's life and expressed the sympathy of the whole congregation and of the American colony.

THE COUPLING PARTED.

Mishap on the Down Trip of the Port Hope Mixed Train Yesterday.

Lindsay Post.—Conductor J. W. Britton and those on board the Port Hope mixed train yesterday morning, figured in a somewhat exciting episode just as Omemee was reached. The coupling of the rear coach parted and when the front end was halted the detached car bore down upon it at a good rate of speed.

Mr M. Mulvihill, G.T.R. carpenter, was one of those in the coach, and realizing the nature of the mishap he ran out and applied the brakes with a promptitude that resulted in materially lessening the force of the collision. However, the bump was a severe one and everyone on board felt it more or less. Conductor Britton, who was making his way to the rear to see what was the matter, was thrown against a door and had his head cut and bruised, while Mr. Adam Switzer, who was sitting in the baggage car, was thrown from his seat and sustained some painful contusions.

The coupling mechanism having been knocked out of gear in the collision, the coach was made fast by means of chains, which answered the purpose very well.

NEW TREATY WITH BRITAIN

Washington, Sept. 12.—It is reported here on good authority that arrangements have been completed in London for a new treaty to take place of the defeated Hay-Pauncefote compact and that everything is now ready for its formal drafting.

This will be done by the British foreign office. Lord Pauncefote and Ambassador Choate.—The perfected instrument will be brought to this country next month by Lord Pauncefote to receive the necessary signatures before being submitted to the senate. There is reason to believe that the instrument is drafted in accordance with the wishes of the senators who were consulted by Secretary Hay after the defeat of his pet measure and whose wishes in the matter were communicated both to Ambassador Choate and Lord Pauncefote prior to the latter's departure for England.

At the same time Secretary Hay impressed upon the British ambassador the fact that, having once rejected a treaty that gave England so much and the United States so little, it would be useless to send a similar convention to it for consideration, for that would certainly be rejected or possibly left unacted upon by the committee on foreign relations.

The new treaty, it is said, will give the United States the absolute control of the canal without any distinct advantages to Great Britain.

WILL VISIT ALGOMA.

Two Members of the Ontario Cabinet to Take a Trip West.

Hon J. M. Gibson, Attorney-General, and Hon J R. Stratton, Provincial Secretary, leave Toronto on Thursday next for a brief visit to the Algomas. On Friday they will address a liberal convention at the Sault; on Saturday they will visit Manitoulin Island, reaching Port Arthur and Fort William on Monday, where they will run over the new Rainy River Railway, visiting Rat Portage and Fort Francis before returning.

TO KILL GOVERNOR YATES.

Plot Said to Have Been Revealed to His Private Secretary

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 12.—A sensation has been caused by a story revealed to Major W. S. Robbins, private secretary to Governor Yates, to the effect that Illinois' chief executive is marked for assassination. Mr. Robbins refused to divulge the name of his informer.

While Major Bobbins was working in the executive office at the capitol building late yesterday afternoon a woman about 50 years old, with gray hair, who is said to be a travelingsaleswoman, entered and said she wanted to tell him something of vital importance to Governor Yates. The woman claimed to have overheard three men at the Illinois Central station here discussing plans for the assassination of the governor. They were surveying the surroundings at the station, expecting that Governor Yates would land there upon his return from the pan-American exposition at the latter part of this month. The men were to be dressed in priest's garb.

It is known that importance is attached to the story, although Major Robbins claims to look upon the affair as a joke, and extra precautions will be taken to prevent any attempt upon Governor Yates' life. At no time is he without a revolver in his possession and there is evidence to believe he could use it effectively if given an opportunity.

Although not known until recently, a letter from a crank shortly after the governor was inaugurated caused considerable alarm. An anonymous letter at Bridgeport, Conn., demanded $300 and threatened if the amount was not forthcoming within a specified time the writer, a woman, would visit Springfield and throw vitriol in the eyes of Dorothy and Catherine Yates, children of Governor and Mrs. Yates.

BOFRS' PRESENCE PROTECTS TRAINS

THE MACALIESBURC CAMPAIGN

Pretoria, Sept. 9.—The recent wrecking of a military train on the Pietersburg Railroad, twenty-five miles north of Pretoria, has led the authorities to adopt the system in vogue during the Franco-German war. A number of prominent burghers were drawn by ballot from the refugee camps and compelled to accompany the trains on every trip. It is hoped that this expedition will prevent further disastrous attacks on this line, as the Boers are accurately informed of the proceeding by their Pretoria agents.

Pretoria, Sept. 9. — Within the past five days about 150 Boers have been captured in the Western Magaliesburg district, by the Kekewich, Allenby and Featherstonhaugh columns. The burghers were generally of Kemps commando, and Kemp himself escaped northward.

General Kitchener has ordered that tools and materials be supplied to the men in the burgher camps to enable them to work at such trades as tanning, cabinet making, etc. The articles made by them will be sold for their benefit.

The men composing the corps are picked shots, men who have seen much service in this and previous wars, and their operations are confined exclusively to the railway. Under no circumstances do they proceed more than a mile from the line in chasing parties of the enemy.

Morning Times

PETERBOROUGH, SEPTEMBER 12 1901

IN DARKEST AFRICA

The South Africa war is again assuming an ugly phase and the critics are again in a pessimistic mood. The Boers are becoming more and more desperate; they are murdering prisoners in cold blood, and as a measure of retaliation against Lord Kitchener's transportation proclamation, threaten to shoot all British troops and Colonials caught after Sept. 15. Of their determination to do so they are already giving evidence by the recent butchery—the term is by no means too strong—of two unarmed scouts recently caught, and by the ill treatment of a small British party who were trapped in ambush a few days ago. Under the circumstances it is problematical whether the transportation and confiscation policy will be productive of satisfactory results.

There can be little doubt that the guerilla warfare now being conducted by the Boers is largely kept up by and recruited from outside sources. Left to itself it would have been squelched long ago; but fed and encouraged from continental sources—by secret enemies of England who are ostensibly her friends—it is likely to last for many months longer.

In many particulars it is a most peculiar war. Not only is England compelled to maintain a vast army in a distant part of the world and scattered over a wide extent of a more or less desolate and hostile country, but she has to feed, clothe and house an army of 30,000 Boer prisoners, and also support the wives and families of the men who are still disputing her supremacy and murdering her soldiers. If England by accident or under extreme pressure deviates one iota from the recognized rules of the civilized warfare, she is represented to the world even by some of her own subjects, as guilty of the grossest brutalities; where as, on the other hand unscrupulous Boers may resort to the most nefarious means to attain their ends, and the world will simply look on and smile approvingly.

The reason for this is not far to seek. It is not love for the Boers. Had England been fighting the Turks or the Kaffirs it would have been the same thing. It is simply jealousy of England—jealousy because of her tremendous expansion of late years and her growing power in all parts of the world. For this reason most of the continental powers of Europe— and even a large percentage of our good Yankee neighbors to the south of us chuckle over the unsatisfactory prolongation of this South African conflict.

But the end will come. It may be a month hence, and it may be not until twelve months from this, but when it does come it will by no means leave England shorn of her glory or deprived of a foot of the land in South Africa, she has exacted as compensation for the enormous sacrifices in blood and treasure which she has had to make to repel the unnecessary war the Boers forced upon her.

FEARS FOR THE CZAR

Paris, Sept. 11.—Fear of the assassination of the czar of Russia during his visit to France has seized the officials of Europe since an attempt on the life of President McKinley at the Buffalo fair. In consequence a widespread search for anarchists of whatever nationality is now in progress.

The French minister of the interior has telegraphed severe instructions to the special commissaries of police in all the provinces to exercise the closest vigilance upon anarchists. Special detectives also have been sent to the industrial centers to aid the police in watching anarchists and other agitators.

Any anarchist who is considered dangerous or whose movements are suspicious will be taken into custody.

All the commissaries possess portraits and descriptions of the anarchists known to the international police. Several Italian anarchists who had been specially shadowed left Paris recently, but all but two of them have been located and the police expect to unearth them quickly.

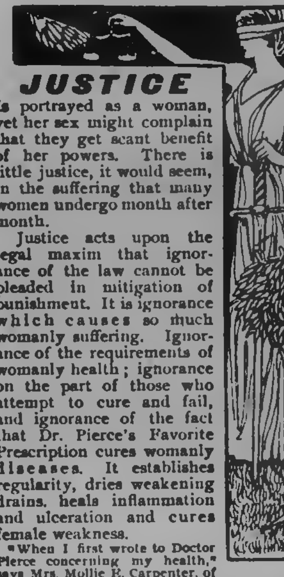
A dispatch from Dunkirk received today reports that anxiety prevails there lest the Buffalo outrage lead the czar to postpone or abandon his visit to France. This impression, however, is unjustified, as is proved by the fact that inquiries in Paris indicate that no change in the arrangement of the czar's visit have even considered. It is the general feeling that the abandonment of his proposed visit by Emperor Nicolas would be a too obvious display of the white feather, even if apprehensions of another outrage existed.

A dispatch from Bergues, near Dunkirk, says that a man known as an anarchist arrived there yesterday and is now under surveillance.

An Italian named Romani, who was arrested last week at a suburb of Paris on suspicion of being an anarchist, but whose honorable character was attested by a number of inhabitants who petitioned for his release, is still held in prison. M. Alleman, who had interested himself in the prisoner's behalf, received a letter from Premier Waldeck-Rousseau declaring it was impossible to set the man free and he will undoubtedly be detained until after the czar shall have left.

A Musical Treat

On Monday evening next the music-loving citizens of Peterborough will have an opportunity of hearing one of the best organists in Canada, in the person of Prof. A. S. Vogt, of Toronto, who will give an organ recital in the Murray Street Baptist Church. The programme will consist of brilliant selections on the organ, vocal and other instrumental music, &c. The tickets have been placed at a low price of 25 cents. It is to be hoped that there will be a large attendance.



JUSTICE

Is portrayed as a woman, yet her sex might complain that they get scant benefit of her powers. There is little justice, it would seem, in the suffering that many women undergo month after month.

Justice acts upon the legal maxim that ignorance of the law cannot be pleaded in mitigation of punishment. It is ignorance which causes so much womanly suffering. Ignorance of the requirements of womanly health; ignorance on the part of those who attempt to cure and fail, and ignorance of the fact that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures womanly diseases. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"When I first wrote to Doctor Pierce concerning my health," says Mrs. Mollie R. Carpenter, of Linaria, Cumberland Co., Tenn., "I was so weak I could only write a few words until I would have to rest; was so weak I could hardly walk. Words cannot express my sufferings: dimness of sight, palpitation, shortness of breath, black spots or else shining lights before my eyes, terrible headache, numbness in my arms and hands and tongue, also my jaws would get numb; constipation, falling of the uterus, disagreeable drains, soreness through my bowels; in fact I was diseased from head to foot. Now I can do my own washing and cooking. I can take a ten quart pail in one hand and a six quart pail in the other (full of water), and carry both one-fourth of a mile and never stop to rest. I am as heavy as I was at 19 years (125 pounds). I used thirty bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery' and twenty-five vials of 'Pleasant Pellets.'"

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE PRESIDENT'S CONDITION

Milburn House, N.Y., September 11. The following bulletin was issued by the President's physicians:

4.15 a.m.—The condition of the President is unchanged in all important particulars. His temperature is 100.6, pulse 114, respiration 28. When the operation was performed on Friday last it was noted that the bullet had carried with it a short distance beneath the skin a fragment of the President's coat. This foreign material was of course removed, but a slight irritation of the tissues was produced, the evidence of which has appeared only tonight. It has been necessary on account of this slight disturbance to remove a few stiches and partially open the skin wound. This incident cannot give rise to other complications, but it is communicated to the public as the surgeons in attendance wish to make their bulletins entirely frank. In consequence of this separation of the edges of the surface healing of the same will be somewhat delayed. The President is now well enough to begin to take nourishment by the mouth in the form of pure beef juice.

Signed,
G. CORTELYOU,
Secretary to the President.

NATURAL GAS AND OIL.

The Board of Trade Should Make a Start at Once

The Board of Trade, if there is such an institution, should endeavor to have our natural gas and petroleum deposits exploited. That both gas and oil exist here, we have every reason to believe. Peterborough is on the proper geological foundation, and experts have told us that there is abundance of gas or oil, or both, to be had for the boring.

The Board of Trade should investigate and have an expert look over the ground and report. His report, if favorable, as it is almost sure to be, would induce private capital to take the matter up and sink wells.

The Times would like to see the matter pushed ahead on the lines suggested the board of Trade. With the best and cheapest water and electric power in the world, and natural gas for heating and light, at a mere normal cost, coal oil wells employing thousands, Peterborough indeed would soon become one of the first cities in Canada.

MURDERED PRESIDENTS OF THE UNITED STATES

The Assassination of Presidents Lincoln and Garfield.

PRESIDENT GARFIELD.

Washington, Sept. 11.—President McKinley is the third Executive of the Federal Government to fall under the bullet of the assassin. Both Abraham Lincoln and James A. Garfield died from their dastardly inflicted wounds, and have their names inscribed upon the national calandar of martyrs. The sad details of the fatal shooting of each of these rulers of the country have been vividly recalled by the terrible crime at Bufallo, and it may be worth while to narrate again the main facts concerning those past Presidential assassinations.

The shooting of Lincoln by John Wilkes Booth was the more sensational, in view of the troubled state of the Government at Washington, and was highly dramatic in manner of accomplishment. The additional feature that Booth was the head of a sort of conspiracy gave to the martyrdom of Lincoln a peculiar political significance which most assassinations of modern history have lacked. When Lincoln went to Washington to take the oath of office as President the air was rife with fears of an attempted assassination of "the negro's friend." But "Honest Abe" passed through the grim ordeal of the Civil War without an attempt on his life, and fell a victim to the assassin in the very hour of seeming triumph and restored peace. On April 14, 1865, General Anderson had raised over Fort Sumter the tattered flag he had hauled down just four years before. The North was rejoicing that the war was over, when, suddenly, the news flashed throughout the land that Lincoln had been murdered.

WHEN LINCOLN WAS STRICKEN.

On the night of that same April 14 the wearied President had sought a slight diversion from the burdens of his office in attending Ford's Theatre, on Tenth street, Washington, accompanied by Mrs. Lincoln and two friends—Major Henry Rathbone and daughter of Senator Ira Harris. The bill was "Our American Cousin," with Laura Keene in the cast. Miss Keene was awaiting one of her cues in the side-wing and the audience was eagerly watching the play, when the report of a pistol started everybody. A man was seen to leap from the President's box to the stage, brandishing a dagger, and shouting "Sic semper tyrannis! The South is avenged!" His foot caught in the folds of a flag, and he fell, breaking his leg, but regaining his feet he managed to escape to a side alley, where he leaped upon a horse that had been kept saddled there, and fled from the city. The audience was seized with panic. Laura Keene, running into the President's box, held Lincoln's bleeding head on her lap, and the robes of comedy were becrimsoned with the blood of this terrible tragedy.

BOOTH'S ATTEMPT TO ESCAPE.

John Wilkes Booth's bullet had entered one of Lincoln's temples. After shooting the President, the half-demented actor had stabbed Major Rathbone. The dying President was carried to a small house opposite the theatre, where, surrounded by his family and the principal officials of the Government, he breathed his last at 7 o'clock on the morning of April 15, in the third month of his 57th year. The joy over the return of peace was eclipsed everywhere by this bloody event. The body lay in state at the Capitol on April 20, and was viewed by a grand concourse of mourning people. The next day the funeral train set out for Springfield, Ill. The cortege halted at all the principal cities on the way, and was greeted everywhere with extraordinary demonstrations of grief for the dead leader. The remains were finally laid to rest at Oak Ridge, near Springfield, on May 4, and a white marble monument (by the sculptor, Larkin G. Mead) now marks the consecrated ground. The expressions of sorrow and condolence that were sent to the Federal Government from all over the world were afterward published by the State Department in a quarto volume of nearly a thousand pages, called "The Tribute of the Nations to Abraham Lincoln."

John Wilkes Booth, the assassinator, succeeded in eluding capture for twelve days after his crime. Fleeing on horseback to a farm about 35 miles from Washington, he lay for six days in the woods. Then he secretly crossed both the Potomac and the Rappahannock, and took refuge in a barn on a farm near Bowling Green. To this hiding place a squadron of United States troops tracked him. The barn was set on fire and Booth, while resisting arrest, was shot dead by a soldier named Boston Corbett. Thus miserably perished the murderer of Lincoln, who was a son of the noted actor, Junius Brutus Booth, and whose gifts had seemed to destine him to a noble career. He had been born at Bel Air, Md., in 1838, and was only 27 years old. His last appearance as an actor had been at a benefit for John McCullough. His deed brought for a time an unmerited public contempt for the actor's profession. His own corpse was secretly buried under the flagstones of the arsenal warehouse at Washington. Two years later, however, his brother, Edwin Booth, had the remains reinterred in the family plot in the cemetery at Baltimore.

BOOTH'S HALLUCINATION.

Booth undoubtedly labored under the hallucination that he was revenging Southern wrongs and sufferings in slaying Lincoln. The actor was at the head of a small conspiracy, and on the same evening that he shot the President a fellow-conspirator gained access to the home of Secretary of State William Henry Seward, where Seward lay on a couch with a fractured arm and jaw, and stabbed the Secretary several times in the face and the neck. Seward's son was also struck down. After severe sufferings both of the attacked men recovered from their knife wounds. Later the conspiracy was unearthed; four of the conspirators were hanged, three were imprisoned for life, and one was sentenced for a term of years. Andrew Johnson succeeded to the Presidency and to the tremendous problem of Federal reconstruction, which he so signally failed to cope with in the masterly style of a Lincoln.

The assassination of President Garfield had no such peculiar significance as that of Lincoln. Garfield was laid low by the bullet of a hare-brained individual who had come to Washington for a political office and who had been disappointed. To be sure, the division of the Republican camp into "Stalwarts" and "Half-Breeds" may have contributed to inspire Charles Guiteau with the desire of killing the President whom Roscoe Conkling had so savagely denounced as a party traitor.

PRESIDENT GARFIELD'S FATE.

It was on July 2, 1881, only four months after his inauguration as President, that Garfield left the White House to attend commencement at his alma mater, Williams College. He had just entered the Pennsylvania station in Washington, when he was shot in the back by Guiteau. Guiteau was promptly captured, and for a time there was hope of Garfield's recovery. But, after enduring great suffering with notable fortitude, Garfield passed away at Elberon, N.J., on September 19, eighty days after the shooting. He was in his fiftieth year. His public career had not been without political scandals, and he had even been accused of selling John Sherman in his own interest at the convention of June, 1880, which so unexpectedly nominated him as the Republican candidate. But the manner of his matyrdom moved all citizens, irrespective of party or opinion, to genuine grief, and his brave battle with pain and death won him the hearts of his countrymen. The remains of this brilliant, Gambetta-like statesman were placed in the rotunda of the Capitol, where an immense wreath of white rosebuds stood at the foot of his coffin, with the inscription: "Queen Victoria to the memory of the late President Garfield. An expression of her sorrow and sympathy with Mrs. Garfield and the American nation." Garfield's memorial monument stands at Cleveland, O.

BLAINE WAS WITH HIM.

Secretary of State James G. Blaine was walking arm-in-arm with Garshot Guiteau was one of a small shot. Geiteau was one of a small group of people standing near the door to the ladies' room in the railroad station. As the President and Secretary passed, the assassin turned, made a step in their direction, and, drawing a heavy revolver from his pocket, aimed it carefully and fired deliberately. Garfield turned in excited surprise. Blaine sprang to one side. Guiteau then recocked his revolver and calmly fired again at the President, who this time fell to the floor, covered with blood. Guiteau fled, dropping his pistol as he ran, but he was quickly caught.

Garfield was driven to the Executive Mansion, where his condition was decided to be so critical that it would be highly dangerous to probe for the bullet. The medical judgment in this case has been declared to have been at fault. Later the wounded President was removed to Elberon to benefit by the sea breeze; but the hope proved vain. The bullet lodged in his back caused bloodpoisoning. It had pierced the tissues by a torse, crooked course, leaving a wound that could not be properly drained.

GUITEAU'S CAREER.

Garfield's assassin, Guiteau, had been by spells a politician, a lawyer, lecturer, theologian and evangelist. He pretended to have been inspired by Deity with the thought that the removal of Garfield was necessary for the unity of the Republican party and for the salvation of the country. He is said to have exclaimed on being arrested: "All right; I did it, and will go to jail for it. I am a stalwart, and Arthur will be President." His trial began in November and lasted over two months. The defense was insanity, but the prosecution sought to show that the murderer had long been "an unprincipled adventurer, greedy for notoriety." The public rage against him was intense. Sergeant Mason, a soldier set to guard him, actually fired a bullet into Guiteau's cell. For this unsuccessful deed the sergeant received a sentence of eight years in the Albany Penitentiary. Two months later a mysterious horseman, dashing past Guiteau, as the assassin was being led from jail to Court, grazed the prisoner's wrist with a bullet. During his trial Guiteau acted in most disorderly style and indulged in scurrilous interruptions. He was found guilty in January, 1882, and was executed at Washington on June 30 following. As the last juror signified his assent to the death verdict Guiteau shrieked out: "My blood will be on the heads of that jury! Don't you forget it! God will avenge this outrage!" But the autopsy revealed no disease of the brain. Guiteau's skeleton is now in the Army Medical Museum.

RULERS KILLED IN OTHER COUNTRIES

Our sister republic of France has also been called upon to mourn for an assassinated President. Sadi-Carnot was stabbed to death by Cesario Santo on June 24, 1894. The great French statesman and President was visiting the Lyons Exposition, and was going from the Palais de Commerce, where a banquet had been held in his honor, to the Grand Theatre, when Santo jumped on the footstep of Carnot's carriage and stabbed him in the liver.

Spain's Prime Minister, Senor Canovas del Castillo, also met his fate at the hand of an Italian anarchist. While at the baths, at Santa Equeda, Spain, on August 8, 1897, he was shot by Rinrlde. The Premier fell dying at the feet of his horrified wife.

King Humbert of Italy has been the latest victim of the Old World slayers of crowned heads. He fell a victim to the bullet of Gaetano Bresci, on July 29, 1900. The illustrious monarch was shot through the heart while entering his carriage near Monza, Italy, and he died within a few minutes. Anarchy was at the bottom of this crime, as of almost every European assassination.

Perhaps the most brutal of all the assassinations of recent times was the murder of Elizabeth, the Empress of Austria, by Luigi Lucchent, on September 10, 1898. For this crime Lucheni was sentenced to imprisonment for life.

Emperor Alexander II, of Russia, was killed by the Nihilists on March 13, 1881. The imperial carriage was returning from a review of the Marine Corps, when a bomb was thrown that wounded some of his escort. The Emperor descended from his carriage and was mortally shattered by a second exploding bomb. His assassination thus occurred only a few weeks before that of Garfield.

Nasr-el-Din, Shah of Persia, was assassinated May 1, 1896, General Borda, President of Uruguay, August, 26, 1897, and General Barrios, of Guatemala, February 9, 1898.

WILL CARRY BALL TO HIS GRAVE

The President will live, but will probably carry the bullet of the would-be assassin with him to the grave. This is the solemnly expressed opinion of Dr Charles McBurney, of New York, in a statement to a representative of the Associated Press, after the consultation of the physicians this morning. He announced that the President had passed the danger point, and now only slight possibility of complications remained. He also announced that unless the bullet embedded in the muscles of the back should cause trouble there would be no necessity to extract it. In his opinion it would not even be located with the X-rays. Nothing could be gained by the use of the X-rays, he said, except the satisfaction of curiosities. All the other physicians were equally confident after the morning consultation that recovery was assured. Dr. Mynter said the President was out of the woods, and Dr Wasdin answered, "Yes, with plenty of daylight behind him."

Dr. Roswell Park expressed it in this way: Unless unexpected complications occur, we expect him to recover."

ANARCHISTS IN COURT

Chicago, Sept. 10.

The twelve anarchists arrested here on suspicion of complicity in the shooting of President McKinley, were up in the Police Court yesterday. The prosecutor asked for two days to prepare the case and for the holding of the men without bail. The order was granted against the protest of the accused, and the case will come up again on Sept. 19. The women are held in $3,000 bail. Some important evidence is promised for the trial. The police are close upon the trail of Emma Goldman. She is said to be near this city and her capture is expected at any moment. Private detectives and secret service men are also out after her.

Evidence of another annarchist plot came to light to-day when C. H. McMurray, connected with Franklyn MacVeagh, announced to the police that on either July 12th or 13th he overheard from an alley an excited discussion in the back room of a saloon, which developed into an Anarchists' meeting, having for its purpose arrangements to accomplish the assassination of President McKinley, John D. Rockfeller and J. Pierpont Morgan. According to Mr. McMurray the description of the man who is said to have preceded Czolgosz in the reception line, and protected him as far as possible till the shots were fired, tallies with his recollection of the meeting Mr. McMurray overheard. Senator T. E. Ellsworth is said to have given out the facts concerning the previous plot against the life of President McKinley. The following is the story as obtained:—

The plot was matured in Paterson, N. J., three months ago, and Emma Goldman, Luis Bernstein and other prominent anarchists are said to have been concerned in it. Michaelo Anutzi, a young tailor, living in New York, was delegated to do the deed. He immediately left for San Francisco, where he expected to meet McKinley, who was then on his western tour. He made the acquaintance of a young man there who professed to believe in the same doctrines and who was accepted by Anutzi as a "brother." In an inadvertent moment he told this brother of his mission in San Francisco, and was promptly arrested, the "brother" proving to be a secret service detective. Owing to the condition of Mrs. McKinley at that time the matter was hushed up, the culprit being charged with vagrancy. He was sent to the San Francisco workhouse to serve a sentence of nine months.

THIS MAN HEARD PLOT HATCHED.

Chicago, Sept. 10.

Charles H. McMurray, employed by a wholesale grocery house in this city, has notified the police that on the night of July 12 or 13, he is not sure which, while waiting for his suburban train at the main station of the Illinois Central road, he overheard three men discussing plans to kill President McKinley, and two well known New York capitalist. After talking a few minutes the three shook hands and went toward the Michigan Central train for Buffalo. McMurray says he told the policeman on duty at the station and after a few days had practically forgotten the occurrence. The description of one of the men given by McMurray is not unlike the appearance of Czolgosz, and it is known that on July 12 he was in Chicago going east to Buffalo that night.

POPE SPEAKS OF THE ATTEMPT.

The Pope today, after mass, conversed with several cardinals concerning the shooting of President McKinley, and expressed his strong regrets. "It is deplorable that modern society," he said, "cannot protect itself against the sect that under the guise of politics, commits the most horrible crimes, striking down the chiefs of State, and yet having the greatest civil liberty, casting confusion into the midst of the most peaceful and industrious of nations.

"Mr. McKinley is a model man and President. Whoever strikes such a man is a madman or a depraved offender. The wounds inflicted upon the American President are a bloody injury to the entire people. I ascertain that American Catholics, as well as those of the entire world, will unanimously testify their sympathy for Mr. McKinley and their horror at the ferocious crime.

BUFFALO.

We should hardly know how to get along without the American Newspaper Directory. We regard it by all odds the most complete and reliable guide that the advertiser can make use of; in fact we use no other.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 24, 1901.
R. V. PIERCE, M.D.,
President World's Dis. Med. Ass'n.

VERMONT.

The American Newspaper Directory stands, as it has, always stood, the first and best of newspaper directores—the only one which cannot be ignored, the only one which every advertiser must have. No other can take its place; no other is needed.—Joseph Auld, in the Burlington (Vt.) News of July 3, 1896.

ADVISOR.

The Advisor accepts the American Newspaper Directory as the standard in newspaper ratings. The obstacles which obstruct its efforts to get true and reliable information are many.

The directory question is one which interests every publisher in the country—nay, the entire world. But in the United States, directories are becoming altogether too numerous. In this, as with other books of reference, it is necessary to have one which may be relied on as being an authority on the matter of newspaper circulations. There can be no question about the fact that at this time, as for many years past, the American Newspaper Directory is that authority. The Advisor is not paid to make this announcement. It makes the statement in the interest of advertisers and publishers because it is true. One thing the advretiser is almost cock-sure of when he refers to the American Newspaper Directory is that the circulation figures he sees therein are not overstated to any great extent. In most other directories they are. Only the publisher himself is to be blamed for no tsecuring a proper rating in that publication, and every advertiser of consequence knows it. Thus the publisher who refuses to furnish a statement places himself under a reasonable suspicion.—The Advisor for June.

New York, June, 1901.

CHICAGO.

Messrs. Geo P. Rowell & Co's American Newspaper Directory has long since earned the reputation of being the best of its character. It contains the result of patient, expensive and systematic effort to secure all attainable information of interest concerning American newspapers. The work has been honestly done. This will not be questioned by any unprejudiced examiner. The most important question is circulation. In attempting to give this information the Editor of the Directory encounters his most difficult work. It is the aim and necessity of the Directory to give the truth. The American Newspaper Directory is to-day the dependence and guide in a greater or less degree, of every large advertiser in the country.—Chicago (Ill.) Daily News.

BATES.

No man who advertises can afford to do without it.

What Bradstreet and Dun are to the mercantile world. The American Newspaper Directory is to the world of periodical publications.

A new advertiser will get from the American Newspaper Directory a better idea of the greatness of his country, and the tremendous possibilities in newspaper advertising, than from any other source.

If an advertiser spends only $100 a year he should have the American Newspaper Directory. For his business may grow and his right expenditure of his money become increasingly important. The time to learn now to spend $10,000 a year, is before it is spent, otherwise the spending may be disastrous.

Many times the best paper in town costs the advertiser no more than the poorest. The American Newspaper Directory tells which is which.

The paper that was the leader in its town five years ago may lag behind to-day. Even one year may witness astonishing changes. If you are spending money for publicity it is vastly important that you should know where to get the most of it for the price. The American Newspaper Directory gives not only the present circulation rating of every paper in America, but show their history by quoting past ratings.

The book costs five dollars a copy, and a single reference to it may readily save or make many times its cost.

All newspaper directories but one are erroneously optimistic about circulations. The American Newspaper Directory may occasionally err on the other side, but that makes it all the safer for the advertiser.

My advertising experience began in 1885, and one of the first things I did was to buy a copy of the American Newspaper Directory.

For sixteen years Rowell's "The American Newspaper Directory" has had a place of honor and usefulness on my desk.

Many a publisher is ready to prove by other directories that "Rowell's is wrong," but few indeed can be induced to prove it by opening their circulation books to the advertiser.

Among publishers who are not willing that their real circulations be known, it is the best hated book in print. The moral is not far to find.

CHARLES AUSTIN BATES.
New York, June 24, 1901.

PABST.

If the improvement of the American Newspaper Directory continues in the future as it has during the past twenty years I do not think I shall live long enough to see any other directory take its place. There will, however, be the usual crop of directories just as every other good thing is imitated. Your long years of experience in dealing with evasive circulation reports have most admirably fitted you for placing a proper valuation upon such statements. Advertisers have come to know that the Rowell estimates are nearer the proper figure than can otherwise be obtained. The American Newspaper Directory is therefore indispensable in every well regulated advertising department. Lines are being more tightly drawn every day; it is difficult to collect for twenty thousand when you print only eight. If the advertiser were buying barley he would not accept three pecks for a bushel, although the quality might at all times be open for discussion.

The American Newspaper Directory is the guide and companion of the advertising man, and it is to the interest of all concerned to help perfect it, support it, and hurrah for it.

SAPOLIO.

A growing need created it—the advertising agency system. One of the earliest and most successful workers, Geo. P. Rowell, is still in the field. He originated methods. Others follow. His publication of a list of all the papers—the American Newspaper Directory. He has never ceased to love it, and labor for it. Soon out of the gross stupidity of imitation, it became a rule that every agency down to those of Oshkosh or Oklahoma must issue its own directory. An awful waste, for not more than one out of ten was worth shelf room. If the National Association of Advertising Agents could agree long enough to buy Mr. Rowell's Directory, publish it officially and drop all the others, it would accomplish something.

SOUTHERN.

We subscribe to and pay cash for the American Newspaper Directory, and find it of great value in our advertising department. We have 6,89. miles of railway, extending from Washington, D. C., all over the South, and in advertising this system we use more than 1,000 publications, and in selecting this list we find that we get a correct idea of circulation from this Directory that can not be obtained from any other similar publication. We receive other newspapr directories gratis, but the fact that we pay cash for this one in addition shows that we can not place the same dependence upon the "free list."

We thoroughly appreciate the careful manner in which this Directory is compiled.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13, 1900.
JOS. H. HANNEN,
Adv. Dept. Southern Railway.

I am looking forward to receiving the new edition with a great deal of anticipation, as, although the American Newspaper Directory seemed to have reached a high state of perfection several years ago, there is always something new and of value in each succeeding edition. It is regarded as the standard authority with the Southern Railway.

BALTIMORE.

We have used the American Newspaper Directory for many years and find it more valuable to us than any other similar publication. Much of the information given we cannot obtain in any other way. ENORMOUS FIRE IN CHINA

Acres of Foo-Chow Burned and Many Native Robbers Killed by Troops.

Vancouver, B. C. Sept. 12.—Details of the great fire in Foo-Chow on Aug. 20, which destroyed over $1,000,000 worth of property, were received by the steamer Tartar. They announce that the fire was caused by the overturning of a lamp in a native undertaking establishment. Acres of business houses were carried away and many people perished. The fire burned the greater part of two days. European proprietors of business houses and larger Chinese merchants were the heaviest sufferers.

During the progress of the fire and immediately after it the cooly native population commenced looting the half-burned buildings and stole everything that they could lay hands on. The Chinese police under their European officers were unable to prevent the looting and the second evening regular soldiers were called out. By that time many people had been killed in fights and there were dead bodies in every street. Five men were killed by the falling of a three-story building.

The soldiers, mounted, dashed up the main thoroughfares, stabbing to death or trampling under horses' feet the robbers who were carrying away goods in every direction.

MILLIONAIRE PUT IN A CELL

David Wolf Bishop Drives Automobile Too Fast and is Arrested.

New York, Sept. 12.—William Vanderbilt, Jr., and Foxhall Keene can console with their friend David Wolf Bishop, Jr., on the woes of an automobilist. Mr. Bishop, who belongs to the Millionaires' and other exclusive clubs, was locked in a cell for three hours yesterday afternoon on complaint of John B. Sexton, president of the board of health and a friend of Richard Croker. Mr. Sexton charged Mr. Bishop with driving an automobile faster than sixteen miles an hour, causing a horse to run away with the carriage in which Mr. and Mrs. Sexton were riding.

Mr. Bishop was arrested after an exciting chase of half a mile up Seventh avenue, and, with two companions was taken to the West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street police station. The young man produced over $31,000 in cash, but the money was refused and Mr. Bishop was taken to a cell.

THE PRICE OF COAL.

Coal is now selling in Peterborough for $7.00 per ton. The price up to the first of September was $6.50.

There is little likelihood that it will be any cheaper. The coal mines and railroads connecting with them are in the hands of a giant trust, so that no relief is possible.

H. P. Kennedy's Announcement

As the season is approaching when people buy fresh beef, lamb and mutton by the quarter, a few words to our customers will explain our position as compared with other competitors, for supplying the best meat at wholesale prices. Being the largest wholesale buyers of live stock in the Midland district, we have the opportunity each week of placing the best stock that can be secured before our customers at lowest prices.

We are in a position to sell our beef, (quality considered), also mutton and lamb by the quarter, as low or lower, than you can purchase it for on the public market, and a visit to our store at any time will convince you of the fact.

As we are handling in the beef line nothing but the CHOICEST STEERS AND HEIFERS, and the quarters will likely be too large for customers to buy, we will sell anything OVER 50 LBS. WEIGHT AT WHOLESALE PRICES.

REMEMBER THESE FACTS:

We have one of the best equipped Meat Markets in Canada, and handle a better quality of beef than you can buy in any other meat market in town.

We are in a position to buy our lambs cheaper than our competitors, and are willing to give the public the benefit. This week we are selling lamb by the quarter AT 7 CENTS FOR FRONTS and 9 CENTS FOR HINDS, and our mutton at 6 CENTS FOR FRONTS and 8 CENTS FOR HINDS.

We also carry a full line of cured meats, such as Long Clear Bacon Hams, Breakfast Bacon, Cooked Hams, Sausage, etc., also Fowl in season.

Watch the daily papers for changes in prices. We guarantee satisfaction. Remember the stand, 340 George st. Phone 275. Kennedy's Meat Market.

FAMINE THREATENS KOREA

Lack of Rain Results in Prohibition of Rice Exports.

Portland, Ore., Sept. 12.—The steamship Knight Companion, of the Portland & Asiatic Line, arrived yesterday from Hongkong and Yokohama.

The Kobe Herald of August 1 says: "Yesterday the Korean Government issued an order that no rice or grain should be exported, the cause being that little short of a famine threatens the country on account of a lack of rain. The whole country is in a most dreadful state. Many farmers have planted other crops in the rice fields, and these are fast dying for want of rain."

The Kobe Herald of August 12 says: "An earthquake of a more serious character than has been experienced in Japan for many years occurred at Aomeriken on Saturday. Railways were badly damaged. There were considerable subsidences between the towns of Shiriuchi and Numazaki."

THE PIGEON CREEK BRIDGE.

The Bridge to be Placed in a Good State of Repair.

It will be pleasing news for our friends on the other side of Pigeon Creek, to know that the bridge is to be thoroughly overhauled and repaired.

Hundreds of farmers pass over this bridge to Peterborough market, and the dangerous condition of the bridge has lessened the traffic very materially.

County Engineer Belcher has been authorized to make the repairs, which will include 500 lineal feet of flooring and five new floats.

A Lost Key.

They had only been married a short time, and when they moved into a cozy little nest of a house in the south end, near the electric works, they were in the seventh heaven of delight. Such mundane things as door keys were farthest from their thoughts and that is how they came to be locked out one night last week. They had returned home rather late, and before they reached the house Hubby had discovered the absence of his key. He turned all his pockets inside out, but it was not there. He had either left it in the house, or had lost it; he wasn't sure which. The windows were tried, but they were tightly locked. Then Hubby rang up the man next door, explained his predicament, and requested the loan of his key, thinking it might fit both locks. The neighbor granted this request, and Hubby fumbled around in the dark for his own keyhole. When he found it, it was only to discover that his own key was sticking in the lock where he had left it previous to going out. All the neighbors now have the laugh on him.

Nervousness, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, and kindred ailments, take wings before the healing qualities of South American Nervine. Thomas Hoskins, of Durham, Ont., took his preacher's advice, followed directions, and was cured permanently of the worst form of Nervous Prostration and Dyspepsia. He has recommended it to others with gratifying results. It's a great nerve builder.—18

Accident to Empress

The steamer Empress broke her rudder gearing when landing at McCracken's on Thursday, and had to be towed to dry dock at Burleigh for repairs. A number of passengers, some of whom went up to Stony Lake for the day, were obliged to remain over night.

PHILOSOPHER-AT-LARGE

Many cities smaller than New York congratulate themselves on having no cars but trolley. Many New Yorkers congratulate themselves on having few horse cars left, and even look back wistfully to the time when the omnibuses used to traverse Broadway and you could take an uncrowded afternoon airing thereon, contemplating the pedestrians from the vantage point of height. That you can no longer do this, and that the multitudinous trolleys are crowded, prove how vastly the population has increased, and make one marvel what shape rapid transit will take when the population doubles. The few lingering horse cars jog along restfully through the great marts. Their beasts of burden are a paradox of tranquility amid the insolent sweep of their electric rivals.

When Campbell wrote "The Pleasures of Hope" he was doubtless familiar with the pains of disappointment. Disappointment is merely the ashes of burnt out hope, and hope is disappointment's phoenix. They are each other's alter ego.

Everybody has some time asked of what use are mosquitoes. It now transpires that they exist for the purpose of conveying elephantiasis from one place to another. As the number of people suffering from this malady is extremely small, the mosquito cannot be warmly felicitated upon the conscientiousness and skill wherewith he fulfills the purpose of his being. If human creatures did their tasks as badly civilization would expire. And when the fuss the mosquito makes about it is remembered the hatred he inspires subsides into contempt.

I believe it has already been said that the woman with a past is without a future. But she has the present, and the great question of her life should be, What shall she do with it?

Genius has once more been scientifically declared to be a disease. It is reassuring to know that it is not contagious and will never rise to the dignity of an epidemic.

The two farmers of Moncton, N. B. who five years ago exchanged wives, and have just re-exchanged them, the entire quartet being content, showed a fine disdain of conventional morality and on intuitive sense of human necessities. They may be said to have held their own pretty well, especially when each got her back again.

"She is now in Paris." Perhaps that tells the whole story of her husband's bankruptcy. "He is now in Paris." Possibly that is the solution of his mother's broken heart and his father's white hair, or perhaps no hair at all. "They are now in Paris." and there a good many of them will remain, parasites, battening on the best of what is worst in that beautiful city, and moving, the worst among the best of the American colony.

The average number of children per family in European countries is lowest in France, with 3.03; Switzerland, 3.94; Austria and Belgium, 4.05; England, 4.08; Germany, 4.10; Holland, 4.22; Scotland, 4.46; Italy, 4.56; Spain, 4.65; Russia, 4.83; while Ireland is highest, with an average of 5.20 children in each family.

A horse will live twenty-five days without solid food merely drinking water. A bear will go for six months while a viper can exist for ten months without food. A serpent in confinement has been known to refuse food for twenty-one months.

An apparatus for condensing sea fog into drinking water has been invented by Prof. Bell. It will be welcomed as a desideratum by ocean voyagers.

The United States produces more honey than any other nation. As long as thirty years ago the product was 15,000,000 pounds annually. Twenty years ago it had risen to 25,000,000 pounds, and ten years ago it was 65,000,000 pounds. At the present time Iowa produces 9,000,000 pounds of honey annually, and many States, including California, produce from 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 pounds a year.

A business woman of Arizona who cleared $4000 the past season on the sale of olives, has made a new departure in their preparation. She used the same formula as for mustard pickles, and the demand exceeds the supply, from the start. She intends to put up her whole crop in October in the new way, and her invention marks a change in marketable olives.

More people over one hundred years old are found in mild climates than the higher latitudes. According to the German empire, of a population of 55,000,000 only 78 have passed the hundredth year. France with a population of 40,000,000 has 213 centenarians. In England there are 116. In Ireland 578 and in Scotland 46. Sweden has 10 and Norway 23. Belgium 5 Denmark 2, Switzerland none. Spain with a population of 18,000,000 has 401 persons over one hundred years of age. Of the 2,250,000 inhabitants of Servia, 575 have passed the century mark.

$50 AND COSTS.

An Eastern Hotelman Punished by County Magistrate Edmison.

County Police Magistrate Edmison held court in Havelock on Tuesday, when James Moloney, of Cardova mines was charged with selling liquor without license. He was found guilty and fined $50 and costs.

Philip Metcalfe, of the same place was up on a similar charge, but was acquitted.

Twenty witnesses were examined in the two cases.

CALLS FOR UNITED ACTION.

International Measures Urged Against Anarchists in London.

London, Sept. 12.—The attack upon President McKinley still forms the principal topic of British newspapers. The president's ultimate recovery is now taken for granted.

The question how to deal with anarchy is discussed on every side. It is felt that if the president shiply recovers he will not have suffered in vain if the outrage results in stronger measures to suppress anarchism. All the morning papers have leading articles on the subject and almost all the identical in tone. Satisfaction is expressed that the panic measures—such as vigilance committees, wholesale arrests and the like—contempleted under the first shock of outrage have given way to calmer suggestions.

Two proposals are now advocated by the British and foreign papers. The first is to hold another international conference with a view to the organization of an international police force whose duty would be to keep watch upon such criminals. The second is to treat anarchist propaganda as crime. The Daily news alone utters an editorial warning against the danger to free government and free opinion involved in such repressive measures, which "would easily result in confounding the innocent with the guilty."

"The feeling of the British financial world," said Lord Rothschild this morning, "is that President McKinley will get well and everything come out all right. Hence the rise of American securities on the Stock Exchange above parity."

Asked if he thought the financial condition of the United States was strong enough to withstand the worst contingency, Lord Rothschild said:

"We are not dealing with hypothesis. We think President McKinley will live and that is sufficient. To-day's rise is due to a general belief in that and to no concerted action on the part of financial leaders."

"In the name of the Irish nationalist party I send an expression of deepest sympathy. Ireland abhors the dastardly crime."

FINED $40 AND COSTS.

Charlie Pogue, Formerly of Peterborough, Pinched in Hamilton.

The Hamilton Times says: Horse traders and sellers have troubles just the same as some of the people who do business with them have. Charles Pogue and William Hunter, who deal in horses, had theirs this morning. They were before Magistrate Jelfs on a charge of furious driving on Market street on Aug. 10th. From the evidence given it appears that Mr. C. Cook, hotel-keeper, of Waterdown, came to the city on the date named and took in the races at the Jockey Club track. He went with Billy Hunter, and expressed a wish for a fast roadster. Pogue had just the kind of an animal, and in the evening the animal was "worked out" on Market street.

Pogue held the ribbons on his own beast. Hunter and Cook sat in another rig. The race started at Bay street and Pogue's horse went to the front at once. Pogue's pony was first at Park street by three lengths. It dashed into Mr. Anderson's rig and threw the driver out. Hunter's horse came fast and dashed into the overturned rigs. Mr. Anderson had three ribs broken and was rendered unconscious. He was so badly bruised that he has not been able to work since.

A great many witnesses were called on both sides. Mr. Anderson and two credible witnesses testified the Anderson rig was going south on Park street slowly. Witnesses for the defence denied the horses were racing, but Mr. Cook admitted the Pogue pony was going at a fast clip.

Both defendants were found guilty and were fined $40 and costs. The Magistrate remarked that it is a good thing that there is an ordinance against furious driving on the streets. Mr. Harrison was counsel for the complainant, who intends taking action in the Civil Court to try to get damages for injuries sustained and for loss of time.

A TILE FLOOR.

The Post Office to be Refloored in a Handsome Manner With Tile

The Times is informed that the Post Office is to be refloored with tile at at an early date. The disgraceful condition of the floor of the building was pointed out a few days ago to the Minister at Ottawa, by Mr. J. H. McClellan, and a promise was given that a tile floor would be put in.

Mr. McClellan certainly deserves the hearty thanks of the public for his zeal in bringing the matter to the attention of the authorities.

Kennedy's Meat Market.

The Times directs the attention of its readers to the announcement of Mr. H. P. Kennedy, which appears in to-day's issue, relative to the facilities which he has for handling meats. That Mr. Kennedy is able, through his large transactions in live stock, to keep his customers supplied with a better class of meat than can be found elsewhere, is everywhere admitted. The Editor of The Times can speak from experience in regard to the fine quality of these meats. They are of the very best that can be produced. This can easily be verified by ordering, and those who do so will find the goods of a very superior quality.

The Historical Society.

The Horticultural Society will hold its annual meeting in the Victoria Museum this evening. A large attendance of members is particularly requested, as business of imprtanceo is coming before the meeting.

SULTAN ON HIS KNEES SEEKS PEACE WITH FRANCE

Abdul Hamid Seeks Peace With the French.

Wants Diplomatic Relations Resumed at Once.

Bases Request on Settlement of The Tubini Claim

Paris, Sept. 13.—It is expected in official circles here that the sultan of Turkey will ask the French government, now that the Tubini claim has been settled by direct negotiations between the claimant and the porte, to resume diplomatic relations.

France, however, will reject any such proposition and until the sultan has yielded in the case of the Lorando claim, which is nearly four times the amount of the Tubini claim, M. Constans will not return to Constantinople Advices from that city say it is believed the Lorando claim will soon be settled.

The attitude of the sultan toward the French claims is undoubtedly attributable to the execution of the decree of the French minister of the interior in expelling Turkish spies from France. The decree had been held back for several days in the hope that the sultan who naturally was aware that it had been drawn up, would take the hint, but the patience of the government was finally exhausted and yesterday Feridoun Bey, head of the Turkish police in Paris, and another spy were ordered to leave France. This step was followed by to-day's announcement that the sultan had settled the Tubini claim.

ANARCHY IN THE ARMY.

Paris, Sept. 13.—Serious anarchistic agitations are occurring in all departments of the French army and navy, mainly among the reservists. The shooting of President McKinley has given an impetus to the feeling of discontent among the military and to the revolutionary tendencies which have manifested themselves more or less of late.

At Monteceau-les-Mines some hundreds of reservists who were returning in uniform today from the army maneuvres entered the town singing the "Internationale" and other revolutionary songs.

A force of gendarmes attempted to disperse the reservists, but the latter fixed bayonets and charged on the police, with cheers for anarchy and a social revolution.

The gendarmes were scattered. The soldiers then held a mass meeting and passed a resolution in favor of a revolution.

The principal grievances of the soldiers against the present anti-military administration are the poor pay and rations provided. All petitions for relief have been disregarded and amelioration of present conditions are not hoped for from President Loubet and his cabinet. In the riots that have occurred during the past two years the regime found to their surprise that the soldiers openly sided with the rioters and that anarchy was obtaining a strong foothold in the army.

Many of the Paris evening papers tonight point to the affray at Monteceau-les-Mines as a warning of the peril that threatens the nation unless immediate reforms are instituted.

President Loubet late tonight summoned his cabinet for a special meeting.

NAPOLEAN'S OPPORTUNITY.

Should war break out between France and Turkey, Prince Napolean will no doubt offer his services to France. Should they be refused the Royalist party will make a coup.

AS OTHERS SEE US.

The Monetary Times Has a Word To Say About the Town.

Peterborough's Great Prosperity, and Her Unequalled Facilities for Manufacturing.

The Monetary Times has the following: Topographical treatises inform us that in 1818 the whole of what is now the county of Peterborough was one vast wilderness known as the "Indian grounds beyond Rice Lake," which was but seldom explored even by the adventurous hunters of the front settlements of Lake Ontario. About that year a small colony of mountaineers from Cumberland, Eng., obtained grants of land in the newly surveyed township of Smith, and just outside the limits of the present town of Peterborough they erected a rude log cabin. Many are the graphic descriptions of how these first inhabitants fared when as would occasionally happen, their scanty stores of provisions gave out. The first white man to settle on the seven hills amid which, like Rome, Peterborough stands, was Adam Scott, and up to the year 1825, he and two or three workmen employed at his saw and grist mill were the only inhabitants. The life led by these pioneers, till as late as the third decade of the nineteenth century, was a hard one, amid a veritable wilderness.

Behold, now, what a difference! In all directions, good macadamized streets with fine business buildings and tree-embowered, tasteful residences! Daily communication by boat or railroad to all parts! A flourishing town (which should be a city) of 13,000 enterprising inhabitants, with factories, stores and all the appliances of civilized life, set in the centre of a thrifty, fertile farming and stock-raising district. What a contrast it presents; what an epitome of the progress made by this country during the last three-quarters of a century, and what a forecast of the destiny in store for many regions which are now in the same state in which Peterborough and its vicinity then were.

The first beginning of prosperity was when Sir Peregrine Maitland, in response to the petition of a Smith deputation, built the Government grist mill. Shortly after this, two steamers began to navigate the waters of Rice Lake, plying daily to Peterborough. Since then there has been no real boom; on the other hand, progress has been somewhat slow, but it has been very sure. The result, however, shows up in a substantial manner, for among the many prosperous communities of the Dominion of the second and third-sized variety, few can be found to rival Peterborough in its general appearance or solid prosperity.

These thoughts occurred to us a short time ago, when two representatives of The Monetary Times had a very pleasant trip to the town and its vicinity. They discovered, in their talk with the manufacturing and business community a general air of optimism prevailing, which was not hard to account for. The people are beginning to feel, in spite of the large number of up-to-date enterprises at present in existence, and others which are coming, notably the American Cereal Co., who are about to start construction on their factories with a working force of some 700 men, that they have not yet taken half full enough advantage of the wonderful water-power they have at command. A strong desire is being shown to remedy this comparative neglect of their opportunities, and we believe that before long, owing to the efforts of its enterprising citizens, the the inducements the town can offer for manufacturing enterprises will become better known throughout the country.

One of the most interesting sights we have seen for a long time was the construction on the lift-lock of the Trent Valley canal, which is now well under way. The scheme for a canal to connect the waters of Lake Simcoe, and ultimately of Georgian Bay with Lake Ontario, was first conceived in 1833 but the principle upon which this lift-lock is being built is comparatively new. In fact it only exists in practice in two or three cases in Belgium and Germany, but whereas in these cases the lift is only 35 feet or less, in the Trent Valley canal vessels will be lifted on a pan to the height of 65 feet. The masonry work, full of tunnels and other complicated turns, is wonderfully solid and appears, to the eye of a layman at any rate, as though it would last for ever.

PRESIDENT McKINLEY'S CONDITION.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 13.---The following bulletin was issued by the President's physicians at 11.30 p. m:

CHAMBERLAIN'S LIFE THREATENED.

London, Sept. 13.—Marshal Faugerou, who has been in jail for a week awaiting trial on a charge of murdering a German named Jung, swore in the Police Court today that there was a plot to kill Joseph Chamberlain His story is not looked upon lightly by the authorities, but on the other hand has had considerable credence attached to it. Fougerou is a Frenchman, and the defence he is putting up displays the exercise of remarkable ingenuity. Nobody can very well contradict his statement that Jung tried to bribe him to assassinate the great commoner. There seems to be very little doubt that the murdered man in years gone by had taken part in many revolutionary movements. It is said he is one of the founders of the International Workingmen's Association, which more than a quarter of a century since was regarded with a certain amount of trepidation by European Governments.

PRESIDENT McKINLEY EATS SOLID FOOD NOW

He Slept Well Last Night And Had Coffee, Toast And Chicken Broth.

TWO DOORS LOCKED.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 13.

Last night two more doors were locked against the arch enemy of mankind. The danger from the two sources was pronounced practically over. The holes in the stomach proper, caused by the perforation of the bullet, are now considered healed by Dr. McBurney and his associates, and the eminent surgeon pointed to the fact that the beef juice fed to the patient last night through the mouth was readily digested as proof of this. Sufficient time has also elapsed to warrant the doctors in asserting that the danger of inflammation where the bullet lodged has disappeared. It is believed that the ball has now become encysted in the muscles of the back, and unless its location should prove troublesome later on there will never be any necessity for removing it.

A GOOD SIGN.

Another milestone passed on the road to recovery was the discontinuance last night by the doctors of the figures showing respiration variations in their official bulletins The President now breathes deeply and normally, and the addition of the respiration record to the bulletin was considered valueless. The President's pulse was slightly accelerated in the afternoon, but the change was not deemed material, and his temperature remained practically stationary at 100.2 from daylight until dark.

The evidence of improvement was the President's keen relish of the beef juice given him during the day and the increase in his allowance from one to three teaspoonfuls, and the fact that the wound is becoming "more healthy." These two words of the afternoon's bulletin furnished the only vague note in the official record for the day. But even the possibility that there was anything serious behind this disturbing bit faded away when Dr. McBurney subsequently explained that the slight irritation of the wound still remaining should pass away within the next 24 hours. The President continues in excellent spirits; but he confessed to one of the attendants yesterday that he was getting lonesome

ANOTHER BED.

He requested that he be placed in another bed. A depression had formed in the mattress in which he has lain since he was taken to the Milburn house, and had caused some discomfort Another bed was provided, and he was carefully moved to it without difficulty. He has asked several times of there was any news which he should know, but enquiries, especially about public matters, are discouraged, and the rigid inhibition against the admission of anyone except his wife and faithful secretary has not been relaxed. It is now virtually decided that no attempt will be made to remove the President to Washington until he has completely recovered and in a general way it can be said there is no liklihood that this will be until October. The physicians are all agreed that no attempt should be made to take the President to Washington while the probability of an oppressive hot spell in the capital city remained. Mrs. the tragedy occurred. She went out for a drive again to-day, and appeared bright and cheerful.

Czolgoszs' Family.

Posen, Polish Prussia, Sept. 13—The family of Leon Czolgoz, the anarchist who attempted to assassinate the President hails from Corkkwiee, near Znin, in the Province of Posen.

Examination of his Blood Establishes Conclusively That There is no Poisoning.

SECRET MEETINGS IN CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, SEPT. 12.

The police of a dozen cities are using every endeavour to obtain evidence that will demonstrate beyond the shadow of a doubt that Emma Goldman, the anarchist, held a number of secret meetings while in Cleveland last May., and that it was at one of these rather than at the public meeting that she made the incendiary speech which inflamed the mind of Czolgosz, and caused him to shoot President McKinley.

The police officials are assisted by every available man in the secret service department in this task. They will attempt to show that while in Cleveland meetings were held at which the assassination of the President was planned.

Mathew J. Cloughlin, sergeant of detectives at Buffalo, is in the city working on the Goldman case. He will remain in Cleveland several days.

PRESIDENTS CONDITION WORSE

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 13.

The following bulletin was issued by the President's physicians at 12 o'clock midnight:—

The President's condition at this hour is not as good. His food does not agree with him, and has been stopped. Execration has not yet been properly established. His kidneys are acting well. His pulse is not satisfactory, but has improved in the last hour. His wound is doing well, and he is resting quietly. Temperature 100.2, pulse 128.

All unfavorable symptoms have disappeared since the last bulletin. Temperature 100.2, pulse 120.

WAS SORRY FOR THE HORSE

How a Peterborough Minister's Wife Sympathized with a Parishioner.

A certain ministers wife, who is of a sympathetic turn of mind, dropped in a few days ago to see an old lady, who was a regular attendant at her husband's church. She was given a long account of the troubles of the old lady.

"My poor son," the old woman went on, "has to work so hard. He is a driver for a grocery, and he has to drive from 7 in the morning until 7 at night."

"Tell me where your boy is employed," she said, "and I will do what I can to stop such a dreadful thing. It is intolerable cruelty to drive any horse that long at a stretch. I'll see the grocer to-morrow."

It seemed to the old woman that there was something wrong about the visitor's expression of regret over her son, but it sounded friendly, at all events, and she did not analyze it too deeply.

THE LATEST WAR NEWS

MAFEKING, CAPE COLONY, Sept. 12. The British casualties in the great Maries valley Sept. 6 and 8 when General Methune was engaged with Vantander and Delarey, driving the Boers from a strong position, were 25 killed and 30 wounded, including Capt. Croft.

"Davie" Doig Arrested.

Davie Doig, a junk dealer, was arrested yesterday afternoon, charged with receiving goods, knowing them to have been stolen. The arrest was made in connection with the theft of wire from the Canadian General Electric Company.

MINISTER WU'S WAY.

Chinese Ambassador Suggests a Punishment for Czolgosz As it is China.

Washington, Sept. 13.—Chinese Minister Wu says Czolgosz, the man who attempted to end the life of the President, should receive one thousand cuts from a sharp sabre in the hands of an official of the Government. Each of these cuts should be severe, and the thousandth one be fatal. Then every member of his family should be killed. The latter punishment is on account of the belief that if there is a dangerous person in a family the remainder are likewise dangerous, and should be put out of existence. In China such a fate is known as the Li Ching punishment, inflicted upon those guilty of patriside. Mr. Wu claims that Czogosz is guilty of patricide, because he attempted to murder the father of his country.

Dancing Classes.

Prof. O. Sheets will re-open his dancing classes in Peterborough about Sept 24th. During his stay here last winter and spring, he became very popular as a teacher of dancing and physical deportment. His classes are, therefore, likely to be well patronized.

THIS IS A PROPER PUNISHMENT

Coat of Tar and Feathers Urged For Applauding Czolgosz.

HE IS EVERYWHERE DESPISED

Wilkesbarre Pa Sept 13—The feeling against James Bird, a member of the Town Council of Plymouth, who, it is alleged, rejoiced on hearing the news of the attempt on the life of President McKinley, is very bitter. At a mass meeting last night condemnatory resolutions against him were adopted. Feeling was so wrought up that if Mr. Bird had been present he would probably have been violently dealt with. Bird in an interview to-day said he was intoxicated at the time, and that he was provoked by the remark of a Republican, when news of the shooting was received: "Some Democrat; all Democrats should be shot." The meeting adopted the following:

"Resolved. That said member of the Town Council should be requested to leave town and, failing to comply, should be treated to a coat of tar and feathers, or other steps should be taken to compel him to leave."

Pittsburg, Sept. 13.—Edward Dawson employed in the machine shop at White Rock, on the Allegheny Valley Railroad, expressed glee over Assassin Czolgosz's act, and to-day was drummed out of the shop and escorted to the railroad station, where he boarded a train and left the place. A large number of people of the town were at the station, and sang "America."

Pottstown, Sept. 12.—Simon S. Tagleiher, an employe of the Glasgow Iron Company, made a remark derogatory to President McKinley and expressed gratification that he had been shot, adding that it ought to have been done six months ago. When the company's attention was called to the matter, Tagleiher apologized, but was suspended for one month from the company's employ.

BY AAIL TO ASIA.

Project For Bridging Behring Sea for Railway Between America and Asia.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 13.—A project is being considered by the combination of capitalists represented by J. Pierpont Morgan and J. J. Hill., and French and Russia financiers, to bridge the Behring Sea and connect the old and new worlds by a railroad. Robert Barber, general manager of the Russo-Chinese Bank, and president of the trans-Siberian road, with M. De Lobel, representing French capital, who are in the United States furthering the scheme, have had several interviews at St. Paul with J. J. Hill, who favours the scheme.

The road is planned to run from Circle City, Alaska, on the American side of the international boundary line, following a course north of the Yukon River, south of the Arctic circle to Cape Princes of Wales, the extreme western point of the American continent, thence crossing Behring Strait to Siberia. The same financial syndicate that proposes to build on the American side, with the aid of the Russian Government, also proposes to build a line from the east coast of Sibera in a south-westerly direction, connecting with the trans-Siberian line at Vladivostock, and finding an outlet into China via the Manchurian railroad.

PRESERVE THE ISLANDS

The following letter appeared in the Toronto World of Sept 11th, and speaks for itself.

I was pleased to see the stand taken by "Canadian" in your paper in reference to selling the Thousand Islands. Not only those Islands but all breathing spots of the country should be the common heritage of its people. We have in our rear the beautiful stretch of lakes known as the Kawartha Lakes famous alike for their scenic beauty and fishing grounds, but what do we find? Take Stony Lake, one of the chain, as a sample. Here we have 365 islands of various sizes, which at one time were the camping grounds for our citizens generally regardless of distinction. Now, they are pre-empted by political favorites and the land speculator, and the less favored ones are shut out or must submit to such terms as the masters of the situation may dictate. The ridiculously small amount realized by the sale of these Islands was a mere bagatelle to the treasury of this country, and could form no justification for depriving its citizens of their common heritage.

UHE LIBERAL TRIP.

About Thirty Members of the Party Start From Sarnia.

Sarnia, Sept. 13.—Yesterday afternoon a party of about 30 prominent members of the Liberal party from various parts of Ontraio were passengers upon the steamer Monarch on a trip to Sault Ste. Marie. The arrangements for the trip were made by Mr. Geo. M. Reid of London, and the object was to provide a pleasant trip, and at the same time to give the tourists an opportunity of inspecting the great industries now being built up by the Clergue syndicate at Sault Ste Marie. The return will be made by the Georgian Bay route.

ANNJAL MEETING OF HISTORICAL SOCIETY

The Museum is the Mainstay of the Organization

SOME INTERESTINC ADDITIONS.

The annual meeting of the Historical Society took place at Victoria Museum last night.

After reading the minutes of the last annual meeting, the Secretary, Mr. T. A. S. Hay submitted his annual report. The report stated that the condition of the Society was rather dormant, that it was in fact, threatened with extinction only for the marked progress of the Museum, which, although originally intended as an auxiliary, was the main factor in sustaining interest in the work of the Society. Through the kindness of Mr. Richard Hall and Mr. McGill the building had been renovated, calsimined, etc., and provided with electric lights. The society was also indebted to Mr. and Mrs. Nesbitt and Mrs. Birdsall for additions to and rearrangement of the collections. Mrs. Bradburn donated a set of books, some of them of great value, from the library of the late Wm. Hamilton. Mr. and Mrs. Howland, the caretakers, were complimented on the efficient discharge of their duties.

The annual address of the President, Col. H. C. Rogers, gave an interesting account of his visit, in company with the other representatives, Messrs. Hall and Collins, to the meeting of the Provincial Society at Belleville in May last, also of the meeting in the exhibition grounds in Toronto on the 30th August. Disappointment was expressed that the Peterborough Society had failed to remit dues to the Provincial Association. The President congratulated the Society on having acquired the Museum and the fine room for holding their meeting, thanks to Messrs. Richard Hall and McGill, executors to the estate of the late Mrs. Nicholls, to whose munificience the town owes so much.

On motion votes of thanks were tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Nesbitt, Mrs. Birdsall, Messrs. Hall and McGill and Mrs. Bradburn for their aid to the museum.

The election of officers resulted as follows:—

Hon. President, Judge Weller; President, Lieut.-Col. H. C. Rogers; First Vice-President Richard Hall; Second Vice-President, J. B. McWilliams; Third Vice-President, Mrs. Birdsall; Treasurer, Mrs. MacFarlane Wilson; Secretary T. A. S. Hay; Executive Committee, Col. Edwards, Rev. J. C. Davidson, Dr. Harrison, Messrs. Spence Yorkum, Francis and Elcome; Museum Committee, Dr. Burnham, Wm. Strickland and the Secretary.

Mr. John Parnell donated to the museum a portrait of Rev. Mr. Gilmour, a pioneer minister—which led to the suggestion that a gallery of portraits of pioneers be a feature of the museum. Mr. J. B. McWilliams gave specimens of a new metal "mohawkite" which seems heavier than lead and harder than iron. Its properties are not yet ascertained. Miss Watt loaned to the museum some interesting relics, consisting of a horn spoon and a pewter teapot over a hundred years old and a quaint lesson book for children of about the same antiquity.

BRITAIN AND UNCLE SAM.

It is Stated, Have Practically Agreed Upon a Pact to Take the Pact to Take the Place of the Hay-Pauncefote Treaty.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13. — It can be announced upon ample authority that all of the negotiations for the new canal treaty between England and the United States, to take the place of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, have been satisfactorily arranged and nothing now remains to be done except to draw up the draft of the treaty.

This work will be conducted entirely in London by the British Foreign Office and Lord Pauncefote and Mr. Choate, the American Ambassador.

The treaty will be brought to Washington by Lord Pauncefote, when he returns here next month, and will then be signed by representatives of the United States and Great Britain.

The exact lines that the treaty will take upon disputed points as to the fortification of the canal and the abrogation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty cannot, of course, be told, but it is certain that the wording will be satisfactory to the Administration, and to a majority of the United States Senate, else it would not have been practically finished.

Ophir and escort her up to Quebec.

LOCAL NEWS-LETTER

FRAZERVILLE

Last week Messrs Pue and Heron, Rev. Steele, the Misses Fisher and others took in the excursion trip to Toronto, nearly all going on to Buffalo. One of these considers the fact of having met President McKinley one of the chief pleasures of the trip, as the President was then hale and hearty. All are shocked and full of sympathy for the victim of such dastardly treachery as shot down one of the world's best rulers. Mr. Steele has word from a friend that half an hour after the act a piece of the chair used in felling the assassin was sold for twenty-five dollars.

On his return Mr. Pue visited the Massey farm and considers the sight as interesting as most of those he witnessed at the Pan-American, though the Buffalo exhibit was well worth the trip. Our village now possesses interesting mementos of the week's outing.

"Fans" have taken on a remarkable interest this year. One of these was sold outside the exhibition grounds for 15 cents, but on the grounds for 25. When the vendors charging the higher price were asked why the extra was asked, they thought the advantage of purchasing "on the ground" a sufficient reason. Not all thought thus.

There is an earnest desire in this section for rain. While there have been down pours in the neighborhood, Cairo has not had a really heavy rain for over a month. Some of the farmers question the value of plowing as the plow turns up immense chunks which they cannot undertake to break, nevertheless, a number have put in the fall-wheat and some is coming up nicely.

TO SQUELCH ANARCHY

Washington, Sept. 12. — Whatever may be the outcome of the attempt on the life of President McKinley, there is reason for the hope and belief that public sentiment has been so thoroughly aroused that legislation will follow by Congress and the State Legislatures against organizations for the propagation of treason, murder and anarchy, and individual effort for inciting to the perpetuation of such crimes by public declamation and lectures, such as have been given by Emma Goldman and other self proclaimed Anarchists. It may be assumed that legislation of this character will include the prevention and suppression of the numerous publications that are disseminated by Anarchist leaders, and from which they derive revenue to send their murderous agents and infernal machines to various parts of the world. But while legislation may have a most salutary effect in this direction, it has become plainly apparent that the meaningless and tiresome custom of handshaking by the President at large and promiscuous gatherings should be largely curtailed and restricted, if not abolished entirely. The most careful and constant vigilance cannot, perhaps, insure the President against the bullet of the assassin when in the performance of public duty he is required to appear in public, but at least anything that encourages and invites assault should be rigidly avoided. For the President to stand in a position for hours merely that people may have the unrestricted privilege of taking his hand, as was the case at Buffalo, and as has been the custom with his predecessors for years, furnished the opportunity so eagerly awaited by the assassin. This fact has been recognized by persons who have had experience with these public hand-shakings, and they have not hesitated to admonish the President of the lurking danger. Secretary Wilson, who was with President McKinley at Buffalo, was impressed with the folly and danger of the custom, and discussed it with Secretary Cortelyou, who was also impressed with the same feeling. President McKinley had been admonished, but could not be induced to believe a man could be found in America so lost to all human feeling that he would attempt the life of the President, and especially in a time of unparalleled prosperity and universal fraternal feeling. That President McKinley is the victim of this custom of unrestricted hand-shaking there can be no doubt. His would be assassin admits, in a reported conversation, that it furnished the opportunity which he had been seeking for two days, and covering the period of the President's visit to the Exposition. After describing his efforts to get close to the President during the delivery of his address on Thursday, and subsequently when he was going to or departing from the grounds, Czolgosz says, "My plans were all carefully laid. I had failed on other occasions, but when I heard that President McKinley would have a public reception, I knew that fortune had thrown my opportunity in my way." The officers charged with the protection of the President at Buffalo are being sharply criticised because they did not see in the young man who approached with a bandaged hand the assassin he proved to be, but it must be apparent to every thinking person that it is impossible to detect any and every scheme for assassination under such conditions as obtain at these unrestricted hand-shakings. As declared by Czologsz, it was this public reception that afforded the opportunity for successful assault. Of course, an assault cannot be made upon such occasion without instant apprehension of the assailant, but the assailant gives no thought to himself nor the consequences that will come to him.

CONGRESS WILL BE URGED TO ACT

Nothing is more marked in the discussion of the attempt on the life of President McKinley than the promptness with which men in official life have demanded that Congress shall place adequate safeguards around the life of its Executive. It is instantly recognized that the assassin's shot was not directed so much against the man as at the office, and on all sides criticism is general and decisive of the neglect of Congress to invest the Chief Executive with a sanctity which shall avail to protect the life of the man who may happen to occupy the office. It is not unlikely that Congress will be asked to make it high treason to utter, or print, or publish, or disseminate any statement which threatens the life of the President, the Vice President, or any of the Cabinet, who are by statute in the line of succession to the Presidency. The Acting Attorney General, James M. Beck, has promptly expressed his opinion that an attempt on the President's life should be made the subject of legislation which shall afford protection. He urges that the penalty should be no less than that for high treason, and would make any attempt on the life of the Chief Magistrate punishable by death. This position was taken by the late Senator Conkling, at the time of the assassination of President Garfield. The day after the shooting of Garfield by Guiteau, Mr. Conkling wrote a letter to Attorney General MacVeagh, urging this course.

Acting Attorney General Beck, discussing the legal aspects of the attempt on the President's life, says:

"I know of no statute which makes it a criminal offence to attempt the life of the President. That there ought to be such legislation is perfectly clear. There are statutes which make punishable personal violence to minor officials, such as internal revenue agents, but it is passing strange that, notwithstanding the fact that two Presidents have been assassinated, and attempts have been made upon the lives of two more, no law has ever been passed to place an attempt on the life of the President on the same plane as high treason. Where such attempt had no reference to the Presidential office, and was committed within the territorial limits of a State, there might be some question as to the power of Congress to legislate, but where it is clear that the attempt has been made, not upon the individual but upon the President, for the purpose of promoting anarchy, and thus subverting the Government, the right of the Federal Government to protect its Chief Executive seems too clear for question. If the President should be spared to the American people it is to be feared that the assassin can be convicted for no higher crime than an assault, with an intent to kill. Having regard for the immense consequences which follow the assassination of a President an attempt upon his life.

ECZEMA.

That torturing and disfiguring disease has its cause in an impure condition of the blood. The impure condition of the blood often arises from a diseased condition of the stomach and allied organs of digestion and nutrition. When digestion is imperfect, the nutrition of the body is inadequate to its needs. The blood becomes thin, poisons accumulate in it, and these poisons often manifest themselves in some eruptive disease.

Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It eliminates poisonous substances from the blood, purifying it and increasing its quantity and richness. The "Discovery" cures perfectly diseases of the blood and other diseases which originate in a diseased condition of the stomach.

The "Discovery" is absolutely a non-alcoholic and non-narcotic medicine. There is nothing "just as good."

"For three years I have suffered with that dreaded disease, eczema," writes Mrs. J. Koepp, of Herman, Oregon. "I was told to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which I did, and after I had taken fourteen bottles I was permanently cured. It has been a year since I stopped taking your medicine and it has never appeared since. I think your medicine a wonderful cure and hope others suffering as I did will take it and be relieved of their suffering."

Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are powerful aids to the cleansing of the clogged system. By all dealers in medicine.

WILLIAM'S UNEASY HEAD

Berlin, Sept. 12.—It is reported in diplomatic circles here that the kaiser has already caused a strongly worded note to be communicated to the ambassadors of all the great powers urging that an international congress be held with a view to agreeing upon common measures against militant anarchists who seek to paralyze governments by striking at their figureheads. If Washington approves. It is considered probable that such a congress will assemble, though no clear idea of measures efficacious in preventing such crimes has even been given.

Public interest in the condition of President McKinley continues very keen. The papers print a vast amount of matter on the subject, which is the chief topic of conversation. Expressions of sympathy on the part of the people are heard on all sides.

"Permit me, in the name of the reichstag and in behalf of myself, to express to your excellency our most profound execration of the atrocious attempt upon the life of the exalted ruler of the United States, President McKinley, and at the same time to express the hope that the gracious God will preserve the precious life of the president and grant him a speedy recovery."

Dr. Dickie, pastor of the American church, in his sermon yesterday, spoke in the most feeling manner of the attempt on the president's life and expressed the sympathy of the whole congregation and of the American colony.

A TILE FLOOR.

The Post Office to be Refloored in a Handsome Manner With Tile

The Times is informed that the Post Office is to be refloored with tile at an early date. The disgraceful condition of the floor of the building was pointed out a few days ago to the Minister at Ottawa, by Mr. J. H. McClellan, and a promise was given that a tile floor would be put in.

Mr. McClellan certainly deserves the hearty thanks of the public for his seal in bringing the matter to the attention of the authorities.

THE ARREST OF EMMA GOLDMAN

Chicago, Sept. 11

Emma Goldman, the Anarchist firebrand, was arrested here yesterday on a warrant charging her with conspiracy to murder President McKinley. She was discovered at the home of a family named Norris, living at 303 Sheffield avenue, She denied that she was the Goldman woman, and said that her name was Lena Larson, a Swedish woman. Officer Hartz began to question her in Swedish, and she could not answer him. Apen with her name engraved on it brought her to admit her identity. She made her statement to Mayor Carter H. Harrison and Chief O'Neill, and was then taken to the Central Police Station, where she is held. She denied all knowledge of Czolgosz and his crime, admitting only that she met him once on July 12. She said. It was early last July when I came to Chicago to visit the Isaaks family. On the night of July 12 Isaaks was out of the house. The bell rang and I went to the door The man, who I learn through the newspapers was Czolgosz stood there. He said he wanted to see me. I was about to catch the Nickel Plate train, as I and Mr. Isaak's daughter were about to go to Rochester. He went to the Rock Island depot with us, but I was so busy taking leave of my friends that I scarcely noticed him. It was not a time when one would want to make new friends Att he depot I had the few words with him of which I have told. That was all there ever was between us She denies that she ever advocated violence in her lectures.

PRELIMINARY FACTS.

Facts leading up to the arrest of Emma Goldman have developed as follows:— On Saturday night a telegram reached Chicago from the Goldman woman addressed to Albert Verral, 508 Oakdale avenue, asking if it was true that the Isaaks and their associates had been arrested by the Chief of the Chicago police on charges in the attempted assassination of President McKinley. A few hours later a reply was sent to Miss Goldman to the effect that the facts as stated were true, and that the Isaaks and associates were under arrest. It is impossible to learn whence emanated the telegram from MMiss Goldman, or to what point the answer was sent, although the popular belief is that Miss Goldman was in St. Louis at this time. Still Government officers are holding to the idea that she was at a point much nearer Buffalo, or in the city of Buffalo itself. In response to the reply from her telegram sent to Albert Verrall, a message was received from Miss Goldman to the effect that she would be in Chicago on Sunday night. A watch was set on the Verrall house, but no evidence of life was developed until late on MMonday evening, when an unaccompanied woman approached the Verrall house at 508 Oakdale avenue. Failing to gain admission at the front she passed to the side of the house and then to the rear. She was unsuccessful in securing admission into the place, and left, going east on Oakdale avenue to Sheffield, and down Sheffield avenue to 303, where she gained access to a flat building, where Emma Goldman was arrested. United States secret service operatives are absolutely positive that no person has entered or come from these premises since this unknown woman entered there last night, until Emma Goldman, the anarchiist lecturer, was captured when a Chicago city detective scaled a rear wall, and passing through a window, put the much-wanted woman under arrest.

CORROBORATION.

Corroborative circumstances in connection with the case, and in consonance with the statement made by Miss Goldman to the Chicago police after her arrest, gave the following direct chain of evidence; Miss Goldman admits she has been in Buffalo, but sets the dates at variance with the police theory. Miss Goldman says she has met Leon Czolgosz in Chicago, and sets the time of their meeting at July 12, when she says she was departing for, a trip to the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo.

NO NEED FOR ALARM.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 12.

The President has passed a very comfortable night, said the four o'clock bulletin of Drs. Rixey and Wasdin, the two physicians who remained at the President's bedside throughout the night. A few minutes later Dr. Rixey, the President's regular physician, was seen by an Associated Press representative. He displayed no evidence of anxiety, and was emphatic in his characterization off the sensationally alarming reports put in circulation in the early hours of the night as a result of the former bulletin. Dr. Rixey was asked about these reports and he replied earnestly and without any hesitation whatever.

"Those statements are not true. The President is not in a serious condition, and there is no alarm felt over him. The facts are just as stated in the regular bulletins of the physicians, who are anxious that the public shall be fully acquainted with them."

The scare caused by even the faintest indication of trouble in connection with the President's wound coming on the heels of steady and continued improvement was only natural under the circumstances. But there is absolutely no reason to doubt the frankness of the official statement of the physicians that the opening of a few stitches of the wound last night "cannot give rise to other complications," and Dr. Rixey this morning was flat-footed and emphatic in his insistence of the complete truth of this statement. The opening of the wound was in no sense an operation. It was more in the nature of a redressing oof the wound, an antiseptic dressed to allay the slight irritation that had appeared.

The fact that the wound in the President's abdomen is not healing by "first intention" is not a feature at all unusual in such cases, explained by one of the President's physicians. On the contrary, it is usual for gunshot wounds to heal by what is termed "second intention" through granulation. Especially is this the case with older persons, whereas in the case of young people they usually heal by "first intention."

There is absolutely no indication of blood poisoning in the President's case, said the doctor, when a newspaper man hinted that the irritation which had appeared at the exterior wound might have partaken of that nature. As the morning advanced and the usual activities of the day began, the feeling of confidence grew stronger.

PHILOSOPHER-AT-LARGE

Many cities smaller than New York congratulate themselves on having no cars but trolley. Many New Yorkers congratulate themselves on having a few horse cars left, and even look back wistfully to the time when the omnibuses used to traverse Broadway and you could take an uncrowded afternoon airing thereon, contemplating the pedestrians from the vantage point of height. That you can no longer do this, and that the multitudinous trolleys are crowded, prove how vastly the population has increased. and make one marvel what shape rapid transit will take when the population doubles. The few lingering horse cars jog restfully through the great unrest. Their beasts of burden are a paradox of tranquillity amid the insolent sweep of their electric rivals.

When Campbell wrote "The Pleasures of Hope" he was doubtless familiar with the pains of disappointment. Disappointment is merely the ashes of burnt out hope, and hope is disappointment's phoenix. They are each other's alter ego.

Everybody has some time asked of what use are mosquitoes. It now transpires that they exist for the purpose of conveying elephantiasis from one place to another. As the number of people suffering from this malady is extremely small, the mosquito cannot be warmly felicitated upon the conscientiousness and skill wherewith he fulfills the purpose of his being. If human creatures did their tasks as badly civilization would expire. And when the fuss the mosquito makes about it is remembered the hatred he inspires subsides into contempt.

I believe it has already been said that the woman with a past is without a future. But she has the present, and the great question of her life should be, What shall she do with it?

Genius has once more been scientifically declared to be a disease. It is reassuring to know that it is not contagious and will never rise to the dignity of an epidemic.

The two farmers of Moncton, N. B., who five years ago exchanged wives, and have just re-exchanged them, the entire quartet being content, showed a fine disdain of conventional morality and on intuitive sense of human necessities. They may be said to have held their own pretty well, especially when each got her back again.

"She is now in Paris." Perhaps that tells the whole story of her husband's bankruptcy. "He is now in Paris." Possibly that is the solution of his mother's broken heart and his father's white hair, or perhaps no hair at all. "They are now in Paris." and there a good many of them will remain, parasites, battening on the best of what is worst in that beautiful city. and moving, the worst among the best of the American colony.

THIS AND THAT.

At the present time Iowa produces [illegible] pounds of honey annually, and many States, including California, produce from 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 pounds a year.

A business woman of Arizona, who cleared $1000 the past season on the sale of olives, has made a new departure in their preparation. CALLS FOR UNITED ACTION.

International Measures Urged Against Anarchists in London.

London. Sept. 12.—The attack upon President McKinley still forms the principal topic of British newspapers. The president's ultimate recovery is now taken for granted.

The question how to deal with anarchy is discussed on every side. It is felt that if the president shipply recovers he will not have suffered in vain if the outrage results in stronger measures to suppress anarchism. All the morning papers have leading articles on the subject and almost all the identical in tone. Satisfaction is expressed that the panic measures—such as vigilance committees, wholesale arrests and the like—contempleted under the first shock of outrage have given way to calmer suggestions.

Two proposals are now advocated by the British and foreign papers. The first is to hold another international conference with a view to the organization of an international police force whose duty would be to keep watch upon such criminals. The second is to treat anarchist propaganda as crime. The Daily news alone utters an editorial warning against the danger to free government and free opinion involved in such repressive measures, which "would easily result in confounding the innocent with the guilty."

"The feeling of the British financial world," said Lord Rothschild this morning, "is that President McKinley will get well and everything come out all right. Hence the rise of American securities on the Stock Exchange above parity."

Asked if he thought the financial condition of the United States was strong enough to withstand the worst contingency, Lord Rothschid said:

"We are not dealing with hypothesis. We think President McKinley will live and that is sufficient. To-day's rise is due to a general belief in that and to no concerted action on the part of financial leaders."

"In the name of the Irish nationalist party I send an expression of deepest sympathy. Ireland abhors the dastardly crime."

NEW ERA PREDICTED FOR CHINA

Pekin, Sept. 12.—China's awakening to the influences of western civilization is at hand. A new era in government, education and industry dawns today. By imperial decree the old systems, honored since the days of Confucius, are overturned.

Emperor Kwang-Tsu promises to become a modern ruler in every sense of the word.

Liberals are now in control of the entire court of the empire, it is said, and when the imperial household reenters Pekin the new regime is to be inaugurated. That day is near, for the palace is already undergoing renovation preparatory to the entrance of the emperor.

STUPENDOUS CHANGES TO COME.

Changes of a stupendous nature hinge on the imperial decree issued to enlighten the 400,000,000 people in China. The edict provides that the official examinations must include western sciences and industrial methods. It abolishes the traditional eight part classical essays and verbatim reproductions of the classics, proficiency in which has been the chief qualification for office holding. It relegates the classics to the background, requiring only expositions of their meaning.

General Yuan Shi Kai's troops are reentering Pekin and are assuming the work of policing the city. They are a stalwart, welldrilled body of men.

Great forces of workmen are engaged in repairing the palaces and streets.

JAPAN DELAYS A CEREMONY.

London, Sept. 12.—The Times prints a dispatch from Tokio stating that there will be no official reception of the special mission sent by China to apologize for the murder of Sugiyama, the Japanese chancellor of legation at Pekin, until it is presented by the Chinese minister to Japan. No complications are feared, as the Japanese ceremonial only will be required.

NEW TREATY WITH BRITAIN

Washington, Sept. 12.—It is reported here on good authority that arrangements have been completed in London for a new treaty to take place of the defeated Hay-Pauncefote compact and that everything is now ready for its formal drafting.

This will be done by the British foreign office. Lord Pauncefote and Ambassador Choate. The perfected instrument will be brought to this country next month by Lord Pauncefote to receive the necessary signatures before being submitted to the senate. There is reason to believe that the instrument is drafted in accordance with the wishes of the senators who were consulted by Secretary Hay after the defeat of his pet measure and whose wishes in the matter were communicated both to Ambassador Choate and Lord Pauncefote prior to the latter's departure for England.

At the same time Secretary Hay impressed upon the British ambassador the fact that, having once rejected a treaty that gave England so much and the United States so little, it would be useless to send a similar convention to it for consideration, for that would certainly be rejected or possibly left unacted upon by the committee on foreign relations.

The new treaty, it is said, will give the United States the absolute control of the canal without any distinct advantages to Great Britain.

GOD FOR HIS FAMLILY.

Kaiser Wilhelm Says the Almighty Preserves House of Hohenzollern.

Korniberg, Prussia, Sept. 12.—Emperor William, replying to a toast during the luncheon given at the landshaus to-day, spoke at length, eulogizing the founders of the house of Hohenzollern, which he said emphatically, existed by God's grace alone. He urged his hearers to be inspired by the example of his illustrious ancestors and to go forth and reap the rich harvest they have sown, furnishing by their own lives an example of devotion to the common welfare of the whole fatherland.

American Newspaper Directory.

Tells the circulations of all American newspapers. Revised, corrected and reissued every three months. Sixteen hundred pages: Price Five Dollars a volume or $20 a year.

BUFFALO.

We should hardly know how to get along without the American Newspaper Directory. We regard it by all odds the most complete and reliable guide that the advertiser can make use of; in fact we use no other.
Buffalo, N. Y., July 24, 1901.
R. V. PIERCE, M.D.,
President World's Dis. Med. Ass'n.

VERMONT.

ADVISOR.

The Advisor accepts the American Newspaper Directory as the standard in newspaper ratings. The obstacles which obstruct its efforts to get true and reliable information are many.

The directory question is one which interests every publisher in the country—nay, the entire world. But in the United States, directories are becoming altogether too numerous. In this, as with other books of reference, it is necessary to have one which may be relied on as being an authority on the matter of newspaper circulations. There can be no question about the fact that at this time, as for many years past, the American Newspaper Directory is that authority. The Advisor is not paid to make this announcement. It makes the statement in the interest of advertisers and publishers because it is true. One thing the advretiser is almost cock-sure of when he refers to the American Newspaper Directory is that the circulation figures he sees therein are not overstated to any great extent. In most other directories they are. Only the publisher himself is to be blamed for no securing a proper rating in that publication, and every advertiser of consequence knows it. Thus the publisher who refuses to furnish a statement places himself under a reasonable suspicion.—The Advisor for June. New York, June, 1901.

CHICAGO.

Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co's American Newspaper Directory has long since earned the reputation of being the best of its character. It contains the result of patient, expensive and systematic effort to secure all attainable information of interest concerning American newspapers. The work has been honestly done. This will not be questioned by any unprejudiced examiner. The most important question is circulation. In attempting to give this information the Editor of the Directory encounters his most difficult work. It is the aim and necessity of the Directory to give the truth. The American Newspaper Directory is today hte dependence and guide in a greater or less degree, of every large advertiser in the country.—Chicago (Ill.) Daily News.

BATES.

The American Newspaper Directory is the only reliable guide for the advertiser.

No man who advertises can afford to do without it.

What Bradstreet and Dun are to the mercantile world, The American Newspaper Directory is to the world of periodical publications.

A new advertiser will get from the American Newspaper Directory a better idea of the greatness of his country, and the tremendou spossibilities in newspaper advertising, than from any other source.

If an advertiser spends only $100 a year he should have the American Newspaper Directory. For his business may grow and his right expenditure of his money become increasingly important. The time to learn how to spend $10,000 a year is before it is spent, otherwise the spending may be disastrous.

Many times the best paper in town costs the advertiser no more than the poorest. The American Newspaper Directory tells which is which.

The paper that was the leader in its town five years ago may lag behind to-day. Even one year may witness astonishing changes. If you are spending money for publicity it is vastly important that you should know where to get the most of it for the price. The American Newspaper Directory gives not only the present circulation rating of every paper in America, but shows their history by quoting past ratings.

The book costs five dollars a copy, and a single reference to it may readily save or make many times its cost.

All newspaper directories but one are erroneously optimistic about circulations. The American Newspaper Directory may occasionally err on the other side, but that makes it all the safer for the advertiser.

My advertising experience began in 1880, and one of the first things I did was to buy a copy of the American Newspaper Directory.

For sixteen years Rowell's "The American Newspaper Directory" has had a place of honor and usefulness on my desk

Many a publisher is ready to prove by other directories that "Rowell's is wrong," but few indeed can be induced to prove it by opening their circulation books to the advertiser.

Among publishers who are not willing that their real circulations be known, it is the best hated book in print The moral is not far to find.
CHARLES AUSTIN BATES.
New York, June 24, 1901.

PABST.

If the improvement of the American Newspaper Directory continues in the future as it has during the past twenty years I do not think I shall live long enough to see any other directory take its place. There will, however, be the usual crop of directories just as every other good thing is imitated. Your long years of experience in dealing with evasive circulation reports have most admirably fitted you for placing a proper valuation upon such statements. Advertisers have come to know that the Rowell estimates are nearer the proper figure than can otherwise be obtained. The American Newspaper Directory is therefore indispensable in every well regulated advertising department. Lines are being more tightly drawn every day; it is difficult to collect for twenty thousand when you print only eight. If the advertiser were buying barley he would not accept three pecks for a bushel, although the quality might at all times be open for discussion.

The American Newspaper Directory is the guide and companion of the advertising man, and it is to the interest of all concerned to help perfect it, support it, and hurrah for it.

SAPOLIO.

A growing need created it—the advertising agency system. One of the earliest and most successful workers, Geo. P. Rowell, is still in the field He originated methods. Others follows his publication of a list of all the papers—the American Newspaper Directory. He has never ceased to love it, and labor for it. Soon out of the gross stupidity of imitation, it became a rule that every agency down to those of Oshkosh or Oklahoma must issue its own directory. An awful waste for not more than one out of ten was worth shelf room. If the National Association of Advertising Agents could agree long enough to buy Mr Rowell's Directory, publish it officially and drop all the others, it would accomplish something.
ARTEMAS WARD,
Advertising Manager for Sapolio.

WASHINGTON.

Every page of the American Newspaper Directory breathes the dsirce of its publishers that it shall be absolutely correct in every statement it makes.

SOUTHERN.

We subscribe to and pay cash for the American Newspaper Directory, and find it of great value in our advertising department. We have 6,892 miles of railway, extending from Washington, D. C., all over the South, and in advertising this system we use more than 1,000 publications, and in selecting this list we find that we get a correct idea of circulation from this Directory that can not be obtained from any other similar publication. We receive other newspapr directories gratis, but the fact that we pay cash for this one in addition shows that we can not place the same dependence upon the "free list."

We thoroughly appreciate the careful manner in which this Directory is compiled.
Washington, D. C., Sept. 13, 1900.
JOS. H. HANNEN,
Adv. Dept. Southern Railway.

I am looking forward to receiving the new edition with a great deal of anticipation, as, although the American Newspaper Directory seemed to have reached a high state of perfection several years ago, there is always something new and of value in each succeeding edition. It is regarded as the standard authority with the Southern Railway.
S. H. HARDWICK,
General Passenger Agent,
Washington, D. C., May 21, 1901.

BALTIMORE.

We have used the American Newspaper Directory for many years and find it more valuable to us than any other similar publication. Much of the information given we cannot obtain in any other way. The book is not only a great help, but a necessity to our business, and we think its way of stating circulations is the ideal one.

Shoemaker's Backache

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets a Positive Cure for this Complaint.

The constant bending over that of necessity a shoemaker must do when at work, comes hard on his back and hard on his kidneys. Backache and lame back are the great bugbears of a shoemaker's existence. That Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets can ease the aching back and cure the kidney trouble is amply proven in the following case:—

Mr. J. O'Shea, corner Main and Market streets, Lucan, Ont., the well-known shoemaker of that village, says:—"A shoemaker's work requires lots of sitting and leaning forward, and invariably, as in my case, in time brings on a pain in the small of the back and Kidney trouble. This has been my complaint for two or three years, and I was about tired of it. Some one told me about Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets, and I got a bottle at John Farrel's drug store. The taking of this one bottle was followed by complete relief. This is naturally a big lift to me in my work, and I am correspondingly grateful. I can recommend the Tablets conscientiously to others."

If you are anxiously desirous of being cured insist on having Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets. Price 50 cents a box, at all druggists. The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto.

FEAR ARMENIAN MASSACRES.

Reports of Collisions With Turkish Troops Cause Uneasiness

Constantinople, Sept. 13.—Fifty Armenian revolutionists, according to Turkish reports, recently set fire to the Mussulman quarters at Mush, Turkish Armenia, where fighting afterwards occurred, the Armenians retiring towards Sasoun. It is also reported that Armenians and Turks blew up the barracks at Sasoun, September, 3, where 3,000 troops were stationed, and that a state of panic prevailed there in consequence.

Such Turkish reports have previously been forerunners of massacres of Armenians, and it is generally apprehended by non-Mussulmans here that massacres have already taken place.

The Royal Train Here.

The new train constructed by the Canadian Pacific Railway for the use of the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York during their tour through Canada was given a trial trip on Wednesday. The train was run up the main line from Montreal to Peterborough and back again. There will probably be a number of trial runs in order to insure smoothness of running when the train is brought into requisition for the royal party.

A New Wholesale Firm

Peterborough is to have a new wholesale house. Messrs. Lumbers and Ironsides are opening up as manufacturers of candy at 182 Simcoe st. They have been for several years with R. & T. Watson, of Toronto, the well known candy firm, and have had a large experience in that line. They will do a wholesale business only, and expect to present such goods and inducements as will enable them to supply the trade in this district.

SCHLEY COURT OF ENQUIRY

Session Opens Today in Washington Witnesses at Hand

Washington, Sept. 13.—All the members of the Schley Court of Inquiry are now in Washington, Rear Admiral Howison, the third member, arriving last night. Admiral Howison would not say anything for publication in advance of the meeting of the court. It was evident, however, that he has not in any degree altered his resolution to serve as a member of the court if the other members accept his own view as to his qualifications. The impression of the Navy Department is now that the taking of testimony will not begin to-morrow. A large number of witnesses are in Washington, but formalities are expected to consume most of the session. No summons has yet been issued for Admiral Sampson

MAY PUT HIM TO DEATH.

Czolgosz's Crime an Act of Treason Under the State Law.

New York, Sept. 13.—An interesting interview with W. W. Erwin, a criminal lawyer, who defended the Homestead strikers, comes from Minneapolis. Mr. Erwin said:—"Under the common law in force in that State, which has not, with reference to treason, been modified by statute, it will adjudicate the crime as an act of treason, the punishment of which is death. The State of New York can prosecute Czolgosz for treason in attempting the life of the Sovereign Executive recognized by New York, for he has committed common law treason against the higher allegiance owned by all citizens of New York to the Chief Executive of the United States."

ANOTHER THEFT CASE.

A Young Lad Arrested For Stealing 7 Bags of Wire

A young lad, named Robert Smith was arrested on Wednesday for stealing seven bags of copper wire from the Canadian General Electric Company. The boy lives in the north end of the town.

The wire which is alleged to have been stolen, was, it is also alleged, sold to Geo. T. Holmes, junk dealer, and was returned by a dealer named Antipitzky, Toronto, to whom the wire had been shipped. Smith will come up for trial next Tuesday, as will also the manager of the Holmes junk shop. A lad named John Tiebold is held as an important witness.

WEDDING BELLS

Mr. Wm Fitzgerald of Ashburnham Weds Katherine Heffernan.

A wedding of considerable interest was celebrated at St. Peter's Cathedral on Tuesday morning last, when Miss Catherine Heffernan, daughter of Mr. Thomas Heffernan of Otonabee, was united in marriage to Mr. Wm. Fitzgerald, Ashburnham. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Archdeacon Casey. The bride was attended by Miss Mary McMahon, whilst the groom was supported by Mr. T. Hanrahan, of town. The newly married couple left on their wedding tour to Toronto and the Pan-American, and will, on their return, take up their residence in Ashburnham. They begin their married life with the hearty good wishes of a large number of friends in which The Times heartily joins.

JUSTICE LICKED PHYSICIAN.

And Then Fined Himself $5 or Ten Days Imprisonment.

Windson, Sept. 13.—Justice of the Peace William Kelly, of Bay City, yesterday tried and convicted himself of assault and battery, and thereupon imposed a fine on himself of $5 or ten days' imprisonment. The justice, rather than go to jail, paid his own fine—to himself — and then allowed himself to go free. The case arose out of a pummelling which Kelly administered to Dr. C. A. Stewart, a well known physician, because the latter is said to have stated publicly that President McKinley deserved to be shot.

ATTACKED THE DOWIEITES

They got a Chilly Reception at Evanston Last Night.

Chicago, Sept. 13.— Four hundred Dowieites invaded Evanston last night and dedicated their tabernacle in that suburb. When their special train started back to Chicago they were given a parting volley of rocks, eggs, and decayed fruit which broke six car windows, and injured two of the party. A number of the others were spattered with eggs. It was only the fact that Dowieites thought better of their intention to hold an outdoor meeting and to the excellent protection they received from the police that prevented them from being mobbed.

Diptheria Germs.

The recently reported case of the illness of two children with diphtheria, contracted from toys used by a child who had died from the malady fifteen years before, should be a warning to mothers. The toys were in a trunk in the attic, and the children strayed up there and found them, with this serious and perhaps fatal result. That the germs of the disease should be active after so long a period suggests discouraging possibilities in the common use of school books by public school pupils. A book once contaminated is evidently a source of menace indefinitely. The fact emphasizes the responsibility of every woman who has any care of a case of diphtheria. The isolation should be complete, and after death or recovery all belongings should be ruthlessly destroyed.

Broke Her Ankle.

Mrs. F. E. Hunt, No. 213 Stewart street, met with a very painful accident on Wednesday afternoon. While coming down stairs she stepped on a spool and fell, breaking her ankle. The injured limb became so much inflammed that the physicians have been unable to set it.

LIVELY CHILDREN.

"When you come in to-night," said the literary man to his two sprightly children, who were accustomed, when they came in from their evening walk to walk straight into the library where he was at work, and sit down and talk awhile, "I wish you would just say how d'ye do and then go out. I have a lot of work to do to-night, and I don't want to be disturbed."

An hour later the literary man heard a latch key placed carefully in the front door, as though the person placing it there didn't wish to be heard. Then he heard smothered laughter in the hall; it was from the children; they were up to something, sure. A moment later they came marching through the hall, one behind the other, with military step, back toward the library. They turned in, marched like a file of soldiers alongside the library table on the side opposite the literary man, halted, fronted, raised their hands in salute and said in unison:

"How d'ye do?"

Then they faced to the left and marched out again, one behind the other, keeping step as before, and keeping as sober as they could until they came to the parlor; there they exploded.—New York Sun.

A Cat's Whiskers.

Nature is an economical dame, and never indulges in useless gifts. If she gives an animal or plant an appendage of any kind we may be sure that it serves some wise purpose.

Take a cat's whiskers, for instance, which may seem to you to be merely ornamental. They are organs of touch attached to a bed of fine glands under the skin, and each of these long hairs is connected with the nerves of the lip. The slightest contact of these whiskers with any surrounding object is thus felt most distinctly by the animal, although the hairs themselves are insensible.

They stand out on each side of the lion as well as the common cat. From point to point they are equal to the width of the animal's body. If we imagine, therefore, a lion stealing through a covert of wood in an imperfect light we shall at once see the use of these long hairs. They indicate to him through the nicest feeling any obstacle which may present itself to the passage of his body; they prevent the rustling of boughs and leaves which would give warning to his prey if he were to attempt to pass too close to a bush; and thus, in conjunction with the soft cushions of his feet and the fur upon which he treads—the claws never coming in to contact with the ground—they enable him to move toward his victim with a stillness equal to that of a snake.

In Defense of Their Young.

The rabbit is a timid creature usually, but no more so than the partridge (ruffed grouse) found in all the eastern states. The female partridge has often put boys to hurried flight by attacking them when they have molested her brood.

When an egg hunter climbs the tree in which a kingbird has a nest he is at once attacked by the birds, who dive at him at full speed, with their sharp bills pointed ahead.

Whole flocks of crows fly to the protection of a nest that has been disturbed by bird or beast. Even the gun of a man will not send them far away, as under ordinary circumstances.

A doe will strike a man with her sharp hoofs should he happen to surprise her and her fawn. She will battle long and ardently to save her young from a pair of eagles, and the fox flees from her as from a dog.

The bear hurries her young ones along by cuffing them till retreat is no longer possible. Then she turns desperately on her pursuers.—London Field.

Golden and diamond weddings were celebrated by 614 couples in Prussia in 1899, and the State distributed jubilee medals to each husband and wife. In Berlin and the provinces of Brandenburg the number of these couples was 115.

An automatic window lock has been designed by a resident of New Zealand, having a sliding bolt set within a casing on the lower sash, with an eyelet in the upper sash and a lever which throws the bolt into the eyelet when the window is closed.

PRESIDENT McKINLEY EXPIRED AT 2.15 O'CLOCK THIS MORNING.

Bade His Wife a Tender Farewell---The Last Words He Uttered Were "Nearer My God to Thee."

BUFFALO, N. Y. SEPT. 13.

President McKinley began to sink shortly after 2 o'clock Friday morning, after a critical period of 12 hours, in which alarm and hope mingled in the emotions fo those who surrounded him. Trouble began on the preceding afternoon through the failure of the digestive organs to perform their functions. The necessity for nourishment had been pressing for several days, and the partial failure of artificial means had led to the adoption of natural means. The rectum, through which nourishment had been injected previous to Wednesday, became irritated and rejected the enemas. This forced the the physicians to try to feed him through the mouth, probably before the stomach was prepared. The first administration of beef juice through the mouth, however, seemed to agree with the patient, and the physicians were highly gratified at the way the stomach seemed to receive the food.

Dr. McBurney was especially jubilant over the action of the stomach, and yesterday morning before his departure for New York, dwelt upon the fact that the stomach seemed to have resumed its normal functions. The breakfast of chicken broth, toast and coffee, given yesterday, was spoken of by all the physicians as strong evidence of the President's marked improvement. It was only when it became apparent late in the morning that this food had not agreed with the President that the first genuine anxiety appeared. The first note of alarm was sounded in the official bulletin yesterday afternoon which spoke of the President's fatigue.

INCREASED FATIGUE.

President McKinley, already weak from the ordeal of the tragedy, and suffering, complained of an increasing feeling of fatigue He had heretofore been so buoyant and cheerful that his complaints were seriously regarded The pulse was then also abnormally high, 126 beats to the minute. With a temperature of 100.2, it should have been 30 beats lower. The weakness of the heart began to arouse serious concern. Instead of growing better, the President's condition after that grew steadily worse. The staff of physicians, augmented by Dr. Stockton, who had temporarily taken the place of Dr. McBurney, was summoned early in the evening, and there was a conference.

MRS. McKINLEY.

It was learned that the physicians had decided that it would not be well for Mrs. McKinley to enter the sick room to-day, both on account of her feeble health, and the excitement it might cause the President. So far as can be learned, Mrs. McKinley has not been informed yet of the grave condition in which her husband is.

Early in the morning the intimate friends and relatives of the President, who were telegraphed for early in the morning, began to arrive, and soon after 10 o'clock there were assembled in the down stairs rooms of the Milburn house, Senators Hanna and Fairbanks, ex-Secretary of State Day. Secretary Wilson, and Secretary Hitchcock, Abner McKinley, Miss Helen McKinley, a sister of the President, Mrs. J. T. Duncan, another sister, and Mrs. Lafayette McWilliams, in addition to Mr. John G. Milburn.

Col. Herrick and others who had arrived by special trains this morning, are in the drawing room of the Milburn house, watching the clock and listening to the pendulum, which may be ticking away the seconds of the great man's life. All realize that only a slender hope remains, and all dread a sudden attack of heart failure which might bring death. Of all the sad household only the wife does not know the real truth She surmises that the President is worse, for she was told this morning it would be better for her not to enter the sick chamber. She assented, but it was with a look of mute appeal in her eyes.

The President himself seems to realize that his life hangs by a thread, although he has not yet been told how slim the chances are.

The doctors, it is needless to say, are doing all that medical science and skill can do to save the President. W. W. Johnson, of Washington, and Dr. Janeway, of New York, two of the most eminent heart specialists in the United States, have been summoned to lend their skill and counsel, and Dr. McBurney has been recalled. He advanced the theory before he left that the accelerated pulse might be due to the after effects of the shock of the first bullet against the breastbone, now manifesting itself for the first time.

The President's condition is fairly satisfactory, and upon this is based the hope for his recovery. If the heart action can be controlled and strengthened the crisis now existing would pass. But everything is being prepared for the worst.

Vice-President Roosevelt and the absent members of the Cabinet were telegraphed for, and came as fast as steel and steam could bring them.

When the sinking spell occurred about 2 o'clock yesterday morning, it was feared that the President might expire at any moment, as he did not respond to ordinary stimulants. It was only when recourse was had to the desperate resource of injecting into his veins, saline solution, which saved Mrs. McKinley's life in San Francisco, that the circulation grew stronger, and after an hour he rallied somewhat. His pulse at one time was almost 140. But the slight rally came and returning hope with it. With the fresh energies of daylight the President appeared perceptibly stronger, and the physicians announced in their 9 o'clock bulletin that his condition was improved. The pulse had fallen several points from the highest, and they affirmed the existence of hope.

Dr. Mann declared most emphatically that it was absurd to say the President was dying.

LYNCHING IS FEARED.

CHICAGO, SEPT. 14.

Emma Goldman and the other nine alleged anarchists under arrest in this city, it is now believed, will all be given a chance to obtain liberty on bail when the habeas corpus proceeding in Judge Chetlain's court comes up to-day. City Prosecutor Taylor has decided that there is no reason whatever for continuing to hold Abraham Isaak jr., the 19-year old son of the elder Isaak, longer in custody. Nothing, however, will be done in young Isaak's case until after the hearing to-day. As no evidence has as yet been received from Buffalo, Taylor says that the present charges constitute nothing more than a misdemeanor, and that the prisoners are consequently entitled to bail. He will, however, ask to have the bail placed at a high figure, possibly $15,000 or $20,000.

LYNCHING IS FEARED.

Judge Chetlain has concluded to take up the habeas corpus case of the alleged anarchists in the Criminal Court building on the north side, adjacent to the jail, instead of in his regular court room on the south side. The change was made at the request of the sheriffs who stated that he was afraid that an attempt would be made to rescue the prisoners if they were taken through the streets by the police. He said that the people were excited on account of the bulletins from Buffalo, and it had been reported to him that threats of lynching had been made.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 13. 9.32 p.m.

Secretary Cortelyou has just sent a message out to the newspaper men stating that he cannot now leave the house, as the President is in his last moments.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 13, 9.35 p.m.

Dr. Mynter, who has just left the house, says the President is slowly The approach of death is already evident, as the body is getting cold. Dr. Mynter says, however, that the President may last until 2 o'clock in the morning, although the end may come at any time. There is hardly any pulse to be felt.

The administration of oxygen has been suspended for some time. The President, before he finally lost consciousness, bade his wife a tender farewell. He was then heard to murmur words of the hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee." These were probably his last words.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 13, 11.7 p.m.

Dr. McBurney said it was possible the President might live several hours. He is still breathing, but the circulation has ceased in his extremities, and they are cold.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 14, 12.05 a.m.

The district attorney ordered the coroner to proceed to the Milburn house because he had heard a report that the President was dead.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 14, 1.30 a.m.

An attendant has just come from the house, and says that the President's pulse had shown practically no activity in four hours. There was only a slight heart beat. All of the doctors were still upstairs near at hand to the President.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 14. 2.17 p.m.

The President died at 2.15 o'clock this morning surrounded by his wife, Sec'y Cortelyou and the physicians. He did not recover consciousness immediately before breathing his last.

BREAKING THE NEWS.

How Dr. Rixey Informed Mrs. McKinley.

DESCRIBED BY COL. BROWN

Buffalo, Sept. 14.—Col. W.W. Brown, a friend of the McKinleys, said yesterday:

"It is impossible for those who do not know the marvelous tenderness there is between this husband and wife to understand what the suffering of each is to the other. The one thing that preys upon the President's mind is his anxiety for the effect upon Mrs. McKinley of the ordeal which he is going through. And what it is to her to be separated from him is more than can be appreciated except by those who know how constantly she has leaned upon him for years. It is as though very foundations of everything were pulled away when he is away from her I never knew anything like such a touching devotion as there is between these two. I think nobody ever did.

"There is one thing I wish to say about Mrs. McKinley's physical condition. She is not under the influence of any narcotic drug whatever. She is bearing up under all this by the sheer strength of her will and by her own physical strength. And then there is another thing I would like to say by way of correction. The condition of the President has not been concealed from Mrs. McKinley. It was not concealed from her at the start. Dr Rixey broke the news to her as has been stated.

"The details are in this way: Mrs. McKinley first expressed surprise that he was so late in coming from the exposition grounds. When it became dusk and he still did not come she became decidedly anxious. Then Dr. Rixey appeared and she said to him: 'Where is Mr. McKinley? Why does he not come?' 'I have some bad news for you, Mrs. McKinley,' said the doctor. 'What is it?' she cried. 'Is there anything wrong with him; has he been hurt?' 'Yes, Mrs. McKinley,' the doctor said. 'He has been hurt; he has been shot.'

"She staggered slightly, but instantly replied: 'Then I must go to him. I must go to him at once.'

"'No,' the doctor said, 'we are going to bring him to you and everything depends upon you, Mrs. McKinley. May be his life depends upon you. We look to you to help us. It is your bravery that will do everything.'

"Now," continued Col. Brown, "that is just exactly what occurred and it is due to Mrs. McKinley to say it, for too much cannot be given to her for the splendid way in which she then and there rose up to meet the ordeal and for the splendid spirit she has shown from that time right on to the present moment."

WANTS $500,000 FROM SPAIN.

Jules Sanguilly Files Claims For Being Imprisoned Two Years.

Washington, Sept 14.—Jules Sanguilly has filed a claim with the Spanish treaty claims commission for $500,000 for alleged false arrest and imprisonment by the Spanish authorities in February, 1896. The petitioner was arrested and thrown into Fort La Cabana, where he was kept two years. At that time he was surrendered to the United States consul general at Havana and hurried away from the Island of Cuba under a Spanish royal decree, which commuted the penalty of life imprisonment at hard labor, to which he had been condemned; to that of perpetual exile.

Mary Potter is a claimant for $20,000 indemnity for the loss of the life of her brother, John Porter, of the United States navy, who was killed when the battle-ship Maine was blown up.

Claims for the loss of personal property through the depredations of Spanish and insurgent troops have also been filed as follows: Pedro Notasco Diaz y Zayas Bazar, $16,612; Miguel De Arostague, $211,165; Pedro C. Casnova, $67,500; Miguel Machado, $23,280, and Jose Gregorio Delgado, $181,534.

SCHLEY COURT OF ENQUIRY

Session Opens Today in Washington Witnesses at Hand.

Washington, Sept. 13.—All the members of the Schley Court of Inquiry are now in Washington, Rear Admiral Howison, the third member, arriving last night. Admiral Howison would not say anything for publication in advance of the meeting of the court. It was evident, however, that he has not in any degree altered his resolution to serve as a member of the court if the other members accept his own view as to his qualifications. The impression of the Navy Department is now that the taking of testimony will not begin to-morrow. A large number of witnesses are in Washington, but formalities are expected to consume most of the session. No summons has yet been issued for Admiral Sampson.

THE BOER WAGON

A Description of the Wagon Used in the Transvaal

London, Sept. 14.—Referring to the large number of wagons which are reported as having been captured from the Boers, a gentleman of South African experience says that people have very little idea of what a South African wagon is. They are huge, lumbering vehicles, each drawn by sixteen oxen. A wagon and its oxen extend for about 100 feet, and fifty of them would extend for a mile in a straight line. Of these wagons there is an abundant supply, for every country Boer had one or more. It is doubtful as to whether oxen have been taken with the wagons. A thousand wagons, for instance, would require 16,000 oxen. Many of the wagons have been taken without their teams. In any case, it seriously cripples the Boers to deprive them of their wagons, and so many have now been captured by the British troops that there cannot be many left.

Chemong Lake Bridge.

The bridge was on Wednesday rendered impassable by the removal of a new section that was placed in the old bridge. The section was floated over for incorporation with the new structure and it is said that the bridge will not be passable for two weeks, when the new one will be ready. The new bridge will cost between twenty-seven and twenty-eight thousand dollars. Of this amount the Dominion Government gives $10,000, the Provincial Government $4,000, Peterborough town $4,000 and Peterborough County the balance. It will be an improvement on the old one, having good approaches, and a substantial swing for boats. The planking will be laid lengthways, as it is found to last longer, and easier and more economically repaired than when broadside or diagonal. The lengthways will be much pleasanter for vehicles and bicycles.

SANK INTO THE GROUND.

A Mountain 500 Feet High Disappears With Awful Noise.

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 14.—The steamer Tartar brings news that a mountain in Northern Japan literally disappeared on Aug. 16. It stood in the centre of a plain in the Igusa district, rose more than 500 feet and covered forty acres. It was on the outskirts of the village of Kalwayama.

A tremendous thundering noise was heard, and the villagers found that the mountain had disappeared. Instead of the hill they saw level ground the mountain having bodily sunk into the ground, leaving its top on a level with the surrounding land.

It is thought the phenomenon was the result of subterranean volcanic action.

WILL HONOR KING ALFRED.

New Yorkers Plan Celebration on 1000th Anniversary of Death.

New York, Sept. 14.—The organization of the committee to take charge of the celebration of the one thousandth anniversary of the death of King Alfred of England was completed here today. The anniversary of the king's death falls on Oct. 26. The plans already adopted include a sermon to be preached on the evening of Oct. 27 at St. Paul's chapel by an eminent divine, a banquet at Delmonico's the following evening and the opening of the exhibition of the Anglo-Saxon books and literature at the Lenox library on the same date.

At the banquet speeches will be made on "Alfred, the Lawgiver," "Alfred, the Founder of the Navy," and "Alfred, the Poet and Author."

A New Business.

Mr. Myles Froates has opened out a new tailor shop in the rooms over Ormond & Walsh's drug store, corner George and Simcoe streets, where he will be pleased to receive the patronage of the public. Mr. Froates is an artistic cutter and fitter, and his many friends in Peterborough will, we are sure, reserve for him a large share of their patronage.

Ophir, and escort her up to Quebec.

IN THE PRESIDENTS POCKETS

What He Carried at the Time He Was Shot

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 14.—When the President's clothes were removed at the exposition hospital they were wrapped up carefully and sent to the Milburn home by one of the secret service men. The President's pockets held much the same contents as those of an ordinary citizen. In his right hand trousers pocket was some currency $1.80 in all. Jingling with this coin was a small silver nugget, well worn, as if the President had carried it for a pocket piece for a long time. Three small penknives, pearl-handled, were in the pockets of his trousers. Evidently they were gifts which he prized and he was in the habit of carrying all three. They were simple knives with no silver ornamentation, inscriptions or initials or other visible personal history. Another battered coin, presumably a pocket piece, was in the left hand pocket.

The President's wallet is a well-worn black leather one, about four inches by five and a half inches in size. It was not marked with his name or other identification. In his wallet were some bills amounting to $45. A number of cards, which evidently had rested in the wallet for some time, were in one of the compartments These were not examined.

In a vest pocket was a silver shell lead pencil and three cigars were found. They were not the black perfectos which the President likes, but a short size and were recognized as some that had been given to him at Niagara Falls that day. On two of them he had chewed much as General Grant used a cigar. The other he had not touched.

The President's watch was an open-face gold case American-made timekeeper. Attached to it was a gold chain which the President always wore. No letters, telegrams or papers were found.

There was not on the President's person a single clew to his identity unless it was to be found in his wallet.

The defeated candidate, Wm. Smith, is the petitioner. His petition makes the usual formal charges of bribery and corruption.

PONG HAS A SON

A Very Interesting Event at a Chinese Home in Hamilton

Hamilton, Sept. 14.—Chinese society is much interested in a happy event which occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Pong Gynn, at No. 86 James street north, early this morning. It was the birth of a son, who will be heir to all the wealth that Pong has accumulated during his prosperous career as a laundryman in this city. Pong Gynn was married on New Year's Day, 1896, at Knox Church here to Miss Margaretta Schummerton, of St. Catharines. The baby has the distinction of being the first child born in a Chinese home in this city.

CHEAP POWER FOR PETERBOROUGH

Otonabee Power Company's Fight Over the Dam

HOW THE MATTER STANDS

A Plain and Unvarnished Statement Regarding the Trouble.

Peterborough Should Place no Obstacle in the Way of the Otonabee Power Company—How the Matter Stands.

What is at the bottom of all this disturbance regarding the sale of the government dam to the Otonabee Power Company? That is the question at the present moment agitating the breasts of those citizens who are not members of the Auburn Company, the Otonabee Power Company, the Electric Light and Power Company — in fact of any of the rivals of the Otonabee Power Company (to which the lease of the government dam has been made) The question presents no difficulties except with regard to the stand taken by the rival owners of power, who are trying to draw the Town Council into their net. Before we discuss the bringing up by these rival owners of power of all their artillery in an effort to upset the sale, let us ask one simple question: Is the horse-power available for industrial use to be raised in price or lowered by the sale? All this talk of the government's having side-tracked the town regarding the same property, or the political wire-pullers being at the bottom of a money-making scheme is merely to blind the eyes of the public by a profession of regard for the public interests, which, as a matter of fact, no private company possesses. It is useless also to appeal to the sympathy of the public. The Auburn Company and the Electric Light and Power Company must stand on their own feet and fight competition in the usual way. The public sees 400 horse-power made a present to them by the government at Ottawa, both developed and maintained. It is a pretty good slice for the town to get out of it, and we may say also that it is more than it has got out of the rival companies by a good deal, or ever will get out of them. It is the first time in the history of this town that a company has given a bonus instead of demanding one, and since 400 h.p. would run every manufacturing concern in town, if properly handled, we shall have plenty to offer in the future, and we fervently hope that prospective companies who seek river-power franchises will imitate and not condemn their predecessors, the Otonabee Power Company. That the Hon J R Stratton has got into hot water over it, is none of our concern. Let us stick to the point. We are doing better out of this deal as a town than we ever hoped to do out of any similar project and we should be satisfied. Fancy the nerve of the Burleigh Company's going to Ottawa to condemn this sale out of which we get so much, and on the ground of the low price to be paid by the purchasers too, when the chief feature of the Burleigh Falls speculation is that the company pays to the government one dollar and a half a year, or something like one-twentieth of a cent per h.p.! Just fancy the representative of such a company complaining of the 60c per h.p. of the sale out of which we are to get 400

The Council will be well advised if it keeps out of political and industrial quarrels. Let the capitalists take care of themselves. The people are watching the trend of events, and are beginning to understand it.

WILL DISCUSS DIVORCE.

Provincial Synod Commenced Meeting in Montreal To-day.

Montreal, Sept. 14.— The provincial synod of the Church of England in Canada will commence its sessions here to-day. This body meets every three years and legislates for the church in what is known as the ecclesiastical province. The general synod contemplates the church in its entirety in the Dominion, but the general synod only meets once in five years. The provincial synod legislates for the church in regard to large matters which are beyond the purview of the diocesan synods. Matters of church polity, of discipline, of interpretation, and the like; the large question of temporalities affecting the whole church, and kindred questions are dealt with by the provincial synod, which is composed of two houses, upper and lower.

There are no burning questions to come before the body this time, whose deliberations generally occupy ten or twelve days, but there may be matters of which no notice has been given, which will give rise to animated discussion. The powers of the synod are to be discussed; there will be a question of the division of the synod into two sections, while the constitution of the general synod will be dealt with. The subject of divorce will also be considered.

WEDDING BELLS.

Nuptials of Miss Eva Manley and Mr. Edwin Fife of Otonabee

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Manley Stoney Bank, on the 6th con. of Otonabee was the scene of a very pretty wedding, when at 7 o'clock p.m., on the 11th, inst., Miss Eva, their daughter, became the bride of Mr. Edwin J. Fife.

The ceremony took place in the parlor, the bridal party taking their posit ons under an arch of white asters and ferns, and was performed by Rev. Wm. B. Seccombe. The bridesmaid, Miss Mabel Manley, in white organdie, carried a bouquet of asters and smilax, and little Miss Viola Hendren, as maid of honor gowned in white muslin trimmed with lillies of the valley, preceded the bride into the parlor. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a handsome gown of white silk. The skirt was made with train, the bridal veil of tulle; while her bouquet was white asters and smilax. Mr. Andrew Evans was best man. Miss Mabel Nelson played the wedding march.

A large number of guests sat down to a sumptuous dinner. The presents to the bride were numerous and costly, including a gold watch, the gift of the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Fife will make their home in Havelock, where they go followed by the good wishes of all who know them.

PRESERVE THE ISLANDS

The following letter appeared in the Toronto World of Sept 11th, and speaks for itself:

I was pleased to see the stand taken by "Canadian" in your paper in reference to selling the Thousand Islands. Not only those Islands but all breathing spots of the country should be the common heritage of its people. We have in our rear the beautiful stretch of lakes known as the Kawartha Lakes famous alike for their scenic beauty and fishing grounds, but what do we find? Take Stony Lake, one of the chain, as a sample. Here we have 365 islands of various sizes, which at one time were the camping grounds for our citizens generally regardless of distinction. Now, they are pre-empted by political favorites and the land speculator, and the less favored ones are shut out or must submit to such terms as the masters of the situation may dictate. The ridiculously small amount realized by the sale of these islands was a mere bagatelle to the treasury of this country, and could form no justification for depriving its citizens of their common heritage.

AS OTHERS SEE US

The Monetary Times has the following: Topographical treatises inform us that in 1818 the whole of what is now the county of Peterborough was one vast wilderness known as the "Indian grounds beyond Rice Lake," which was but seldom explored even by the adventurous hunters of the front settlements of Lake Ontario. About that year a small colony of mountaineers from Cumberland, Eng., obtained grants of land in the newly surveyed township of Smith, and just outside the limits of the present town of Peterborough they erected a rude log cabin. Many are the graphic descriptions of how these first inhabitants fared when as would occasionally happen, their scanty stores of provisions gave out. The first white man to settle on the seven hills amid which, like Rome, Peterborough stands, was Adam Scott, and up to the year 1825, he and two or three workmen employed at his saw and grist mill were the only inhabitants. The life led by these pioneers, till as late as the third decade of the nineteenth century, was a hard one, amid a veritable wilderness.

Behold, now, what a difference! In all directions, good macadamized streets with fine business buildings and tree-embowered, tasteful residences! Daily communication by boat or railroad to all parts! A flourishing town (which should be a city) of 13,000 enterprising inhabitants, with factories, stores and all the appliances of civilized life, set in the centre of a thrifty, fertile farming and stock-raising district. What a contrast it presents; what an epitome of the progress made by this country during the last three-quarters of a century, and what a forecast of the destiny in store for many regions which are now in the same state in which Peterborough and its vicinity then were.

The first beginning of prosperity was when Sir Peregrine Maitland, in response to the petition of a Smith deputation, built the Government grist mill. Shortly after this, two steamers began to navigate the waters of Rice Lake, plying daily to Peterborough. Since then there has been no real boom; on the other hand, progress has been somewhat slow, but it has been very sure. The result, however, shows up in a substantial manner, for among the many prosperous communities of the Dominion of the second and third-sized variety, few can be found to rival Peterborough in its general appearance or solid prosperity.

These thoughts occurred to us a short time ago, when two representatives of The Monetary Times had a very pleasant trip to the town and its vicinity. They discovered, in their talk with the manufacturing and business community a general air of optimism prevailing, which was not hard to account for. The people are beginning to feel, in spite of the large number of up-to-date enterprises at present in existence, and others which are coming, notably the American Cereal Co., who are about to start construction on their factories with a working force of some 700 men, that they have not yet taken half full enough advantage of the wonderful water-power they have at command. A strong desire is being shown to remedy this comparative neglect of their opportunities, and we believe that before long, owing to the efforts of its enterprising citizens, the the inducements the town can offer for manufacturing enterprises will become better known throughout the country.

One of the most interesting sights we have seen for a long time was the construction on the lift-lock of the Trent Valley canal, which is now well under way. The scheme for a canal to connect the waters of Lake Simcoe, and ultimately of Georgian Bay with Lake Ontario, was first conceived in 1833 but the principle upon which this lift-lock is being built is comparatively new. In fact it only exists in practice in two or three cases in Belgium and Germany, but whereas in these cases the lift is only 35 feet or less, in the Trent Valley canal vessels will be lifted on a pan to the height of 65 feet. The masonry work, full of tunnels and other complicated turns, is wonderfully solid and appears, to the eye of a layman at any rate, as though it would last for ever.

The lost child, who presently finds his way home in the policeman's protecting arms, is hugged to his mother's heart with a new joy. But the mother's heart is empty as her arms when her children are lost for life. How many a woman goes through such an experience, appealing in vain for help to local doctors, who confess that they are "puzzled" to understand the cause of the trouble.

In similar cases Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has been used with such success that its record commends it to every woman whose children fail of vitality. "Favorite Prescription" gives the mother strength to give her child. It strengthens the female organism, giving great elasticity to the organs of maternity, and making the baby's advent practically painless. It is the true woman's medicine, establishing regularity, drying weakening drains, and healing inflammation.

"I can cheerfully recommend Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription as the best medicine for women," writes Mrs. Mary Murdock, of 220 Taylor St., Topeka, Kansas. I am the mother of ten children and only one living—the tenth one. She is one year old and is as well and hearty as can be. She is a beauty. Of my other babies, some were born at right time, but dead, others were premature births; one lived to be one year old, but she was always feeble. I tried different doctors, but none of them could tell what my trouble was. They said I was well and strong. I was examined by surgeons, but they found nothing wrong, and they were puzzled to know what my trouble was. I did not know what to do, so I thought this last time I would try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I took it the entire nine months and now I have a fine baby girl, and I cannot praise your medicine enough for the good it did me."

BRITAIN AND UNCLE SAM.

It is Stated, Have Practically Agreed Upon a Part to Take the Fact to Take the Place of the Hay-Pauncefote Treaty.

Washington, D. C., Sept 13. — It can be announced upon ample authority that all of the negotiations for the new canal treaty between England and the United States, to take the place of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, have been satisfactorily arranged and nothing now remains to be done except to draw up the draft of the treaty.

This work will be conducted entirely in London by the British Foreign Office and Lord Pauncefote and Mr. Choate, the American Ambassador.

The treaty will be brought to Washington by Lord Pauncefote, when he returns here next month, and will then be signed by representatives of the United States and Great Britain.

The exact lines that the treaty will take upon disputed points as to the fortification of the canal and the abrogation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty cannot, of course, be told, but it is certain that the wording will be satisfactory to the Administration, and to a majority of the United States Senate, else it would not have been practically finished.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

M'KINLEY'S CONDITION

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 13.

Last night two more doors were locked against the arch enemy of mankind. The danger from the two sources was pronounced practically over. The holes in the stomach proper, caused by the perforation of the bullet, are now considered healed by Dr McBurney and his associates, and the eminent surgeon pointed to the fact that the beef juice fed to the patient last night through the mouth was readily digested as proof of this. Sufficient time has also elapsed to warrant the doctors in asserting that the danger of inflammation where the bullet lodged has disappeared. It is believed that the ball has now become encysted in the muscles of the back, and unless its location should prove troublesome later on there will never be any necessity for removing it.

A GOOD SIGN.

Another milestone passed on the road to recovery was the discontinuance last night by the doctors of the figures showing respiration variation in their official bulletins. The President now breathes deeply and normally, and the addition of the respiration record to the bulletin was considered valueless. The President's pulse was slightly accelerated in the afternoon, but the change was not deemed material, and his temperature remained practically stationary at 100.2 from daylight until dark. The evidence of improvement was the President's keen relish of the beef juice given him during the day and the increase in his allowance from one to three teaspoonfuls, and the fact that the wound is becoming "more healthy." Those two words of the afternoon's bulletin furnished the only vague note in the official record for the day. But even the possibility that there was anything serious behind this disturbing bit faded away when Dr. McBurney subsequently explained that the slight irritation of the wound still remaining should pass away within the next 24 hours. The President continues in excellent spirits, but he confessed to one of the attendants yesterday that he was getting lonesome.

ANOTHER BED.

He requested that he be placed in another bed. A depression had formed in the mattress in which he has lain since he was taken to the Milburn house, and had caused some discomfort. Another bed was provided, and he was carefully moved to it without difficulty. He has asked several times of there was any news which he should know, but enquiries, especially about public matters, are discouraged, and the rigid inhibition against the admission of anyone except his wife and faithful secretary has not been relaxed. It is now virtually decided that no attempt will be made to remove the President to Washington until he has completely recovered, and in a general way it can be said there is no likelihood that this will be until October. The physicians are all agreed that no attempt should be made to take the President to Washington while the probability of an oppressive hot spell in the capital city remained. Mrs the tragedy occurred. She went out for a drive again to-day, and appeared bright and cheerful.

PUNISHMENT FITS THE CRIME

Wilkesbarre Pa Sept 13—The feeling against James Bird, a member of the Town Council of Plymouth, who, it is alleged, rejoiced on hearing the news of the attempt on the life of President McKinley, is very bitter. At a mass meeting last night condemnatory resolutions against him were adopted. Feeling was so wrought up that if Mr. Bird had been present he would probably have been violently dealt with. Bird in an interview to-day said he was intoxicated at the time, and that he was provoked by the remark of a Republican, when news of the shooting was received: "Some Democrat; all Democrats should be shot." The meeting adopted the following:

"Resolved. That said member of the Town Council should be requested to leave town and, failing to comply, should be treated to a coat of tar and feathers, or other steps should be taken to compel him to leave."

Pittsburg, Sept. 13.—Edward Dawson employed in the machine shop at White Rock, on the Allegheny Valley Railroad, expressed glee over Assassin Czolgosz's act, and to-day was drummed out of the shop and escorted to the railroad station, where he boarded a train and left the place. A large number of people of the town were at the station, and sang "America."

Pottstown, Sept. 12.—Simon S. Tagleiher, an employe of the Glasgow Iron Company, made a remark derogatory to President McKinley and expressed gratification that he had been shot, adding that it ought to have been done six months ago. When the company's attention was called to the matter, Tagleiher apologized, but was suspended for one month from the company's employ.

SECRET MEETINGS IN CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, SEPT. 12.

The police of a dozen cities are using every endeavour to obtain evidence that will demonstrate beyond the shadow of a doubt that Emma Goldman, the anarchist, held a number of secret meetings while in Cleveland last May, and that it was at one of these rather than at the public meeting that she made the incendiary speech which inflamed the mind of Czolgosz, and caused him to shoot President McKinley.

The police officials are assisted by every available man in the secret service department in this task. They will attempt to show that while in Cleveland meetings were held at which the assassination of the President was planned.

Mathew J. Cloughlin, sergeant of detectives at Buffalo, is in the city working on the Goldman case. He will remain in Cleveland several days.

MINISTER WU'S WAY.

Washington, Sept. 13.—Chinese Minister Wu says Czolgosz, the man who attempted to end the life of the President, should receive one thousand cuts from a sharp sabre in the hands of an official of the Government. Each of these cuts should be severe, and the thousandth one be fatal. Then every member of his family should be killed. The latter punishment is on account of the belief that if there is a dangerous person in a family the remainder are likewise dangerous, and should be put out of existence. In China such a fate is known as the Li Ching punishment, inflicted upon those guilty of patriside. Mr. Wu claims that Czogosz is guilty of patricide, because he attempted to murder the father of his country.

THE REMEDY FAILED.

How a Helpful Wife Did Not Cure Her Husband of the Tobacco Habit.

"It will only be necessary for you to drop about half a teaspoonful of the mixture into this cup of coffee each morning," the circular said, "and the taste for tobacco will gradually depart from him. He may not cease the use of tobacco immediately, but within a week he will begin to abhor tobacco if the mixture is given to him faithfully every morning."

And so the young wife sent her little $2 on and got a flagon of the tobacco cure.

"Pretty bum coffee this morning," he remarked dryly the first time she dropped the half-teaspoonful of the mixture into the cup.

"It's the same as we've been using right along," she replied, craftily.

Now, lo and behold! he was a pretty smooth proposition himself, and he had, unbeknownst to her, seen the package holding the flagon of agin tobacco mixture when it was delivered.

So after dinner that evening he produced a large bulky package of fine-cut tobacco from his pocket and took therefrom a plenteous chew of tobacco. It was the first chew he had ever taken in her presence, and she marvelled thereat, but she determined to persist with the "treatment."

"Dead rank chickory again this morning, isn't it?" he inquired at breakfast the next morning.

"Im sure it tastes the same to me," she replied.

That evening after dinner he produced a short, black clay pipe and a package of a new kind of tobacco that was as black as the ground work of a Jolly Roger.

"Thought I'd bring this old dudeen up from the office," he explained cheerfully. "It's as sweet as a nut."

Whereupon he filled the house with the aroma of punk that was strong enough to break rock.

"This grocery person who gets all of my wages is certainly doing us on the coffee game," he remarked when he tasted his cup next morning.

"Really," she said, gazing innocently at the ten-cent bunch of asters in the middle of the table, "I can't detect any difference.'

"And yet there are low foreheads who don't believe that all women are actresses," said he to himself on the way to his office that morning.

That evening he brought home a box of auction stogies, and after he had smoked one of them after dinner all of the people in the neighboring flats stuffed cotton in the hall door keyholes and closed the hall transoms.

"I must persist though," thought his baffled little wife, gloomily.

"Coffee tastes like stewed gunnysack again this morning," he remarked at the next breakfast. She felt a bit sorry for him, but she was determined to use up that flagon of "agin-tobacco" if she had to chloroform him and pour it down his throat.

That evening, however, her resolution deserted her. After dinner, for the first time to her knowledge, he pulled out a package of cigarettes, lit one and began to smoke it.

She went upstairs, poured out the remaining portion of her $2 worth of agin-tobacco and carefully hid the bottle.

"Coffee's all right this morning," said he at breakfast the next day.

"Yes?" she inquired, absently.

When he had finished his dinner that evening he lighted one of his usual brand of good cigars.

"Men are mysterious to me," she thought, regarding him out of the tail of her eye.

A Competent Witness.

United States District Judge Williams, now holding court in Topeka tells a funny story. Years ago he was a district judge in Arkansas. At a certain term of court a murder trial came before him, and the most important witness for the prosecution was a colored boy only ten years old. The lawyers for the defence set out to show that the boy was too young to understand the nature of an oath, and therefore was not competent as a witness.

"Boy," said one of them severely "do you know what would happen if you swore to a lie?"

"Yes, sah. Mammy would lick me."

"Would anything else happen?"

"Deed dey would, case de devil would git me."

At this point Judge Williams leaned over his desk and said with pretended sternness: "Don't you know, boy that I would get you, too?"

"Yes, sah. Dat's what I jus' said."—Kansas City Journal.

The Horseless Nightmare.

"Oh," she said, "I had such a terrible dream last night. It seemed that I had suddenly been deprived somehow of the power to move. All my limbs were paralyzed, and I lay right in the path of an automobile that I could see coming toward me at a terrible rate of speed, with the lamps at the sides blazing like the two eyes of some terrible monster. Nearer and nearer it came, and I, in fearful agony, tried hard to drag myself out of its way, but was unable to move. I tried to cry out so that the man who was running the automobile might either stop or turn aside and avoid running over me, but I could not make a sound. On, on it came, as if imbued with life and in a fury of frenzy. I had just given myself up for lost when"——

"Yes," he interrupted, "then you woke up. But that isn't the important part of it. By your experience we know that the horseless nightmare has arrived."—Chicago Times-Herald.

TROUBLE IN FRANCE

Paris, Sept. 13.—It is expected in official circles here that the sultan of Turkey will ask the French government, now that the Tubini claim has been settled by direct negotiations between the claimant and the porte, to resume diplomatic relations.

France, however, will reject any such proposition and until the sultan has yielded in the case of the Lorando claim, which is nearly four times the amount of the Tubini claim, M. Constans will not return to Constantinople. Advices from that city say it is believed the Lorando claim will soon be settled.

The attitude of the sultan toward the French claims is undoubtedly attributable to the execution of the decree of the French minister of the interior in expelling Turkish spies from France. The decree had been held back for several days in the hope that the sultan who naturally was aware that it had been drawn up, would take the hint, but the patience of the government was finally exhausted and yesterday Feridoun Bey, head of the Turkish police in Paris, and another spy were ordered to leave France. This step was followed by to-day's announcement that the sultan had settled the Tubini claim.

ANARCHY IN THE ARMY.

Paris, Sept. 13.—Serious anarchistic agitations are occurring in all departments of the French army and navy, mainly among the reservists. The shooting of President McKinley has given an impetus to the feeling of discontent among the military and to the revolutionary tendencies which have manifested themselves more or less of late.

At Montceau-les-Minos some hundreds of reservists who were returning in uniform today from the army maneuvres entered the town singing the "Internationale" and other revolutionary songs.

A force of gendarmes attempted to disperse the reservists, but the latter fixed bayonets and charged on the police, with cheers for anarchy and a social revolution.

The gendarmes were scattered. The soldiers then held a mass meeting and passed a resolution in favor of a revolution.

The principal grievances of the soldiers against the present anti-military administration are the poor pay and rations provided. All petitions for relief have been disregarded and amelioration of present conditions are not hoped for from President Loubet and his cabinet. In the riots that have occurred during the past two years the regime found to their surprise that the soldiers openly sided with the rioters and that anarchy was obtaining a strong foothold in the army.

Many of the Paris evening papers tonight point to the affray at Monteeau-les-Mines as a warning of the peril that threatens the nation unless immediate reforms are instituted.

President Loubet late tonight summoned his cabinet for a special meeting.

NAPOLEAN'S OPPORTUNITY.

Should war break out between France and Turkey, Prince Napolean will no doubt offer his services to France. Should they be refused the Royalist party will make a coup.

BY RAIL TO ASIA.

Project For Bridging Behring Sea for Railway Between America and Asia.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 13.—A project is being considered by the combination of capitalists represented by J. Pierpont Morgan and J. J. Hill, and French and Russia financiers, to bridge the Behring Sea and connect the old and new worlds by a railroad. Robert Barber, general manager of the Russo-Chinese Bank, and president of the trans-Siberian road, with M. De Lobel representing French capital, who are in the United States furthering the scheme, have had several interviews at St. Paul with J. J. Hill, who favours the scheme.

The road is planned to run from Circle City, Alaska, on the American side of the international boundary line, following a course north of the Yukon River, south of the Arctic circle to Cape Princes of Wales, the extreme western point of the American continent, thence crossing Behring Strait to Siberia. The same financial syndicate that proposes to build on the American side, with the aid of the Russian Government, also proposes to build a line from the east coast of Sibera in a south-westerly direction, connecting with the trans-Siberian line at Vladivostock, and finding an outlet into China via the Manchurian railroad.

CARNEGIE THE CHOICE.

East Victoria Conservatives Again Select the Old Representative

Mr. John H. Carnegie, son of Mr. John Carnegie, of this town, has again been selected as the Conservative standard bearer at the approaching elections to the Legislative Assembly.

The convention met in Fenelon Falls. Upwards of 200 delegates were present from all parts of the riding. Vice-President Lithgow occupied the chair. The following officers were elected:—Hon. President, Dr. Cornwall, Omemee; Hon. Vice-President, John D. Naylor, Fenelon; President, J. H. Delemere, Minden; First Vice-President, Dr. Cameron, Omemee; Second Vice-President, Dr. Galloway, Glenarm; Secretary, R. M. Mason, V.S., Fenelon Falls.

The selection of a candidate resulted in the unanimous selection of J. H. Carnegie, M.P.P., no other name being offered to the convention. Speeches were made by Messrs. J. H. Carnegie, W. H. Hoyle, M.P.P., S. J. Fox, M.P.P., Charles Fairbairn, ex-M.P.P., and James Lithgow. Mr. Carnegie's election is considered a foregone conclusion, and it is just possible that he will be returned by acclemation.

PROVINCIAL ASYLUMS.

Toronto, Sept. 13.—The Provincial Secretary's Department has issued some interesting figures with regard to asylums. On August 31st, the various provincial institutions had a total of 6,241 inmates. The total in 1900 was 6,152; in 1899, 5,081; in 1898, 5,020. In 1871 there were 1,366 inmates.

The Asylum for Idiots, Orillia, is especially crowded. At present 651 are confined there, and 288 have applied for admittance. When the new asylum in Cobourg is completed this autumn, accommodation will be found for those unprovided for.

American Newspaper Directory.

Tells the circulations of all American newspapers. Revised, corrected and reissued every three months. Sixteen hundred pages: Price Five Dollars a volume or $20 a year.

BUFFALO.

We should hardly know how to get along without the American Newspaper Directory. We regard it by all odds the most complete and reliable guide that the advertiser can make use of; in fact we use no other.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 24, 1901.

—R. V. PIERCE, M.D.

President World's Dis. Med. Ass'n.

VERMONT.

ADVISOR.

The Advisor accepts the American Newspaper Directory as the standard in newspaper ratings. The obstacles which obstruct its efforts to get true and reliable information are many.

* * *

The directory question is one which interests every publisher in the country—nay, the entire world. But in the United States, directories are becoming altogether too numerous. In this, as with other books of reference, it is necessary to have one which may be relied on as being an authority on the matter of newspaper circulations. There can be no question about the fact that at this time, as for many years past, the American Newspaper Directory is that authority. The Advisor is not paid to make this announcement. It makes the statement in the interest of advertisers and publishers because it is true. One thing the advertiser is almost cock-sure of when he refers to the American Newspaper Directory is that the circulation figures he sees therein are not overstated to any great extent. In most other directories they are. Only the publisher himself is to be blamed for not securing a proper rating in that publication, and every advertiser of consequence knows it. Thus the publisher who refuses to furnish a statement places himself under a reasonable suspicion.—The Advisor for June, New York, June, 1901.

CHICAGO.

Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co's American Newspaper Directory has long since earned the reputation of being the best of its character. It contains the result of patient, expensive and systematic effort to secure all attainable information of interest concerning American newspapers. The work has been honestly done. This will not be questioned by any unprejudiced examiner. The most important question is circulation. In attempting to give this information the Editor of the Directory encounters his most difficult work. It is the aim and necessity of the Directory to give the truth. The American Newspaper Directory is today the dependence and guide in a greater or less degree, of every large advertiser in the country.—Chicago (Ill.) Daily News.

BATES.

The American Newspaper Directory is the only reliable guide for the advertiser.

No man who advertises can afford to do without it.

What Bradstreet and Dun are to the mercantile world, The American Newspaper Directory is to the world of periodical publications.

A new advertiser will get from the American Newspaper Directory a better idea of the greatness of his country, and the tremendous possibilities in newspaper advertising, than from any other source.

If an advertiser spends only $100 a year he should have the American Newspaper Directory. For his business may grow and his right expenditure of his money become increasingly important. The time to learn how to spend $10,000 a year is before it is spent, otherwise the spending may be disastrous.

Many times the best paper in town costs the advertiser no more than the poorest. The American Newspaper Directory tells which is which.

The paper that was the leader in its town five years ago may lag behind to-day. Even one year may witness astonishing changes. If you are spending money for publicity it is vastly important that you should know where to get the most of it for the price. The American Newspaper Directory gives not only the present circulation rating of every paper in America, but shows their history by quoting past ratings.

The book costs five dollars a copy, and a single reference to it may readily save or make many times its cost.

All newspaper directories but one are erroneously optimistic about circulations. The American Newspaper Directory may occasionally err on the other side, but that makes it all the safer for the advertiser.

My advertising experience began in 1886, and one of the first things I did was to buy a copy of the American Newspaper Directory.

For sixteen years Rowell's "The American Newspaper Directory" has had a place of honor and usefulness on my desk.

Many a publisher is ready to prove by other directories that "Rowell's is wrong," but few indeed can be induced to prove it by opening their circulation books to the advertiser.

Among publishers who are not willing that their real circulations be known, it is the best hated book in print. The moral is not far to find.

CHARLES AUSTIN BATES.

New York, June 24, 1901.

PABST.

If the improvement of the American Newspaper Directory continues in the future as it has during the past twenty years I do not think I shall live long enough to see any other directory take its place. There will, however, be the usual crop of directories just as every other good thing is imitated. Your long years of experience in dealing with evasive circulation reports have most admirably fitted you for placing a proper valuation upon such statements. Advertisers have come to know that the Rowell estimates are nearer the proper figure than can otherwise be obtained. The American Newspaper Directory is therefore indispensable in every well regulated advertising department. Lines are being more tightly drawn every day; it is difficult to collect for twenty thousand when you print only eight. If the advertiser were buying barley he would not accept three pecks for a bushel, although the quality might at all times be open for discussion.

The American Newspaper Directory is the guide and companion of the advertising man, and it is to the interest of all concerned to help perfect it, support it, and hurrah for it.

SAPOLIO.

A growing need created it—the advertising agency system. One of the earliest and most successful workers, Geo. P. Rowell, is still in the field. He originated methods. Others follow. His publication of a list of all the papers—the American Newspaper Directory. He has never ceased to love it, and labor for it. Soon out of the gross stupidity of imitation, it became a rule that every agency down to those of Oshkosh or Oklahoma must issue its own directory. An awful waste, for not more than one out of ten was worth shelf room. If the National Association of Advertising Agents could agree long enough to buy Mr. Rowell's Directory, publish it officially and drop all the others, it would accomplish something.

ARTEMAS WARD,

Advertising Manager for Sapolio.

WASHINGTON.

Every page of the American Newspaper Directory breathes the desire of its publishers that it shall be absolutely correct in every statement it makes.

SOUTHERN.

We subscribe to and pay cash for the American Newspaper Directory, and find it of great value in our advertising department. We have 6,8?? miles of railway, extending from Washington, D. C., all over the South, and in advertising this system we use more than 1,000 publications, and in selecting this list we find that we get a correct idea of circulation from this Directory that can not be obtained from any other similar publication. We receive other newspapr directories gratis, but the fact that we pay cash for this one in addition shows that we can not place the same dependence upon the "free list."

We thoroughly appreciate the careful manner in which this Directory is compiled.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13, 1900.

JOS. H. HANNEN,

Adv. Dept. Southern Railway.

I am looking forward to receiving the new edition with a great deal of anticipation, as, although the American Newspaper Directory seemed to have reached a high state of perfection several years ago, there is always something new and of value in each succeeding edition. It is regarded as the standard authority with the Southern Railway.

General Passenger Agent,

Washington, D. C., May 21, 1901.

BALTIMORE.

We have used the American Newspaper Directory for many years and find it more valuable to us than any other similar publication. Much of the information given we cannot obtain in any other way. The book is not only a great help, but a necessity to our business, and we think its way of stating circulations is the ideal one.

PASTY FOOD.

Too Commonly Used.

The use of pasty cereals is not advisable. A physician says, "Pasty cereals are very indigestible and a bad thing for the stomach, causing a depressed feeling and quite a train of disorders, particularly of the intestines and nerves.

Cereals, such as wheat and oats, can be cooked long enough and well enough to fit them for human use but the ordinary way of cooking leaves them in a pasty condition."

A gentleman from Evansville, Ind., whose name can be secured upon application to the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich., says: "My physician prohibited the use of oats and wheat for I was in a bad condition physically, with pronounced dyspepsia. He said the heavy paste was indigestible but that Grape-Nuts, being a thoroughly cooked food and cooked in such a manner as to change the starch into grapesugar, could be easily digested. I have become very found indeed of Grape-Nuts and all the uncomfortable feelings have disappeared. I have gained nearly twelve pounds in weight and none of the distressed, full feeling after my meals that I had formerly. Grape-Nuts Food has done the work."

Federation of Labors' Resolution.

At a meeting of the local branch of the Federal Union of Labor, No. 9240, held last night, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

That this meeting of the workingmen of the Town of Peterborough, having learned that the Dominion Government is being urged to grant to the Otonabee Power Company a lease of the water power at No. 5 dam on the Trent Valley Canal at a rental of $1250.00 which if the Company's representations are true is equivalent to only 60c per horse power and knowing that a rental of $4.00 per horse power was demanded when the Town were desirous of obtaining the power for the purpose of supplying manufacturies locating here.

That we wish to express our strong disapproval of the proposed lease.

That we believe that the opportunity should be given to the town to run this power in preference to any private company and at the same price so that the advantages thereof would be retained by the people.

That if the said power is to be sold to any private company that it should be sold by public tender and upon such conditions as will prevent its being used for the benefit of any monopoly or combination.

That a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Hon. The Minister of Railways & Canals.

INDEPENDENT INDIANS.

It is customary to consider Indians as a species of beggars, because they are mainly pensioners on the Government; but there could not be a more mistaken view. Poverty-stricken, or even dependent tribes, are the exception, while many are very well off in this world's goods. The Cherokees and Creeks are prosperous farmers and business men, and many a white man has envied their possessions.

In another part of Indian Territory live the Osages, the most independent Indians on earth; in fact, they are so rich that, if all their assets were turned into ready cash, there would be about $10,000 for every person, from the veteran warrior to the tiniest papoose.

The story of how they got so rich is an interesting one. In 1878 the Osages occupied a vast reservation in the very heart of Kansas. It was becoming more valuable every year, and as a consequence the whites were closing in upon the Indians. The Osages became alarmed and asked the Government to let them sell out and go to the Indian Territory, and the proposition being satisfactory, millions of acres changed hands.

With part of the proceeds of the sale the new reservation in Indian Territory, containing 1,600,000 acres, was purchased, and the remaining sum was held in trust by the Government, and it now amounts to something over eight million dollars. When the present reservation was bought from the Cherokees, it cost 75 cents per acre; to-day 80 per cent. of the land is valued at $5 an acre; the remainder—the tillable portion—is worth from $8 to $12 an acre.

Their personal property is valued at nearly a million dollars, and they have a school fund of $180,000. Footing up these items, the Osages are found to be worth $15,000,000, and as the tribe numbers 1,500 persons, it is an easy matter to compute the average wealth per capita.

There is enough tillable land to give every Osage, big and little, 200 acres apiece for a farm, and enough grazing land left to tack on to each farm 800 acres additional.

Yet, with all their riches, many of the Osages are industrious, and some of the farms are as well cultivated as any white man's. The majority, however, do not work very hard, because they don't have to.

The interest on the trust fund is paid quarterly, and each member of the tribe comes in for an equal share of this money, which amounts to $41.50 or $166 annually.

This income, in addition to a few acres of land under cultivation and some cattle and ponies, keeps the ordinary Osage family in comfort, if not affluence.

The Osages have made great advancement in the past twenty years. At first they would not send their children to school. They recognized the advantages of an education to a poor white man who had his living to make, but failed to see how they could be benefited by any change in their mental status.

Year after year the agents advised and persuaded, until at last the Government threatened that their interest money would be withheld if all children of school age were not at school five months in the year.

This touched their pockets and had the desired effect. Within six years the school attendance has increased from 25 per cent. of the minor children to 80 per cent.

In a few years more, when the remaining 20 per cent. are gathered in, the Osages can rank, not only as the wealthiest people, but as the greatest patrons of education in the world.

The New York Times tells of an incident that shows how large ocean steamships have become: "Once a little immigrant boy, about 7 years old, was lost for four days on the voyage over. He left his mother and started in quest of adventure about the big ship, but upon growing tired was unable to find his way back to her. Instead of asking some one to show him where to go, or telling that he was lost the young truant decided to continue his explorations indefinitely. When found he was sleeping in an empty coal box down among the engines. One of the crew took him to the captain, who detailed six stewards to search for his mother. They found her with some difficulty, and discovered that she, too, had been lost, having started out to look for her son and not being able to get to her own part of the ship again."

Americans who have visions of living cheaply in Paris should banish them. It is a good rule to count on its costing as much in the City of Laughter as in New York or Chicago, with this difference, that in Paris sleeping rooms heated by steam or hot air and lighted by electricity or gas can only be found in high-priced hotels and pensions. Bath rooms are equally scarce closets are important enough to be especially mentioned in the advertisements, a single window is the rule, and the majority of rooms face courts or back yards because of the peculiar construction adopted for French apartment houses. Americans cannot find "all the comforts of home" without paying roundly for them.

Kidney Duty.—It is the particular function of the kidneys to filter out poisons which pass through them into the blood. When the kidneys are diseased they cannot do their whole duty, and should have the help and strength that South American Kidney Cure will afford in any and all forms of kidney disorder. It relieves in 6 hours.—14

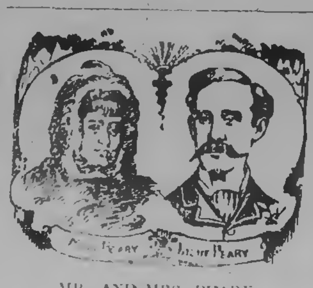
THE PEARY PARTY FOUND BY THE ERICK

The Great Artic Explorer and His Party Have Been Rescued

Mrs. Peary and Her Daughter will Return but Peary will Stay



MR. AND MRS. PEARY.

Halifax, N.S., Sept. 16.—The steamer Erikk arrived at North Sudney after a most successful expidition Peary the explorer, was found, and he and all his party are safe.

Peary still remains north to continue his work.

Peary succeeded in penetrating as far as 83. 50, North.

The relief expedition have brought back some 350 walrus heads and a number of kayaks and other curiosities

Lieutenant Peary sailed from North Sydney in July, 1898, to make a dash for the North Pole from North Greenland; but instead of making a dash for the pole he has devoted his time ever since to investigating geographical and other conditions of that lone land. He and his party were in the field almost continually from October 1898, to October, 1900, the last date when they were heard from.

Their investigations have added much to the geographical knowledge of the coast line and the interior of Ellesmere land. Peary made a careful reconnassance of the coast line southwest of Allman Bay, and carefully defined the lands between that point and Cape Sabine.

The Windward was icebound in Allman Bay from August, 1899, to August 2, 1899. Peary made several successful hunting trips and sledged 250 miles to Fort Conger, the headquarters of the Greely expedition. He had the misfortune to have both his feet frost bitten which caused six weeks' delay and confinement until he could make the return trip. He was hauled all the way back to the Windward where several toes were amputated. This was followed by complete recovery. Peary was the first to visit Fort Conger after Greely left it in 1883. Last autumn the Erik went north to find out how Peary was situated, with the result above shown.

THE McKINLEY MURDER.

Warning Letter Received by the Mayor Stimulates Police to Act

All Suspicious Characters will be Jailed During Visit Crusade Against Criminal Element Begins and Arrests are Made.

Montreal, Quebec, Sept, 16. — The receipt of the Italian letter by the mayor a few days ago in which it was announced that a plot is on foot to kill the duke of York shortly after he arrives here has evidently worried the police considerable, although they stated yesterday that it was evidently a fake. As a result they have started to spread out their dragnet and are gradually tightening it around all the suspicious characters they know of.

A consultation was held this morning and it was decided to clear the criminal atmosphere before the duke and duchess of York arrive here. With that end in view a list was made of all the known people who might cause trouble and the police magistrates were kept busy all day signing warrants which the police clerks filled out.

All these warrants were for vagrancy and the persons mentioned in them will be arrested on that charge. They will then be remanded till the time the royal party will have left Canada. It is stated that the detectives have been furnished with fifty warrants thus far and that many more will be issued to-morrow.

BIG CRUSADE IS BEGUN.

The crusade against the criminal element began to-night, and half a dozen men are already in the cells. They embrace men of all nationalities, but for the present no information is vouchsafed as to the identities of those who have fallen under the ban. Many of them, it is said, are well-known dangerous characters, and not a few are persons accused of anarchistic tendencies.

Lieutenant Colonel Sherwood, commissioner of the Dominion police, who is responsible for the safety of the royal party while in Canada, has been informed of the procedure and it is understood that he will recommend the authorities of all the large cities to take similar action.

OPPOSED TO COMMON HERD.

Inquiry among well known society people by the newspapers hav elicited the fact that the majority of them will not attend the public reception to be tendered the Duke and Duchess of York in the city hall here on the evening of their arrival because the affair has been made too common. At first it was decided that only the better class of people would be invited and that each alderman would be given in addition six tickkets of invitaton but since then a decision was arrived at on the part of the aldermen to the effect that anyone properly dressed should be admitted, providing they presented two visiting cards. As Lord Strathcona, who receives the Duke and Duchess in his palatial residence as his guests, will give one or two large dinners, however, the elite will meet their royal highnesses that way.

It looks as if it will be very difficult to make a good showing of militia during the Duke's visit, particularly in the case of the arrival at Quebec, to which the Montreal regiments will have to travel, and at the review in Toronto, to which the Ottawa regiments will have to go. The men object because they are only allowed 25 cents a day for rations and the employers object because they hate to lose the services of their men.

The men who have served in South Africa have been notified by the militia department that they cannot appear in their South African uniforms but must remain in mufti, and at a meeting held in Ottawa yesterday they decided not to appear at all too receive their South African medals unless they can do so in the uniforms in which they fought.

Junior Department of the Y. W. C. A.

On Tuesday afternoon of last week about thirty bright, interested, little women, from 8 to 10 years of age, met in the new Y.W.C.A. rooms on George street, and were duly organizsed into a self government club, with a President, Vice-President Secretary, and Treasurer. A similar gathering of girls from 11 to 15 years of age, on Thursday afternoon resulted in the formation of a second selfgovernment club in which 49 members are already enrolled. A short business meeting, presided over by the President of the club, followed the election of officers each afternoon, and the rapidity with which the officers and members learned how such a meeting should be conducted, would have astonished many of their elders. The dues were fixed at one cent weekly, the junior club meetings to be held on Tuesday and the senior on Thursday afternoon— The matter of club names is to be decided at the next regular meeting. With the opening of the educational work of the Association in October, gymnasium and other classes will be opened for the junior department. Their definite line of club work will be announced later.

Death of Miss Weir.

After an illness of many weeks, Miss Maggie Weir passed away at about 10 o'clock Friday night, at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Weir, No. 309 McDonel street.

The deceased was 41 years of age, and had been a resident of Peterborough all her life. She was highly esteemed amongst a wide circle of friends, all of whom will regret exceedingly to learn of her demise. She was a member of the Methodist church. The funeral will take place from the family residence on Tuesday at 2.30 o'clock in the afternoon to Little Lake cemetery.

Death of Francis Bygott.

The death of Francis George Bygott, of Sterling, on the 5th inst., though not unexpected, came as a sudden shock to many friends. He had been suffering for some time from that dreaded disease consumption, but had been up and around but had been around till within a short time of his death. He was the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bygott, and his parents and relatives have the sympathy of their many friends in their affliction. The late Francis Bygott was for a short time a resident of Peterborough, and has a brother here, Mr. John Bygott, in the employ of the G.T.R.

Tonight's Organ Recital.

Vogt, is one of the finest organists in Canada, being connected with the Toronto Conservatory of Music, director of the "Mendelssohn Choir, and organist of the Jarvis Street Baptist Church. The best local musical talent will also take part.

POLISH DEPOSIT NEVER RETURNED

United States May Haue to Pay Claim of $400,000.

AMOUNTS TO OVER $2,000,000

New York, Sept. 16. — By accepting the trust of a Polish patriot the United States Government may have to pay a claim of nearly $2,000,000. The good sword of the Polish patriot, who helped to fight the battles for the Union, has been rust for many a year. The $400 000 which he deposited with the Government, however, it is said to have continued to accumulate interest and to increase until it now amounts to more than four times what it was when the Government took charge of it.

Baron Ludwig Napoleon Dembitzky, lived near Warsaw. His father was a friend of Napoleon Bonaparte. The baron led a regiment of cavalry against the Russian troops, an offence for which he was outlawed. He managed to escape, however, with money and securities, leaving his estates to be confisticated by the Czar. He reached this country about the year 1862, and was fired with zeal to help the Republic fight its battles. He deposited his money with the United States treasurer, it is alleged.

WAS SLAIN IN BATTLE.

There was a fund at that time created especially for the benefit of foreigners who wished a custodian for their money while they were in the army. The baron took part in several important battles of the civil war, and the story is that he was slain in the battle of the Wilderness.

His funds are supposed to have remained without a claimant for all these years. The proceedings leading up to the proof of the claim promise to be long and tedious. Owing to the fact that the Russian troops often destroyed the Polish churches, it has been hard to establish the date of the birth of the baron. Mr. Rockmore has, however, obtained an old family Bible which contains the necessary records. If it be necessary the grandnephew will come to this country, bringing with him witnesses, by whom he hopes to establish the validity of his claim to the large estate.

Before he joined the federal army the baron is said to have invested in 1,932 acres of land in Wichita county, Texas. Investigations made at Austin, Texas, shows that a man named Dembitzky bought land in Wichita county, and search of the title of the land is now being made.

HYMEN'S FETTERS.

Marriage of Miss Mary Ruttan Boucher and Mr. J. Hudson.

An event of uncommon interest in local social circles was the marriage of Miss Mary Ruttan Boucher, daughter of Dr. R. P. Boucher to Mr. J. Hudson Hudson, son of James Hudson, Esq., of Halifax late general manager of the Nova Scotia Mining Association. The nuptials were solemnized in St. John's church, on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, by the Rev. J. C. Davidson, M.A., Rector, and were witnessed by an overflowing congregation, the sacred edifice being crowded to its utmost capacity, the unusual interest taken in this event by an expression of the universal esteem in which the beautiful young bride and her parents are held by the people of Peterborough. The bride who was given away by her father, was gowned in white silk poplin, handsomely trimmed with mousselin de soie. She wore veil and orange blossoms, and carried a shower bouquet of white roses. There were four bridesmaids, Miss Helen Boucher and Miss Hamilton, wearing white silk, with mousselin de soie, and Miss Belcher and Miss Marie Macdonell, (of Toronto), pink silk, with mousselin de soie. All wore black velvet Gainsborough hats. The mother of the bride wore black pointe d' esprit over canary-colored silk, and black and white toque. Mr. O'Hara, of Ottawa, was best man.

Among the guests from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Greening and the Misses Greening, of Hamilton; Dr. and Mrs. Buller, of Montreal; Mr., Mrs., and Miss Dorothy Colville, of Campbellford; Mrs. Dunsford and Miss H. D. Dunsford, of Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Smith, of Port Hope; Mr. and Mrs. David Starr, Montreal; Miss Spalding, Bowmanville; Mr. Ritchie, Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. Aylmer, of Orillia; Miss Kate Fraser, Toronto; Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Symonds, Port Hope; Dr. Mrs. and Miss Burnham, Toronto; Rev. J. L. Gilmour and Mrs. Gilmour, Montreal; Mr. Arthur Colville, Toronto and Mr. Morris, Port Hope.

The bride's going-away gown was dark blue cloth, with strappings of tucked silk of the same color, with Eton coat, white transparent silk blouse with applique trimmings, toque of dark blue velvet, with touches of grey. The ushers were Mr. Arthur Colville, Mr. Hazen Ritchie, Mr. Harley Dunsford, Mr. Arthur Hammond and Mr. Archie Morrow.

The bride's many friends had decorated the church most beautifully. A reception was held after the ceremony, at 196 Brock street, the residence of the bride's parents, which was beautifully decorated.

JIM STABLER ARRESTED.

He is Charged With a Serious Offence Trial On Wednesday.

Mr. Jim Stabler, a well known resident of Smith, has got himself into serious trouble. It appears that Stabler was in the habit of frequenting Chemong Lake, where he claimed to have jurisdiction as fishery overseer. It is alleged that he extorted money from several persons, claiming that they violated the law.

The arrest was made on Saturday afternoon by High County Constable Cochrane. The prisoner appeared before County Police Magistrate Edmison, who accepted bail for his appearance on Wednesday.

A New Parish.

A special meeting of the vestry of All Saints' Church will be held this evening at 8 o'clock to consider the question of setting apart this church as a separate parish. At the evening service Rev. W. L. Armitage, curate in charge, stated his position in the matter, which was that of perfect neutrality. He had never discussed the proposed separation with any of the congregation and would be governed entirely by their wishes in the matter. It is said a majority of the members of the vestry have signed the memorial to the Bishop for the establishment of a new parish.

SHEEPER'S FORCES IN A OORNER

Boer Commando will Probably Surrender

WAR TECHNICALLY OVER

Methuen does some Hard Fighting and Drives the Enemy Before Him.

Pretoria, Sept. 16.

Five-columns, which have been operating against Sheeper's commando, have succeeded in driving the Boers into a corner, and their surrender is expected.

The proclamation of Lord Kitchener has had but little effect upon the burghers still in the field. There are a few isolated cases, where small parties have surrendered, but no general movement in that direction has taken place.

Gen. Kitchener reports satisfactory progress during the week, about 600 Boers having been bagged, in addition to large quantities of ammunition.

An anonymous Boer communication has been received threatening reprisals if the confiscation proclamation is carried out.

General Methuen has had an engagement with a Boer force at Rheonsterfontein, east of Zeerust, in which eleven of the burghers were killed and twenty captured. The British pursued the Boers north, and in the chase killed seven and captured twenty-one of them.

Skirmishes have taken place on the Pietersburg Railway line, in which seven Boers were killed.

The British casualties in the Great Maries valley on September 6 and 8, when General Methuen was engaged with Vantander and Dela Rey, driving the Boers from a strong position, were 25 killed and 30 wounded, including Capt. Croft.

THE BOER PRISONERS

London, Sept. 16.

The monotonous record of small British success in South Africa continues, but there is no expectation that Boer hunting will cease after Sunday, when the war can be proclaimed to be technically at an end. The expiration of the time limit will enable Lord Kitchener to enforce more stringent measures in dealing with the prisoners captured by the mounted columns if he has a definite plan for future operations. Military men do not expect any new departure, but assert that the process of wearing out the Boers and picking up guerillas by threes and fours will continue for an indefinite period, while the movement of refugees to Johannesburg, already in progress will be quickened.

The problem which baffles all inquirers is the ultimate treatment of the prisoners. The fighting men of the Dutch states, with the exception of 8,000 guerillas and Cape Rebels, are now prisoners of war. Nobody, either in the Colonial or the War Office, ventures to forecast what will happen when the 8,000 still in the field are run down and either killed, maimed or captured. Shooting will cease for the time, but the Government will have women and children to feed in concentration camps and no guarantee that the prisoners when released, will not take up arms afresh

Mr. Bennett Burleigh advises that Lord Milner arrived at Johannesburg on Tuesday evening. The Telegraph's special correspondent adds that the Boer women who were allowed to go out and try to persuade their husbands to give in, found them reading reports of Mr. Labouchere's Queen's Hall meeting, from which they inferred that England was on the verge of civil war. They were consequently not at all conciliatory.

KRUGERS' LATEST

Brussels, Sept. 16.

Ex-President Kruger stated to-day to a news paper correspondent, that Britain had violated every law of humanity, and should be proclaimed an outcast by all Christian nations. None but a bully would refuse arbitration, and this England had done. He invoked the curse of heaven on the British people.

The Independence Belge says that Dr. Leyds and other Boer officials appealed to the Hague Tribunal on Tuesday to intervene and compel Great Britain to accept arbitration. They accuse the British of breaking all the laws of war.

THE GORDON HIGHLANDERS.

London, Sept. 16.

Lord Kitchener has sent King Edward as Colonel-in-Chief of the Gordon Highlanders, an account of an incident that strongly recalls the storming of Dargai Heights by that regiment. Lord Kitchener says that, after surrendering, Commandant De Villers informed him that during the Boer attack of July 4 on Watsoou Spruit, the Highlanders behaved with the utmost gallantry. "The last four men, though entirely surrounded and without cover, continued to fire until three were killed and the fourth was wounded. On the Boers asking the survivor the reason why they did not surrender, he replied: 'Why, man, we are Gordon Highlanders.'"

CAPE PARLIAMENT AGAIN PROROGUED

Cape Town, Sept. 16

Parliament has been further prorogued until November 20. No mention of the despatch of business is made in the prorogation proclamation.

ECUADOR FORCE READY FOR FIGHT

Battle With Columbia on the Frontier is Imminent

CASTRO HELPS THE INVADERS.

New York, Sept. 11.—A despatch from Quito, Ecuador, says that a force of Ecuadorean troops is ready to invade Colombia, and a battle is imminent near Pasto, just beyond the Colombian frontier, and about one hundred and fifty miles northeast of Quito.

This gives strength to the rumors of a secret agreement between the governments of Venezuela, Ecuador and Nicaragua to co-operate with one another against Colombia. It has been regarded in Washington as significant that Columbia should simultaneously have trouble on her Venezuelan and Ecuadorean frontier and on the isthmus. Guerilla warfare has been reported in all these localities.

The basis that Venezuela and Ecuador might have for opposing the Colombian government is said to be that the liberal party, which is in control of the two first republics, is antagonistis to the conservative party which governs Colombia. Colombia, Venezuela and Ecuador once formed the Great Colombia, and the two parties arose from the tendencies existing there at the close of the was of independence. President Castro, it is alleged, has the ambition of uniting the three republics again and of becoming the head of the greater republic.

NEW CANAL ROUTE.

Attention in the United States has been directed toward a canal by the Nicaraguan route, rather than by the Panama route. It is not at all certain, however, that the United States Canal Commission will now recommend the purchase of the Panama concession from the French company and the completion of the canal by that route. In the meantime the administration is anxious to avoid any complications that might nterfere with the construction of a canal by either route, such as might arise in the event of European intervention in the affairs of Colombia.

President Castro of Venezuela some days ago sent ammuniton and men to Cucuta, Colombia to assist the Colombian revolution.

According to the latest advices from Port of Spain, Trinidad, several Venezuelan war vessels are there. Some are being repaired. Others are awaiting orders.

Residents on the beach front at Colon on two consecutive evenings saw a mysterious steamship, showing two lights. The vessel was observed between six and eight o'clock. She remained in view quite a while and disappeared suddenly, causing much curiosity.

ATTRACTIONS AT THE FAIR.

Unusual Variety of Arrangements For The Peterborough Central.

The directors of the Peterborough Central have engaged an uncommonly good list of performers for the fair. Fair days are Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 24, 25 and 26. At the formal opening on Wednesday addresses will be delivered by Hon. Dr. Borden Minister of Militia; Hon. J. R. Stratton, Mr. James Kendry, M. P., and Warden Fitzgerald. All arrangements have about been perfected, and without doubt the show will be the best ever held in Peterborough. The per- ever held in Peterborough. The performers will be Lily Bletso, the Canadian premier lady cornetist, and the youngest of her sex in Canada who plays that difficult instrument. She will give a selection of national and popular airs.

Areno, the contortionist, will perform feats which have mystified the medical profession in Canada and the United States.

The Bletso children national dancers, winners of numerous prizes and medals, and the cleverest young dancers in Canada, will also appear.

Harry Rich, Canada's foremost comedian will appear in a series of very funny and amusing sketches.

Franklyn and Hyatt, will impersonate in realistic skketches of English characters, including the seaside resort lady and gentleman, the race course swells, the London costers and the London society swells.

Varin and Turenne, the celebrated Mexican axe jugglers, will exhibit in wonderful feats of daring and strength handling a perfect shower of axes.

Walton and Jones appear in the funniest and prettiest comedy sketch ever put on any stage, introducing wonderful cornet playing and the prettiest dancing ever seen in Canada.

Besides these events, considerable interest will be claimed by the baby show, speeding in the ring, the drawing contest, and the 100-yard foot race for the Schneider cup.

BRITAIN'S DEEP SORROW OVER McKINLEY'S DEATH

EMMA GOLDMAN WAS REMOVED BY THE POLICE

Violence of the Chicago Mob Was Eeared and She Was Spirited Away to Escape Them.

London, Sept. 11.—From the towers of Westminster Abbey, from the gray buildings where the Government of the Empire is administered, from the Mansion House and law courts, from churches, hotels and business and private houses in London, Union Jacks are floating at half mast as a mark of sympathy for the murdered President. All the stock and commercial exchanges are closed.

At the United States Embassy a quiet and sorrowful crowd, many of the visitors being in deep mourning, passes in and out, recording their last respects for President McKinley. The first name signed was that of Mr. Charles Francis, United States Minister to Greece.

"Most truly do I sympathize with you and the whole American nation at the loss of your distinguished and ever-to-be-regretted President.

EDWARD REX.

Telegrams are pouring in from prominent Englishmen, societies, and municipalities. It seems as if every little town in England were individually telegraphing an expression of sympathy and horror.

Everything as yet is rather unsettled, but it is probable that a memorial service of imposing proportions will be held in Westminster Abbey, as was done at the time of the death of General Grant. Whether the British Government will issue an official notification of mourning, rests chiefly with King Edward.

Affecting scenes markked the announcement of the death of the President at the Ecumenical Methodist Conference which passed resolution declaring that the whole Christian world sympathized with the American people.

Throughout the length and breadth of Europe feelings similar to those vinced in the British metropolis seem to have been evoked.

Perhaps the best is voiced by the Vienna Neues Weiner Tageblatt, which says:—

"The ocean is not wide enough to hold all the sympathy that is streaming from the old world to the new."

Several of the Madrid newspapers publish editorials upon the death of President McKnley, of whom they all speak in terms of respect.

PARIS DRAPED IN BLACK.

Paris, Sept. 14.—The news of President McKinley's death became known here generally at about 10 o'clock, and the central portion of the city immediately was hung with furled and crepe-draped American flags. The United States Embassy and Consulate, all the hotels and American business houses, and the establishments of many French firms on the avenue De L'Opera, the Rue De La Paix, the main boulevards and in the Champs Elysees quarter displayed this mark of respect.

Ambassador Porter, who has not been well for the past fortnight, was upset yesterday by the sudden change for the worse in McKinley's condition. His physician, therefore, forbade that the news of the President's death be communicated to him this morning.

President Loubet and Minister of Foreign Affairs Delcasse called at the Embassy at about 10 o'clock, but could not be received.

KAISER HEARS THE NEWS.

Dantzic, Sept. 14.—When Emperor William heard of the death of President McKinley he immediately ordered the German fleet to half-mast their flags, and to hoist the Stars and Stripes at their main tops.

EMMA GOLDMAN REMOVED.

Chicago, Sept. 14.—Emma Goldman was spirited away from the Woman's Annex of the Harrison street police station early this morning in a cab when it was learned by the President was dead.

Capt. Mahoney refused to tell where the woman had been taken. Her removal, he said, was merely a precautionary measure, and it was probable she would soon be brought back.

While she was being hurried to safety in a cab a crowd numbering about 100 men started for the Annex, loudly threatening to lynch Miss Goldman They had waited in front of the bulletin board until all hope was gone, and then started to execute vengeance After proceeding a few blocks, however, cooler heads in the crowd succeeded in checking the excitement, and somewhat later the crowd dispersed.

No disturbance was reported by the officials at the County Jail, where the local anarchists were locked up. It was the belief this morning that the President's death would make it extremely unlikely that the court would admit them to bail. Chief of Police O'Neill is quoted as saying that it would be murder to let them on the street with citizens in their present grim temper.

When told of the President's death Emma Goldman, without a change of expression, said, "Very sorry." Absolutely no shade of regret or pity showed itself upon her countenance. "I do not see how that can affect my case," she added "if it is carried on lawfully and legally. They have no evidence against me. Chief Bull and Chief O'Neill have admitted they have none. They are holding me without evidence."

SORROW AT THE CAPITAL.

Ottawa, Sept. 14.—Flags are flying at half-mast on the Government and civic buildings to-day out of respect to the memory of the late President McKinley. There is genuine and widespread sorrow in the capital at the sad death of the President.

ELECTRIC CHAIR FOR CZOLGOSZ.

Buffalo, Sept. 14.—The wretch Czolgosz now stands accused of murder. It was with malice aforethought, and as such was murder in the first degree, the punishment for which, under the laws of the State of New York is death in the electric chair. Had the death of the President occurred at any other time than in the early hours of the morning it would have toded ill to the evil genius of this fearful episode. The angry spirit of the people here reached an intense pitch last night. Forseeing the danger of possible riot the police headquarters where Czolgosz was confined was roped off, and the menacing thousands held at bay. The entire police force of the city, regulars and reserve was held on duty all night. Two regiments of the National Guard of New Yorkk were at their armouries, ready for instant service. If the President's death had come before midnight it would have been difficult to avoid a conflict. But the crowds gradually broke up as the new day came on, and by 2.15 a.m., when the death announcement came, the down town thoroughfares were deserted. For the moment the anger of the outraged people is forgotten in their poignant grief, and this will doubtless consign Czolgosz to the swift and inevitable punishment provided by law.

CANADA NEEDS STEEL SHIPS

Fielding Says Competition Demands it.

THE FAST ATLANTIC SERVICE

Halifax, Sept. 14.—Hon. W. S. Fielding, in the course of an interview on shipbuilding, said that the possesion of a considerable fleet of steel ships was of the utmost importance to Canada. "If we can build them ourselves, so much the better," said Mr. Fielding. "The carrying trade of the world remains to be one, as before, and we know we cannot do much with wooden ships. For fishing vessels, and occasionally special service in the carrying trade, where larger tonnage is needed, we shall still find employment for our wooden shipbuilding industry, but if we are ever to engage in the carrying trade of the world, of which we formerly had so large a share, we must have steel vessels to do it. It would be better that we should buy them abroad than be without them, but it would be still better to build them ourselves, if that would be feasible, and I have a strong hope that we shall gradually do so. Of course, if any aid were given by the Government, it would have to be given on some general plan which would apply equally to shipyards on the coast and shipyards on the lakes. The Government is most anxious to see the industry carried on in Canada in a large way, and any reasonable proposal looking to development of that kind would receive very favorable consideration."

In referring to a fast Atlantic service Mr. Fielding said: "The Government has been in communication with a number of parties who are interested in it, and also with the Imperial Government, who were partners with us in the former scheme. The last year or two has not been a favorable time for Government action except in the way of enquiry. The great shipyards of the mother country have been very busy, and shipbuilding has been most costyl. Conditions are becoming more favorable, and responsible shipping men, who would not have looked at the project a year or two ago, are now disposed to take it. While I am not at liberty to say more at present, I feel assured that an early day such action will be taken as will assure us a steam ship line between Great Britain and Canada of which the Dominion may be proud."

The Harvest Home.

The congregation of All Saints' Church begin this evening their preparations for the annual Harvest Home festival, which takes place next Thursday evening, beginning at 8 o'clock. Friends are requested to contribute fruit, grains and flowers. The sermon will be delivered by the Rev. A. J. Fifler, who preached so acceptably in this church during last Lent. The choirs are practising industriously for the musical portion of the service, which will be full choral, with a couple of fine anthems.

New Jewelery Store.

Mr. R. J. Frost will in a few days open a new jewelry store. He has secured a stand opposite the Times Office, and will open up with a first-class stock of watches, clocks, and jewelry of all descriptions, "Diamond Hall," as the establishment will be called, is one of three stores in which Mr. Frost is financially interested, the other two being in Orillia and Midland.

PETERBOROUGH, SEPTEMBER 16 1901

THE DEAD PRESIDENT

The dastardly assassination of President McKinley teaches the lesson—first, that there must be greater safeguards applied to the protection of the chief executive—safeguards which will approach the care and elaboration of those associated with the protection of monarchy; second, that the liberty of meeting and speech accorded to avowed anarchists and which have acted as incitements to violence, should be curtailed. It is only in England and in the United States that such liberty is permitted. In all other countries the sternest measures are taken to suppress anarchist sentiments, and the police are always on the track of the leaders. There is something grand no doubt, in the sense of strength and security which walks unmoved while the most dastardly plots are being hatched to murder the very liberty which permits the vile conspiracy; but it is now urgently necessary that steps should be taken to break up in the United States associations whose avowed purpose is murder. We have seen the results of anarchism in the Haymarket riots at Chicago. We have seen a physical force sending their instruments and engines of destruction across to England in broad daylight, with the purpose of destroying innocent people as an object lesson of Irish hatred; and there have of late years in the east, been clubs of desperate characters, which met quite openly, and plotted with the knowledge of the police, the taking off of foreign potentates. The United States must be aroused to a sense of danger to which its rulers are exposed so long as desperate men are allowed to meet and air their views—views which spell murder and universal chaos.

We frequently say that assassins are bred by despotism; they also flourish in the most tolerant of all democracies. The President of the United States is the father of his people. He walks in and out among the members of his family. He is a plain man. He disdains all show. He cultivates a Roman simplicity. All men can approach, all men can take him by the hand. This is beautiful, no doubt, but the population of the United States is wonderfully (perhaps appallingly) heterogeneous. The hatreds of Europe are transplanted in American soil. By a strange irony, the notion of tyranny is transferred from a ruthless system which grinds the individual to the earth, to him who represents liberty in its most extended form. Desperate creatures, finding refuge from despotism in the United States, let loose the passions which have been bottled up under severe conditions and the innocent suffers from the wrong of centuries prepetrated in countries which are alien in thought, in genius, in act. It is very singular. There are, indeed, the frightful contrasts of extreme wealth and extreme poverty in the United States to remind of conditions upon which the back has been turned, and we may believe that these contrasts which exist in large centres have much to do in inflaming disordered minds which conceive the idea that to smite the head of government means to triumph over economic causes.

The death of President McKinley will be universally deplored. He was a man amongst men, and a tower of strength to the nation. We in Canada deeply sympathize with our cousins across the line over their irreparable loss.

An Ohio preacher has discovered, according to himself, that the Garden of Eden was located in Ohio. If he can follow his discovery by locating the exact spot, no doubt a syndicate can be found to reopen the Garden and operate it on the original terms. Climatic conditions may make it inadvisable to return to Adam and Eve costumes, but this is a matter for after consideration.

Buffalo Times:—It is not the beer-guzzling, long-haired "Anarchists," such as those who sit around resorts like Schwob's in New York city, whom the country has to fear, so far as their personal acts are concerned. They are too timed to do anything but talk. The danger from these men lies in the effect which their utterances may have on such men as Czolgosz, who was "inspired" by the utterances of Emma Goldman. For this reason alone they should be sent out of the country, or kept behind bars if they remain.

WHAT MRS. HAYTER SUFFERED.

"I had been sick for more than a year with kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Lucy Hayter, of Jacksboro, Jack Co., Texas. "Several different doctors treated me, but none did me any good. One doctor said that I never could be cured, that I had Bright's Disease. I suffered nearly death at times; had spells the doctors called spasms. Was bed-fast most of the time for six months. My mother begged me to try Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery."

WHAT DR. PIERCE SAID.

"With but little hope I wrote to Dr. Pierce, and he said 'he could cure me.' I began to take his 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and although I had given up to die, I began to improve from the start, and by the time I had taken twenty-two bottles I was entirely cured. I weigh more than ever before in my life and am entirely well."

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It cures through the stomach diseases of heart, liver, lungs, kidneys, etc., which have their origin in disease of the stomach and its associate organs.

WANTS $500,000 FROM SPAIN.

Jules Sanguilly Files Claims for Being Imprisoned Two Years.

Washington, Sept. 14—Juliet Sanguilly has filed a claim with the Spanish treaty claims commission for $500,000 for alleged false arrest and imprisonment by the Spanish authorities in February, 1896. The petitioner was arrested and thrown into Fort La Cabana, where he was kept two years. At that time he was surrendered to the United States consul general at Havana and hurried away from the Island of Cuba under a Spanish royal decree, which commuted the penalty of life imprisonment at hard labor, to which he had been condemned, to that of perpetual exile.

LAST HOURS OF PRESIDENT McKINLEY

President McKinley began to sink shortly after 2 o'clock Friday morning, after a critical period of 12 hours, in which alarm and hope mingled in the emotions to those who surrounded him. Trouble began on the preceding afternoon through the failure of the digestive organs to perform their functions. The necessity for nourishment had been pressing for several days, and the partial failure of artificial means had led to the adoption of natural means. The rectum, through which nourishment had been injected previous to Wednesday, became irritated and rejected the enemas. This forced the the physicians to try to feed him through the mouth, probably before the stomach was prepared. The first administration of beef juice through the mouth, however, seemed to agree with the patient, and the physicians were highly gratified at the way the stomach seemed to receive the food.

Dr. McBurney was especially jubilant over the action of the stomach, and yesterday morning before his departure for New York, dwelt upon the fact that the stomach seemed to have resumed its normal functions. The breakfast of chicken broth, toast and coffee, given yesterday, was spoken of by all the physicians as strong evidence of the President's marked improvement. It was only when it became apparent late in the morning that this food had not agreed with the President that the first genuine anxiety appeared. The first note of alarm was sounded in the official bulletin yesterday afternoon which spoke of the President's fatigue.

INCREASED FATIGUE.

President McKinley, already weak from the ordeal of the tragedy, and suffering, complained of an increasing feeling of fatigue. He had heretofore been so buoyant and cheerful that his complaints were seriously regarded. The pulse was then also abnormally high, 126 beats to the minute. With a temperature of 100.2, it should have been 30 beats lower. The weakness of the heart began to arouse serious concern. Instead of growing better, the President's condition after that grew steadily worse. The staff of physicians, augmented by Dr. Stockton, who had temporarily taken the place of Dr. McBurney, was summoned early in the evening, and there was a conference.

MRS. McKINLEY.

It was learned that the physicians had decided that it would not be well for Mrs. McKinley to enter the sick room to-day, both on account of her feeble health, and the excitement it might cause the President. So far as can be learned. Mrs. McKinley has not been informed yet of the grave condition in which her husband is.

Early in the morning the intimate friends and relatives of the President, who were telegraphed for early in the morning, began to arrive, and soon after 10 o'clock there were assembled in the down stairs rooms of the Milburn house, Senators Hanna and Fairbanks, ex-Secretary of State Day. Secretary Wilson, and Secretary Hitchcock, Abner McKinley, Miss Helen McKinley, a sister of the President, Mrs. J. T. Duncan, another sister, and Mrs. Lafayette McWilliams, in addition to Mr. John G. Milburn.

Col. Herrick, and others who had arrived by special trains this morning, are in the drawing room of the Milburn house, watching the clock and listening to the pendulum, which may be ticking away the seconds of the great man's life. All realize that only a slender hope remains, and all dread a sudden attack of heart failure which might bring death. Of all the sad household only the wife does not know the real truth She surmises that the President is worse, for she was told this morning it would be better for her not to enter the sick chamber. She assented, but it was with a look of mute appeal in her eyes.

The President himself seems to realize that his life hangs by a thread, although he has not yet been told how slim the chances are.

The doctors, it is needless to say, are doing all that medical science and skill can do to save the President. W. W. Johnson, of Washington, and Dr. Janeway, of New York, two of the most eminent heart specialists in the United States, have been summoned to lend their skill and counsel, and Dr. McBurney has been recalled. He advanced the theory before he left that the accelerated pulse might be due to the after effects of the shock of the first bullet against the breastbone, now manifesting itself for the first time.

The President's condition is fairly satisfactory, and upon this is based the hope for his recovery. If the heart action can be controlled and strengthened the crisis now existing would pass. But everything is being prepared for the worst.

Vice-President Roosevelt and the absent members of the Cabinet were telegraphed for, and came as fast as steel and steam could bring them.

When the sinking spell occurred about 2 o'clock yesterday morning, it was feared that the President might expire at any moment, as he did not respond to ordinary stimulants. It was only when recourse was had to the desperate resource of injecting into his veins, saline solution, which saved Mrs. McKinley's life in San Francisco, that the circulation grew stronger, and after an hour he rallied somewhat. His pulse at one time was almost 140. But the slight rally came and returning hope with it. With the fresh energies of daylight the President appeared perceptibly stronger, and the physicians announced in their 9 o'clock bulletin that his condition was improved. The pulse had fallen several points from the highest, and they affirmed the existence of hope.

LYNCHING IS FEARED.

CHICAGO, SEPT. 14.

Emma Goldman and the other nine alleged anarchists under arrest in this city, it is now believed, will all be given a chance to obtain liberty on bail when the habeas corpus proceeding in Judge Chetlain's court comes up to-day. City Prosecutor Taylor has decided that there is no reason whatever for continuing to hold Abraham Isaak jr., the 19-year old son of the elder Isaak, longer in custody Nothing, however, will be done in young Isaak's case until after the hearing to-day. As no evidence has as yet been received from Buffalo, Taylor says that the present charges constitute nothing more than a misdemeanor, and that the prisoners are consequently entitled to bail. He will, however, ask to have the bail placed at a high figure, possibly $15,000 or $20,000.

LYNCHING IS FEARED.

Judge Chetlain has concluded to take up the habeas corpus case of the alleged anarchists in the Criminal Court building on the north side, adjacent to the jail, instead of in his regular court room on the south side. The change was made at the request of the sheriff, who stated that he was afraid that an attempt would be made to rescue the prisoners if they were taken through the streets by the police. He said that the people were excited on account of the bulletins from Buffalo, and if had been reported to him that threats of lynching had been made.

LATEST BULLETINS ISSUED

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 13, 6.30 p.m. The President's physicians report that his condition is most serious in spite of vigorous stimulation. The depression continues and is profound. Unless it can be relieved, the end is only a question of time.

GEO. B. CORTELYOU,
Sec'y to the President.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 13, 5.45 p.m. The President is dying. The physicians have sent for those nearest to him, and have informed his relatives and friends.

GEO. B. CORTELYOU,
Sec'y to the President.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 13. 7.23 p.m. The President is unconscious, and his time is very short.

GEO. B. CORTELYOU,
Sec'y to the President.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 13, 8.50 p.m. Sec'y. Cortelyou and Mrs. McKinley have been with the President for some time. An announcement from the house at 8.50 states that the President is in extremes.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 13, 9.20 p.m. The President is being kept alive with great difficulty by the use of oxygen. His case is now more desperate.

GEO. B. CORTELYOU,
Sec'y to the President.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 13. 9.32 p.m. Secretary Cortelyou has just sent a message out to the newspaper men stating that he cannot now leave the house as the President is in his last moments.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 13, 9.35 p.m. Dr. Mynter, who has just left the house, says the President is slowly The approach of death is already evident, as the body is getting cold. Dr. Mynter says, however, that the President may last until 2 o'clock in the morning, although the end may come at any time. There is hardly any pulse to be felt.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 13, 9533 p.m. The administration of oxygen has been suspended for some time. The President, before he finally lost consciousness, bade his wife a tender farewell. He was then heard to murmur words of the hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee." These were probably his last words.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 13, 11.7 p.m. Dr. McBurney said it was possible the President might live several hours. He is still breathing, but the circulation has ceased in his extremities, and they are cold.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 14, 12.05 a.m. The district attorney ordered the coroner to proceed to the Milburn house because he had heard a report that the President was dead.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 14, 1.30 a.m. An attendant has just come from the house, and says that the President's pulse had shown practically no activity in four hours. There was only a slight heart beat. All of the doctors were still upstairs, near at hand to the President.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 14. 2.17 p.m. The President died at 2.15 o'clock this morning surrounded by his wife, Sec'y Cortelyou and the physicians. He did not recover consciousness immediately before breathing his last.

BREAKING THE NEWS.

How Dr. Rixey informed Mrs. McKinley.

Buffalo, Sept. 14.—Col. W.W. Brown, a friend of the McKinleys, said yesterday:

"It is impossible for those who do not know the marvelous tenderness there is between this husband and wife to understand what the suffering of each is to the other. The one thing that preys upon the President's mind is his anxiety for the effect upon Mrs. McKinley of the ordeal which he is going through. And what it is to her to be separated from him is more than can be appreciated except by those who know how constantly she has leaned upon him for years. It is as though very foundations of everything were pulled away when he is away from her I never knew anything like such a touching devotion as there is between these two. I think nobody ever did.

"There is one thing I wish to say about Mrs. McKinley's physical condition. She is not under the influence of any narcotic drug whatever. She is bearing up under all this by the sheer strength ~~of her will~~ and by her own physical strength. And then there is another thing I would like to say by way of correction. The condition of the President has not been concealed from Mrs. McKinley. It was not concealed from her at the start. Dr. R[illegible] broke the news to her as has been stated.

"The details are in this way: Mrs. McKinley first expressed surprise that he was so late in coming from the exposition grounds When it became dusk and he still did not come she became decidedly anxious. Then Dr. Rixey appeared and she said to him: 'Where is Mr. McKinley? Why does he not come?' 'I have some bad news for you. Mrs. McKinley,' said the doctor. 'What is it?' she cried. 'Is there anything wrong with him; has he been hurt?' 'Yes, Mrs. McKinley,' the doctor said. 'He has been hurt; he has been shot.'

"She staggered slightly, but instantly replied: 'Then I must go to him. I must go to him at once.'

"'No,' the doctor said, we are going to bring him to you and everything depends upon you. Mrs. McKinley. May be his life depends upon you. We look to you to help us. It is your bravery that will do everything.'

"Now," continued Col. Brown, "that is just exactly what occurred and it is due to Mrs. McKinley to say it, for too much cannot be given to her for the splendid way in which she then and there rose up to meet the ordeal and for the splendid spirit she has shown from that time right on to the present moment."

IN THE PRESIDENTS POCKETS

What He Carried at the Time He Was Shot

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 14.—When the President's clothes were removed at the exposition hospital they were wrapped up carefully and sent to the Milburn home by one of the secret service men. The President's pockets held much the same contents as those of an ordinary citizen. In his right hand trousers pocket was some currency, $1.80 in all. Jingling with this coin was a small silver nugget, well worn, as if the President had carried it for a pocket piece for a long time. Three small penknives, pearl-handled, were in the pockets of his trousers. Evidently they were gifts which he prized and he was in the habit of carrying all three. They were simple knives, with no silver ornamentation, inscriptions or initials or other visible personal history. Another battered coin, presumably a pocket piece, was in the left hand pocket.

The President's wallet is a well-worn black leather one, about four inches by five and a half inches in size. It was not marked with his name or other identification. In his wallet were some bills amounting to $15. A number of cards, which evidently had rested in the wallet for some time, were in one of the compartments These were not examined

In a vest pocket was a silver shell lead pencil and three cigars were found. They were not the black perfectos which the President likes, but a short size and were recognized as some that had been given to him at Niagara Falls that day. On two of them he had chewed much as General Grant used a cigar. The other he had not touched.

The President's watch was an open-face gold case American-made time-keeper. Attached to it was a gold chain which the President always wore. No letters, telegrams or papers were found.

There was not on the President's person a single clew to his identity unless it was to be found in his wallet.

—Marmora Has organized a gun club with A. W. Carscallen, M.P., as president.

THE BOER WAGON

London, Sept. 14.—Referring to the large number of wagons which are reported as having been captured from the Boers, a gentleman of South African experience says that people have very little idea of what a South African wagon is. They are huge, lumbering vehicles, each drawn by sixteen oxen. A wagon and its oxen extend for about 100 feet, and fifty of them would extend for a mile in a straight line. Of these wagons there is an abundant supply, for every country Boer had one or more. It is doubtful as to whether oxen have been taken with the wagons. A thousand wagons, for instance, would require 16,000 oxen. Many of the wagons have been taken without their teams. In any case, it seriously cripples the Boers to deprive them of their wagons, and so many have now been captured by the British troops that there cannot be many left.

American Newspaper Directory.

Tells the circulations of all American newspapers. Revised, corrected and reissued every three months. Sixteen hundred pages: Price Five Dollars a volume or $20 a year.

BUFFALO.

We should hardly know how to get along without the American Newspaper Directory. We regard it by all odds the most complete and reliable guide that the advertiser can make use of; in fact we use no other.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 24, 1901.

R. V. PIERCE, M.D.
President World's Dis. Med. Ass'n.

VERMONT.

The American Newspaper Directory stands, as it has always stood, the first and best of newspaper directories—the only one which cannot be ignored, the only one which every advertiser must have. No other can take its place; no other is needed.—Joseph Auld, in the Burlington (Vt.) News of July 3, 1896.

ADVISOR.

The Advisor accepts the American Newspaper Directory as the standard in newspaper ratings. The obstacles which obstruct its efforts to get true and reliable information are many.

• • • •

The directory question is one which interests every publisher in the country—nay, the entire world. But in the United States, directories are becoming altogether too numerous. In this, as with other books of reference, it is necessary to have one which may be relied on as being an authority on the matter of newspaper circulations. There can be no question about the fact that at this time, as for many years past, the American Newspaper Directory is that authority. The Advisor is not paid to make this announcement. It makes the statement in the interest of advertisers and publishers because it is true. One thing the advertiser is almost cock-sure of when he refers to the American Newspaper Directory is that the circulation figures he sees therein are not overstated to any great extent. In most other directories they are. Only the publisher himself is to be blamed for no securing a proper rating in that publication, and every advertiser of consequence knows it. Thus the publisher who refuses to furnish a statement places himself under a reasonable suspicion.—The Advisor for June, New York, June, 1901.

CHICAGO.

Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co's American Newspaper Directory has long since earned the reputation of being the best of its character. It contains the result of patient, expensive and systematic effort to secure all attainable information of interest concerning American newspapers. The work has been honestly done. This will not be questioned by any unprejudiced examiner. The most important question is circulation. In attempting to give this information the Editor of the Directory encounters his most difficult work. It is the aim and necessity of the Directory to give the truth. The American Newspaper Directory is to-day the dependence and guide in a greater or less degree, of every large advertiser in the country.—Chicago (Ill.) Daily News.

BATES.

No man who advertises can afford to do without it.

What Bradstreet and Dun are to the mercantile world. The American Newspaper Directory is to the world of periodical publications.

A new advertiser will get from the American Newspaper Directory a better idea of the greatness of his country and the tremendous possibilities in newspaper advertising, than from any other source.

If an advertiser spends only $100 a year he should have the American Newspaper Directory. For his business may grow and his right expenditure of his money become increasingly important. The time to learn how to spend $10,000 a year, is before it is spent, otherwise the spending may be disastrous.

Many times the best paper in town costs the advertiser no more than the poorest. The American Newspaper Directory tells which is which.

The paper that was the leader in its town five years ago may lag behind to-day. Even one year may witness astonishing changes. If you are spending money for publicity it is vastly important that you should know where to get the most of it for the price. The American Newspaper Directory gives not only the present circulation rating of every paper in America, but shows their history by quoting past ratings.

The book costs five dollars a copy, and a single reference to it may readily save or make many times its cost.

All newspaper directories but one are erroneously optimistic about circulations. The American Newspaper Directory may occasionally err on the other side, but that makes it all the safer for the advertiser.

My advertising experience began in 1865, and one of the first things I did was to buy a copy of the American Newspaper Directory.

For sixteen years Rowell's "The American Newspaper Directory" has had a place of honor and usefulness on my desk

Many a publisher is ready to prove by other directories that "Rowell's is wrong," but few indeed can be induced to prove it by opening their circulation books to the advertiser.

Among publishers who are not willing that their real circulations be known, it is the best hated book in print The moral is not far to find.

CHARLES AUSTIN BATES.
New York, June 24, 1901.

PABST.

If the improvement of the American Newspaper Directory continues in the future as it has during the past twenty years I do not think I shall live long enough to see any other directory take its place. There will, however, be the usual crop of directories just as every other good thing is imitated Your long years of experience in dealing with evasive circulation reports have most admirably fitted you for placing a proper valuation upon such statements. Advertisers have come to know that the Rowell estimates are nearer the proper figure than can otherwise be obtained. The American Newspaper Directory is therefore indispensable in every well regulated advertising department. Lines are being more tightly drawn every day; it is difficult to collect for twenty thousand when you print only eight. If the advertiser were buying barley he would not accept three pecks for a bushel, although the quality might at all times be open for discussion.

The American Newspaper Directory is the guide and companion of the advertising man, and it is to the interest of all concerned to help perfect it, support it and hurrah for it.

SAPOLIO.

A growing need created it—the advertising agency system. One of the earliest an almost successful workers, Geo. P. Rowell, is still in the field. He originated methods. Others followed his publication of a list of all the papers—the American Newspaper Directory. He has never ceased to love it and labor for it. Soon out of the gross stupidity of imitation, it became a rule that every agency down to those of Oshkosh or Oklahoma must issue its own directory. An awful waste. For not more than one out of ten was worth shelf room. If the National Association of Advertising Agents could agree long enough to buy Mr Rowell's Directory, publish it officially and drop all the others, it would accomplish something.

WASHINGTON.

Every page of the American Newspaper Directory breathes the desire of its publishers that it shall be absolutely correct in every statement it makes.

Truly yours,

Clerk of the Committee on Banking and Currency, House of Representatives, U. S.

SOUTHERN.

We subscribe to and pay cash for the American Newspaper Directory, and find it of great value in our advertising department. We have 6,892 miles of railway, extending from Washington, D. C., all over the South, and in advertising this system we use more than 1,000 publications, and in selecting this list we find that we get a correct idea of circulation from this Directory that can not be obtained from any other similar publication. We receive other newspaper directories gratis, but the fact that we pay cash for this one in addition shows that we can not place the same dependence upon the "free list."

We thoroughly appreciate the careful manner in which this Directory is compiled.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13, 1900.
JOS. H. HANNEN,
Adv. Dept. Southern Railway.

I am looking forward to receiving the new edition with a great deal of anticipation, as, although the American Newspaper Directory seemed to have reached a high state of perfection several years ago, there is always something new and of value in each succeeding edition. It is regarded as the standard authority with the Southern Railway.

S. H. HARDWICK,
General Passenger Agent,
Washington, D. C., May 21, 1901.

BALTIMORE.

We have used the American Newspaper Directory for many years and find it more valuable to us than any other similar publication. Much of the information given we cannot obtain in any other way. The book is not only a great help, but a necessity to our business, and we think its way of stating circulations is the ideal one.

KIDNEY TROUBLE FOR YEARS.

There are many women here in Peterboro suffering from backache and wrong action of the kidneys who are attributing their ill health and misery to some form of "female complaint." Kidney trouble is undermining the health, and sapping the strength, making the back ache and the head ache, bringing the feelings of tiredness and listlessness, dragging pains in the loins and all those other conditions of wretchedness that are undoubtedly produced by poisons circulating in the blood instead of being carried off by the natural channels.

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are the modern specific for all forms of Kidney trouble and all conditions of ill health arising therefrom. Just read what Mrs. Armstrong, Rubidge street, this city, has to say about them:—"For many years I have had trouble with my kidneys, and pain across my back. I have used all kinds of medicines in the past without any good results. I heard of the many cures that Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets were making, and got a bottle, and the use of the Tablets has made it possible for me to again attend to my household duties. I am glad to recommend them to others as certain to do good."

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Tablets are 50 cents a box at all druggists. The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto, Ont

JOTTINGS ABOUT TOWN.

—Idyl Wyld summer resort has been closed for the season.

—Don't forget the big sale of paper bound books now going on at Times Bookstore. The best value ever offered —only ten cents each.

—Every photograph taken at Whitea's studio is guaranteed not to fade, and is the best quality of work that can be made.

—The Harvest Home in connection with St. John's church will take place on September 25, the preacher for the occasion being the Rev. R. Seaborn, of Bowmanville.

—The annual meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union will be held this afternoon at half-past three in the Y.M.C.A. The public are cordially invited to be present.

—Lindsay Post: Messrs. McDougal, Brandon & Austin, of Fenelon Falls, have shipped this week five carloads of cattle and sheep to Toronto and a carload of hogs to Peterborough.

Just in—the best assortment of English novels ever shown in Peterborough. Sell on first sight, 10 cents each. See north window in Times Bookstore, Market block, Peterborough.

—Get blank books from Times Bookstore. We manufacture our own books, and can give better value and closer prices than any other dealer in town. See our specially made bills payable and receivable books.

—It is called the fifth dam that all the trouble is over, but this count is hardly correct, we imagine. If our friend Mr. Hall had kept proper tally, there are more damns than five recorded.

—Don't miss the chance—people residing out of town to call next time when in town at Times Bookstore and have a look through the new English novels we are selling at less than cost. Perhaps you will find the titles you have been waiting for years to find.

—A message has been received from Mr. D. G. Kerr, manager of the Cordova mines, who is now in England, stating that the negotiations with the Company have been completed and that on his return the water power will at once be developed and the output of the mine largely increased.

—The examinations in connection with the Nicholls Hospital Training School for Nurses took place last week, the examining physicians being Dr. Pigeon, Dr. Greer and Dr. Carmichael. The following young ladies have passed their final examinations in the order named: Miss Staples, Miss Finley, Miss Reid, Miss Wilkinson, Miss Carney, Miss Moloney.

—The official list of return of convictions for the county of Peterborough for the three months June to September of this year, shows only three convictions. Of these two defendants were convicted of fishing with dynamite and the third for selling liquor without a license. The official list has dwindled year after year as regards the number of convictions. Formerly it was the usual thing to find from thirty to forty entries on the list.

—At the Park street Baptist church, tomorrow, there will be an ordination service. The examination will be held in the afternoon, commencing at two o'clock. The ordination service will be held in the evening at eight o'clock. Dr. Farmer, of McMaster University, will preach the ordination sermon. Whilst none are excluded from the afternoon meeting, any who would like to attend would be particularly welcome at the evening meeting.

Eyes and Nose ran Water.—C. G. Archer, of Brewer, Maine, says: "I have had Catarrh for several years. Water would run from my eyes and nose for days at a time. About four months ago I was induced to try Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder, and since using the wonderful remedy I have not had an attack. It relieves in ten minutes." 50 cents.—17

THE TRIUMPH OF THE SHORT SKIRT.

Common sense has triumphed over the arbitrariness of an absurd fashion. All the best dressed women are now wearing short skirts on the street. They have them made in cloth, serge or homespun, expressly for walking. They are usually finished with several rows of stitching, and the hem stands out smartly at a convenient distance from the ground, so that there is no need to lift the skirt, even at a muddy crossing. Very well-made and well-fitting boots are a sine qua non with the short skirt, which places the feet so much in evidence. Of course long skirts will still be worn on formal occasions, but only those who can afford to drive when so gowned, should indulge in this expensive fashion, which, under unfavorable circumstances, becomes also a most untidy one.

MORE BOXES OF GOLD

And Many Greenbacks.

To secure additional information directly from the people, it is proposed to send little boxes of gold and greenbacks to persons who write the most interesting, detailed, and truthful descriptions of their experience on the following topics.

1. How have you been affected by coffee drinking and by changing from coffee to Postum.

2. Do you know any one who has been driven away from Postum because it came to the table weak and characterless at the first trial?

3. Did you set such a person right regarding the easy way to make Postum clear, black, and with a crisp, rich taste?

4. Have you ever found a better way to make it than to use four heaping teaspoonful to the pint of water, let stand on stove until real boiling begins, then note the clock and allow it to continue easy boiling full 15 minutes from that time stirring down occasionally? (A piece of butter about the size of a navy bean, placed in the pot will prevent boiling over.)

5. Give names and account of those you know to have been cured or helped in health by the dismissal of coffee and the daily use of Postum Food Coffee in its place.

6. Write names and addresses of 20 friends whom you believe would be benefited by leaving off coffee. (Your name will not be divulged to them.)

Address your letter to the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich., writing your own name and address clearly.

Decision will be made between October 30th and November 10th, 1901, by three judges, not members of the Postum Cereal Co., and a neat little box containing a $10 gold piece sent to each of the five best writers, a box containing a $5 gold piece to each of the 20 next best writers, a $2 greenback to each of the 100 next best, and a $1 greenback to each of the 200 next best writers, making cash prizes distributed to 325 persons.

A most every one interested in pure food and drink is willing to have their name and letter appear in the papers, for such help as it may offer to the human race. However, a request to omit name will be respected.

Every friend of Postum is urged to write and each letter will be held in high esteem by the company, as an evidence of such friendship, while the little boxes of gold and envelope of money will reach many modest writers whose plain and sensible letters contain the facts desired, although the sender may have but small faith in winning at the time of writing.

Talk this subject over with your friends and see how many among you can win prizes. It is a good, honest competition and in the best kind of a cause. Cut this statement out for it will not appear again.

PLANTS FOR INDOOR GROWTH

Preparing Potted Flowers for Home Decorations.

It is useless to think of having house plants unless you are prepared to place them in a sunny room; flowering plants especially must have the sun. Select a room if possible, with an eastern or southerly outlook. To keep the atmosphere moist enough for rapid growth, place a pan of water on the radiator or stove and see that it is never empty.

George W. Perkins, an authority on the hygiene of house plants, says that to grow flowers in a house purifies the air about them, and that to a certain extent plants test the air we breathe. The injurious gases often found in dwellings affect plants as readily as they do people, and it is generally conceded that where a plant dies from chandelier or furnace gas the room is unfit for human occupation as well.

The first thing, then, to bear in mind is that it is necessary to have a great abundance of fresh air and sunshine. Pull up the shades and open the windows wide. In thus catering to the needs of the plants the home is made more cheery, attractive and healthful.

It is stated by some authorities that heliotrope, mignonette and mint in some way increase the quantity of ozone in the air. If this is true, then these plants should be, by all means, among the winter plants of every home.

The latter part of September or the beginning of October is the best time for propagating plants. The weather then is neither too warm nor too cold to hinder the cuttings from taking root.

Select a good healthy plant from which to take the cutting. If the branch snaps off clean, without bending, then you have made a good choice. When the wood of a plant has become hardened it is always difficult to get a cutting from it that will take root quickly. Except in the case of roses, cuttings should always be taken from the young wood.

Fill a box that is three inches deep with ordinary sand, firmly packed. Plant the cuttings and keep the sand quite wet until every cutting has rooted. Place the box for two days in the shade, then move it into the sun. The temperature of the sand should be kept to about 65 degrees. As the cuttings become rooted, put them in pots, water freely, place in the shade for a few days, then set them in the sun, and they ought to grow and thrive well.

Another way to propagate plants is called the "saucer system," and is so simple that any housekeeper can successfully root as many cuttings as she may wish to pot. The use of a soup plate is even better than a saucer, for it is deeper and will accommodate more cuttings. Put the cuttings in close together and cover with sand. Keep watered well and fully exposed to the sun. The window sill is a good place on which to place the dish. A close watch must be kept on the sand. Allowing it to get dry even once may cause the roots to bake and die.

Now for the soil for the pots. It should consist of one-third leaf mould, one-third garden loam, one-sixth sand and one-sixth well rotted manure. Have a large box of this soil well mixed and kept in the cellar. Ofttimes you will want to repot or add more earth to a plant already potted, and sometimes it is difficult to get the proper earth just when you need it.

Suppose that last May or June you buried out in the garden some of your potted plants, sinking the pots in the earth up to the rim. You picked off the buds to prevent their blooming before you were ready to bring them in. Now you are ready to shift the plants to larger pots. Dig up the pot, turn it upside down, supporting the plant and earth with the left hand. With the right knock the rim of the pot on the edge of a chair or table and the plant, with the clinging earth, will fall out ito the hand, leaving the pot empy.

Now into the larger pot put a layer of charcoal or a wad of "excelsior." Cover this with a little fresh earth. Shake out the matted roots of the plant that one finds generally spread out as if having tried in vain to get out of the small pot, and settle them gently in the fresh earth. Fill it with fresh soil—don't pack it—then water well, and set one side in the shade for a day or two.

Much water at first will rot the roots. But after the plant has shown signs of new life it should be watered regularly.

There are many beautiful foliage plants that grow easily in the window and brighten the room almost as much as plants that flower. It is difficult to make a plant bloom profusely by window treatment, but chrysanthemums make a very pretty showing, so do fuchsias, carnations and geraniums.

These coverings are used only for the common clay pots, but one can get Jardinieres in almost any kind of ware. Some jardineres come with a saucer. In these the plant is potted, and there is therefore no use for the common clay vessel. In using the jardinieres that have no saucer the clay pot is placed inside them.

Hyacinths, begonias, tulips, crocuses, jonquils, geraniums, heliotropes and even roses make beautiful winter plants. A cheerful array can be had by sowing annual seeds, such as mignonette, phlox, sweet alyssum and portulaca. These pots should be kept in a window with a southern exposure. For the edging a drooping plant should be selected, such as lobelia, petunia and passiflora.

Chrysanthemums make particularly pleasing house decorations. If very large blossoms are wanted, the plant should not be allowed to have many branches, and but one or two flowers. Such a plant needs much nourishment, and nothing is better than barnyard compost.

The great secret of success with potted plants is to keep them scrupulously clean.

QUEBEC'S WELCOME TO THE DUKE OF CORNWALL

An Enthusiastic Reception at Quebec Yesterday

Royal Guard of Honor Receive the Royal Highnesses.

THE DUKE OF YORK.

Quebec, September 16—In the magnificence of the reception extended to the Duke and Duchess of York upon their landing on Canadian soil, the city of Quebec has outdone the historic fetes of 41 years ago, with which she welcomed to Canada, as Prince of Wales, his Majesty King Edward VII. Every possible opportunity offered by the peculiar situation of the old city, for purposes of spectacular display, was taken advantage of; and as the surrounding heights of Levis, Montmorenci, Beauport and the isle of Orleans lend themselves to no less an extent than the successive elevations upon which the citadel-crowned town is situated, to the brilliant effect of electrical and pyrotechnical display, the night exhibit, at all events, whether viewed from river or fortress was one that no other city could duplicate. When the royal yacht Ophir steamed into port, around the rocky point of Indian Cove, with the war vessels escorting, those on board found the flagship of the Vice-Admiral of the North American Atlantic fleet, H.M.S. Crescent, and three other vessels of the same fleet, awaiting her at anchor, in front of the town. The guns of the citadel belched out a royal salute of welcome of twenty-one guns, and the royal visitors landed at the wharf, by a new pontoon and slip, specially constructed for the occasion. The dilapidated part of the old wharf, and of the massive stone storehouses erected upon it in the early part of the last century, were completely concealed by the display of bunting and the richly covered partitions enclosing the fenced-off passageway by which the royal carriages reached the street. Here, as in many other parts of the city where the decorations have been undertaken by the Federal Government, a large number of old-time French flags, bearing the picturesque fleur-de-lis were employed in the decorations. Here, too, and on the King's bastion of the citadel, some 3,000 pennants were utilized.

Immediately upon landing the Duke and Duchess were received and welcomed to the Dominion by His Excellency the Governor-General, who was accompanied by his Cabinet Ministers, representative of the people of Canada. His Excellency and his Ministers withdrew altogether immediately after this formal greeting, so that the remaining reception of the Royal visitors was altogether in the hands of the mayor and citizens, and that there was no occasion for any question of precedence, through the presence together at any public function, at which neither is the host, of the heir presumptive to the throne, and the direct representative of the Crown in this country.

A royal guard of honor, furnished by the 9th Battalion, with band of music, was drawn up on the wharf to receive their Royal Highnesses, and the Royal escort, both upon the occasion of their arrival and upon that of their departure, upon the 18th inst., will be supplied by the Queen's Own Canadian Hussars, under the command of that gallant young officer, Lt.-Col. R. E. W. Turner, D.S.O., who, for his dashing services in South Africa, has been awarded the Victoria Cross, with which he will be invested by the Duke to-morrow, and who will ride opposite the door of the Royal carriage.

This carriage is a handsome road landau, designed for six horses, and bears the Royal arms on the doors in gold. The upholstering is in royal blue cloth, with silk and satin trimmings. The gear of the carriage is in dark sepia, artistically striped in crimson, and the wheels are fitted with rubber tires. It was feared that there might be some trouble in getting the royal horses and carriage up the steep activity of Mountain hill. All anxiety on this score was set at rest by the purchase here of the horses to be used on this occasion, which are already well trained to this particular work.

From Mountain hill the route of the royal procession was by Fort and Louis street and the Grande Allee to the Parliament House. A guard of mounted police headed the procession, and the streets were lined by the local troops. Large amounts of bunting decorated the line of the procession, not only at the Archbishop's palace, post office, Chateau Frontenac, court house, militia headquarters, and Garrison Club, but also in front of almost all private residences, while streamers and pennants floated from all the telegraph, telephone and electric light and trolley poles.

ALONG THE ROUTE.

Upon turning off the Grande Allee into Dufferin avenue to reach the main entrance of Parliament House, the procession passed under the magnificent arch, eighty feet high, designed by Mr. E. E. Tache, grandson of Sir E. P. Tache, and the architect of the Parliament Buildings. Constructed by the Local Government, in the Italian style of architecture, it has been painted a very light reddish brown, and lavishly decorated with flags, shields, and the arms of England, the Dominion and the Province of Quebec.

As the Duke and Duchess passed under this arch, and approached the main entrance to the buildings, the band of the guard of honor, drawn up to receive them, struck up the National Anthem, and "God Save the King," was sung by three thousand school children, occupying a platform facing the doorway. The royal carriage was driven under a magnificent pavilion, extending out from the principal entrace, annd flanked by trophies and flags.

Hon. S. N. Parent, Mayor of the city, received their Royal Highnesses as they entered the building, and they were escorted to the chamber of the Legislative Council, which was richly decorated for the occasion with a liberal amount of gold leaf, etc. Here was assembeld, by special invitation, a representative gathering of citizens, some five hundred in number, and a very brilliant scene was witnessed by those who were fortunate enough to receive cards. The canopy constructed over the throne rises in the shape of a crown, with an expanding summit, in the form of a cupola. Rich hangings droop from the base of the crown at either side and are caught up at the shoulder.

Mayor Parent presented and read the city's address of welcome. It has been beautifully illuminated and bound. Mr. A. G. Doughty, B. A., Oxon., Lit., Doc., Laval—the artist—having further illustrated it with six beautifully executed views of Quebec and the surroundings.

His Royal Highness replied to the address, and as the royal party drove away from the buildings the school children sang the French-Canadian national song, written by the late Sir George E. Cartier "O Canada, mon pays mes amours."

From the Parliament House the royal visitors drove to their quarters on the citadel, where still another guard of honour was ready to receive them. On their way thither they passed under a very beautiful arch, erected at the foot of the citadel hill near the Garrison Club.

After luncheon at the citadel their Royal Highnesses drove to Laval University, which made great preparations for their reception His Grace Mgr. Begin, Archbishop of Quebec, surrounded by all the prelates of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Quebec, offered the homage of the bishops and clergy in an address, which was read in both languages. The university was also by the mouth of its rector, Abbe O. E. Mathieu, reiterated the expression of its loyalty to the British Crown, and his Royal Highness then graciously accepted an honorary doctor's degree from the institution, which owes its civil existence to the charter granted by her late Majesty Queen Victoria.

At 7.30 p.m., their Royal Highnesses dined at the citadel with their Excellencies the Governor-General and the Countess of Minto, and after dinner, the royal party proceeded to the King's Bastion, close by the royal quarters on the citadel, and overlooking Dufferin terrace and the lower town the surrounding country and the river below. From this charming site, where a magnificent pavilion is erected for their accommodation, their Royal Highness seen and heard something very much out of the common. Accompanied by several bands of music, five thousand selected voices gave an open-air concert, consisting of French-Canadian and other airs and choruses. At a signal given by a rocket from the citadel, monster bonfires were simultaneously lighted upon the heights of Levis, the Isle of Orleans, Beauport, Montmorenci, etc., and none but those who know the configuration of these surroundings of Quebec can form any idea of the marvellous effect that these fires produce. Thousands of electric lights blazed forth on Dufferin Terrace, of which three thousand belonged to the Chateau Frontenac alone. The Citadel, the University, all the public buildings, and many private edifices all over the city were elaborately decorated. There was very grand pyrotechnical display from the glacis between the citadel and Dufferin Terrace by Paine of London, England, at the cost of the city; while to cap all, there was a grand illumination of the Imperial fleet in the river below, with an exhibition of their searchlights by the different ships. The royal party drove through the city, after viewing the illuminations for a time from the King's Bastion, in order to see the transparencies and other illuminations along the principal streets.

TEST OF COFFIN A SUCCESS

Company Claims it Can Preserve Bodies for Countless Ages.

Chicago, Sept. 17.—By an invention of the American Metal Casket Company, at present the strongest foe of the coffin trust, the company claims it was shown yesterday during a test of an airtight metal casket that the human body can be preserved for countless ages. The demonstration and test of the new casket were made at the company's office before an interested crowd of undertakers and others.

The new casket is made of rolled sheet steel. Weighing less than eighty pounds, it was filled with over 800 pounds of water Sunday night, which was allowed to remain in the coffin until the time set for the test. During the interval not a drop of water escaped from the casket.

Undertakers who witnessed the test predicted that it would cause a revolution in the present system of burying persons who had died from contagious diseases. Heretofore it has been impossible to obtain any tight caskets, and consequently it was impossible to make a public funeral of a contagious case. It was also claimed that a body that had been buried for over two years in a metal coffin had been exhumed and found to be in the same condition as it was at the time of the burial.

Save the Woodcock.

Game Warden Tinsley is making an effort to have the governments of the United States and Canada establish a close season for woodcock for the next three years, in order that those valuable game birds may not become wholly extinct. They are being slaughtered at a fearful rate at present.

SEES NO REASON FOR MOURNING

Emma Goldman Unconcerned When Told of President's Death.

SAYS NATION WILL NOT SUFFER

Chicago, Sept. 17.—From the window of her room in the Harrison street police station annex Emma Goldman saw the flag on the custom-house building flutter down to the half mast, announcing prematurely the death of President McKinley. A smile flashed over her face. The next moment her countenance resumed its immobility.

"Father in heaven, Miss Goldman," said Matron Keegan, "the President is dead. Look at the flag and weep."

"Suppose he is dead," replied the apostle of anarchy. "Thousand die daily and are unwept. Why should I mourn?"

About her the matrons stood with moist eyes. The officers in the room uncovered their heads and gazed at the flag. Prisoners in an adjoining room, to whom the news had been communicated stood in dejected groups. Emma Goldman alone seemed unmoved.

"You officials mourn as a matter of course," she said. "If I were in your position I might do the same. The President is an ordinary man, however, and I lament his loss no more than that of an ordinary laborer. Would you weep if a common toilor were dead? No. Why, then should I weep because the President has gone?"

She crossed the room and took her seat in a chair. Slowly she rocked to and fro.

"No, I do not think the nation has sustained a loss," she said a minute later in response to a question. "That means that the head of the government has gone. I am sorry for Mr. McKinley as a man and deplore his death as a human being, but that is as far as my sympathy extends."

"Will you send a message of condolence to the family?"

"Thousands of men die every day. I send no messages to their families. Why should I send one to Mrs. McKinley?"

"I do not think that the death of the President will result in making more stringent the persecution of anarchy. The anarchists had nothing to do with the deed, as I have said repeatedly. It was done by an irresponsible individual. If the case against anarchy was to have been tried fairly if the President survived his wounds it ought to receive the same consideration in the event of his death. If we were entitled to fairness while McKinley lived we are entitled to fairness after his death.

"If I died no one would mourn. I am alone, and no one would care. Why, then, should they make more demonstrations simply because a politician has passed away? If Mr. Isaak were to die I would feel sorry for his family because of their bereavement and that is the way I feel toward the McKinley family. What you call the 'nation's loss' is nothing to me.

SAYS MCKINLEY WAS LUCKY.

"McKinley was a lucky man. That is about as much as I can say regarding his administration. He managed to pull the right wires in politics, but he was not the man of the people. Of all the Presidents he took unto himself the most power. That is a fact that is not denied even by men of his own party. He was not brilliant; not brilliant as some men who ought to have had the position if the people had a voice.

"I can think of no good thing that he has done during the time he has been in office. As an official he was a politician. We do not need a government head, that is why I am not weeping as are these women. Because Mr. McKinley was a man I am sorry he is dead."

Over at the custom-house building the flag was taken down, news of the President's rally having been received, but the group in the room did not notice the fact. The matrons wept and the officers still stood with heads bent, while the priestess of the anarchists fixed her eyes vacantly on the opposite wall and relapsed into silence.

MONEY FOR ANARCHISTS.

Society Appeals For Subscriptions and Already Has $116.

Chicago, Sept. 17.—Subscriptions for defense of Emma Goldman, Abraham Isaak, Sr., and other anarchists accused of complicity in the plot to assassinate President McKinley are being gathered by a society calling itself the Pioneer Aid and Support association. Already $116 has been collected in subscriptions ranging from 50 cents $15. An appeal for more money as published in the Arbeiter Zeiting is as follows:

In the name of love of justice and humanity we appeal to the progressive public to lend a helping hand in the most recent occurrences relative to the Isaak family and the others accused of complicity in the attempted assassination of President McKinley. These, as is generally known, have in the most inconsiderate manner been torn from hearth and home and have been thrown into prison.

As we are firmly convinced that all those in Chicago who have been dragged into this affair are absolutely guiltless and as we fear that in the present excitement, a judicial error might be perpetrated which would afterward be generally regretted, we feel called upon to ask for aid for the defendants. This may prove necessary in order to give them competent representation in court.

This anarchist newspaper comments in yesterday's issue also on the incarceration of Emma Goldman. It claims that she is cut off from all communication with friends and that her request for reading matter, is not gratified.

THE CAMPAIGN IN NOVA SCOTIA

The Electoral Fight Is Becoming Interesting.

THE PROVINCIAL SITUATION.

The Candidates, Who Have So Far Been Nominated Both Sides are Putting Forward Good Men The Issues on Which the Election is Being Fought.

Halifax, N. S. Sept. 17.—The political situation in Nova Scotia is rapidly nearing the acute stage and the fight which will now be one of less than three weeks' duration, promises to be highly interesting. The nominations of candidates in Halifax County is generally taken as a cue by the other countries, and as both parties have a ticket in the field in Halifax, other ridings will fall in line. The Liberals have men up in twelve countries and the Conservatives in nine. In Halifax, the Conservatives received a set back by the refusal of two of its early nominees to accept. The reasons for declining were good; nevertheless, the party lost many weeks by the delay.

THE LIBERALS.

Pictou, S. M. McDonald, Geo. Patterson and Robert D war.

Colchester, Hon. A. F. Lawrence and B. F. Pearson.

Cumberland, Hon. T. R. Black, and M. L. Tucker.

Lunenburg, Edward D. Davison and A. K. McLean.

Cape Breton, D. D. McKenzie and Nail J. Gillis.

Antigonish, Hon. Angus McGillivray and C. P. Chisholm.

Hants, Hon. A. Drysdale and Parker McHeffey.

Digby, Hon. A. H. Comeau and Angus Gidney.

Victoria, Hon. G. H. Marnay and John Merrison.

Halifax, George Mitchell, M. E. Keefe and David McPherson.

Annapolis, Hon. J. W. Longley and J. A Bancroft.

Inverness, Jas. McDonald and Alex. C. Aucoin.

Yarmouth, A. F. Stoneman and H. S. Leblanc.

THE CONSERVATIVES.

The Conservatives candidates so far nominated are:

Halifax, J. J. Stewart, A. B. Crosby, Dr. George M. Campbell.

Pictou, Charles A. T Anner, Wm. Cameron, and George T. Munro.

Hants, C. S. Wilcox and Anthony Sanford.

Cumberland, Charles R. Smith and Daniel McLeod.

Cape Breton, Colin McKinnon and Vincent Mullins.

Inverness, Hon. D. McNeil and Dr. C. E. McMillan.

Annapolis, Harry J. Crowe, and Edwin J. Elliott.

Lunenburg, A. J. Wolff and Arthur Roberts.

Both parties have the best men available for the fight, and some of the leading men of the province will be in the next House.

The selection of C. H. Cahan as chairman of the executive shows that the Opposition are ready to put up a stiff battle. On the other hand, the Government are leaving no stone unturned to meet any bid made for power by the Conservatives.

THE ISSUES.

The excessive price of coal for household consumption and the cheapness of it in Boston markets, is being used against the Government, who are accused of disposing of the natural resources of the province without protecting its interests.

Construction of the South Shore Railway, for which the Government advanced $13,500 per mile and the commencement of the Victoria Beach Railway, Digby, are expected to assist the Government in the interested sections. It is generally conceded that there is the strongest possibility of the Government being sustained, but the Conservatives expect to make long gains and to have a strong opposition in the next House. Practically no campaigning will be done, as the time is too short to permit such a course of action.

STARTS TO KILL ROOSEVELT

New Hampshire Man Sets out With This Object in View But is Stopped.

Berlin, N. H., Sept. 17.—Learning that a man who had left here this forenoon for New Yorkk had declared that he was on his way to Washington to kill Vice President Roosevelt, Chief of Police Youngelius has telegraphed the chief of police of New York to look out for him. The man was a foreigner. He tried to buy a ticket to Washington, but could not do so, and bought one for New York.

New York, Sept. 17.—City detectives to-night arrested a man answering the description of the one mentioned in the Berlin, N. H. telegram. He gave his name as Charles Miller of Berlin. He is a German. The police, believing him to be insane, sent him to Bellevue hospital. He claims to be ill and says he came to New York to enter a hospital. In his pockets were $55, a small railroad torpedo and some French literature. He said when he got well he would call on President McKinley and Vice President Roosevelt.

DEALING WITH ANARCHISTS

COULD EASILY BE ACCOMPLISHED

Buffalo, Sept. 17.—Maj. Richard Sylvester of Washington, as President of the National Association of the Chiefs of Police of the United States and Canada, has taken a decisive step looking to the adoption of a uniform policy throughout the world in dealing with anarchists by addressing a letter to the board of directors of the association and requesting their co-operation in bringing the various heads of the police departments of the world together in convention. The communication follows:

"The National Association of Chiefs of Police of the United States and Canada at the last annual meeting adopted a resolution inviting the heads of foreign police departments to participate in our annual discussions, and the distressing calamity which this country has recently experienced through the assault by an unknown assassin confirms the belief that the import of the resolution should be impressed on foreign officials, with a view of having such of their number present at our next annual meeting as may be able to attend; this with the hope that a closer relationship may be established officially and personally, and that there may be an interchange of opinion as to the best methods to be pursued to eliminate from society such organizations and persons as may be evilly disposed toward institutions of government and those charged with their conduct.

"This is a most vital question and if the laws are inadequate to crush such organizations and punish such characters there should be recommendations from a police viewpoint which would forever prevent the like in this country and aid the authorities abroad

"I trust the members will give this matter close and careful consideration, and offer such suggestions as may aid in accomplishing the desired end, and that the secretary will be authorized to adopt such measures as will bring about a thorough understanding with our foreign friends and to secure their presence and co-operation.

"In the meantime, there should be active efforts made looking to the eradication of these evils and information gathered and disseminated through the National Bureau of Criminal Identification with a view of accomplishing such result."

This proposition will be acted upon by the directors individually by mail. If the board of directors vote to adopt their executive's views, the secretary of the association will be authorized to address a letter to the officials having charge of the police affairs of the European nations requesting their attendance at the convention next year when it is expected some definite steps will be taken effectually to stamp out or destroy the danger arising from anarchistic plots.

FAMINE IN HAWAII.

Strike at San Francisco Prevents the Shipment of Foodstuffs.

Honolulu, Sept. 17.—The San Francisco strike threatens to cause serious trouble in Hawaii by reason of the failure of San Francisco exporters to ship cargoes of provisions here. Local stocks of foodstuffs are becoming low. The larger Honolulu dealers are refusing to fill big orders and small retail stores cannot replace their stocks as they sell.

The British cable-ship Britannia, which has been surveying for the route of the cable from Victoria to Australia has arrived here. The officers report that the cable will lie within 200 miles of the Hawaiian islands, to the eastward. The arrival of the vessel here has revived talk of the possibility of getting cable communication with the outside world, without waiting for action of congress, by means of a connection with the British line at Fanning island, only about 600 miles from here.

TEACHERS CONVENTION.

The Teachers of Peterborough County to Assemble on Oct. 25th and 26th.

The annual convention of the Peterborough County Teachers' Association is set for Friday and Saturday, October 18 and 19, unless Thanksgiving is set for that week also. In that case the convention would be held on October 25 and 26.

The committee have met to arrange details in connection with the programme which promises to be interesting and profitable.

The convention will meet in the Norwood Model School.

It is hoped that every public school teacher in the country will be present. A cordial invitation to attend is also extended to the High School teachers of the county and to the public and Separate school teachers of the town of Peterborough.

Mr. H. C. Kindred, of Havelock, is President, and Mr. M. W. Matchett, of Ashburnham, is secretary of the Association.

An Arrest Made.

A warrant was issued and placed in the hands of County Constable Cochrane for the arrest of Joseph Cunningham, who is employed in one of the Dickson Co's camp in Cavendish township. It is alleged that Cunningham made a brutal assault upon another lumberman named Wm. Stone, whom he struck on the head with a hammer. The offender is well known in town. Cunningham was arrested last night.

McKINLEY'S REMAINS TAKEN TO WASHINGTON

The Train Bearing Them to the Capital Left Buffalo Shortly Before 9 O'clock Monday.

ESCORTED BY TROOPS THROUGH THE STREETS

Buffalo, Sept. 16.—The funeral train bearing the remains of the late President McKinley from Buffalo to Washington, where they will lie in state until Thursday next, left the New York Central station at 8.46 this morning.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 16.—Buffalo stirred early this morning, but early as its inhabitants awoke to get a vantage place from which to view the departure of the dead President, police and soldiers had anticipated them. At the Milburn mansion where the family of the dead statesman slept; at the Wilcox mansion, where the new President reposed, and down town, near the City Hall, where the form of the dead man lay, the guards formed early and kept the streets clear. The sun shone this morning, but the wind blew in strong gusts across the city, dislodging draperies and raising clouds of dust. At the Milburn mansion the servants were astir early, and there was much activity about the house. By half past six o'clock there were transfer wagons and carriages drawn up at the corners near the house, and those within were up and preparing for the journey to Washington.

MRS. McKINLEY'S STTAE.

Mrs. McKinley was not awakened until after 7 o'clock, when Dr. Rixey went to the room with one of her attendants. She had not slept well, despite the fact that she is almost thoroughly exhausted, and that Dr. Rixey had given her a sleeping potion. The first thing she asked was a repetition of the query of the last two days, "When can I see the Major?"

Dr. Rixey told her that they were going to let her see him to-day, and she then allowed her attendants to dress her and at 7.45 was ready for her light breakfast, which she took in her room alone. At 7.30 the baggage was ready, and two truck loads of it moved to the depot. In one wagon was a hospital bed, and it is thought that this was for the use of Mrs. McKinley, in view of the certainty fatigue of the journey, and the possibility of a collapse. Col. Bingham, who was in charge of the arrangements, said that none of the party would go to the City Hall, where the body lay, but that all would go directly to the train, on Mrs. McKinley's account. At 7.35 the Misses Duncan, neices of the late President, were driven to the train to prepare comforts for the stricken widow.

SURPRISED EVERYBODY.

A few minutes later several figures stepped silently out upon the porch and walked down towards the carriages. Mrs. William McKinley, robed in garbs of mourning and supported by Abner McKinley on one side and Dr. Rixey on the other, was the central figure. To the surprise of all, she walked briskly, with her head quite erect, her face hidden by her long black veil. She got into the carriage, with her favorite neice, Miss Barber, Abner McKinley and Dr. Rixey, and they were driven at once to the depot.

ROOSEVELT'S MOVEMENTS.

President Roosevelt did not arise until 7 o'clock. He dressed quickly, and at 7.30 breakfasted with the family of his host, Mr. Wilcox. Just after 8 had struck, he got into a carriage, accompanied by Mr. Wilcox and his secretary, William Loeb, and drove to the train. A few mounted police followed the carriage, and three or four detectives and secret service men kept near him.

The slow and stately progress of the President's body from the City Hall to the railroad station afforded the people of Buffalo a last opportunity to do honor to the memory of the lamented Executive.

The train that bore the President from the city where he met his death was a solid Pullman of seven cars, drawn by two crepe draped locomotives 108 and 27. Fifteen minutes before the train was schdduled to leave engine 134 sped out through the yards with orders to precede the train by fifteen minutes and keep the track clear.

At the appointed hour, 7.45, the escort was in perfect readiness. Shortly after from the doors of the city hall came four soldiers, and four sailors, bearing high on their sturdy shoulders the casket containing President McKinley's body. The casket wrapped in an American flag an bearing a sheaf of wheat was pushed gently into the hearse and the doors were closed. The troops came to the front, wheeled into line, and moved down Franklin street. The band took up Chopin's Funeral March, accompanied by the tolling of the church bells. Behind the troops moved the carriages of the officers of the Cabinet. Then came the hearse, and following were the comrades of the Grand Army, with a company of local militia bringing up the rear. The cortege passed into Church street and wound past St. Paul's church into Main street. Down the thoroughfares the procession moved between masses of bareheaded people and on to the depot.

TO LIVE WITH A LEPER

Dr. Louis Knapp Risks His Life to Study Dread Disease

HE WILL ISOLATE HIMSELF

Says He Does Not Want to Pose as Martyr to Science.

Believes That With Great Prudence He Faces Little Danger—A Hero as Great as Ever Faced a Cannon.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 17.—Separation from wife and family and isolation from the world await Dr. Louis Knapp, who entered Tuesday on his duties as nurse for Dong Gong, the Chinese leper, with his patient and prisoner as his only companion. Dr. Knapp will live in a three-room frame house now being built near quarantine until the necessity for his services are ended.

Dr. Knapp is without fear of danger to himself and intends to improve his time by making a thorough study of leprosy. "Any disease is incurable until its cure is discovered," said Dr. Knapp. "If a cure for leprosy is ever found it will be found by some one who has devoted years to the study of an actual case that I may at least contribute to such a discovery."

In spite of the warning given by the health department to him as to other applicants for the position, Dr. Knapp believes that he will be able to avoid any possibility of contagion. "Leprosy is only mildly contagious as I understand it," he remarked. "It would be contracted by living in the same room with a patient only by the grossest carelessness in handling articles which had been infected by him. Both these dangers I shall carefully avoid."

SAYS HE IS NOT A MARTYR.

"While my chief object in accepting the position of nurse is to study the disease, I do not wish to pose as a willing martyr in the cause of science. I go into this work because I believe that it will be practically without danger."

Dr. Knapp is 40 years old and a graduate of Detroit Medical college. With his wife and four children he lives at 4622 Virginia avenue. The final farewells between the physician and his family were said Tuesday morning before he went to the office of the health department to report for duty.

WILL HAVE HIS LIBRARY.

Dr. Knapp will take his library to quarantine. He expects to devote the greater part of his spare time to medical study. There will be something to do besides study, however, at the house of Dong Gong and his nurse. Dr. Knapp prides himself on his cooking and he will prepare all the food used by himself and his patient.

As Gong was in the laundry business before his malady was discovered, it is presumed that he will do his own washing. Other arrangements will be made for Dr. Knapp's laundry.

Five years or a longer time may elapse before the final stage of the disease and period of suffering is drawn out. With proper care Dong Gong may live ten or fifteen years. His house will cost about $600 and it will cost the city between $1,000 and $1,3000 a year to care for him.

Five other applicants sought the position to which Dr. Knapp has been appointed. Assistant Health Commissioner Francis says that he chose Dr. Knapp because of his medical knowledge and because of the high character of his recommendations, which were signed by Dr. Charles H. Hughes and by former Lieutenant Governor E. O. Standard.

HUSBAND AND WIFE.

The Latter Charges the Former With Trespass in the Police Court.

A man named Wm. Stevenson, for a time employed by Mr. George Stevens, junk dealer, has got himself into trouble. He appeared at the Police Court yesterday, charged with trespassing on the premises of his wife and mother-in-law.

It appears that some time ago Stevenson and his wife separated. The husband went away and the wife moved her belongings to another house, and thought that she was going to live a life of peace, and she alleges that the intemperance of her husband caused her much trouble. However, Stevenson came back to town, evidently regretted the bargain he had made, and attempted to force his company upon his wife and mother-in-law, who are living on Harvey street north, Saturday night the climax was reached and Stevenson was summoned to appear on a charge of trespass.

After hearing some of the evidence, the Police Magistrate eplarged the case until Thursday morning.

A Popular Excursion.

The second annual excursion of the farmers of the township of Dummer will take place to Fenelon Falls on September 19th and 20th. The steamers Sunbeam and Alert have been chartered for the occasion, and will leave Lakefield in the morning, calling at Crowe's Landing, Mount Julian and McCracken's. The committee of management are: Reeve Moore, J. J. Crowe W. J. Doughty and Richard Crowe. They are all of the right sort, and will make the excursion the best that ever took place on the back lakes.

Jim Stabler's Case.

Jim Stabler, of Smith, who was arrested on Saturday on a serious charge, and who is out on bail, was in town yesterday. His case wil come before County Police Magistrate Edminson at ten o'clock to-morrow at the Court House. A large number of witnesses have, we are informed, been subpoened, and some interesting evidence will no no doubt be given.

PREPARING FOR ROYALTY

All Canada is greatly excited over the preparations for the reception of the Duke and Duchess of York and Cornwall. The heir apparent to the British throne arrived in Quebec yesterday. The royal yacht, the Ophir, which conveyed the royal party to Canada, was escorted by a small fleet of warships and the guns on Quebec's gray old citadel boomed a welcome of 21 guns as the Ophir's anchor was let go. Then there was a review of troops on the historic Plains of Abraham and the royal visitors will proceed to Montreal, where another military review and numerous public functions await them. From Montreal the Duke goes to Ottawa and thence by the Canadian Pacific Railway across the continent to British Columbia. This will be a flying trip, for their royal highnesses are due in Toronto on October 10th. The arrangements for the Toronto reception are much more elaborate, from the military point of view, than elsewhere. Ten thousand troops will be reviewed, including the crack regiments of Western Ontario, and the ultra-loyal people of that city are in a fever of excitement over the preparations. According to the printed itinerary the nearest approach his Royal Highness will make to the United States will be Niagara Falls, where he is scheduled to arrive on the 13th and leave on the following morning at 11 o'clock.

It is 40 years since British royalty made a tour of Canada. The present king, then Prince of Wales, paid a visit to Canada in 1860.

SOUTH AMERICAN AFFAIRS

New York, Sept. 14.—A despatch from Quito, Ecuador, says that a force of Ecuadorean troops is ready to invade Colombia, and a battle is imminent near Pasto, just beyond the Colombian frontier, and about one hundred and fifty miles northeast of Quito.

This gives strength to the rumors of a secret agreement between the governments of Venezuela, Ecuador and Nicaragua to co-operate with one another against Colmbia. It has been regarded in Washington as significant that Columbia should simultaneously have trouble on her Venezuelan and Ecuadorean frontier and on the isthmus. Guerilla warfare has been reported in all these localities.

The basis that Venezuela and Ecuador might have for opposing the Colombian government is said to be that the liberal party, which is in control of the two first republics, is antagonistic to the conservative party which governs Colombia. Colombia, Venezuela and Ecuador once formed the Great Colombia, and the two parties arose from the tendencies existing there at the close of the was of independence. President Castro, it is alleged, has the ambition of uniting the three republics again and of becoming the head of the greater republic.

Attention in the United States has been directed toward a canal by the Nicaraguan route, rather than by the Panama route. It is not at all certain, however, that the United States Canal Commission will now recommend the purchase of the Panama concession from the French company and the completion of the canal by that route. In the meantime the administration is anxious to avoid any complications that might interfere with the construction of a canal by either route, such as might arise in the event of European intervention in the affairs of Colombia.

President Castro of Venezuela some days ago sent ammuniton and men to Cucuta, Colombia to assist the Colombian revolution.

According to the latest advices from Port of Spain, Trinidad, several Venezuelan war vessels are there. Some are being repaired. Others are awaiting orders.

Residents on the beach front at Colon on two consecutive evenings saw a mysterious steamship, showing two lights. The vessel was observed between six and eight o'clock. She remained in view quite a while and disappeared suddenly, causing much curiosity.

STEEL SHIPS FOR CANADA

Halifax, Sept. 14.—Hon. W. S. Fielding, in the course of an interview on shipbuilding, said that the possession of of a considerable fleet of steel ships was of the utmost importance to Canada. "If we can build them ourselves, so much the better," said Mr. Fielding. "The carrying trade of the world remains to be one, as before, and we know we cannot do much with wooden ships. For fishing vessels, and occasionally special service in the carrying trade, where larger tonnage is needed, we shall still find employment for our wooden shipbuilding industry, but if we are ever to engage in the carrying trade of the world, of which we formerly had so large a share, we must have steel vessels to do it. It would be better that we should buy them abroad than be without them, but it would be still better to build them ourselves, if that would be feasible, and I have a strong hope that we shall gradually do so. Of course, if any aid were given by the Government, it would have to be given on some general plan which would apply equally to shipyards on the coast and shipyards on the lakes. The Government is most anxious to see the industry carried on in Canada in a large way, and any reasonable proposal looking to development of that kind would receive very favorable consideration."

In referring to a fast Atlantic service Mr. Fielding said: "The Government has been in communication with a number of parties who are interested in it, and also with the Imperial Government, who were partners with us in the former scheme. The last year or two has not been a favorable time for Government action except in the way of enquiry. The great shipyards of the mother country have been very busy, and shipbuilding has been most costyl. Conditions are becoming more favorable, and responsible shipping men, who would not have looked at the project a year or two ago, are now disposed to take it. While I am not at liberty to say more at present, I feel assured that an early day such action will be taken as will assure us a steam ship line between Great Britain and Canada of which the Dominion may be proud."

Read the two sides of this story and then give a verdict on the evidence as to the merits of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

WHAT MRS. HAYTER SUFFERED.

"I had been sick for more than a year with kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Lucy Hayter, of Jacksboro, Jack Co., Texas. "Several different doctors treated me, but none did me any good. One doctor said that I never could be cured, that I had Bright's Disease. I suffered nearly death at times; had spells the doctors called spasms. Was bed-fast most of the time for six months. My mother begged me to try Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery."

WHAT DR. PIERCE SAID.

"With but little hope I wrote to Dr. Pierce, and he said 'he could cure me.' I began to take his 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and although I had given up to die, I began to improve from the start, and by the time I had taken twenty-two bottles I was entirely cured. I weigh more than ever before in my life and am entirely well."

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It cures through the stomach diseases of heart, liver, lungs, kidneys, etc., which have their origin in disease of the stomach and its associate organs.

ATTRACTIONS AT THE FAIR.

Unusual Variety of Performers For The Peterborough Central.

The directors of the Peterborough Central have engaged an uncommonly good list of performers for the fair. Fair days are Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 24, 25 and 26. At the formal opening on Wednesday addresses will be delivered by Hon. Dr. Borden Minister of Militia; Hon. J. R. Stratton, Mr. James Kendry, M. P., and Warden Fitzgerald. All arrangements have about been perfected, and without doubt the show will be the best ever held in Peterborough. The perever held in Peterborough. The performers will be Lily Bletso, the Canadian premier lady cornetist, and the youngest of her sex in Canada who plays that difficult instrument. She will give a selection of national and popular airs.

Areno, the contortionist, will perform feats which have mystified the medical profession in Canada and the United States.

The Bletso children national dancers, winners of numerous prizes and medals, and the cleverest young dancers in Canada, will also appear.

Harry Rich, Canada's foremost comedian will appear in a series of very funny and amusing sketches.

Franklyn and Hyatt, will impersonate in realistic sketches of English characters, including the seaside resort lady and gentleman, the race course swells, the London costers and the London society swells.

Varin and Turenne, the celebrated Mexican axe jugglers, will exhibit in wonderful feats of daring and strength handling a perfect shower of axes.

Walton and Jones appear in the funniest and prettiest comedy sketch ever put on any stage, introducing wonderful cornet playing and the prettiest dancing ever seen in Canada.

Besides these events, considerable interest will be claimed by the baby show, speeding in the ring, the drawing contest, and the 100-yard foot race for the Schneider cup.

A POLISH CLAIM

New York, Sept. 16. — By accepting the trust of a Polish patriot the United States Government may have to pay a claim of nearly $2,000,000. The good sword of the Polish patriot, who helped to fight the battles for the Union, has been rust for many a year. The $400 000 which he deposited with the Government, however, it is said to have continued to accumulate interest and to increase until it now amounts to more than four times what it was when the GGovernment took charge of it.

Baron Ludwig Napoleon Dembitzky, lived near Warsaw. His father was a friend of Napoleon Bonaparte. The baron led a regiment of cavalry against the Russian troops, an offence for which he was outlawed. He managed to escape, however, with money and securities, leaving his estates to be confiscated by the Czar. He reached this country about the year 1862, and was fired with zeal to help the Republic fight its battles. He deposited his money with the United States treasurer, it is alleged.

There was a fund at that time created especially for the benefit of foreigners who wished a custodian for their money while they were in the army. The baron took part in several important battles of the civil war, and the story is that he was slain in the battle of the Wilderness.

Before he joined the federal army the baron is said to have invested in 1,932 acres of land in Wichita county, Texas. Investigations made at Austin, Texas, shows that a man named Dembitzky bought land in Wichita county; and search of the title of the land is now being made.

ENGLAND LAMENTS PRESIDENT McKINLEY

London, Sept. 14.—From the towers of Westminster Abbey, from the gray buildings where the Government of the Empire is administered, from the Mansion House and law courts, from churches, hotels and business and private houses in London, Union Jacks are floating at half mast as a mark of sympathy for the murdered President. All the stock and commercial exchanges are closed.

At the United States Embassy a quiet and sorrowful crowd, many of the visitors being in deep mourning, passes in and out, recording their last respects for President McKinley. The first name signed was that of Mr. Charles Francis, United States Minister to Greece.

"Most truly do I sympathize with you and the whole American nation at the loss of your distinguished and ever-to-be-regretted President.

EDWARD REX.

Telegrams are pouring in from prominent Englishmen, societies, and municipalities. It seems as if every little town in England were individually telegraphing an expression of sympathy and horror.

Everything as yet is rather unsettled, but it is probable that a memorial service of imposing proportions will be held in Westminster Abbey, as was done at the time of the death of General Grant. Whether the British Government will issue an official notification of mourning, rests chiefly with King Edward.

Affecting scenes markked the announcement of the death of the President at the Ecumenical Methodist Conference which passed resolution declaring that the whole Christian world sympathized with the American people.

Throughout the length and breadth of Europe feelings similar to those voiced in the British metropolis seem to have been evoked.

Perhaps the best is voiced by the Vienna Neues Weiner Tageblatt, which says:—

"The ocean is not wide enough to hold all the sympathy that is streaming from the old world to the new."

Several of the Madrid newspapers publish editorials upon the death of President McKnley, of whom they all speak in terms of respect.

PARIS DRAPED IN BLACK.

Paris, Sept. 14.—The news of President McKinley's death became known here generally at about 10 o'clock, and the central portion of the city immediately was hung with furled and crepe-draped American flags. The United States Embassy and Consulate, all the hotels and American business houses, and the establishments of many French firms on the avenue De L'Opera, the Rue De La Paix, the main boulevards and in the Champs Elysees quarter displayed this mark of respect.

Ambassador Porter, who has not been well for the past fortnight, was upset yesterday by the sudden change for the worse in McKinley's condition. His physician, therefore, forbade that the news of the President's death be communicated to him this morning.

President Loubet and Minister of Foreign Affairs Delcasse called at the Embassy at about 10 o'clock, but could not be received.

KAISER HEARS THE NEWS.

Dantzic, Sept. 14.—When Emperor William heard of the death of President McKinley he immediately ordered the German fleet to half-mast their flags, and to hoist the Stars and Stripes at their main tops.

EMMA GOLDMAN REMOVED.

Chicago, Sept. 14.—Emma Goldman was spirited away from the Woman's Annex of the Harrison street police station early this morning in a cab when it was learned by the President was dead.

Capt. Mahoney refused to tell where the woman had been taken. Her removal, he said, was merely a precautionary measure, and it was probable she would soon be brought back.

While she was being hurried to safety in a cab a crowd numbering about 100 men started for the Annex, loudly threatening to lynch Moiss Goldman They had waited in front of the bulletin board until all hope was gone, and then started to execute vengeance After proceeding a few blocks, however, cooler heads in the crowd succeeded in checking the excitement, and somewhat later the crowd dispersed.

No disturbance was reported by the officials at the County Jail, where the local anarchists were locked up. It was the belief this morning that the President's death would make it extremely unlikely that the court would admit them to bail. Chief of Police O'Neill is quoted as saying that it would be murder to let them on the street with citizens in their present grim temper.

When told of the President's death Emma Goldman, without a change of expression, said, "Very sorry." Absolutely no shade of regret or pity showed itself upon her countenance. "I do not see how that can affect my case," she added "if it is carried on lawfully and legally. They have no evidence against me. Chief Bull and Chief O'Neill have admitted they have none. They are holding me without evidence."

SORROW AT THE CAPITAL.

Ottawa, Sept. 14.—Flags are flying at half-mast on the Government and civic buildings to-day out of respect to the memory of the late President McKinley. There is genuine and widespread sorrow in the capital at the sad death of the President.

ELECTRIC CHAIR FOR CZOLGOSZ.

Buffalo, Sept. 14.—The wretch Czolgosz now stands accused of murder. It was with malice aforethought, and as such was murder in the first degree, the punishment for which, under the laws of the State of New York is death in the electric chair. Had the death of the President occurred at any other time than in the early hours of the morning it would have boded ill to the evil genius of this fearful episode. The angry spirit of the people here reached an intense pitch last night. Foreseeing the danger of possible riot the police headquarters where Czolgosz was confined was roped off, and the menacing thousands held at bay. The entire police force of the city, regulars and reserve was held on duty all night. Two regiments of the National Guard of New Yorkk were at their armouries, ready for instant service. If the President's death had come before midnight it would have been difficult to avoid a conflict. But the crowds gradually broke up as the new day came on, and by 2.15 a.m., when the death announcement came, the down town thoroughfares were deserted. For the moment the anger of the outraged people is forgotten in their poignant grief, and this will doubtless consign Czolgosz to the swift and inevitable punishment provided by law.

TO GUARD THE DUKE

Montreal, Quebec, Sept. 16. — The receipt of the Italian letter by the mayor a few days ago in which it was announced that a plot is on foot to kill the duke of York shortly after he arrives here has evidently worried the police considerable, although they stated yesterday that it was evidently a fake. As a result they have started to spread out their dragnet and are gradually tightening it around all the suspicious characters they know of.

A consultation was held this morning and it was decided to clear the criminal atmosphere before the duke and duchess of York arrive here. With that end in view a list was made of all the known people who might cause trouble and the police magistrates were kept busy all day signing warrants which the police clerks filled out.

All these warrants were for vagrancy and the persons mentioned in them will be arrested on that charge. They will then be remanded till the time the royal party will have left Canada. It is stated that the detectives have been furnished with fifty warrants thus far and that many more will be issued to-morrow.

BIG CRUSADE IS BEGUN.

The crusade against the criminal element began to-night, and half a dozen men are already in the cells. They embrace men of all nationalities, but for the present no information is vouchsafed as to the identities of those who have fallen under the ban. Many of them, it is said, are well-known dangerous characters, and not a few are persons accused of anarchistic tendencies.

Lieutenant Colonel Sherwood, commissioner of the Dominion police, who is responsible for the safety of the royal party while in Canada, has been informed of the procedure and it is understood that he will recommend the authorities of all the large cities to take similar action.

OPPOSED TO COMMON HERD.

Inquiry among well known society people by the newspapers hav elicited the fact that the majority of them will not attend the public reception to be tendered the Duke and Duchess of York in the city hall here on the evening of their arrival because the affair has been made too common. At first it was decided that only the better class of people would be invited and that each alderman would be given in addition six tickkets of invitaton but since then a decision was arrived at on the part of the aldermen to the effect that anyone properly dressed should be admitted, providing they presented two visiting cards. As Lord Strathcona, who receives the Duke and Duchess in his palatial residence as his guests, will give one or two large dinners, however, the elite will meet their royal highnesses that way.

It looks as if it will be very difficult to make a good showing of militia during the Duke's visit, particularly in the case of the arrival at Quebec, to which the Montreal regiments will have to travel, and at the review in Toronto, to which the Ottawa regiments will have to go. The men object because they are only allowed 25 cents a day for rations and the employers object because they hate to lose the services of their men.

The men who have served in South Africa have been notified by the militia department that they cannot appear in their South African uniforms but must remain in mufti, and at a meeting held in Ottawa yesterday they decided not to appear at all too receive their South African medals unless they can do so in the uniforms in which they fought.

Junior Department of the Y. W. C. A.

On Tuesday afternoon of last week about thirty bright, interested, little women, from 8 to 10 years of age, met in the new Y.W.C.A. rooms on George street, and were duly organized into a self government club, with a President, Vice-President Secretary, and Treasurer. A similar gathering of girls from 11 to 15 years of age, on Thursday afternoon resulted in the formation of a second selfgovernment club, in which 49 members are already enrolled. A short business meeting, presided over by the President of the club, followed the election of officers each afternoon, and the rapidity with which the officers and members learned how such a meeting should be conducted, would have astonished many of their elders. The dues were fixed at one cent weekly, the junior club meetings to be held on Tuesday and the senion on Thursday afternoon—The matter of club names is to be decided at the next regular meeting. With the opening of the educational work of the Association in October, gymnasium and other classes will be opened for the junior department. Their definite line of club work will be announced later.

New Jewelery Store.

Mr. R. J. Frost will in a few days open a new jewelry store. He has secured a stand opposite the Times Office, and will open up with a first-class stock of watches, clocks, and jewelry of all descriptions. "Diamond Hall," as the establishment will be called, is one of three stores in which Mr. Frost is financially interested, the other two being in Orilla and Midland.

FROM SOUTH AFRICA

Pretoria, Sept. 16.

Five-columns which have been operating against Sheeper's commando, have succeeded in driving the Boers into a corner, and their surrender is expected.

The proclamation of Lord Kitchener has had but little effect upon the burghers still in the field. There are a few isolated cases, where small parties have surrendered, but no general movement in that direction has taken place.

Gen. Kitchener reports satisfactory progress during the week, about 600 Boers having been bagged, in addition to large quantities of ammunition.

An anonymous Boer communication has been received threatening reprisals if the confiscation proclamation is carried out.

General Methuen has had an engagement with a Boer force at Rheonsterfontein, east of Zeerust, in which eleven of the burghers were killed and twenty captured. The British pursued the Boers north, and in the chase killed seven and captured twenty-one of them.

Skirmishes have taken place on the Pietersburg Railway line, in which seven Boers were killed.

The British casualties in the Great Maries valley on September 6 and 8, when General Methuen was engaged with Vantander and Dela Rey, driving the Boers from a strong position, were 25 killed and 30 wounded, including Capt. Croft.

THE BOER PRISONERS

London, Sept. 16.

The monotonous record of small British success in South Africa continues, but there is no expectation that Boer hunting will cease after Sunday, when the war can be proclaimed to be technically at an end. The expiration of the time limit will enable Lord Kitchener to enforce more stringent measures in dealing with the prisoners captured by the mounted columns if he has a definite plan for future operations. Military men do not expect any new departure, but assert that the process of wearing out the Boers and picking up guerillas by threes and fours will continue for an indefinite period, while the movement of refugees to Johannesburg, already in progress will be quickened.

The problem which baffles all inquirers is the ultimate treatment of the prisoners. The fighting men of the Dutch states, with the exception of 8,000 guerillas and Cape Rebels, are now prisoners of war. Nobody, either in the Colonial or the War Office, ventures to forecast what will happen when the 8,000 still in the field are run down and either killed, maimed or captured. Shooting will cease for the time, but the Government will have women and children to feed in concentration camps and no guarantee that the prisoners when released, will not take up arms afresh

Mr. Bennett Burleigh advises that Lord Milner arrived at Johannesburg on Tuesday evening. The Telegraph's special correspondent adds that the Boer women who were allowed to go out and try to persuade their husbands to give in, found them reading reports of Mr. Labouchere's Queen's Hall meeting, from which they inferred that England was on the verge of civil war. They were consequently not at all conciliatory.

KRUGERS' LATEST

Brussels, Sept. 16.

Ex-President Kruger stated to-day to a news paper correspondent that Britain had violated every law of humanity, and should be proclaimed an outcast by all Christian nations. None but a bully would refuse arbitration, and this England had done. He invoked the curse of heaven on the British people.

The Independence Belge says that Dr. Leyds and other Boer officials appealed to the Hague Tribunal on Tuesday to intervene and compel Great Britain to accept arbitration. They accuse the British of breaking all the laws of war.

THE GORDON HIGHLANDERS.

London, Sept. 16.

Lord Kitchener has sent King Edward as Colonel-in-Chief of the Gordon Highlanders, an account of an incident that strongly recalls the storming of Dargai Heights by that regiment. Lord Kitchener says that, after surrendering, Commandant De Villers informed him that during the Boer attack of July 4 on Watsoon Spruit, the Highlanders behaved with the utmost gallantry. "The last four men, though entirely surrounded and without cover, continued to fire until three were killed and the fourth was wounded. On the Boers asking the survivor the reason why they did not surrender, he replied: 'Why, man, we are Gordon Highlanders.'"

CAPE PARLIAMENT AGAIN PROROGUED

Cape Town, Sept. 16

Parliament has been further prorogued until November 20. No mention of the despatch of business is made in the prorogation proclamation.

THE RESCUE OF PEARY

Halifax, N.S., Sept. 16.—The steamer Erikk arrived at North Sudney after a most successful expedition Peary the explorer, was found, and he and all his party are safe.

Peary still remains north to continue his work.

Mrs. Peary and her little daughter Marie, together with Mrs Pierce, the stewardness of the Windward, arrived here in the Erik.

Peary succeeded in penetrating as far as 83. 50, North.

The Erik found the Windward at Etah; Peary was left at Cape Sabine. The only mishap the Erik met with was the loss of an anchor at Alexandria.

The relief expedition have brought back some 350 walrus heads and a number of kayaks and other curiosities.

Lieutenant Peary sailed from North Sydney in July, 1898, to make a dash for the North Pole from North Greenland; but instead of making a dash for the pole he has devoted his time ever since to investigating geographical and other conditions of that lone land. He and his party were in the field almost continually from October 1898 to October, 1900, the last date when they were heard from.

Their investigations have added much to the geographical knowledge of the coast line and the interior of Ellesmere land. Peary made a careful reconnaissance of the coast line southwest of Allman Bay, and carefully defined the lands between that point and Cape Sabine.

The Windward was icebound in Allman Bay from August, 1899, to August 2, 1899. Peary made several successful hunting trips and sledged 250 miles to Fort Conger, the headquarters of the Greely expedition. He had the misfortune to have both his feet frost bitten which caused six weeks' delay and confinement until he could make the return trip. He was hauled all the way back to the Windward where several toes were amputated. This was followed by complete recovery. Peary was the first to visit Fort Conger after Greely left it in 1883. Last autumn the Erik went north to find out how Peary was situated, with the result above shown.

American Newspaper Directory.

Tells the circulations of all American newspapers. Revised, corrected and reissued every three months. Sixteen hundred pages: Price Five Dollars a volume or $20 a year.

BUFFALO.

We should hardly know how to get along without the American Newspaper Directory. We regard it by all odds the most complete and reliable guide that the advertiser can make use of; in fact we use no other.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 24, 1901.
R. V. PIERCE, M.D.,
President World's D.s. Med. Ass'n.

VERMONT.

ADVISOR.

The Advisor accepts the American Newspaper Directory as the standard in newspaper ratings. The obstacles which obstruct its efforts to get true and reliable information are many.

* * *

The directory question is one which interests every publisher in the country—nay, the entire world. But in the United States, directories are becoming altogether too numerous. In this, as with other books of reference, it is necessary to have one which may be relied on as being an authority on the matter of newspaper circulations. There can be no question about the fact that at this time, as for many years past, the American Newspaper Directory is that authority. The Advisor is not paid to make this announcement. It makes the statement in the interest of advertisers and publishers because it is true. One thing the advretiser is almost cock-sure of when he refers to the American Newspaper Directory is that the circulation figures he sees therein are not overstated to any great extent. In most other directories they are. Only the publisher himself is to be blamed for no securing a proper rating in that publication, and every advertiser of consequence knows it. Thus the publisher who refuses to furnish a statement places himself under a reasonable suspicion.—The Advisor for June.

New York, June, 1901.

CHICAGO.

Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co's American Newspaper Directory has long since earned the reputation of being the best of its character. It contains the result of patient, expensive and systematic effort to secure all attainable information of interest concerning American newspapers. The work has been honestly done. This will not be questioned by any unprejudiced examiner. The most important question is circulation. In attempting to give this information the Editor of the Directory encounters his most difficult work. It is the aim and necessity of the Directory to give the truth. The American Newspaper Directory is to-day hte dependence and guide in a greater or less degree, of every large advertiser in the country.—Chicago (Ill.) Daily News.

BATES.

No man who advertises can afford to do without it.

What Bradstreet and Dun are to the mercantile world, The American Newspaper Directory is to the world of periodical publications.

A new advertiser will get from the American Newspaper Directory a better idea of the greatness of his country, and the tremendous possibilities in newspaper advertising, than from any other source.

If an advertiser spends only $100 a year he should have the American Newspaper Directory. For his business may grow and his right expenditure of his money become increasingly important. The time to learn how to spend $10,000 a year is before it is spent, otherwise the spending may be disastrous.

Many times the best paper in town costs the advertiser no more than the poorest. The American Newspaper Directory tells which is which.

The paper that was the leader in its town five years ago may lag behind to-day. Even one year may witness astonishing changes. If you are spending money for publicity it is vastly important that you should know where to get the most of it for the price. The American Newspaper Directory gives not only the present circulation rating of every paper in America, but shows their history by quoting past ratings.

The book costs five dollars a copy, and a single reference to it may readily save or make many times its cost.

All newspaper directories but one are erroneously optimistic about circulations. The American Newspaper Directory may occasionally err on the other side, but that makes it all the safer for the advertiser.

My advertising experience began in 1885, and one of the first things I did was to buy a copy of the American Newspaper Directory.

For sixteen years Rowell's "The American Newspaper Directory" has had a place of honor and usefulness on my desk

Many a publisher is ready to prove by other directories that "Rowell's is wrong," but few indeed can be induced to prove it by opening their circulation books to the advertiser.

Among publishers who are not willing that their real circulations be known, it is the best hated book in print The moral is not far to find.

CHARLES AUSTIN BATES.
New York, June 24, 1901.

PABST.

If the improvement of the American Newspaper Directory continues in the future as it has during the past twenty years I do not think I shall live long enough to see any other directory take its place. There will, however, be the usual crop of directories just as every other good thing is imitated Your long years of experience in dealing with evasive circulation reports have most admirably fitted you for placing a proper valuation upon such statements Advertisers have come to know that the Rowell estimates are nearer the proper figure than can otherwise be obtained. The American Newspaper Directory is therefore indispensable in every well regulated advertising department. Lines are being more tightly drawn every day; it is difficult to collect for twenty thousand when you print only eight. If the advertiser were buying barley he would not accept three pecks for a bushel, although the quality might at all times be open for discussion.

The American Newspaper Directory is the guide and companion of the advertising man, and it is to the interest of all concerned to help perfect it, support it, and hurrah for it.

PABST BREWING CO.
J. R. Kathrens, Adv. Mgr.
Milwaukee, Wis., June 7. 1901.

SAPOLIO.

A growing need created it—the advertising agency system. One of the earliest and most successful workers, Geo. P. Rowell, is still in the field. He originated methods. Others following his publication of a list of all the papers—the American Newspaper Directory. He has never ceased to love it, and labor for it. Soon out of the gross stupidity of imitation, it became a rule that every agency down to those of Oshkosh or Oklahoma must issue its own directory. An awful waste, for not more than one out of ten was worth shelf room. If the National Association of Advertising Agents could agree long enough to buy Mr. Rowell's Directory, publish it officially and drop all the others, it would accomplish something.

ARTEMAS WARD,
Advertising Manager for Sapolio
—In Fame, March, 1901.

WASHINGTON.

Every page of the American Newspaper Directory breathes the dsiree of its publishers that it shall be absolutely correct in every statement it makes.

Truly yours,

Clerk of the Committee on Banking an dCurrency, House of Representatives, U. S.
Washington, D. C., Jan. 17, 1899.

SOUTHERN.

We subscribe to and pay cash for the American Newspaper Directory. and find it of great value in our advertising department. We have 6.89 miles of railway, extending from Washington, D. C., all over the South, and in advertising this system we use more than 1,000 publications, and in selecting this list we find that we get a correct idea of circulation from this Directory that can not be obtained from any other similar publication. We receive other newspapr directories gratis, but the fact that we pay cash for this one in addition shows that we can not place the same dependence upon the "free list."

We thoroughly appreciate the careful manner in which this Directory is compiled.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13, 1900.
JOS. H. HANNEN,
Adv. Dept. Southern Railway.

I am looking forward to receiving the new edition with a great deal of anticipation, as, although the American Newspaper Directory seemed to have reached a high state of perfection several years ago, there is always something new and of value in each succeeding edition. It is regarded as the standard authority with the Southern Railway.

S. H. HARDWICK,

BALTIMORE.

We have used the American Newspaper Directory for many years and find it more valuable to us than any other similar publication. Much of the information given we cannot obtain in any other way. The book is not only a great help, but a necessity to our business, and we think its way of stating circulations is the ideal one.

Cancer Sufferers Gain Strength

A great many people suffering from Cancers and Tumors, find their strength rapidly slipping away. These horrible diseases undermine the health and sap the vitality.

To operate or use plasters, simply means further exhaustion. The new Constitutional treatment, instead of weakening, actually builds up the strength and invigorates the entire system, not only this, but it arrests the progress of the disease and entirely eliminates every particle of the Cancer poison from the system. It is a pleasant treatment, and can be taken at home, without pain or inconvenience.

Kingston is not a whit behind. 'Bowling' goes on every night throughout the year till 11 o'clock, and often all night, for some bars never close."

—The Trenton Courier says that Mrs. Carrie Nation has a brother living in that town, and the woman with the hatchet is coming over to Canada to visit him, and may do some lecturing in the neighboring towns, Peterborough included. Now, how would her brother like to go over to the States to visit her? That would be much nicer. It is his duty to go, and not put his sister to so much trouble on our—we mean his account.

CHEAP POWER FOR PETERBORO

Citizens of Peterborough Want Dams on the River Developed to Encourage Manufacturing Industries.

The citizens of Peterborough, regardless of political parties, are vitally interested in the development of power on the four dams on the river Otonabee above Peterborough. The development of these powers would attract industries to Peterborough and consequently raise the value of real estate and give increased employment to mechanics, carpenters, masons and all kinds of labor. The question is, should the Government insist upon holding these dams at an unreasonable price, and thereby block the chances of developing power from these dams? The Review rightly says "there is one "fact that has developed and that is that "the figure of $4.00 per horse power "which was placed on Dam No. 5 three "years ago is, from a commercial point "of view, altogether out of the question." "It further properly says: "The Govern-"ment should put a price on these dams "that will assist in the manufacturing "development of Peterborough. Just "what the rental may be is for the Gov-"ernment to determine." The annual rental of $1250, which the Government proposed to charge to the Otonabee Power Company, is, to say the least of it, a good stiff price for the Company to pay, and still furnish cheap power to manufacturers in Peterborough. We find that this sum is quite sufficient to pay interest at three per cent. upon the entire cost of the land on both sides of the river, and the construction of the dam as well, and still provide a fund of $850 a year to keep the dam in repair.

It must be remembered that this dam was built expressly for navigation purposes, and not for the purpose of supplying power, and that the Government is bound to keep the dam in repair for navigation purposes. Therefore the Government is making a clean gain of $1250 a year, which is a sum quite sufficient for it to incidentally make out of this portion of the Trent Canal. The citizens of Peterborough, through the Town Council, practically declared a resolution the other night, that they do not desire to develop power at Dam No. 5, and were quite content to waive any possible claim they might have to this dam in favor of the Otonabee Power Co., who propose to go ahead and develop it. There are still three dams left on the river which the town could apply for and develop if it so desires, the wisdom of which we very much doubt considering the present financial standing of the town.

What the citizens of Peterborough would like to know is: Why the Government do not carry out their lease with the Company in accordance with their own order in council? Surely it cannot be that a Liberal Government desires to stand by two monopolizing Companies? Surely it cannot be that the Government desire to put such a price upon these dams that no capitalist in his senses would put a dollar of money into? Surely the Government are not haggling over the price of this power, like a peddlar over his wares, trying to get the last cent? Surely it cannot be that the Government desire to discourage the establishment of manufacturing industries in Peterborough? Then why this delay on the part of a business Government?

THE ORGAN RECITAL.

A Delightful Entertainment Last Night in the Baptist Church.

The organ recital last night in the Baptist Church was an event long to be remembered by the music-loving citizens of Peterborough.

The programme was one of the best that those having special regard for high class music could desire. The brilliant organ playing by Mr. A. S. Vogt, of Toronto, was of course, the main feature of the entertainment.

The programme opened with two classical selections by Mr. Vogt, which showed that gentleman to be a musician of very high order. This was followed by a vocal solo, "Hosannah in Excelsis," by Miss Etta Montgomery, sung in a sweet voice that captivated the large audience.

An "Impromptu" in E flat, by Mr. Vogt, gave those present some idea of the power as well as the sweetness of the new organ, which is one of the best, if not the best, in town. Miss Florence Carolyn Hall followed with a vocal solo, entitled, "I will Extol Thee," sung with wonderful sweetness and feeling.

Mr. Vogt completed the first part of the programme with a couple of high class selections, which were followed by two others, after which Mr. W. F. Skitch sang in good form, "My God and Father While I Stray."

A couple of selections on the organ by Mr. Vogt, a vocal solo, entitled, "Fear Ye Not, O Israel," by Miss Hall and a powerful organ selection, completed the programme.

There was a large attendance, every seat being filled. We congratulate Rev. Mr. Bastow and the church managers on the result of the entertainment.

RAN SHORT OF WATER.

A Freight Engine Had Not Water Enough to Make Port.

A peculiar mishap occured on the grand junction yesterday. A freight engine, drawing a heavy train, ran out of water between Hoard's and Campbellford, and came to a stop. The regular Belleville train, on its way to Peterborough, came up behind and tried to shove the freight ahead of it, but the grade was too heavy.

The express then ran back to Hoard's with both trains, where the freight was sidetracked until a heavy engine was sent to its relief.

The train was an hour late in reaching Peterborough.

Youngs Point Picnic.

Arrangements are now complete for Father Fitzpatrick's picnic at Young's Point to-morrow. The event promises to be an exceptionally attractive affair. There will be a train leave Peterborough at 8.15 a.m. and at 1.30 p.m., and a special train will return at 7.30. Fare, 40c., and 20c. Fare by boat from Lakefield to Young's Point 20 cents.

Pegg, of Norwood, Ont., says: "I was nearly doubled up with rheumatism. I got three bottles of South American Rheumatic Cure and they cured me. It's the quickest acting medicine I ever saw."—18

FAREWELL TO BACHELORHOOD.

Mr. Lyman Moon Banquetted Prior to His Marriage.

Mr. Lyman Moon, the genial young host of the National Hotel, is to be united in matrimony to-morrow to a young lady of Stirling. His farewell to bachelorhood was celebrated at McCallum's restaurant last night by a jolly party of about twenty. An excellent supper was served, after which Mr. W. Bunton was chosen master of ceremonies and an hour was very pleasantly passed in song, speech and laughter. A wide circle of friends unite in wishing Mr. Moon and his bride a long and prosperous voyage on the sea of matrimony.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Brown are booked to leave this morning on an extended trip through Manitoba, the North-West Territories and British Columbia. They will be absent about a month. Mr. Brown, who is quite a sportsman, is going prepared to do his share of hunting. He will stop off at Maple Creek, and visit Mr. R. H. Bradburn, who has a ranch there. Mr. Brown is taking with him several shot guns, a couple of rifles and a pom-pom, so that when he opens fire on the game with his small arms and artillery combined, there will be music in the air, which will mean death to everything in front of the business end of the guns.

The Historical Society.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Mr. Hay, C. E., has the gift of bungling to a remarkable degree, and like others of that kind, he preserves his selfsatisfaction through it all. The letter from Mr. David Boyle, read at the society's annual meeting, in which he regrets the neglect of the serpent mound, and their stupid blunder in omitting to send the fees of affiliation, shows that this way of handling the society's business, like the Morrow corner, is about all we can expect from Mr. Hay. For heaven's sake let us have something done right for a change. Yours,

GEMS OF THOUGHT

The entire object of true education is to make people not do the right things, but enjoy the right things.—Ruskin.

There is a transcendent power in example. We reform others unconsciously when we walk uprightly.—Mme. Swetchine.

I fell into the habit years ago of talking with God, and it becomes so natural that in all my open space I do it without thought.—Horace Bushnell.

If you want to be miserable think about yourself, about what you want, what you like,—what respect people ought to pay you and what people think of you.—Charles Kingsley.

Life strikes many an unheeded, prophetic little note. A word, a trivial happening, gives hint like a theme in music, of something that is to be more or less recurrent all the way along.—A. D. T. Whitney.

A psalm which cultivates the spirit of gratitude is a psalm which we ought often to read. If we were more grateful both our joy and our strength would be increased. Gratitude is born in the hearts which take the time to count up past mercies.—Charles E. Jefferson.

Man is no better than a leaf driven by the winds until he has conquered his lonely duties. This makes a man, —the habit of confronting great things in solitude, and chiefly the habit of conversing with God alone, and of filling the soul with his strength.—John Pulsford.

There is no music in a "rest" that I know of, but there's the making of music in it. And people are always missing that part of the life melody, always talking of perseverance and courage and fortitude; but patience is the finest and worthiest part of fortitude, and the rarest, too.—Ruskin.

Be cheerful; do not brood over fond hopes unrealized until a chain, link after link, is fastened on each thought and wound around the heart. Nature intended you to be the fountain spring of cheerfulness and social life, and not the traveling monument of despair and melancholy.—Arthur Helps.

Foolish and faulty are we. Yes, but our follies and our faults are not the main facts. This is the "good news of God," that in every man he sees something a great deal more important than the man's sinfulness. Sin clouds our view of ourselves; it does not obscure the Father's sight of his child. When a sense of his changeless goodness reaches us it is like a sunbeam; the cloud vanishes before it; sin is slain by love. "If God so loves us we ought also to love one another."—Charles G. Ames.

FROM THE BEST THINKERS.

Let a man learn as early as possible to confess his ignorance, and he will be a gainer by it in the long run; otherwise the trick by which he veils his ignorance from others may become a habit by which he conceals it from himself, and learns to spend his whole life in an element of delusive show, to which no reality corresponds.—John Stuart Blackie.

What are the hopes of man? Old
Egypt's king,
Cheops, erected the first pyramid,
And largest, thinking it was just the thing
To keep his memory whole and mummy hid:
But somebody or other, rummaging,
Burglariously broke his coffin's lid.
Let not a monument give you or me hopes,
Since not a pinch of dust remains of Cheops. —Byron.

Every man in his lifetime needs to thank his faults. As no man thoroughly understands a truth until he has contended against it, so no man has a thorough acquaintance with the hindrances or talents of men, until he has suffered from the one, and seen the triumph of the other over his own want of the same.—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Man dwells apart but not alone,
He walks among his peers unread;
The best of thoughts which he hath known
For lack of listeners are not said.
—Jean Ingelow.

CURIOUS FACTS

There is no good in praying for anything unless you will also try for it.—Henry Van Dyke.

The Russian form of salutation is brief, consisting of the single word "praschal," said to sound like a sneeze. The Otaheite islander will twist the end of the departing guest's robe and then solemnly shake his own hand three times.

Very young lambs are as like as peas in a pod to everything except the noses of their mothers. A hundred ewes at pasture, with lambs of the same size, will make no mistake about their children,—that is, if the children have once been accepted as their own. Sometimes it happens that for no visible reason a ewe rejects her lamb, and cannot be induced to own it. If she has twins she may own one and reject the other.

The Queen of England was hardly twenty one when she wedded Prince Albert. Her eldest son, the Prince of Wales, was not twenty-two when he married Princess Alexandra. The late Czar of Russia was only twenty-two when he married Princess Dagmar, the sister of the Princess of Wales, who was twenty. King Humbert of Italy was twenty four when he wedded his queen, Margherita and the Emperor of Austria at the age of twenty three married Princess Elizabeth, who was at the time only [illegible]. The Belgian king was married at eighteen, the last King of Spain at the age of nineteen the first time, and [illegible] his second wife when [illegible] twenty two. The German [illegible] was only twenty two when [illegible] Princess Augusta Victoria [illegible] Holstein Augustenburg.

DUKE REVIEWS TROOPS AND PRESENTS MEDALS

Great Military Review and March Past in Quebec Tuesday Morning

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL TURNER GETS THE V. C.

Brilliant Spectacle on the Plains of Abraham, Which Could Not Hold the Spectators.

Quebec, Sept. 17. — Despite unfavorable weather today's military review before the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York was a decided success. All Quebec and its visitors seemed to have turned out to see the historic event which also marked the transference of the Plains of Abraham to the City of Quebec, and its dedication as a public park. Of course, the plains, large as they are, could not hold all who wanted to see the review, but as many as the men who kept the parade ground clear would allow upon the field obtained an entrance, and others had to content themselves with following the troops as far as they could along Le Grand Allee and other streets leading towards the Plains. Several members of the royal party commented upon the present happy condition of affairs when descendants of those who at one time met in mortal combat upon the historical Plains could parade shoulder to shoulder in military costume on the same soil. The parade was formed up very soon after the appointed hour, but about an hour before this two markers were posted for each unit. The line was drawn up facing the St. Louis road and the parade was formed with drawn swords and fixed bayonets in the following order: Cavalry on the right, in squadron column; field artillery in line at close intervals; garrison artillery; gentlemen cadets of Royal Military College and infantry in line of quarter column; army medical corps on extreme left. Intervals of twelve paces were left between the cavalry and field artillery, with ten paces between brigades. The frontage of the companies was between 20 and 24 files, and all regimental bands were massed six paces in rear of their respective brigades.

The whole brigade was under command of Major-General O'Grady-Haly, C.B., D.S.O., with Lieut.-Col the Hon. Matthew Aylmer, Adjutant-General second in command.

THE DUKE'S ARRIVAL.

On arrival of H. R. H. the Duke, with escort and staff, the Major General called for a royal salute, after which arms were presented, colors towered and massed bands played "God Save the King." The parade then came to the shoulder and H. R. H. then proceeded to inspect the troops. During his inspection each of the massed bands in turn played marches, while the Duke passed the command to which it belonged.

THE MARCH PAST.

As soon as the inspection was over, the colors again took post and the march past was commenced. The cavalry went past in column of troops, field artillery in line at reduced intervals, gentlemen cadets, garrison artillery, infantry and army medical corps in column. Each brigade of infantry was led by its band and the infantry again marched past by the left after forming mass of quarter column by brigades and changing ranks. The cavalry and artillery then trotted past and the whole took post in review order for the presentation of medals.

The first decoration conferred was the Victoria Cross, won by Lieut.-Col. Turner by his gallantry in the field, and then came the South African medals, which were distributed according to prearranged program, officers according to rank receiving medals and then the men. After this interesting feature of the proceedings, which was constantly interrupted by the cheers of the crowd, the troops marched off to their respective quarters, and the great day was over.

URGE THE DUKE TO ATTEND FUNERAL

British People Want York at McKinley's Funeral

EAGER TO SHOW SYMPATHY

There are, However, Difficulties in Way of Project

Executive's Views to be Ascertained Previous to Proposal Ill Health of Duchess Renders Long Trip Perilous.

London, September 17—The suggestion that the Duke of Cornwall and York should represent King Edward at President McKinley's funeral finds on the whole warm approval here. There are difficulties, however, in the way, and President Roosevelt's views must be ascertained before such proposal is made. As far as the public feeling in England is concerned, undoubtedly the compliment would be cordially paid, nor is there any doubt entertained that the duke would be most eager to afford this testimony of his personal sympathy and good will.

The dislocation of the arrangements for his tour could easily be surmounted, but it is thought possible that in the present state of the duchess' health any prolongation of their journeying would be undesirable.

It is stated here that the king has been in communication with the duke on the subject and that the President has been approached through the British charge d'affaires at Washington.

Evidences of mourning were widespread in London. Black was the dominant note in the costumes of churchgoers and pulpit references to the high character of the murdered president, combined with expressions of cordial sympathy with American people were principally universal.

Cardinal Vaughan directed that a funeral march be played in all Catholic churches at the conclusion of mass, during which the congregations remained for the most part kneeling.

The anarchist lecturers in parks and public places denounced the crime as the act of a lunatic, these denunciations being increased in fervor by the threatening aspect of the crowds which assembled to note their attitude.

MUCH SYMPATHY IN BRITAIN.

It would be almost impossible to record in detail the remarkable outburst of sympathy in Great Britain and her colonies over the death of President McKinley, proofs of which are continually arriving here. Not only has King Edward commanded the court to go into mourning for one week, but wherever a public meeting of any kind has been held or wherever a public man has had occasion to speak expressions of horror and sympathy have been heard.

In every place of public worship Sunday from St. Paul's cathedral and Canterbury cathedral down, the preachers made special references to the terrible event, invoking God's blessing upon the United States and the American people Crathie church at Balmoral, whose bells had never before been used except on occasions of national interest, broke the custom and announced the event in the neighborhood.

Many members of the diplomatic corps and a constant stream of visitors inscribed their names at the embassy. Messages of sympathy were received from Earl Cadogan, the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland; Sir William Vernon Harcourt, the Duke of Abercorn, the maharajah of Jodhopore, Mr. Austin, the poet laureate and many other prominent men.

The postoffice department granted special facilities to enable the embassy to telegraph replies.

WAS JEFF DAVIS' SLAVE

An Interesting Delegate to the National Negro League—New Mayor of a Mississippi City.

Chicago Sept. 18.—Among the interesting men who are going to Chicago as delegates to the meeting of the National Negro Business League, is Isaiah T. Montgomery, who was a slave of Jefferson Davis, and who now is the Mayor of the town of Mound Bayou, Miss, a flourishing negro town which he has founded and built up since the War.

Mr. Montgomery, says the Chicago Post, tells many entertaining stories about his life on the Davis plantation, one of the largest and most remarkable of the great cotton plantations in the entire South. His father was a foreman on the place, and he himself was taken into the "big house" at an early age to be made a "house" servant. Because he showed unusual aptitude he was taught to read and write, and in time became a sort of office boy for Joseph, the older brother of Jefferson Davis, coming in this way to have an intimate knowledge of the household and of many of the business political matters in which his masters were interested.

The Davis plantation comprised many thousand acres, lying in a huge bend of the Mississippi river. There were two plantation houses, named "Briarfields" and "Hurricane," the last named so because at one time a hurricane had swept over the place, doing great damage. The affairs of the plantation were managed by the other brother, "Mr. Joe," while "Mr. Jeff" spent much of his time away from home, occupied with political affairs at Washington and elsewhere. "'Mr. Jeff' was a wonderful man, both as a speaker and a writer," Mr. Montgomery has said of him. "He could say more in one sentence than most men could say in half a page."

There were 400 slaves on the plantation, divided into two squads called "the upper" and "the lower." Each had its own overseer, and there was great rivalry between the overseers and the men to see which division would come out ahead of the crops. The management of the place was so careful and kindly that Mr. Montgomery, in speaking of it, says the people on the place had only the faintest idea of what slavery really was. The overseers were not allowed to punish anyone of their own accord. They made complaint to the owner of the place, and then, on certain days—usually Sundays—a "court" was held, in which all the cases which had come up were heard. "Mr Joe" was the judge and decided what should be done in each case.

STEALING WIRE FROM C. G. E. CO.

Junk Men and Thief in Police Headquarters

THE CONFESSION OF THE THIEF

An interesting case occupied the attention of Police Magistrate Dumble yesterday. Robert Smith, a lad of 18 or 19 whose home is in Monaghan, just outside the town limits, was charged with stealing a whole lot of copper wire—about four tons, aggregating in value several hundred dollars—from the Canadian General Electric Company. Smith made a full confession in the witness box, implicating Chas. Stevenson, local manager of Holmes' junk shop, David Doig, another local junk dealer, and Mr. T. G. Holmes, of Port Hope, to whom it is said Stevenson shipped some of the wire. These three were charged with receiving stolen property.

Mr. R. E. Wood, County Crown Attorney, prosecuted, and Mr. E. B. Stone appeared for Mr. Stevenson, Mr. R. R. Hall for Mr. Doig, and Mr. F. D. Kerr for Mr. Holmes.

Smith was first arraigned and he pleaded guilty.

The charge against Stevenson was next proceeded with, and the accused pleaded not guilty.

Smith was then put in the witness box. He said that he had worked at teh Canadian General Electric Works about six months ago, and at different times since he had gone there and stolen coils of new, bright copper wire. He got in with a key that he had made. He made the key he used about a week before the first visit. He went down to the works at night to get an imprint of the key which he took from the case in which it hung on the outside of the door. This imprint he made in tar, heated for the purpose. He made the key out of sheet steel. This was about two months after he left the works. He knew Charles Stevenson, manager of the junk shop, and had transactions of about two tons. He told Stevenson, he said, that he knew where he could get copper wire, and he asked how much he would give for it. Stevenson said 9 cents. Witness told him he had nine coils and he told im to be careful. The witness also told of selling stolen wire to David Doig. Some of the wire sold to Stevenson had been taken across the river, in a boat and burned so as to prevent identification. The wire had been carried from the works in rigs hired from Fitzgerald's, Gibbs, Leary and Kennedy.

Maud Smith, the sister of the former witness, was next called. She identified Stevenson as a man she had seen at their place in Monaghan. She saw him on Tuesday, the 3rd of September. He was with her brother, and the two went out in a boat on the river.

Alex. Oliver, who had been in gaol for two or three days on remand, was next put in the box. He said he had been working for Mr. Stevenson at the Holmes place, near the railway track. He had cut some copper wire, as Mr. Stevenson had told him. This wire was in coils, and he was to cut it up and put it in bags. He cut up two coils. This was a week ago Monday. He saw about eight coils of wire there altogether. The wire was lying on the floor in plain sight.

Wm. Sidey was next witness. He said that on the 6th Sept. Stevenson offered him a dollar to do some work for him. It was cutting the copper wire, which was in coils, and appeared to be burned. On the next day witness said he was going down to Port Hope, and Stevenson was talking of selling the wire to a Jew in Toronto. Witness told him the eJw in Port Hope might buy it. Stevenson gave witness two samples of the wire, but the Port Hope Jew would not buy it. Witness came back, and told Stevenson, and the latter said he had shipped it.

R. H. Leary, liveryman, knew Robt. Smiht, and told of rigs he had hired on the night of Sept. 1st, and on Tuesday, the 3rd. The latter he did not return until Wednesday evening.

W. H. Wareham, clerk at the G. T. R. freight offices, was called to giev evidence regarding shipments of wire made by Stevenson. These in August and September totalled 2,800 pounds, made in four shipments.

The magistrate decided that Mr Holmes, the proprietor of the junk shop, was not implicated, and acquitted him. The case against the others accused will be proceeded with to-day.

Smith seems to be a born thief. His work was shrewdly planned and boldly carried out. In court he appeared cool and impertinent. He lived at the OOriental Hotel for some little time, paying $2.00 a day for his accomodation and doing the generous at the bar—where however, he did not take strong drink himself, because as he explained, he wished to "'keep his head clear."

Mr. Stone's cross examination of the witness was racy.

How long have you lived in Peterborough, he asked?

About 5 years.

This is a sort of a picnic for you?

Not altogether.

You acknowledge yourself to be a thief? Yes.

And a liar? No.

You are telling this in order to save your own dirty skin? No.

You were told that if you told this yarn you would go scott free? No.

That it would go light with you? No. They said that it was better for me to tell the truth.

So far as you know there was no one knew that you were going to plead guilty when you got into the box? Not that I know of.

Did you tell Leary the truth when you kept the horse out all night? I did not.

Have you certain seasons of the year when you tell the truth or tell what is not true? No.

Were you doing anything outside of stealing wire for a living when you stole the wire? Yes. I was working for a man named Richardson.

Witness said further that he stole the wire about 2 a.m.

Mr. Stone — Who was with you?

They were strangers to this town.

What town did they belong to?

I don't think to any particular town. The names of those who assisted me were Durvan and Jeffries. I met them in front of the Court House, but did not know their first names. I met Durvan the first time across the river about a mile below the locks. He was having a chicken roast; he had been stealing chickens. This was one night about ten o'clock, but I did not know where the chickens came from. Durvan was with a tramp. Witness did not know where he came from. Young Kerrigan, who worked at Oriental, asked him to come down to the chicken feed.

You said you did not know a man there? Well, Kerrigan is a boy, replied witness. They had not any liquor, just chicken and bread. The next time he met Durvan was in front of the Court House, when the conversation turned on the matter of stealing wire. He told Jeffries and Durvan that he knew where they could get wire. Durvan was about 30 years of age and Jeffries about 20. They got into the works with the aid of a key which witness had made.

Then you are a thief, burglar, liar and chicken thief? "Perhaps," said witness.

PRESENT BOER WAR.

The Proposed Proclumation WillDeprive them of Any Status Save That of Outlaws And Murderers.

London, Sept 18—The War Office is now in possession of information that indicates without a doubt the source of the Boer war supplies. These munitions of war have been imported by way of Delagoa Bay, and smuggled through Portugese territory. Without such materail the war could hardly last a fortnight. The right to search cannot be exercised in neutral territory so long as the Boers are allowed billigerent rights, hence the determination of the Government to issue a fresh proclamation, depriving them of any rights. They have, by their policy of murder, forfeited every claim on civilization.

NO EVENING SHOW.

The Peterborough Central Fair Will Not be Open at Night.

The directors of the Peterborough Central Fair have decided not to hold an evening show, as they did last year, feeling that the cost of lighting, attendants and the general expense of holding it at the grounds did not pay. Instead the list of special attractions will be given in the market hall on the evening of the second day, Wednesday, 25th, and of which full information will be afforded later.

WILL NOT BE HERE.

Hon. Dr. Borden Will Not be Able to Open The Exhibition

Many of our readers will be sorry to learn that the Hon. Dr. Borden, Minister of Militia, who was to have formally opened the Peterborough Central Exhibition, will not be able to do so, on account of the Duke of Cornwall's visit. The Minister has to look after the military arrangements, which prevents his coming to Peterborough.

A WOMAN TO DIE ON THE SCAFFOLD

Mrs. Edwards Was Found Guilty of Murdering Her Husband.

WAS CONVICTED BY HER CHILD

Reading, Pa., Sept. 18.—The jury in the case of Mrs. Kate Edwards, charged with the murder of her husband John Edward, near Stonchsburg, on the night of July 3, to-day returned a verdict imposing the death penalty. The case was given to the jury at 4.10 P. M., and two hours later she was found guilty of murder in the first degree. Her counsel immediately moved for a new trial. Mrs. Edwards stood up before the jury as they announced their verdict, and received their decision with the greatest coolness.

The principal witness against her were her daughter, Mary, aged 15 years, and son, Elmer, aged 12, whose testimony against their mother convicted her. Through the two witness the Common-wealth was enabled to establish the fact that Mrs. Edwards had buried a bloody hammer, carpet and dress; that she made all her children and husband drunk on the night of the murder, and that every circumstance pointed to her as the guilty person. The supposition is that after Edwards was intoxicated his wife enveloped his head with the carpet and beat him to death with the hammer. Mrs. Edwards is about 40 years of age and the mother of five children.

It required only two days to hear the testimony in the case. Large audiences were present. Most of the time was taken up by the prosecution, and the feature of the defense was the denial by Mrs. Edwards, the accused, of the damaging parts of her daughter Mary's evidence. She showed no emotion and never became confused. She was asked if Mary lied, but would not say she did.

One of the witnesses for the defense testified that he saw two men in the yard of the Edwards home at 10.30 on the night of the murder, but the jury did not believe this. Then Mary Edwards was called in rebuttal, she insisted that the evidence she had given against her mother was true, and she was corroborated by her brother Elmer.

The strands of hair found clutched in the hands of the dead man, it was proved, came from the head of Mrs Edwards, torn out by the roots during the struggle.

Samuel Greason and Charles Rollins colored men, held in prison as witnesses, also gave testimony against Mrs. Edward. They were used to show the motive on the part of the accused for committing the crime.

THE RUSSIAN NAVY.

Wonderful strides Make by Russia of Late Years.

New York, Sept. 18.—With the addition of the new Retzivan, the Russian fleet will consist of 23 firstclass battleships, yielding to none in the world in excellence and perfection, though three or four of the Japanese battleships have certain qualities of superior weight; one second-class battleship, 16 coast defence ships and 23 cruisers of the first class are fully armored. Twenty-three battleships and 23 cruisers, therefore, may stand as the backhouse of Russia's naval complement of coast defence ships, second and third class cruisers, gunboats, torpedo boats, torpedo destroyers, transports, auxilaries and all that portain to them.

The Russian heavy guns are second to none, and the batteries of six-inch and seven-inch quick firing guns leave nothing to wish for. The secondary small-arm batteries are likewise perfectly equipped. The Russian warships are, in fact, the most numerously armed in the world.

This fleet was designed in the first instance for purposes of defence. And for defence it is practically invincible The very defects of Russia's naval position now become its qualities; the restriction of naval activity to two points—the Baltic and the Black Sea—is altogether in Russia's favor. She could hold either on both against considerably greater numbers and weight of ships, and would have the almost invincible forts of Sebastapol and Cronstadt as a base, to which the fleet, if menaced, could retire, and where it would be quite secure under cover of the enormous guns of the forts.

PRINCE CHUN IS MULOTED

Has Disagreeable Experience With an Extortionate Swiss Host.

Berlin, Sept. 18.—When the Chinese envoy, Prince Chun, left Basle on receiving the news that the kaiser would receive him he did not pay his bill at the hotel, but offered the proprietor several fine jewels as security. The proprietor thought to bluff him into depositing more valuables, but Chun shrewdly said:

"You not only charge me ten times your ordinary rate, but you have also got an advertisement out of my visit which no one else could get, so that you can never hope to equal."

The Chinese embassy here is now contesting the hotel bill and the proprietor threatens to sell the jewels.

REMAINS OF McKINLEY NOW LYING IN STATE

Impressive Ceremonies at the American Capital Mark the Obseqnies.

MRS. McKINLEY REMAINED IN HER ROOM

All Branches of the American Nation Unite to do Honor to the Deceased President.

Washington, Sept. 17.—The remains of the late President McKinley were this morning conveyed from the White House to the Capitol, where they are now lying in state. The cortege started from the White House at 9.20 and reached the Capitol at 10.35, the casket being conveyed into the rotunda

Washington, Sept. 17.—The day of the state funeral of the late President McKinley opened as sombre as the occasion. The sky was overcast with dark, slow-moving grey clouds; occasional spasms of rain fell, giving way for momentary intervals to gleams of dull sunshine, and a soft wind barely stirred into relief the signs of mourning on building fronts that told as well as the subdued air of the public that this was a day of sorrow. To-day was the occasion when the nation was to pay its last tribute of respect and admiration at the bier of the dead President. All the country had sent here its representatives to testify that the dead had its place in the national heart. Other nations had ordered their diplomatic and military representatives to be present as a token that they mourned with America in its loss. Ex-President Cleveland was here to take part in the ceremonies, and like President Roosevelt paid his tribute first in private at the White House, and later at the public services in the rotunda of the Capitol. The King of Great Britain was present in the person of Mr Gerard Lowther, Charge of the British Embassy, whom Edward VII. had specially commissioned to participate in the services as his personal representative. Captain Louis Bailey of the Royal Navy represented the Embassy. They will return to Newport to-night and not go to the family funeral at Canton. The other Embassies and Legations likewise had sent on their representatives. Many of the States had sent on their chief executives and part of their staffs. All branches of the National Government Legislative, Executive, Judicial, and Military were represented.

About the White House the patrol of soldiers and sailors guarding the entrance and grounds told the sad story. The night there had been a quiet one. A vigil over the dead had been maintained throughout the watches. Details of cavalrymen, artillerymen, and infantrymen, sailors, and marines were on guard around the grounds.

A sentryman paced back and forth on the portico. Inside the house others did duty. In the East room, sombre with its drawn shades and dim-burning lights, and its heavy black casket in the centre of the room, the guard of honor watched over the dead.

Members of the Loyal Legion and the G. A. R. performed this sad duty, silently giving way to others every two hours. At the head of the casket stood an artilleryman and a sailor. At the foot were a cavalryman and a marine. All were at parade rest. These watchers were relieved every half hour.

THE SECOND STAGE.

The second stage of the late President's journey towards the waiting grave at Canton was begun at 9.20 o'clock. As early as an hour before that time the chief officers of the Government—civil, military, and judicial—began to arrive, and many others whose names are familiar the world over, came singly and in groups to pay their tribute at his official home to the nation's illustrious dead.

ESCORT FORMS.

While the men of note were arriving at the White House, the funeral escort under command of Major General John R. Brooke, was forming immediately in front of the White House Besides regulars of soldiers, sailors and marines, the escort was made up of a detachment of the National Guard, members of the G. A. R., Loyal Legion, and kindred bodies, and civic organizations and representatives of all branches of the National Government, and the Governors of States and their staffs.

The public had been astir early and the streets were crowded with people. Wire cables were strung along the entire route from the White House to the Capitol, and they kept it clear for the funeral procession.

At 9 o'clock a silent command was given and the body-bearers reverently raised the casket on their shoulders. They walked with slow cadenced step and as they appeared at the main door of the White House the marine band stationed opposite the mansion, struck up the President's favorite hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee." There was perfect silence throughout the big mansion, and as the last sad strains of the music died away the throng in the building lifted their bowed heads.

As the hearse moved away, the mourners from the White House entered carriages and followed the body on its journey to the Capitol, where funeral services were to be held.

MRS. McKINLEY NOT THERE.

It was thought early in the morning that Mrs. McKinley might feel strong enough to attend the services there but it was finally decided that it would be imprudent to tax her vitality more than was absolutely necessary, and so she concluded to remain in her room under the immediate care of Dr. Rixey, Mrs. Barber, her sister, and her neice, Miss Barber.

After the carriages in which the diplomats followed a long line of others containing the Justices of the Supreme Court, the Senate and House committees appointed to attend the funeral, the local judiciary, the assistant Secretaries of the several Executive departments, members of the various Government commissions, and official representatives of Insular Governments. The remainder of the procession was composed of a large representation of local bodies of Knights Templar, over a thousand members of the Grand Army of the Republic; the United Confederate Veterans, of the City of Washington, and of Alexandria, Va.; various religious and patriotic societies, including the Sons of the American Revolution, secret societies and labor organizations of the city. Scattered here and there at intervals were representatives of out of town organizations.

The full force of letter carriers of Washington, each with a band of black crepe on his arm, walked to the solemn tread of the dirge. The banners of all organizations were folded and draped with black, and all the marching civilians wore mourning badges and white gloves. Fife and drum corps bands rendered at frequent intervals along the route the President's favorite hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee." The procession occupied one hour and a half in passing a given point.

The funeral services at the Capitol were simple and beautiful. They were in the form prescribed by the Methodist church—two hymns, a prayer, an address, and a benediction.

THE REALM OF SPORT

Says the Orillia Packet: "'Timber' Smith, Jake Gaudaur's old backer, offered to post £250 for a race between George Towns and Eddie Durnan for the world's championship. Tom Sullivan, representing the new champion, declined, stating that Towns would not accept a challenge for the championship on any waters except those of England and Australia. Towns feels that as champion he is entitled to select the course for a contest as Gaudaur did in the recent race. Durnan will have to cross to England if he wants to meet Towns, and it is quite probable that another year may see the champion located at his old home in Australia. Jake Gaudaur and Mr. Smith are both of the opinion that Durnan could defeat Towns. Gaudaur announces his retirement from professional sculling, and will now devote his attention to business.

The excessive catches of black bass which have been made throughout the Province this summer menace the very existence of that delicious species of fish. The Ontario Department of Fisheries has entered into communication with the Dominion authorities to establish more stringent laws regulating the practices of anglers. The powers of the central and local governments have not been clearly defined, and the only way to effectively protect the fish is for both to act in concert. The assistant commissioner, Mr. S. T. Bastedo, contends that the limit of a catch should be reduced to twelve.

Shall it be Badaur now?

The close season for speckled trout began on Monday.

Gaudaur may be among the "has beens," but he was great in his time.

The open season for hares, partridges and black squirrels opened on Monday.

Dr. D. C. King's magnificent Great Dane, "Fordham Cyreno," was successful in carrying off seven prizes at the kennel shows recently held in Toronto and St. Thomas. At the international dog show in connection with the Toronto Exhibition, the animal took three second prizes, in competition with entries from all over the United States in the same class, in novice, open and limit. At the St. Thomas show last week he won four firsts, viz, novice, open, limit, and winners, and also a handsome bronze medal donated by the Canadian Kennel Club. The doctor is justly proud of possessing such a magnificent canine.

BITES OFF HIS WIFE'S NOSE

South Side Politician Commits Deed in Heat of Quarrel.

Chicago, Sept. 18.—The police of the Cottage Grove avenue station are searching for Thomas Shannon, who until recently was supervisor of the south town. Shannon is said to have bitten off his wife's nose in a quarrel early yesterday morning in their apartments at the Hotel Woodruff, Twenty-first street and Wabash avenue After Shannon had committed the alleged assault he fled from the hotel.

According to the police the former supervisor ran east in Twenty-first street. He was pursued by Policeman Cavanaugh of the Cottage Grove avenue station. Cavanaugh said that he at first feared the fugitive intended jumping in the lake. Shannon outdistanced the policeman and although officers searched for him during the day they were unable to find him. Dr. R. T. Van Pelt, the house physician, was called and dressed Mrs. Shannon's wound.

Shannon is well known to south side politicians, with whom he has been associated for a number of years. A year and a half ago Shannon married and for some time has lived with his wife at the Hotel Woodruff. Screams for help attracted the night clerk to the room of the couple and the clerk summoned the police.

THE HUE AND CRY

In the Review of September 9th, appears an editorial headed "Treat all Alike," written with some appearance of literary finish and some proper regard to the meaning of words, and not a mere vulgar slobber of inaccurate phrases. However, the argument, whilst right enough in the abstract, is not strictly speaking, applicable to the present state of affairs. It assumes that the Town of Peterborough is ready to undertake the ownership and management of water-powers and other means of public concern. We, however, hold that a glance at our tax-sheet show the impossibility of such a thing at the present time. If we were convinced that our tax-rate would not go up past all endurance, we should heartily endorse the suggestion—a suggestion which years ago we ourselves made, but which years of wastefulness on the streets and bridges has put beyond the possibility of present realization. We are in the position of the man who is land-poor—we are water poor. It would be folly for us, moreover, to acquire, develop and agree to maintain water-power under conditions such as at present exist, when the means of development and transportation are changing and cheapening every day. Like the street railway, we might find ourselves in a hole. But even so, an attempt at public ownership would be justifiable if we were to be "held up" by the Otonabee Power Company. As a matter of fact, however, we are to get a present of 100 h.p., and a half-loaf is much better than a white elephant. The contentions of the rival companies continue suspicious as before. For the sake of consistency if nothing else it would be well for them to "dry up." If they are so anxious for the public interests let them offer to present us with 100 developed h.p., and we may respect rather than disrespect their sincerity. A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush." What does it avail a man if he has all the water-power on earth if he is to risk his all to develop it? No! we say more power to the Otonabee Power Company and not less. It is also suspicious this herding with promoters and the like. We are largely judged by the water-power company we keep. Verb sap.

A PHYSICIAN'S SACRIFICE

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 17.—Separation from wife and family and isolation from the world await Dr. Louis Knapp, who entered Tuesday on his duties as nurse for Dong Gong, the Chinese leper, with his patient and prisoner as his only companion. Dr. Knapp will live in a three-room frame house now being built near quarantine until the necessity for his services are ended.

Dr. Knapp is without fear of danger to himself and intends to improve his time by making a thorough study of leprosy. "Any disease is incurable until its cure is discovered," said Dr. Knapp. "If a cure for leprosy is ever found it will be found by some one who has devoted years to the study of an actual case that I may at least contribute to such a discovery."

In spite of the warning given by the health department to him as to other applicants for the position, Dr. Knapp believes that he will be able to avoid any possibility of contagion. "Leprosy is only mildly contagious as I understand it," he remarked. "It would be contracted by living in the same room with a patient only by the grossest carelessness in handling articles which had been infected by him. Both these dangers I shall carefully avoid.

"While my chief object in accepting the position of nurse is to study the disease, I do not wish to pose as a willing martyr in the cause of science. I go into this work because I believe that it will be practically without danger."

Dr. Knapp is 40 years old and a graduate of Detroit Medical college. With his wife and four children he lives at 4622 Virginia avenue. The final farewells between the physician and his family were said Tuesday morning before he went to the office of the health department to report for duty.

Dr. Knapp will take his library to quarantine. He expects to devote the greater part of his spare time to medical study. There will be something to do besides study, however, at the house of Dong Gong and his nurse. Dr. Knapp prides himself on his cooking and he will prepare all the food used by himself and his patient.

As Gong was in the laundry business before his malady was discovered, it is presumed that he will do his own washing. Other arrangements will be made for Dr. Knapp's laundry.

Five years or a longer time may elapse before the final stage of the disease and period of suffering is drawn out. With proper care Dong Gong may live ten or fifteen years. His house will cost about $600 and it will cost the city between $1,000 and $1,300 a year to care for him.

Five other applicants sought the position to which Dr. Knapp has been appointed. Assistant Health Commissioner Francis says that he chose Dr. Knapp because of his medical knowledge and because of the high character of his recommendations, which were signed by Dr. Charles H. Hughes and by former Lieutenant Governor E. O. Standard.

TEACHERS CONVENTION.

The Teachers of Peterborough County to Assemble on Oct. 18th and 19th.

The annual convention of the Peterborough County Teachers' Association is set for Friday and Saturday, October 18 and 19, unless Thanksgiving is set for that week also. In that case the convention would be held on October 25 and 26.

The committee have met to arrange details in connection with the programme which promises to be interesting and profitable.

The convention will meet in the Norwood Model School.

It is hoped that every public school teacher in the country will be present. A cordial invitation to attend is also extended to the High School teachers of the county and to the public and Separate school teachers of the town of Peterborough.

Mr. H. C. Kindred, of Havelock, is President, and Mr. M. W. Matchett, of Ashburnham, is secretary of the Association.

Life at Stake

Somewhere in the world life is at stake every minute of the day. Right at our own doors, perhaps, is going on a struggle as grim and fierce as any fight or flight on record. You hear the hollow tearing cough; see the ooze of blood which tells of the wounded lungs; mark the emaciated body and hectic cheek, and know a life is at stake.

The use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has saved many a life in just such a crisis. It cures obstinate, deep-seated coughs, stops the hemorrhage, strengthens "weak" lungs, and restores the emaciated body to its normal weight and strength.

There is no alcohol in the "Discovery," and it is absolutely free from opium, cocaine, and all other narcotics.

"I desire to send you this brief, unsolicited testimonial," writes Rev. Joseph H. Fesperman, Barium Springs, Iredell Co., N. C. "In 1896 one of my daughters was suffering on account of a severe cough, hectic fever, wasting of flesh and other symptoms of diseased lungs. I promptly gave her Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery with gratifying success, and she now enjoys excellent health. This experience caused me to recommend Dr. Pierce's medicines to my neighbors, who, without exception, used them with favorable results."

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only, or if cloth bound volume is desired send 50 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

TO SUPPRESS ANARCHISTS

Buffalo, Sept. 17.—Maj. Richard Sylvester of Washington, as President of the National Association of the Chiefs of Police of the United States and Canada, has taken a decisive step looking to the adoption of a uniform policy throughout the world in dealing with anarchists by addressing a letter to the board of directors of the association and requesting their co-operation in bringing the various heads of the police departments of the world together in convention. The communication follows:

"The National Association of Chiefs of Police of the United States and Canada at the last annual meeting adopted a resolution inviting the heads of foreign police departments to participate in our annual discussions, and the distressing calamity which this country has recently experienced through the assault by an unknown assassin confirms the belief that the import of the resolution should be impressed on foreign officials, with a view of having such of their number present at our next annual meeting as may be able to attend; this with the hope that a closer relationship may be established officially and personally, and that there may be an interchange of opinion as to the best methods to be pursued to eliminate from society such organizations and persons as may be evilly disposed toward institutions of government and those charged with their conduct.

"This is a most vital question and if the laws are inadequate to crush such organizations and punish such characters there should be recommendations from a police viewpoint which would forever prevent the like in this country and aid the authorities abroad

"I trust the members will give this matter close and careful consideration, and offer such suggestions as may aid in accomplishing the desired end, and that the secretary will be authorized to adopt such measures as will bring about a thorough understanding with our foreign friends and to secure their presence and co-operation.

"In the meantime, there should be active efforts made looking to the eradication of these evils and information gathered and disseminated through the National Bureau of Criminal Identification with a view of accomplishing such result."

This proposition will be acted upon by the directors individually by mail. If the board of directors vote to adopt their executive's views, the secretary of the association will be authorized to address a letter to the officials having charge of the police affairs of the European nations requesting their attendance at the convention next year when it is expected some definite steps will be taken effectually to stamp out or destroy the danger arising from anarchistic plots.

MONEY FOR ANARCHISTS.

Chicago, Sept. 17.—Subscriptions for defense of Emma Goldman, Abraham Isaak, Sr., and other anarchists accused of complicity in the plot to assassinate President McKinley are being gathered by a society calling itself the Pioneer Aid and Support association. Already $116 has been collected in subscriptions ranging from 50 cents to $15. An appeal for more money as published in the Arbeiter Zeiting is as follows:

In the name of love of justice and humanity we appeal to the progressive public to lend a helping hand in the most recent occurrances relative to the Isaak family and the others accused of complicity in the attempted assassination of President McKinley. These, as is generally known, have in the most inconsiderate manner been torn from hearth and home and have been thrown into prison.

As we are firmly convinced that all those in Chicago who have been dragged into this affair are absolutely guiltless and as we fear that in the present excitement, a judicial error might be perpetrated which would afterward be generally regretted, we feel called upon to ask for aid for the defendants. This may prove necessary in order to give them competent representation in court.

This anarchist newspaper comments in yesterday's issue also on the incarceration of Emma Goldman. It claims that she is cut off from all communication with friends and that her request for reading matter is not

THE ROYAL VISIT

Quebec, September 16—In the magnificence of the reception extended to the Duke and Duchess of York upon their landing on Canadian soil, the city of Quebec has outdone the historic fetes of 41 years ago, with which she welcomed to Canada, as Prince of Wales, his Majesty King Edward VII. Every possible opportunity offered by the peculiar situation of the old city, for purposes of spectacular display, was taken advantage of; and as the surrounding heights of Levis, Montmorenci, Beauport and the Isle of Orleans lend themselves to no less an extent than the successive elevations upon which the citadel-crowned town is situated, to the brilliant effect of electrical and pyrotechnical display, the night exhibit, at all events, whether viewed from river or fortress was one that no other city could duplicate. When the royal yacht Ophir steamed into port, around the rocky point of Indian Cove, with the war vessels escorting, those on board found the flagship of the Vice-Admiral of the North American Atlantic fleet, H.M.S. Crescent, and three other vessels of the same fleet, awaiting her at anchor, in front of the town. The guns of the citadel belched out a royal salute of welcome of twenty-one guns, and the royal visitors landed at the wharf by a new pontoon and slip, specially constructed for the occasion. The dilapidated part of the old wharf, and of the massive stone storehouses erected upon it in the early part of the last century, were completely concealed by the display of bunting and the richly covered partitions enclosing the fenced-off passageway by which the royal carriages reached the street. Here, as in many other parts of the city where the decorations have been undertaken by the Federal Government, a large number of old-time French flags, bearing the picturesque fleur-de-lis were employed in the decorations. Here, too, and on the King's bastion of the citadel, some 2,000 pennants were utilized.

Immediately upon landing the Duke and Duchess were received and welcomed to the Dominion by His Excellency the Governor-General, who was accompanied by his Cabinet Ministers, representative of the people of Canada. His Excellency and his Ministers withdrew altogether immediately after this formal greeting, so that the remaining reception of the Royal visitors was altogether in the hands of the mayor and citizens, and that there was no occasion for any question of precedence, through the presence together at any public function, at which neither is the host, of the heir presumptive to the throne, and the direct representative of the Crown in this country.

A royal guard of honor, furnished by the 8th Battalion, with band of music, was drawn up on the wharf to receive their Royal Highnesses, and the Royal escort, both upon the occasion of their arrival and upon that of their departure, upon the 18th inst., will be supplied by the Queen's Own Canadian Hussars, under the command of that gallant young officer, Lt.-Col. R. E. W. Turner, D.S.O., who, for his dashing services in South Africa, has been awarded the Victoria Cross, with which he will be invested by the Duke to-morrow, and who will ride opposite the door of the Royal carriage.

This carriage is a handsome road landau, designed for six horses, and bears the Royal arms on the doors in gold. The upholstering is in royal blue cloth, with silk and satin trimmings. The gear of the carriage is in dark sepia, artistically striped in crimson, and the wheels are fitted with rubber tires. It was feared that there might be some trouble in getting the royal horses and carriage up the steep acclivity of Mountain hill. All anxiety on this score was set at rest by the purchase here of the horses to be used on this occasion, which are already well trained to this particular work.

From Mountain hill the route of the royal procession was by Fort and Louis street and the Grande Allee to the Parliament House. A guard of mounted police headed the procession, and the streets were lined by the local troops. Large amounts of bunting decorated the line of the procession, not only at the Archbishop's palace, post office, Chateau Frontenac, court house, militia headquarters, and Garrison Club, but also in front of almost all private residences, while streamers and pennants floated from all the telegraph, telephone and electric light and trolley poles.

ALONG THE ROUTE.

Upon turning off the Grande Allee into Dufferin avenue to reach the main entrance of Parliament House, the procession passed under the magnificent arch, eighty feet high, designed by Mr. E. E. Tache, grandson of Sir E. P. Tache, and the architect of the Parliament Buildings. Constructed by the Local Government, in the Italian style of architecture, it has been painted a very light reddish brown, and lavishly decorated with flags, shields, and the arms of England, the Dominion and the Province of Quebec.

As the Duke and Duchess passed under this arch, and approached the main entrance to the buildings, the band of the guard of honor, drawn up to receive them, struck up the National Anthem, and "God Save the King," was sung by three thousand school children, occupying a platform facing the doorway. The royal carriage was driven under a magnificent pavilion, extending out from the principal entrace, annd flanked by trophies and flags.

Hon. S. N. Parent, Mayor of the city, received their Royal Highnesses as they entered the building, and they were escorted to the chamber of the Legislative Council, which was richly decorated for the occasion with a liberal amount of gold leaf, etc.. Here was assembeld, by special invitation, a representative gathering of citizens, some five hundred in number, and a very brilliant sceno was witnessed by those who were fortunate enough to receive cards. The canopy constructed over the throne rises in the shape of a crown, with an expanding summit, in the form of a cupola. Rich hangings droop from the base of the crown at either side and are caught up at the shoulder.

Mayor Parent presented and read the city's address of welcome. It has been beautifully illuminated and bound. Mr. A. G. Doughty, B. A., Oxon., Lit., Doc., Laval—the artist—having further illustrated it with six beautifully executed views of Quebec and the surroundings.

His Royal Highness replied to the address, and as the royal party drove away from the buildings the school children sang the French-Canadian national song, written by the late Sir George E. Cartier "O Canada, mon pays mes amours."

From the Parliament House the royal visitors drove to their quarters on the citadel, where still another guard of honour was ready to receive them. On their way thither they passed under a very beautiful arch, erected at the foot of the citadel hill near the Garrison Club.

After luncheon at the citadel their Royal Highnesses drove to Laval University, which made great preparations for their reception. His Grace Mgr. Begin, Archbishop of Quebec, surrounded by all the prelates of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Quebec, offered the homage of the bishops and clergy in an address, which was read in both languages. The university was also by the mouth of its rector, Abbe O. E. Mathieu, reiterated the expression of its loyalty to the British Crown, and his Royal Highness then graciously accepted an honorary doctor's degree from the institution, which owes its civil existence to the charter granted by her late Majesty Queen Victoria.

At 7.30 p.m., their Royal Highnesses dined at the citadel with their Excellencies the Governor-General and the Countess of Minto, and after dinner, the royal party proceeded to the King's Bastion, close by the royal quarters on the citadel, and overlooking Dufferin terrace and the lower town the surrounding country and the river below. From this charming site, where a magnificent pavilion is erected for their accommodation, their Royal Highness seen and heard something very much out of the common. Accompanied by several bands of music, five thousand selected voices gave an open-air concert, consisting of French-Canadian and other airs and choruses. At a signal given by a rocket from the citadel, monster bonfires were simultaneously lighted upon the heights of Levis, the Isle of Orleans, Beauport, Montmorenci, etc., and none but those who know the configuration of these surroundings of Quebec can form any idea of the marvellous effect that these fires produce. Thousands of electric lights blazed forth on Dufferin Terrace, of which three thousand belonged to the Chateau Frontenac alone. The Citadel, the University, all the public buildings, and many private edifices all over the city were elaborately decorated. There was very grand pyrotechnical display from the glacis between the citadel and Dufferin Terrace by Paine of London, England, at the cost of the city; while to cap all, there was a grand illumination of the Imperial fleet in the river below, with an exhibition of their searchlights by the different ships. The royal party drove through the city, after viewing the illuminations for a time from the King's Bastion, in order to see the transparencies and other illuminations along the principal streets.

EMMA GOLDMAN TALKS

Chicago, Sept. 17.—From the window of her room in the Harrison street police station annex Emma Goldman saw the flag on the custom-house building flutter down to the half mast, announcing prematurely the death of President McKinley. A smile flashed over her face. The next moment her countenance resumed its immobility.

"Father in heaven, Miss Goldman," said Matron Keegan, "the President is dead. Look at the flag and weep."

"Suppose he is dead," replied the apostle of anarchy. "Thousand die daily and are unwept. Why should I mourn?"

About her the matrons stood with moist eyes. The officers in the room uncovered their heads and gazed at the flag. Prisoners in an adjoining room, to whom the news had been communicated, stood in dejected groups. Emma Goldman alone seemed unmoved.

"You officials mourn as a matter of course," she said. "If I were in your position I might do the same. The President is an ordinary man, however, and I lament his loss no more than that of an ordinary laborer. Would you weep if a common toilor were dead? No. Why, then, should I weep because the President has gone?"

She crossed the room and took her seat in a chair. Slowly she rocked to and fro.

"No, I do not think the nation has sustained a loss," she said a minute later in response to a question. "That means that the head of the government has gone. I am sorry for Mr. McKinley as a man and deplore his death as a human being, but that is as far as my sympathy extends."

"Will you send a message of condolence to the family?"

"Thousands of men die every day. I send no messages to their families. Why should I send one to Mrs. McKinley?"

"I do not think that the death of the President will result in making more stringent the persecution of anarchy. The anarchists had nothing to do with the deed, as I have said repeatedly. It was done by an irresponsible individual. If the case against anarchy was to have been tried fairly if the President survived his wounds it ought to receive the same consideration in the event of his death. If we were entitled to fairness while McKinley lived we are entitled to fairness after his death.

"If I died no one would mourn. I am alone, and no one would care. Why, then, should they make more demonstrations simply because a politician has passed away? If Mr. Isaak were to die I would feel sorry for his family because of their bereavement and that is the way I feel toward the McKinley family. What you call the 'nation's loss' is nothing to me.

"McKinley was a lucky man. That is about as much as I can say regarding his administration. He managed to pull the right wires in politics, but he was not the man of the people. Of all the Presidents he took unto himself the most power. That is a fact that is not denied, even by men of his own party. He was not brilliant; not brilliant as some men who ought to have had the position if the people had a voice.

"I can think of no good thing that he has done during the time he has been in office. As an official he was a politician. We do not need a government head, that is why I am not weeping as are these women. Because Mr. McKinley was a man I am sorry he is dead."

Over at the custom-house building the flag was taken down, news of the President's rally having been received, but the group in the room did not notice the fact. The matrons wept and the officers still stood with heads bent, while the priestess of the anarchists fixed her eyes vacantly on the opposite wall and relapsed into silence.

THE FUNERAL TRAIN

Buffalo, Sept. 16.—The funeral train bearing the remains of the late President McKinley from Buffalo to Washington, where they will lie in state until Thursday next, left the New York Central station at 8.46 this morning.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 16.—Buffalo stirred early this morning, but early as its inhabitants awoke to get a vantage place from which to view the departure of the dead President, police and soldiers had anticipated them. At the Milburn mansion where the family of the dead statesman slept; at the Wilcox mansion, where the new President reposed, and down town, near the City Hall, where the farm of the dead man lay, the guards formed early and kept the streets clear. The sun shone this morning, but the wind blew in strong gusts across the city, dislodging draperies and raising clouds of dust. At the Milburn mansion the servants were astir early, and there was much activity about the house. By half past six o'clock there were transfer wagons and carriages drawn up at the corners near the house, and those within were up and preparing for the journey to Washington.

Mrs. McKinley was not awakened until after 7 o'clock, when Dr. Rixey went to the room with one of her attendants. She had not slept well, despite the fact that she is almost thoroughly exhausted, and that Dr. Rixey had given her a sleeping potion. The first thing she asked was a repetition of the query of the last two days, "When can I see the Major?"

Dr. Rixey told her that they were going to let her see him to-day, and she then allowed her attendants to dress her and at 7.45 was ready for her light breakfast, which she took in her room alone. At 7.30 the baggage was ready, and two truck loads of it moved to the depot. In one wagon was a hospital bed, and it is thought that this was for the use of Mrs. McKinley, in view of the certainty fatigue of the journey, and the possibility of a collapse. Col. Bingham, who was in charge of the arrangements, said that none of the party would go to the City Hall, where the body lay, but that all would go directly to the train, on Mrs. McKinley's account. At 7.35 the Misses Duncan, neices of the late President, were driven to the train to prepare comforts for the stricken widow.

A few minutes later several figures stepped silently out upon the porch and walked down towards the carriages. Mrs. William McKinley, robed in garbs of mourning and supported by Abner McKinley on one side and Dr. Rixey on the other, was the central figure. To the surprise of all, she walked briskly, with her head quite erect, her face hidden by her long black veil. She got into the carriage, with her favorite neice, Miss Barber, Abner McKinley and Dr. Rixey, and they were driven at once to the depot.

President Roosevelt did not arise until 7 o'clock. He dressed quickly, and at 7.30 breakfasted with the family of his host, Mr. Wilcox. Just after 8 had struck, he got into a carriage, accompanied by Mr. Wilcox and his secretary, William Loeb, and drove to the train. A few mounted police followed the carriage, and three or four detectives and secret service men kept near him.

The slow, and stately progress of the President's body from the City Hall to the railroad station afforded the people of Buffalo a last opportunity to do honor to the memory of the lamented Executive.

The train that bore the President from the city where he met his death was a solid Pullman of seven cars, drawn by two crepe draped locomotives 408 and 27. Fifteen minutes before the train was scheduled to leave engine 134 sped out through the yards with orders to precede the train by fifteen minutes and keep the track clear.

At the appointed hour, 7.45, the escort was in perfect readiness. Shortly after from the doors of the city hall came four soldiers, and four sailors, bearing high on their sturdy shoulders the casket containing President McKinley's body. The casket wrapped in an American flag on bearing a sheaf of wheat was pushed gently into the hearse and the doors were closed. The troops came to the front, wheeled into line, and moved down Franklin street. The band took up Chopin's Funeral March, accompanied by the tolling of the church bells. Behind the troops moved the carriages of the officers of the Cabinet. Then came the hearse, and following were the comrades of the Grand Army, with a company of local militia bringing up the rear. The cortege passed into Church street and wound past St. Paul's church into Main street. Down the thoroughfare the procession moved between masses of bare-headed people and on to the depot.

TEST OF COFFIN A SUCCESS

Chicago, Sept. 17.—By an invention of the American Metal Casket Company, at present the strongest foe of the coffin trust, the company claims it was shown yesterday during a test of an airtight metal casket that the human body can be preserved for countless ages. The demonstration and test of the new casket were made at the company's office before an interested crowd of undertakers and others.

The new casket is made of rolled sheet steel. Weighing less than eighty pounds, it was filled with over 800 pounds of water Sunday night, which was allowed to remain in the coffin until the time set for the test. During the interval not a drop of water escaped from the casket.

Undertakers who witnessed the test predicted that it would cause a revolution in the present system of burying persons who had died from contagious diseases. Heretofore it has been impossible to obtain any tight caskets, and consequently it was impossible to make a public funeral of a contagious case. It was also claimed that a body that had been buried for over two years in a metal coffin had been exhumed and found to be in the same condition as it was at the time of the burial.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Brown are booked to leave this morning on an extended trip through Manitoba, the North-West Territories and British Columbia. They will be absent about a month. Mr. Brown, who is quite a sportsman, is going prepared to do his share of hunting. He will stop off at Maple Creek, and visit Mr. R. H. Bradburn, who has a ranch there. Mr. Brown is taking with him several shot guns, a couple of rifles and a pom-pom, so that when he opens fire on the game with his small arms and artillery combined, there will be music in the air, which will mean death to everything in front of the business end of the guns.

STARTS TO KILL ROOSEVELT

Berlin, N. The man was a foreigner. He tried to buy a ticket to Washington, but could not do so, and bought one for New York.

New York, Sept. 17.—City detectives to-night arrested a man answering the description of the one mentioned in the Berlin, N. H. telegram. He gave his name as Charles Miller of Berlin. He is a German. The police, believing him to be insane, sent him to Bellevue hospital. He claims to be ill and says he came to New York to enter a hospital. In his pockets were $55, a small railroad torpedo and some French literature. He said when he got well he would call on President McKinley and Vice President Roosevelt.

BUFFALO.

We should hardly know how to get along without the American Newspaper Directory. We regard it by all odds the most complete and reliable guide that the advertiser can make use of; in fact we use no other.
Buffalo, N. Y., July 24, 1901.
R. V. PIERCE, M.D.,
President World's Dis. Med. Ass'n.

VERMONT.

ADVISOR.

The Advisor accepts the American Newspaper Directory as the standard in newspaper ratings. The obstacles which obstruct its efforts to get true and reliable information are many.

The directory question is one which interests every publisher in the country—nay, the entire world. But in the United States, directories are becoming altogether too numerous. In this, as with other books of reference, it is necessary to have one which may be relied on as being an authority on the matter of newspaper circulations. There can be no question about the fact that at this time, as for many years past, the American Newspaper Directory is that authority. The Advisor is not paid to make this announcement. It makes the statement in the interest of advertisers and publishers because it is true. One thing the advretiser is almost cock-sure of when he refers to the American Newspaper Directory is that the circulation figures he sees therein are not overstated to any great extent. In most other directories they are. Only the publisher himself is to be blamed for no securing a proper rating in that publication, and every advertiser of consequence knows it. Thus the publisher who refuses to furnish a statement places himself under a reasonable suspicion.—The Advisor for June.
New York, June, 1901.

CHICAGO.

Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co's American Newspaper Directory has long since earned the reputation of being the best of its character. It contains the result of patient, expensive and systematic effort to secure all attainable information of interest concerning American newspapers. The work has been honestly done. This will not be questioned by any unprejudiced examiner. The most important question is circulation. In attempting to give this information the Editor of the Directory encounters his most difficult work. It is the aim and necessity of the Directory to give the truth. The American Newspaper Directory is today hte dependence and guide in a greater or less degree, of every large advertiser in the country.—Chicago (Ill.) Daily News.

BATES.

The American Newspaper Directory is the only reliable guide for the advertiser.

No man who advertises can afford to do without it.

What Bradstreet and Dun are to the mercantile world, The American Newspaper Directory is to the world of periodical publications.

A new advertiser will get from the American Newspaper Directory a better idea of the greatness of his country, and the tremendous possibilities in newspaper advertising, than from any other source.

If an advertiser spends only $100 a year he should have the American Newspaper Directory. For his business may grow and his right expenditure of his money become increasingly important. The time to learn how to spend $10,000 a year is before it is spent, otherwise the spending may be disastrous.

Many times the best paper in town costs the advertiser no more than the poorest. The American Newspaper Directory tells which is which.

The paper that was the leader in its town five years ago may lag behind to-day. Even one year may witness astonishing changes. If you are spending money for publicity it is vastly important that you should know where to get the most of it for the price. The American Newspaper Directory gives not only the present circulation rating of every paper in America, but shows their history by quoting past ratings.

The book costs five dollars a copy, and a single reference to it may readily save or make many times its cost.

All newspaper directories but one are erroneously optimistic about circulations. The American Newspaper Directory may occasionally err on the other side, but that makes it all the safer for the advertiser.

My advertising experience began in 1885, and one of the first things I did was to buy a copy of the American Newspaper Directory.

For sixteen years Rowell's "The American Newspaper Directory" has had a place of honor and usefulness on my desk

Many a publisher is ready to prove by other directories that "Rowell's is wrong." but few indeed can be induced to prove it by opening their circulation books to the advertiser.

Among publishers who are not willing that their real circulations be known, it is the best hated book in print The moral is not far to find.
CHARLES AUSTIN BATES.
New York, June 24, 1901.

PABST.

If the improvement of the American Newspaper Directory continues in the future as it has during the past twenty years I do not think I shall live long enough to see any other directory take its place. There will, however, be the usual crop of directories just as every other good thing is imitated Your long years of experience in dealing with evasive circulation reports have most admirably fitted you for placing a proper valuation upon such statements. Advertisers have come to know that the Rowell estimates are nearer the proper figure than can otherwise be obtained. The American Newspaper Directory is therefore indispensable in every well regulated advertising department. Lines are being more tightly drawn every day; it is difficult to collect for twenty thousand when you print only eight. If the advertiser were buying barley he would not accept three pecks for a bushel, although the quality might at all times be open for discussion.

The American Newspaper Directory is the guide and companion of the advertising man, and it is to the interest of all concerned to help perfect it, support it, and hurrah for it.

SAPOLIO.

A growing need created it—the advertising agency system. One of the earliest an dmost successful workers, Geo. P. Rowell, is still in the field. He originated methods. Others follow his publication of a list of all the papers—the American Newspaper Directory. He has never ceased to love it, and labor for it. Soon out of the gross stupidity of imitation, it became a rule that every agency down to those of Oshkosh or Oklahoma must issue its own directory. An awful waste, for not more than one out of ten was worth shelf room. If the National Association of Advertising Agents could agree long enough to buy Mr. Rowell's Directory, publish it officially and drop all the others, it would accomplish something.

Advertising Manager for Sapolio.

WASHINGTON.

Every page of the American Newspaper Directory breathes the desire of its publishers that it shall be absolutely correct in every statement it makes.

SOUTHERN.

We subscribe to and pay cash for the American Newspaper Directory, and find it of great value in our advertising department. We have 6,89. miles of railway, extending from Washington, D. C., all over the South, and in advertising this system we use more than 1,000 publications, and in selecting this list we find that we get a correct idea of circulation from this Directory that can not be obtained from any other similar publication. We receive other newspapr directories gratis, but the fact that we pay cash for this one in addition shows that we can not place the same dependence upon the "free list,"

We thoroughly appreciate the careful manner in which this Directory is compiled.
Washington, D. C., Sept. 13, 1900.
JOS. H. HANNEN,
Adv. Dept. Southern Railway.

I am looking forward to receiving the new edition with a great deal of anticipation, as, although the American Newspaper Directory seemed to have reached a high state of perfection several years ago, there is always something new and of value in each succeeding edition. It is regarded as the standard authority with the Southern Railway.
S. H. HARDWICK,
General Passenger Agent,
Washington, D. C., May 21, 1901.

BALTIMORE.

We have used the American Newspaper Directory for many years and find it more valuable to us than any other similar publication. Much of the information given we cannot obtain in any other way. The book is not only a great help, but a necessity to our business, and we think its way of stating circulations is the ideal one.

KIDNEY TROUBLE FOR YEARS

There are many women here in Peterboro suffering from backache and wrong action of the kidneys who are attributing their ill health and misery to some form of "female complaint." Kidney trouble is undermining the health, and sapping the strength, making the back ache and the head ache, bringing the feelings of tiredness and listlessness, dragging pains in the loins and all those other conditions of wretchedness that are undoubtedly produced by poisons circulating in the blood instead of being carried off by the natural channels.

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are the modern specific for all forms of Kidney trouble and all conditions of ill health arising therefrom. Just read what Mrs. Armstrong, Rubidge street, this city, has to say about them:—"For many years I have had trouble with my kidneys, and pain across my back. I have used all kinds of medicines in the past without any good results. I heard of the many cures that Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets were making, and got a bottle, and the use of the Tablets has made it possible for me to again attend to my household duties. I am glad to recommend them to others as certain to do good."

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Tablets are 50 cents a box at all druggists. The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto, Ont

—Marks Bros.' advance agent was in town yesterday completing arrangements for the appearance of that Company here We hope the show will be more liberal than the agent appears to be If it is not, it might be a good one to steer clear of.

—Lindsay Post,—Last Friday evening after leaving the station here, the express train for Port Hope struck a cow that had wandered onto the track at Sioux-st. Fortunately the speed was not great and the animal was pushed along the rails until the train could be brought to a standstill. Passengers gazed at the steep embankment a little further on and shuddered.

Are the Dragoons Disbanded?

The action of the Militia Department in issuing orders for the return of all the saddlery and other equipment of "C" Squadron, 3rd Dragoons, to Ottawa, is causing considerable discussion in local military circles. The Peterborough squadron were under orders to proceed to Toronto to take part in the welcome to the Duke and Duchess of York, and had everything in readiness for the trip, when, like a thunderbolt from a clear sky, orders cancelling the trip were received, and the entire equipment of "C" Squadron was shipped to departmental stores at the Capital. No reason for the action is assigned, and the disappointment of the cavalry men can easily be imagined.

Plank vs. Concrete.

The following extract from the report of the last meeting of Toronto City Council may have escaped the eyes of our aldermen, and will certainly interest many of our citizens, as it refers to a matter regarding which some have expressed very decided opinions:

The batch of local improvements recommended by the Works Committee was approved, excepting the plank sidewalks.

"Talking into account the life of each, is a concrete or a plank sidewalk the cheaper?" Ald. Sheppard asked the Engineer.

"Concrete is the cheaper," said the Engineer.

Ald. Sheppard—"Why don't you recommend concrete in local improvements initiated by the department?" The City Engineer said the Works Department had decided to lay concrete within a certain area, and outside of that plank walks were permissive.

The board will recommend the Works Committee to consider the advisability of laying concrete walks costs 33 cents per foot, and a five-foot concrete walk 45 cents. The former may last six years and the latter 20 years. A wooden walk has to be paid for in three years; a concrete cement walk in ten years

ANARCHISTS AS MAD MEN

The Minister From Austria Would Shut Them up in Hospitals.

Vienna, Sept. 18.—Dr. Hengelmueller, Austrian minister to the United States, in an interview today, said he doubted the efficacy of direct measures for the repression of anarchism. He was disposed to approve of a plan to proceed like England in the various attempts on Victoria's life, that is, without giving the offenders a public trial, to shut them up for life in a mad house. This deprived them of becoming objects of public notice. He believed that American public opinion would demand more stringent measures against foreign immigration.

TRIES TWICE.

And Proved the Proposition.

"I wish to give my experience with coffee for the benefit of other people. I used coffee for several years and was a terrible sufferer from dyspepsia. The doctor told me not to use coffee or tea and put me on a light diet, and I felt better.

Then I commenced to drink coffee again and had the same trouble come on.

One day I told a friend about it, who said if I would stop drinking coffee altogether I would feel better, and advised me to use Postum Food Coffee in its place.

I tried the Postum but did not like it, so I told him about it and he said I didn't cook it right, this is, didn't boil it enough and that I should use cream instead of milk, and to make sure I would use it, he sent a package to the house.

After I used that package, I would have no more coffee in the house. Now I don't know what it is to have dyspepsia and I can eat anything. I also give Postum to my two children and they are the healthiest children you could find any where. The youngest is a boy 13 months old and we have been giving him Postum for seven months, three times a day. He weighs 30 pounds, and I know that Postum is what keeps both of them so healthy.

I think all people who have dyspepsia get it from coffee drinking. Yours truly." Mrs. Jno. Stringer, 29 S. Florida Ave., Atlantic City, N. J.

SANG AND PRAYED.

How a Chicago Crowd Received the News of the President's Death.

Chicago, Sept. 18.—The hymn, "Nearer, My God, to Thee," was sung by the throng in front of one of the newspaper offices when the announcement was made that President McKinley was dead.

When the singing of the hymn ceased there was a pause. Many were in tears. A college student then bared his head and prayed aloud. The great crowd listened, and when the student had ceased someone started to sing "America," the crowd joining. Then all quietly dispersed.

The Latest McKinley Pictures

"If 'twere done, when 'tis done, then 'twere well it were done quickly." The remark fits many acts; especially a newspaper illustration. The Illustrated Buffalo Express, experienced and reliable in this field, "knocked the spots" off all its would-be competitors in picturing the McKinley tragedy. The President was shot on Friday, September 6th. ON THE FOLLOWING SUNDAY THE EXPRESS HAD THREE PAGES OF PHOTOGRAPHIC ILLUSTRATIONS bearing on the subject; and though done so quickly, no better views have yet appeared except in The Express of the following week, which broke its own record of enterprise and excellence with its remarkable McKinley Souvenir number. When The Express goes at a thing it not only does it quickly, but does it so well that the other fellows look like 30 cents.

Sure Cure For Anarchy.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—In their apparent eagerness to suppress such acts as that committed by the assassin of President McKinley many persons are clamoring for the eviction of all anarchists from the United States. While this remedy looks very plausible on the surface, its advocates little realize what a king erous proposition it really is, and, further, how utterly it would fail of its purpose.

It is both right and proper to punish aggression, but it is an entirely different matter to punish persons on account of their opinions. Such action would be a deadly blow to the fundamental principles of a free government, which guarantees freedom of thought and speech to all its citizens.

Let those who think that such a remedy would be effective cast an eye on Russia. There is a country under the iron rule of gag law and it is a notorious fact that there are perhaps more anarchists, social dissenters and plotters there than anywhere else on the earth, and where is the ruler who is more afraid of his life or guards it more carefully than the czar? Restrictive measures of this nature do more harm than good.

With rare exception men are what their environment has made them. Involuntary idleness and starvation wages are the beginning of anarchy, because they result in poverty. Poverty naturally leads on to vice and crime. Involuntary idleness would not exist if the system that encourages monopoly were abolished. Land is the source of wealth, and when it is monopolized labor and capital are prevented from remunerative employment. It is morally wrong for some people to be allowed by law to withhold valuable land from use or to levy tribute on others in return for permission to exercise their Godgiven right to earn a living.

People are slowly awakening to their truth, and, after awhile, when they see how simply and easily it can be applied by means of the "single tax" on land values, we will throw off the oppressive burden and the anarchists will become peaceable, contented citizens.

M. R. EVANS

The Proposed New Parish.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—The action of the majority of the vestrymen of All Saints' church in petitioning the Bishop to secede from the parent congregation of St. John's is a matter to be regretted by everyone in Peterborough who has the interests of the Church of England at heart. When we consider the self-sacrificing labors of the clergy and laity of St. John's in the past, in establishing the mission on a firm basis, keeping it going sometimes under great difficulties, this premature wish to cut loose from the older body smacks somewhat of ingratitude. Separation must needs come some day, in a growing town like Peterborough, but considering the present somewhat precarious condition of affairs, the longer the congregation have the older congregation to fall back on, the better. The Bishop, if I mistake not, will not readily agree to such a rash and ill-timed move.

Death of a Pioneer.

The death was reported last night of Mr. Thomas Henry, one of the pioneers of Peterborough, and the father of Mr. N. L. Henry. The deceased was born in Ireland 89 years ago, and it is over sixty years since he came to the county of Peterborough. He first lived in Otonabee and later came to town. Death was due to the weakness of old age.

Shot a Hawk.

Fenelon Falls Gazette: One day last week, Mr. Judson DeCew, while up Burnt River, shot a fish-hawk, which he brought to the Falls and gave to Mr. Joseph Heard, who sent it to Bobcaygeon to be stuffed and mounted. The bird was so big, measuring nearly four feet from tip to tip of its extended wings, that Mr. DeCew and Mr. John Jones, who was with him, thought it was an eagle until they got it out of the water and examined it.

Heart relief in half an hour.—A lady in New York State, writing of her cure by Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart, says: "I feel like one brought back from the dead, so great was my suffering from heart trouble and so almost miraculous my recovery through the agency of this powerful treatment. I owe my life to it."—19

The Garden Party.

The garden party, which was to have been given in the beautiful grounds of St John's Church, last night, took place in the Y.M.C.A. building, and was liberally patronized. The proceeds were in aid of the funds of the Y. W. C. A.

SILENT ON COURT SCANDAL

Kaiser and Royalty Dumb on Marriage of Late Empress.

Berlin, Sept. 18.—There are no means of getting confirmation of the reiterated statement that the late Empress Frederick had contracted a morganatic alliance with her chamberlain, Baron Seckendorf. In court circles the report is scouted, but it would have been quite easy for a ceremony to be performed by the empress' domestic chaplain without any notification to the authorities or any entry in the public register.

The empress' will is being kept secret, so it is impossible to ascertain the truth of the report that she bequeathed Baron Seckendorf $600,000. The silence of the kaiser in the face of the presistent rumors of the marriage certainly give color to the report.

NOT A HOUSE RULER.

And For That Reason The City Council of Cork Threw McKinley.

Cork, Sept. 17.—At to-day's meeting of the Common Council of Cork, a resolution of sympathy with President McKinley was proposed by Sir John Scott, but it had to be withdrawn because Ald. Cave, a labor member, opposed it, declaring that Mr. McKinley was no friend of Ireland, but a friend of Great Britain.

OMEMEE.

The Anglican church, under the management of Mr. Rutherford, is showing up well.

Mr. A. Moore, of Peterborough, and his gang of expert shinglers, are surprising our local tradesmen.

Rev. Mr. Langfeldt is making preparations to move to Peterborough. He preached his farewell sermon on Sunday last, but will be here with Prof. Clarke, of Trinity University, at the reopening early in October.

Our Emily Township and Village show will be held on the 2nd and 3rd of October, and promises to be very attractive this year. There are a large number of valuable prizes offered. Many from here will attend the Peterborough fair.

The funeral of the late George Ivory, telegraph operator, took place on Friday last, to the Emily cemetery. The deceased was educated at Omemee High School. He left here for Peterborough and worked in Chicago and New York, being one of the most expert operators on the continent.

Mr. Jas. Graham, proprietor of the Commercial House, has his house filled with travellers and boarders continually. While Mr. W. Clancy is doing a nice, quiet business, both hotels are well patronized by Peterborough friends.

De Wet Promises to Make Things Decidely Interesting for the British.

A SAVAGE WAR OF EXTERMINATION NOW ON.

The Closing Out of Supplies will Speedily End the Trouble, However—Kitchener to Make a Big Spurt at Once.

London, Sept. 19

Much anxiety exists as to the development of the new system of hostilities. The English taxpayer is compelled to spend £40.00 a week on maintaining the wives and families of the men who are engaged in blowing up trains, shooting women and children and murdering unarmed Kaffirs. The reprisals threatened by De Wet are probably no more than will be carried out by the Boers. It is believed by many old colonists now in this country that the war is about to become a war of extermination, and that the reputation for "magnanimity" which our War Office are so desirous of establishing will have to be exchanged for a resolve to beat the Boers in the field. This "magnanimity" has taken curious forms. The following is the diet of the Boer concentration camp at Port Elizabeth: Breakfast consists of porridge and milk, bread and butter, with coffee; there is served for dinner soup, meat, two kinds of vegetables and pudding; tea generally consists of bread and butter, with either jam or sardines. All the food is cooked for the Boer women. In contrast to this treatment of the Boers by the English, the English loyalists assembled in camp on the beach at East London, seventy miles farther east, have not received a penny from the Government. They are dependent upon charity, and the wives and children of the loyalists who have lost their all, and in many cases their lives, fare more hardly and live more roughly than the wives and children of their enemies. The 5000 Boer prisoners in Ceylon, located in a delightful climate, are said to be remarkably "fit." Within the Boer enclosure there are Boer curiosity shops, bakeries and wood carvers' huts, where little purchases can be made. In the centre of the camp there stands a big hut, which is used as a theatre, with a stage at one end, and piano on it. There is also an open space of ground, where football and cricket are played. All the necessary gear for these sports is provided, and a lawn tennis court with net, racquets and balls is not forgotten. The soldier who keeps guard over this part of the enclosure must surely sometimes wonder that a grateful country does not do a little more for him, too. The common sense of the English people is roused against the absurdity of the situation, and the coming autumn months are certain to witness a sharp division of opinion on the subject of the war.

TO STOP SUPPLIES.

The proposed action of England in denying the fighting burghers the rights of belligerents, will have a decidedly wholesome effect, as it will enable Britain to stop the smuggling of supplies through Portuguese territory.

PRO-BOER APPEAL.

A leading Baptist minister, Dr. Clifford, has succeeded in obtaining the signatures of 843 Nonconformist ministers, to a colorless peace manifesto, published on August 13. The basis of this manifesto is (a) the offer of an amnesty as large and as far reaching as possible; (b) the grant of autonomy to the two contending States, with the limitations incident to the federalizing of South Africa on Australian or Canadian lines, and (c) the gift of compensation to those who have suffered by the war. Dr. Clifford declares on his own account that the Boers are "fighting for life and liberty, for home and sheer existence." Every child in South Africa and everybody over 16 in Great Britain and the colonies knows that this is untrue. Lord Kitchener's conversation with Botha at Middleburg on February 28, and reported to Mr. Brodrick in the despatch of March 20, 1901, gave to the Boers of peace so generous that there is no parallel in history for them. Amnesty, the retention of their language, and capital to restock their farms, with local government as soon as possible, were refused.

There was a time when the Nonconformists of England would have declined to be made instruments of political firebrands of the type of Dr. Clifford. In the days of Dr. Binney, Dr. Dale, of the Hon. and Rev. Baptist Noel, the Free Churches would have refused to be made party to the prolongation of a war to the detriment of their own country and of their own people. The 843 ministers are inferentially pledged by Dr. Clifford to pro-Boerism. This is a political fact of the highest importance, and already the utter baselessness of Dr. Clifford's assumption is being shown. If the war is to be brought to an end, the weakness of the Government must be remedied by the definite instructions of the people to pursue it with greater vigor, to drop their "magnanimity" and to deal with murderers and thieves in South Africa as murderers and thieves are dealt with at Newgate.

RADICAL MEASURES URGED.

Dr. Clifford and his following are the allies of the enemies of the empire, and although many of those who find themselves in the same galley as Dr. Clifford were doubtless ignorant of the use that would be made of their support, the fact remains that, as in the navy, as in the case of Waima, and as in a hundred other cases, it is found necessary for the public at large to insist on the Government bringing the war to an end. We know that this cannot be done by proclamations, or by the use of ink or smooth words. It is suggested by persons of influence that for every week that the war continues after September 15 the Boer prisoners ought to be retained for a year, at the cost of the two conquered colonies; that every train ought to carry twelve Boer hostages, who should be shot the instant the train is fired upon. The precedent followed by the Germans in France in 1871, as expressed by General von der Tann's proclamation, should be followed. It was as follows:

"The railways utilized by German troops are not to be injured.

"Every person injuring a railway or a part of a railway shall be punished by death.

"The communes to which persons guilty of injuring the railways belong, as also those of the territory where the injury takes place, shall be responsible for a fine equal in amount to their annual liability for State taxes.

"The Mayors are required to establish watchmen to look after the railways on their property in order to save the infliction of a fine upon their communes."

Sherman's march through Georgia continues to be studied in detail as a most convenient precedent for the policy of extermination.

CARRIE SMASHED OTTAWA GLASS

Kansas Hatchet Wielder Causes Excitement at the Capital.

SHE BROKE BAR ROOM MIRROR

Ottawa, Sept. 18. — Carrie Nation prefaced her lecture last night with a window-smashing trip about the city. At five o'clock she started down Sparks street, attired in a black dress with long linen cloak and poke bonnet. She carried a hatchet. A crowd followed her into the Globe hotel.

"You should be in better business," she said to the silent bartender, who kept looking at the hatchet.

"Don't you know you are a home smasher?" asked Mrs. Nation. "I don't want to hurt you, but I am going to show you that I don't approve of your business. I'm going to smash that looking-glass," said Mrs. Nation, pointing at a large mirror behind the bar.

"Don't you do it," said the barkeeper.

"Yes, I will," said Mrs. Nation.

"You'll go to jail if you do."

"No I won't, so there." Then she threw the hatchet and the glass scattered in a hundred pieces.

The crowd cheered, and when the noise subsided Mrs. Nation said, "Give me back my hatchet." The barkeeper refused, but Mrs. Nation said she would make him, and to get rid of the lady she was given the hatchet.

She next went down to the Hub hotel on Sussex street, lectured the bartender about selling liquor and then smashed a number of bottles with her hatchet. Two policemen put her out of the hotel and took her uptown to the Russel.

Ormes Hall was crowded at night to hear Carrie denounce rumsellers and their methods.

FIRED AT ANDREW JACKSON

An Attempt Made to Assassinate "Old Hickory."

Washington, Sept. 19.—The shooting of President McKinley has recalled an incident in the life of President Andrew Jackson, which historians have not recordered. An attempt was made on the life of President Jackson on January 30, 1835, by an English house painter named Lawrence. President Jackson on that day had gone to the House of Representatives to participate in funeral services held in honor of a deceased representative from South Carolina.

After the customary solemnities a procession was formed to escort the body to the place of interment. President Jackson walked near the head of the procession in company with Mr. Woodbury and Mr. Dickerson. The head of the conclave had just crossed the Capitol rotunda and was about to emerge upon the portico when Lawrence stepped from the crowd and when within a distance of eight feet from the President presented a pistol at Jackson's breast and pulled the trigger. The cap exploded, but for some reason the powder failed to ignite. Lawrence dropped the revolver to the ground, and, producing another which he had concealed beneath his cloak, again pulled the trigger. The second weapon also missed fire.

The President, as soon as he preceived the intent of the assassin, rushed furiously at him, with up-raised cane to fell him to the earth, but before he reached Lawrence, Lieutenant Gedney, a naval officer, had struck Lawrence down. The President immediately entered a carriage, and was driven to the White House.

Lawrence was at once taken to jail, wehre his identity was learned, together with the fact that he was insane. He had been for a long time without work, and having heard that General Jackson was ruining the country, conceived the idea of assassinating him. It was several days before President Jackson could be convinced that the attempt to murder him had not been at the instance of a coterie of his political enemies.

Lawrence was never punished. He was permanently confined in an insane asylum where he died.

BELFAST SECURE AGAINST BOERS

Commando Makes Futile Attempt to Capture This Important Post

THE U. S. CONSUL IS SUSPECTED

London, Sept. 18.—A despatch from Lord Kitchener at Pretoria, dated yesterday, announces that since September 9, 47 Boers have been killed, 7 wounded and 51 captured. In addition to these one hundred and thirty-four Boers have quietly surrendered.

A commando of Boers attacked Belfast on the Delagoa Bay railroad last Sunday evening. They were easily repulsed by the defending force.

Several columns have returned to this place to refit. The situation in Cape Colony is unchanged.

OBJECTED TO COURT-MARTIAL.

Pretoria, Sept. 17.—The counsel for the prisoner Broechmans, at present on trial at Johannesburg for treason, objected to the jurisdiction of a military court-martial while civil courts are in existence, but the objection was not sustained. Broechmans was once a colleague of Dr. Krause, who is now on trial in England for espionage. A number of incriminating documents found in the prisoner's house are the basis of the charge laid. The documents also develop the fact that correspondence with the Boers was exchanged through the American Consul at The Hague.

The British Government, though taking cognizance of the evidence, will not bring it to the attention of the United States Government, leaving Washington to take action if necessary.

THE STUBBORN BOER.

Pretoria, Sept. 17. — Although the day offered the last chance for the Boers to surrender, under the recent proclamation of Lord Kitchener, no news of any important surrenders has been received.

BRITISH PRO-BOERS BLAMED.

Pretoria, Sept. 17.—One of the officials of the late Boer Government, at present in this city, announced last night that one of the chief means of holding the Boers together was the pro-Boer speeches of the English statesmen. His opinion that these opinions were the foundation of Boer hopes had been corroborated during the past fortnight.

BOERS WILL MIGRATE.

It is learned that the final plan of the Boers is to make for the Demaraland border and accept the offer of the German Government to sell them land at fourpence an acre. The only stipulations made by the Germans to which the Boers object are that they (the Boers) shall be liable to two years' military service, and that their children must be educated in German. This matter is a subject of talk in the refugee camps. Some estimate that 20,000 families will go.

A representative of the Boers called at the office of the American consul at Johannesburg recently to ascertain under what conditions the burghers could secure property in the United States.

A PRETTY WEDDING.

The following, taken from the Mail and Empire, refers to the marriage of Miss Edith Perry, a cousin of Mr. Frank Perry, and Miss Perry, teacher, of town.

At 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, in the Church of the Redeemer, the marriage took place of Miss Edith Perry, eldest daughter of Mr. Robert D. Perry, and Mr. Geofrey Teignmouth Clarkson, son of Mr. E. R. C. Clarkson. Only the immediate relatives of the bride and bridegroom were bidden to the wedding, owing to recent bereavements in both families. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Arthur Baldwin, assisted by Rev. Septimus Jones. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a rich gown of white Duchesse satin, made in a simple fashion. The transparent yoke and sleeves were of white chiffon, while the only decoration was a fichu of real lace, which had adorned the wedding dress of the bride's mother. Her veil of tulle was caught in place with orange blossoms, and her bouquet was of white roses, with showers of lily of the valley. The maid of honor was Miss Gertrude Perry, sister of the bride, and the bridesmaids, Miss Mary and Miss Olive Clarkson. The two little flower girls were Miss Kathleen Perry and Miss Aldyth Clarkson. Mr. Fred Clarkson was best man, and the ushers were Mr. Frank Perry and Mr. Harry Lambe. A reception was held at the home of the bride's father, 11 Walmer Road, after the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Clarkson left by the evening boat for the Lower Provinces, and will spend their honeymoon on the Saguenay. On their return they will take up their residence in their new house at 44 Walmer Road.

PROPERTY OWNER'S ORGANIZE.

An Association Likely to be Formed in Town Soon.

The Times is informed that a Property Owners Association is soon to be formed in town, the object being, we understand, to secure a more economical era in the administration of our local affairs.

It is proposed, for instance, to bring men out for the Council who will go in pledged in a certain line of conduct in regard to civic matters. It is hoped in this way that something may be accomplished that will put a stop to the shameful waste that has been going on in the past, especially in regard to the streets. It is a move in the right direction, and The Times will give all the support it can.

BURLEIGH POWER FOR THE PEOPLE

Why Should It Go Into the Hands of Speculators?

THE BOARD OF TRADE.

Should Take Action in Regard to the Matter Without Delay

With a View to Keeping the Power from These Dams from Falling Into the Hand of Speculators,—the Duty of The Hour.

The discussion of the lease of the Government Dam, or dam No. 5, to a company, which has brought it directly under contribution for power purposes, has stirred up the people to a consideration of franchises in general. Industrial power must not pass into the hands of mere speculators. The lease of the Government Dam was brought about solely by the inauguration of the Cordage factory scheme. It is therefore a legitimate lease, and one the people should consider favourably. Moreover, there is no spirit of monopoly manifest with regard to the surplus power of that dam. The town gets 400 h.p., free. However, we are glad to see that the Board of Trade,—which is the only popular assembly in town where every ratepayer may, if he likes, have his say, is taking it up. It should be the means of threshing the wheat from the chaff.

A great difficulty, however, in all these things is the persistent intrusion of political scheming. Politics—not capitalism—is the real curse of Canada. The country is bought and sold every day by scheming politicians, and by those willing to sell their own franchise for a paltry bribe. These two, form the upper and nether millstones, between which honest labour is crushed.

Is it not very strange that the public has not applied to the Government for a lease of the Burleigh Dam? Why should a lot of capitalists be allowed to buy this up for a paltry pittance to exact perhaps 1000 per cent dividend out of the public? The next move will be that when a company comes to town and wants power it will ask the town to present them with it, bought by the town from the Burleigh Falls Company. This Burleigh Falls business must be looked into promptly. We are being betrayed. However, with the latest appliances. Burleigh Falls power may be peddled out to rival centres, and Peterborough will see other places arise and make bows of sarcastic acknowledgement to the town that did not know a good thing when it had it. We seem to have very few men able and willing to serve the people. Are there no patriots—men anxious for the public's good? Let it be our resolve in future to see that power shall be sold to those only who propose to utilize it—that, unlike land, it shall not be cornered by the greedy speculator. Let us see that bribery shall be put a sudden stop to, so that honest men may have a chance of being elected to the parliaments of our country. Remember that we are bought and sold every day under our very noses by the very men who jolly us into believing that the people run everything. The day is coming, however, when we shall cease to be between the devil and the deep sea. We shall emerge from the darkness of our supineness and ignorance, and laugh to scorn the men whom we now worship. When bribery is abolished the hand of the political schemer will have to turn to a more honest employment, and the solid thought of the people will find a better outlet than through the the nozzle of the beer-pump, and all that is included in that name. Political trickery has bred a species of mutual distrust. Men are disinclined to believe in the independence and honesty of each other. This tide of rottenness is carrying us to perdition. Vanity and selfconceit have become the sails of our ship of state. Can the country pull through till we learn better ways? That is the searching question of every patriot. A new country, like a mining camp, is more or less a scene of disorder and crime—a prey to the plunderer and a sacrifice to evil dealing. Through years of civilizing contact with the outer world, a new condition arises, and a gradual improvement becomes noticeable. That is why we are hoping—ever hoping—for better things. God grant that they may come.

What Catarrhozone is And is Not.

Catarrhozone is not a wash. You cannot force liquids into the lungs. It is an ointment to be snuffed up the nostrils. Ointments are useless and disgusting. Nor is it a powder to be blown up the nostrils and still further irritate the already congested and irritated membrane. It is simply balsamic and healing substances breathed into the lungs and throat. Cures of course. That is nature's way of curing, and nature's way is the only way. If you suffer from disease of the throat lungs nasal passages, do not neglect to test Catarrhozone. Two sizes at all druggists, 25c. and $1.00. Guaranteed to cure Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis and Hay Fever, or your money back.

SUDDEN DEATH OF MR. GEORGE MUNRO

Seized With Heart Failure at Wm Hamilton's Residence.

HE DIES WITHIN FIFTEEN MINUTES

The entire community will be shocked and grieved to learn of the death of Mr. George Munro, President of the William Hamilton Mfg. Co., which occurred with startling suddeness last night about 10.30 o'clock. The deceased gentleman had been spending the evening at the home of his father-in-law, Mr. Wm. Hamilton, and appeared to be in his usual good health. During the evening, Mr. Munro complained of feeling unwell and being in pain, and started for his own residence, a distance of about two hundred yards away. Before reaching it, however, he had to be assisted to walk, and died about fifteen minutes after getting into the house. Heart trouble is supposed to have been the cause of death. Mr. Munro had been a member of the William Hamilton firm for many years and to his untiring industry, combined with rare business foresight, the phenomenal success of this well known manufactory can be largely ascribed.

Mr. Munro was a member of St Paul's Presbyterian Church, and in him the congregation sustains a severe loss. A man of exemplary character, he will long be remembered for his many good works.

He was about 55 years of age, and leaves a wife, three sons and one daughter, to mourn the loss of an affectionate husband and father. The family have the heartfelt sympathy of the entire community in their sudden bereavement.

No arrangements have as yet been made for the funeral, but will be published in to-morrow's Times.

R. Kelly; Value of proper church equipment," Rev. Mr. Duncan; "Every member a helper," Rev. J. T. Marshall. Mr. Marshall introduced a resolution of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Bastow, and to the friends by whom the members of the association were entertained during their visit.

THE REALM OF SPORT

LACROSSE.

The Vaticans are arranging for a game with the Rochester Rangers for Saturday afternoon.

The last of the intermediate semifinals of the Canadian Lacrosse Association was played in Beaverton on Tuesday between the Ontarios of Port Hope and the Checkers of Beaverton. The game resulted in a draw, the score being 3 to 3, but as Port Hope won their home game by 5 to 4, this gives them the best of the series. F. C. Waghorne, of Toronto, officiated as referee, and while no doubt he acted to the best of his ability, there were many stages of the game in which he should have had the players more in hand. In the first half especially he failed to enforce the rules, allowing the Port Hope team, who were much heavier than their opponents, to indulge in a great deal of rough play. Early in the game Cane, one of Beaverton's fastest players, was struck on the face by a Port Hope player, and his cheek bone was broken. Port Hope will next play the winners of the Stratford-Owen Sound match, which will probably come off some time this week.

CYCLING.

Jimmy Michael, of Wales, easily defeated Harry Elkes, of Glen Falls, N. Y., in a 15-mile motor-paced bicycle race on the indoor track at Madison Square Garden on Monday night. Michael won by three and a half laps, and in doing so broke all indoor world's records up to 2 miles. Time, 24 minutes, 43 seconds. The first mile was covered in 1.33 1-5, and the time at the end of the second mile was 3 minutes, 8 4-5 seconds.

PRESIDENTS FUNERAL CAR MOVES TOWARDS CANTON

Thousands of People Reverently Uncover as It Passes Along the Railway.

50,000 CITIZENS AT THE PITTSBURG STATION

Removal of the Remains From the Capitol to the Railway Station and the Commencement of the Journey

Pittsburg, Sept. 18.—Daylight was dawning as the train bearing the remains of President McKinley arrived at Altoona, at the foot of the eastern slope of the Alleghanies. Through the semi-darkness as the forms of many people could be seen strung along the tracks. Outside the depot a throng of three or four thousand people surged up to the train. Many must have been there all night and others had waited for hours, as the train had been originally scheduled to reach that point at 3.20 a.m. Extra engines were coupled on here and the train was pulled laboriously up the mountains. The morning was raw, foggy, and cheerless. Mountaineers with axes on their shoulders came down from the steep slopes to pay their homage with uncovered heads.

Passing the summit at Cresson the descent began. Half the population of Johnstown, the first of the great steel manufacturing centres through which the train was now to pass on its way to the martyred President's home, was at the track and a company of local militia stood drawn up at attention. Men, women and children were there. Miners with lamps in their caps had rushed forth from the tunnels at the train's approach, and the steel mills along the Connemaugh River had been emptied. From the smoke-covered city came the sound of the church bells clanging out the universal sorrow.

At Pitcairn, the end of the railroad division, the train crews and engines were changed, and the railroad men were out in force.

Passing through Pittsburg at 9.35 a.m. a wonderfully impressive sight was presented. No stop was made, but fully 50,000 people were present near the railway. Along both sides of the track for miles were solid walls of humanity. In some places the people stood twenty deep while the embankments were black with them. On the top of every freight car was a human hedge. The overhanging bridges bent beneath their burden. The roofs of the houses were lined. All stood with uncovered heads while the bells of all the churches were tolling.

THE MEMORIAL SERVICE.

Arrangements have been finally completed for the memorial service to the deceased President, at the Metropolitan Church tomorrow at 3 o'clock. Rev. Dr. Chown will preside, and among the other speakers expected to be present are Rev. Dr. Carman, A. E. Ames, president of the Board of Trade; Revs. J. A. Rankin, A. Brown, J. C. Speers, Wm. Hincks, Drs. Chambers, Hunter and Walker, Mr. F. H. Torrington will preside at the organ.

Murray Street Church.

The members of the Murray Street Baptist Church met on Tuesday night for mutual conference in regard to church affairs. Addresses were delivered by Rev. Mr. Bastow, Deacon William Aldridge, Mr. George K. Martin and others, all of a hopeful nature, on account of the great progress made by the church of late years. Mr. T. F. Matthews, the treasurer of the church, gave a statement of the cost of the improvements, the subscriptions that have been made, the amounts that have been paid in and that have been paid out, with a most thoughtful and helpful paper on the necessity of using the best business methods in the management of the church business. The meeting was then handed over by the pastor, who presided, to the ladies, and a very pleasant hour was spent socially with suitable refreshments.

FORESTERS FRATERNIZE.

Most Successful Ice Cream Social Held Last Evening.

One of the most successful ice cream socials in the history of Queen Alexander Circle, Ancient Order of Foresters, was held in the rooms of the Society on Hunter street, last night, over three hundred persons being present to enjoy the good things provided, and at the same time show their good will to the society.

Mr. George R. Record made an ideal chairman, and in a few well chosen words, explained the aims and objects of the order, which is one that must commend itself to every man who has the interest of his family at heart. One of the best numbers on the program was the playing of the now famous Hodgson orchestra—composed of Mr. J. Ernest Hodgson, with oboe and flute; Mrs. Hodgson, piano and Mr. Fraser Hancock, violin—which opened the program.

Miss Maggie Record displayed considerable ability as a reciter, while Mr. Dundass' baton swinging was remarkably good. Following is the program in full.

Instrumental trio, Mrs. Hodgson, and Messrs. Hodgson and Hancock; Solo, Mr. Jobe; Concertina Solo, Mr. Edminson; solo, Miss Bella Long; Recitation, Miss Maggie Record; Instrumental solo, Mrs. Hodgson and Messrs. DOIG IS COMMITTED.

In Connection With the Junk Dealers Case.

Alex. Oliver, the man who is charged with receiving stolen goods, knowing them to be stolen, being the employee of Charles Stevenson who gave evidence in the wire stealing case on Tuesday, was up yesterday morning at Police Court and remanded for a week.

Yesterday's proceedings in the wire stealing case consisted of the trial of David Doig on a charge of receiving wire from Smith, well knowing the same to have been stolen.

Smith, upon being sworn, told of his transactions with Doig, to whom he had brought three lots of wire, each of 300 or 400 lbs., and for which he received something like $35 at every trip. Smith said he stole the wire from the C.G.E. warehouse, entrance to which he had obtained by means of a key made from an impression of one he had taken from a small case screwed upon the warehouse door. He told Doig that he was getting the wire at the C.G.E. Co., and the dealer told him to be careful and not get caught. Doig also told the boy that he burnt the wire.

Officer Adams' evidence was to the effect that upon making an investigation at the Doig premises he had found copper wire in the remains of a fire used for burning wood from the iron. To Chief Roazel, Doig had stated that he had not dealt in copper wire this summer.

The Magistrate after hearing the evidence committed Doig for trial, while the boy Smith was remanded for eight days for sentence.

Nervous Dyspepsia.

PETERBOROUGH, SEPTEMBER 19 1901

DON'T SELL THE ISLANDS

The general feeling in Canada seems to be very strongly against the sale of the Thousand Islands of the upper St. Lawrence to private individuals. The Ottawa Free Press, a staunch supporter of the Government, says, "Save the islands for the province at any cost," and correspondents of the Toronto World and other papers protest most vigorously against their sale. We should be sorry to see them sold. Brockville, urges the Times, has a particular interest in restraining the sale of them. They are originally the property of the Indians, held in trust by the Government. If the Government wishes to raise funds for the Indians let it take money out of the common purse, but retain the islands of the St. Lawrence as a place for public resort. Contrast the American and Canadian sides at Alexandria Bay; on the Canadian side the islands are converted into palaces for millionaires, which the public may gaze on but cannot land on. "Keep off the Grass," "No Thoroughfare," is the prevalent sentiment. There is no rest for the public there. On the Canadian side the islands for the most part are as they were centuries ago; anyone may land upon them. Rest and quiet prevail in the beautiful Canadian channel.

As the Pittsburg Chronicle Telegraph said recently: "The Canadian Government is contemplating the sale of a bunch of islands in the St Lawrence river. Here's a chance for annexation on a small scale."

It seems a pity to let the lovely islands of the St. Lawrence become private property from almost every point of view. It will be a pleasant sensation, will it not, for Canadians to travel through the Canadian channel and see the Stars and Stripes floating on all sides of them on Canadian territory?

THE RUSSIAN NAVY.

New York, Sept. 18.—With the addition of the new Retzivan, the Russian fleet will consist of 23 firstclass battleships, yielding to none in the world in excellence and perfection, though three or four of the Japanese battleships have certain qualities of superior weight; one second-class battleship, 16 coast defence ships and 23 cruisers of the first class are fully armored. Twenty-three battleships and 23 cruisers, therefore, may stand as the backbouse of Russia's naval complement of coast defence ships, second and third class cruisers, gunboats, torpedo boats, torpedo destroyers, transports, auxilaries and all that pertain to them.

The Russian heavy guns are second to none, and the batteries of six-inch and seven-inch quick firing guns leave nothing to wish for. The secondary small-arm batteries are likewise perfectly equipped. The Russian warships are, in fact, the most numerously armed in the world.

This fleet was designed in the first instance for purposes of defence. And for defence it is practically invincible The very defects of Russia's naval position now become its qualities; the restriction of naval activity to two points—the Baltic and the Black Sea —is altogether in Russia's favor. She could hold either on both against considerably greater numbers and weight of ships, and would have the almost invincible forts of Sebastapol and Cronstadt as a base, to which the fleet, if menaced, could retire, and where it would be quite secure under cover of the enormous guns of the forts.

SANG AND PRAYED.

How a Chicago Crowd Received the News of the President's Death.

Chicago, Sept. 18.—The hymn, "Nearer, My God, to Thee," was sung by the throng in front of one of the newspaper offices when the announcement was made that President McKinley was dead.

When the singing of the hymn ceased there was a pause. Many were in tears. A college student then bared his head and prayed aloud. The great crowd listened, and when the student had ceased someone started to sing "America," the crowd joining. Then all quietly dispersed.

NO EVENING SHOW.

The Peterborough Central Fair Will Not be Open at Night.

The directors of the Peterborough Central Fair have decided not to hold an evening show, as they did last year, feeling that the cost of lighting, attendants and the general expense of holding it at the grounds did not pay. Instead the list of special attractions will be put on in the market hall on the evening of the second day, Wednesday, 25th, and of which full information will be afforded later.

WILL NOT BE HERE.

Hon. Dr. Borden Will Not be Able to Open The Exhibition.

Many of our readers will be sorry to learn that the Hon. Dr. Borden, Minister of Militia, who was to have formally opened the Peterborough Central Exhibition, will not be able to do so, on account of the Duke of Cornwall's visit. The Minister has to look after the military arrangements, which prevents his coming to Peterborough.

A noted London club man once laid a wager with a friend that the latter could not sell a given number of gold guineas at a penny a piece. He won his wager. The people refused to buy. They thought he was offering too much for too little.

It may be that the claims made for Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription seem almost too great to women who in years of suffering have found no help in doctors or medicines. But it is to be remembered that no claim is made for "Favorite Prescription" which is not substantiated by thousands of women cured by its use. Its effects are truly wonderful. It wipes out past years of pain as a sponge wipes a slate.

Favorite Prescription is the great medicine for women. It establishes regularity, dries enfeebling drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. It is the best preparative for maternity, making the baby's advent practically painless.

"When I wrote to you in March, asking advice as to what to do for myself," says Mrs. Ella Reynolds, of Guffie, McLean Co., Ky., "I was expecting to become a mother in June, and was sick all of the time. Had been sick for several months. Could not get anything to stay in my stomach, not even water. Had mishaps twice in six months, and threatening all the time with this one. Had female weakness for several years. My hips, back and lower bowels hurt me all the time. Had numbness from my hips down. Had several hard cramping spells, and was not able to do any work at all. I received your answer in a few days, telling me to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I took three bottles, and before I had taken it a week I was better, and before I had taken it a month I was able to help do my work. On the 27th of May my baby was born, and I was only sick three hours, and had an easy time.

"We praise Dr. Pierce's medicine for it has cured me."

Dr. Pierce's Pellets cure biliousness.

WAS JEFF DAVIS' SLAVE

An Interesting Delegate to the National Negro League—Now Mayor of a Mississippi City.

Chicago Sept. 18.—Among the interesting men who are going to Chicago as delegates to the meeting of the National Negro Business League, is Isaiah T. Montgomery, who was a slave of Jefferson Davis, and who now is the Mayor of the town of Mound Bayou, Miss, a flourishing negro town which he has founded and built up since the War.

Mr. Montgomery, says the Chicago Post, tells many entertaining stories about his life on the Davis plantation, one of the largest and most remarkable of the great cotton plantations in the entire South. His father was a foreman on the place, and he himself was taken into the "big house" at an early age to be made a "house" servant. Because he showed unusual aptitude he was taught to read and write, and in time became a sort of office boy for Joseph the older brother of Jefferson Davis, coming in this way to have an intimate knowledge of the household and of many of the business political matters in which his masters were interested.

The Davis plantation comprised many thousand acres, lying in a huge bend of the Mississippi river. There were two plantation houses, named "Briarfields" and "Hurricane," the last named so because at one time a hurricane had swept over the place, doing great damage. The affairs of the plantation were managed by the other brother, "Mr. Joe," while "Mr. Jeff" spent much of his time away from home, occupied with political affairs at Washington and elsewhere. "'Mr. Jeff' was a wonderful man, both as a speaker and a writer," Mr. Montgomery has said of him. "He could say more in one sentence than most men could say in half a page."

There were 400 slaves on the plantation, divided into two squads called "the upper" and "the lower." Each had its own overseer, and there was great rivalry between the overseers and the men to see which division would come out ahead of the crops. The management of the place was so careful and kindly that Mr. Montgomery, in speaking of it, says, the people on the place had only the faintest idea of what slavery really was. The overseers were not allowed to punish anyone of their own accord. They made complaint to the owner of the place, and then, on certain days—usually Sundays—a "court" was held, in which all the cases which had come up were heard. "Mr Joe" was the judge and decided what should be done in each case.

ANARCHISTS AS MAD MEN

The Minister From Austria Would Shut Them up in Hospitals.

Vienna, Sept. 18.—Dr. Hengelmueller, Austrian minister to the United States, in an interview today, said he doubted the efficacy of direct measures for the repression of anarchism. He was disposed to approve of a plan to proceed like England in the various attempts on Victoria's life, that is, without giving the offenders a public trial, to shut them up for life in a mad house. This deprived them of becoming objects of public notice. He believed that American public opinion would demand more stringent measures against foreign immigration.

SILENT ON COURT SCANDAL.

Kaiser and Royalty Dumb on Marriage of Late Empress.

Berlin, Sept. 18.—There are no means of getting confirmation of the reiterated statement that the late Empress Frederick had contracted a morganatic alliance with her chamberlain, Baron Seckendorf. In court circles the report is scouted, but it would have been quite easy for a ceremony to be performed by the empress' domestic chaplain without any notification to the authorities or any entry in the public register.

The empress' will is being kept secret, so it is impossible to ascertain the truth of the report that she bequeathed Baron Seckendorf $600,000. The silence of the kaiser in the face of the persistent rumors of the marriage certainly give color to the report.

NOT A HOME RULER.

Cork, Sept. 17.—At to-day's meeting of the Common Council of Cork, a resolution of sympathy with President McKinley was proposed by Sir John Scott, but it had to be withdrawn because Ald. Cave, a labor member, opposed it, declaring that Mr. McKinley was no friend of Ireland, but a friend of Great Britain.

LYING IN STATE.

Washington, Sept. 17.—The remains of the late President McKinley were this morning conveyed from the White House to the Capitol, where they are now lying in state. The cortege started from the White House at 9.20 and reached the Capitol at 10.35, the casket being conveyed into the rotunda

Washington, Sept. 17.—The day of the state funeral of the late President McKinley opened as sombre as the occasion. The sky was overcast with dark, slow-moving grey clouds; occasional spasms of rain fell, giving way for momentary intervals to gleams of dull sunshine, and a soft wind barely stirred into relief the signs of mourning on building fronts that told as well as the subdued air of the public that this was a day of sorrow. To-day was the occasion when the nation was to pay its last tribute of respect and admiration at the bier of the dead President. All the country had sent here its representatives to testify that the dead had its place in the national heart. Other nations had ordered their diplomatic and military representatives to be present as a token that they mourned with America in its loss. Ex-President Cleveland was here to take part in the ceremonies, and like President Roosevelt paid his tribute first in private at the White House, and later at the public services in the rotunda of the Capitol. The King of Great Britain was present in the person of Mr. Gerard Lowther, Charge of the British Embassy, whom Edward VII. had specially commissioned to participate in the services as his personal representative. Captain Louis Bailey of the Royal Navy represented the Embassy. They will return to Newport to-night and not go to the family funeral at Canton. The other Embassies and Legations likewise had sent on their representatives. Many of the States had sent on their chief executives and part of their staffs. All branches of the National Government Legislative, Executive, Judicial, and Military were represented.

About the White House the patrol of soldiers and sailors guarding the entrance and grounds told the sad story. The night there had been a quiet one. A vigil over the dead had been maintained throughout the watches. Details of cavalrymen, artillerymen, and infantrymen, sailors, and marines were on guard around the grounds.

A sentryman paced back and forth on the portico. Inside the house others did duty. In the East room, sombre with its drawn shades and dim-burning lights, and its heavy black casket in the centre of the room, the guard of honor watched over the dead.

Members of the Loyal Legion and the G. A. R. performed this sad duty, silently giving way to others every two hours. At the head of the casket stood an artilleryman and a sailor. At the foot were a cavalryman and a marine. All were at parade rest. These watchers were relieved every half hour.

THE SECOND STAGE.

The second stage of the late President's journey towards the waiting grave at Canton was begun at 9.20 o'clock. As early as an hour before that time the chief officers of the Government—civil, military, and judicial—began to arrive, and many others whose names are familiar the world over, came singly and in groups to pay their tribute at his official home to the nation's illustrious dead.

ESCORT FORMS.

While the men of note were arriving at the White House, the funeral escort under command of Major General John R. Brooke, was forming immediately in front of the White House. Besides regulars of soldiers, sailors and marines, the escort was made up of a detachment of the National Guard, members of the G. A. R., Loyal Legion, and kindred bodies, and civic organizations and representatives of all branches of the National Government, and the Governors of States and their staffs.

The public had been astir early and the streets were crowded with people. Wire cables were strung along the entire route from the White House to the Capitol, and they kept it clear for the funeral procession.

At 9 o'clock a silent command was given and the body-bearers reverently raised the casket on their shoulders. They walked with slow cadenced step and as they appeared at the main door of the White House the marine band stationed opposite the mansion, struck up the President's favorite hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee." There was perfect silence throughout the big mansion, and as the last sad strains of the music died away the throng in the building lifted their bowed heads.

As the hearse moved away, the mourners from the White House entered carriages and followed the bod on its journey to the Capitol, where funeral services were to be held.

MRS. McKINLEY NOT THERE.

It was thought early in the morning that Mrs. McKinley might feel strong enough to attend the services there but it was finally decided that it would be imprudent to tax her vitality more than was absolutely necessary, and so she concluded to remain in her room under the immediate care of Dr. Rixey, Mrs. Barber, her sister, and her neice, Miss Barber.

After the carriages in which the diplomats followed a long line of others containing the Justices of the Supreme Court, the Senate and House committees appointed to attend the funeral, the local judiciary, the assistant Secretaries of the several Executive departments, members of the various Government commissions, and official representatives of insular Governments. The remainder of the procession was composed of a large representation of local bodies of Knights Templar, over a thousand members of the Grand Army of the Republic; the United Confederate Veterans, of the City of Washington, and of Alexandria, Va.; various religious and patriotic societies, including the Sons of the American Revolution, secret societies and labor organizations of the city. Scattered here and there at intervals were representatives of out of town organizations.

The full force of letter carriers of Washington, each with a band of black crepe on his arm, walked to the solemn tread of the dirge. The banners of all organizations were folded and draped with black, and all the marching civilians wore mourning badges and white gloves. Fife and drum corps bands rendered at frequent intervals along the route the President's favorite hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee." The procession occupied one hour and a half in passing a given point.

The funeral services at the Capitol were simple and beautiful. They were in the form prescribed by the Methodist church—two hymns, a prayer, an address, and a benediction.

THE ROYAL VISIT.

Quebec, Sept. 17. — Despite unfavorable weather today's military review before the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York was a decided success. All Quebec and its visitors seemed to have turned out to see the historic event which also marked the transference of the Plains of Abraham to the City of Quebec, and its dedication as a public park. Of course, the plains, large as they are, could not hold all who wanted to see the review, but as many as the men who kept the parade ground clear would allow upon the field obtained an entrance, and others had to content themselves with following the troops as far as they could along Le Grand Allee and other streets leading towards the Plains. Several members of the royal party commented upon the present happy condition of affairs when descendants of those who at one time met in mortal combat upon the historical Plains could parade shoulder to shoulder in military costume on the same soil. The parade was formed up very soon after the appointed hour, but about an hour before this two markers were posted for each unit. The line was drawn up facing the St. Louis road and the parade was formed with drawn swords and fixed bayonets in the following order: Cavalry on the right, in squadron column; field artillery in line at close intervals; garrison artillery; gentlemen cadets of Royal Military College and infantry in line of quarter column; army medical corps on extreme left. Intervals of twelve paces were left between the cavalry and field artillery, with ten paces between brigades. The frontage of the companies was between 20 and 24 files, and all regimental bands were massed six paces in rear of their respective brigades.

The whole brigade was under command of Major-General O'Grady-Haly, C.B., D.S.O., with Lieut.-Col. the Hon. Matthew Aylmer, Adjutant-General second in command.

THE DUKE'S ARRIVAL.

On arrival of H. R. H. the Duke, with escort and staff, the Major General called for a royal salute, after which arms were presented, colors lowered and massed bands played "God Save the King." The parade then came to the shoulder and H. R. H. then proceeded to inspect the troops. During his inspection each of the massed bands in turn played marches, while the Duke passed the command to which it belonged.

THE MARCH PAST.

As soon as the inspection was over, the colors again took post and the march past was commenced. The cavalry went past in column of troops, field artillery in line at reduced intervals, gentlemen cadets, garrison artillery, infantry and army medical corps in column. Each brigade of infantry was led by its band and the infantry again marched past by the left after forming mass of quarter column by brigades and changing ranks. The cavalry and artillery then trotted past and the whole took post in review order for the presentation of medals.

The first decoration conferred was the Victoria Cross, won by Lieut.-Col. Turner by his gallantry in the field, and then came the South African medals, which were distributed according to prearranged program, officers according to rank receiving medals and then the men. After this interesting feature of the proceedings, which was constantly interrupted by the cheers of the crowd, the troops marched off to their respective quarters, and the great day was over.

WILL HE GO TO THE FUNERAL?

London, September 17—The suggestion that the Duke of Cornwall and York should represent King Edward at President McKinley's funeral finds on the whole warm approval here. There are difficulties, however, in the way, and President Roosevelt's views must be ascertained before such proposal is made. As far as the public feeling in England is concerned, undoubtedly the compliment would be cordially paid, nor is there any doubt entertained that the duke would be most eager to afford this testimony of his personal sympathy and good will.

The dislocation of the arrangements for his tour could easily be surmounted, but it is thought possible that in the present state of the duchess' health any prolongation of their journeying would be undesirable.

It is stated here that the king has been in communication with the duke on the subject and that the President has been approached through the British charge d'affaires at Washington.

Evidences of mourning were widespread in London. Black was the dominant note in the costumes of churchgoers and pulpit references to the high character of the murdered president, combined with expressions of cordial sympathy with American people were principally universal.

Cardinal Vaughan directed that a funeral march be played in all Catholic churches at the conclusion of mass, during which the congregations remained for the most part kneeling.

The anarchist lecturers in parks and public places denounced the crime as the act of a lunatic, these denunciations being increased in fervor by the threatening aspect of the crowds which assembled to note their attitude.

MUCH SYMPATHY IN BRITAIN.

It would be almost impossible to record in detail the remarkable outburst of sympathy in Great Britain and her colonies over the death of President McKinley, proofs of which are continually arriving here. Not only has King Edward commanded the court to go into mourning for one week, but wherever a public meeting of any kind has been held or wherever a public man has had occasion to speak expressions of horror and sympathy have been heard.

In every place of public worship Sunday from St. Paul's cathedral and Canterbury cathedral down, the preachers made special references to the terrible event, invoking God's blessing upon the United States and the American people. Crathie church at Balmoral, whose bells had never before been used except on occasions of national interest, broke the custom and announced the event in the neighborhood.

Many members of the diplomatic corps and a constant stream of visitors inscribed their names at the embassy. Messages of sympathy were received from Earl Cadogan, the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland; Sir William Vernon Harcourt, the Duke of Abercorn, the Maharajah of Jodhopore, Mr. Austin, the poet laureate and many other prominent men.

The postoffice department granted special facilities to enable the embassy to telegraph replies.

A WOMAN TO DIE ON THE SCAFFOLD

Reading, Pa., Sept. 18.—The jury in the case of Mrs. Kate Edwards, charged with the murder of her husband, John Edward, near Stonchsburg, on the night of July 3, to-day returned a verdict imposing the death penalty. The case was given to the jury at 4.10 P. M., and two hours later she was found guilty of murder in the first degree. Her counsel immediately moved for a new trial. Mrs. Edwards stood up before the jury as they announced their verdict, and received their decision with the greatest coolness.

The principal witness against her were her daughter, Mary, aged 15 years, and son, Elmer, aged 12, whose testimony against their mother convicted her. Through the two witness the Common-wealth was enabled to establish the fact that Mrs. Edwards had buried a bloody hammer, carpet and dress; that she made all her children and husband drunk on the night of the murder, and that every circumstance pointed to her as the guilty person. The supposition is that after Edwards was intoxicated his wife enveloped his head with the carpet and beat him to death with the hammer. Mrs. Edwards is about 40 years of age and the mother of five children.

It required only two days to hear the testimony in the case. Large audiences were present. Most of the time was taken up by the prosecution, and the feature of the defense was the denial by Mrs. Edwards, the accused, of the damaging parts of her daughter Mary's evidence. She showed no emotion and never became confused. She was asked if Mary lied, but would not say she did.

One of the witnesses for the defense testified that he saw two men in the yard of the Edwards home at 10.30 on the night of the murder, but the jury did not believe this. Then Mary Edwards was called in rebuttal, she insisted that the evidence she had given against her mother was true, and she was corroborated by her brother Elmer.

The strands of hair found clutched in the hands of the dead man, it was proved, came from the head of Mrs Edwards, torn out by the roots during the struggle.

Samuel Greason and Charles Rollins colored men, held in prison as witnesses, also gave testimony against Mrs. Edward. They were used to show the motive on the part of the accused for committing the crime.

THE REALM OF SPORT

Says the Orillia Packet: "'Timber' Smith, Jake Gaudaur's old backer, offered to post £250 for a race between George Towns and Eddie Durnan for the world's championship. Tom Sullivan, representing the new champion, declined, stating that Towns would not accept a challenge for the championship on any waters except those of England and Australia. Towns feels that as champion he is entitled to select the course for a contest as Gaudaur did in the recent race. Durnan will have to cross to England if he wants to meet Towns, and it is quite probable that another year may see the champion located at his old home in Australia. Jake Gaudaur and Mr. Smith are both of the opinion that Durnan could defeat Towns. Gaudaur announces his retirement from professional sculling, and will now devote his attention to business.

The excessive catches of black bass which have been made throughout the Province this summer menace the very existence of that delicious species of fish. The Ontario Department of Fisheries has entered into communication with the Dominion authorities to establish more stringent laws regulating the practices of anglers. The powers of the central and local governments have not been clearly defined, and the only way to effectively protect the fish is for both to act in concert. The assistant commissioner, Mr. S. T. Bastedo, contends that the limit of a catch should be reduced to twelve.

Shall it be Badaur now?

The close season for speckled trout began on Monday.

Gaudaur may be among the "has beens," but he was great in his time.

The open season for hares, partridges and black squirrels opened on Monday.

Dr. D. C. King's magnificent Great Dane, "Fordham Cyreno," was successful in carrying off seven prizes at the kennel shows recently held in Toronto and St. Thomas. At the International dog show in connection with the Toronto Exhibition, the animal took three second prizes, in competition with entries from all over the United States in the same class, in novice, open and limit. At the St. Thomas show last week he won four firsts, viz., novice, open, limit, and winners, and also a handsome bronze medal donated by the Canadian Kennel Club. The doctor is justly proud of possessing such a magnificent canine.

BITES OFF HIS WIFE'S NOSE

Chicago, Sept. 18.—The police of the Cottage Grove avenue station are searching for Thomas Shannon, who until recently was supervisor of the south town. Shannon is said to have bitten off his wife's nose in a quarrel early yesterday morning in their apartments at the Hotel Woodruff, Twenty-first street and Wabash avenue. After Shannon had committed the alleged assault he fled from the hotel.

According to the police the former street. He was pursued by Policeman Cavanaugh of the Cottage Grove avenue station. Cavanaugh said that he at first feared the fugitive intended jumping in the lake. Shannon outdistanced the policeman and although officers searched for him during the day they were unable to find him. Dr. R. T. Van Pelt, the house physician, was called and dressed Mrs. Shannon's wound.

Shannon is well known to south side politicians, with whom he has been associated for a number of years. A year and a half ago Shannon married and for some time has lived with his wife at the Hotel Woodruff. Screams for help attracted the night clerk to the room of the couple and the clerk summoned the police.

The Latest McKinley Pictures

"If 'twere done, when 'tis done, then 'were well it were done quickly." The remark fits many acts; especially in newspaper illustration. The Illustrated Buffalo Express, experienced and reliable in this field, "knocked the spots" off all its would-be competitors in picturing the McKinley tragedy. The President was shot on Friday, September 6th. ON THE FOLLOWING SUNDAY THE EXPRESS HAD THREE PAGES OF PHOTOGRAPHIC ILLUSTRATIONS bearing on the subject; and though done so quickly, no better views have yet appeared, except in The Express of the following week, which broke its own record of enterprise and excellence with its remarkable McKinley Souvenir number. When The Express goes at a thing it not only does it quickly, but does it so well that the other fellows look like 30 cents.

American Newspaper Directory.

Tells the circulations of all American newspapers. Revised, corrected and reissued every three months. Sixteen hundred pages: Price Five Dollars a volume or $20 a year.

BUFFALO.

We should hardly know how to get along without the American Newspaper Directory. We regard it by all odds the most complete and reliable guide that the advertiser can make use of; in fact we use no other.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 24, 1901.
R. V. PIERCE, M.D.,
President World's Dis. Med. Ass'n.

VERMONT.

The American Newspaper Directory stands, as it has always stood, the first and best of newspaper directories—the only one which cannot be ignored, the only one which every advertiser must have. No other can take its place; no other is needed.—Joseph Auld, in the Burlington (Vt.) News of July 3, 1886.

ADVISOR.

The Advisor accepts the American Newspaper Directory as the standard in newspaper ratings. The obstacles which obstruct its efforts to get true and reliable information are many.

• • • •

The directory question is one which interests every publisher in the country—nay, the entire world. But in the United States, directories are becoming altogether too numerous. In this, as with other books of reference, it is necessary to have one which may be relied on as being an authority on the matter of newspaper circulations. There can be no question about the fact that at this time, as for many years past, the American Newspaper Directory is that authority. The Advisor is not paid to make this announcement. It makes the statement in the interest of advertisers and publishers because it is true. One thing the advertiser is almost cock-sure of when he refers to the American Newspaper Directory is that the circulation figures he sees therein are not overstated to any great extent. In most other directories they are. Only the publisher himself is to be blamed for no securing a proper rating in that publication, and every advertiser of consequence knows it. Thus the publisher who refuses to furnish a statement places himself under a reasonable suspicion.—The Advisor for June, New York, June, 1901.

CHICAGO.

Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co's American Newspaper Directory has long since earned the reputation of being the best of its character. It contains the result of patient, expensive and systematic effort to secure all attainable information of interest concerning American newspapers. The work has been honestly done. This will not be questioned by any unprejudiced examiner. The most important question is circulation. In attempting to give this information the Editor of the Directory encounters his most difficult work. It is the aim and necessity of the Directory to give the truth. The American Newspaper Directory is today the dependence and guide in a greater or less degree, of every large advertiser in the country.—Chicago (Ill.) Daily News.

BATES.

The American Newspaper Directory is the only reliable guide for the advertiser.

No man who advertises can afford to do without it.

What Bradstreet and Dun are to the mercantile world, The American Newspaper Directory is to the world of periodical publications.

A new advertiser will get from the American Newspaper Directory a better idea of the greatness of his country, and the tremendous possibilities in newspaper advertising, than from any other source.

If an advertiser spends only $100 a year he should have the American Newspaper Directory. For his business may grow and his right expenditure of his money become increasingly important. The time to learn how to spend $10,000 a year is before it is spent, otherwise the spending may be disastrous.

Many times the best paper in town costs the advertiser no more than the poorest. The American Newspaper Directory tells which is which.

The paper that was the leader in its town five years ago may lag behind to-day. Even one year may witness astonishing changes. If you are spending money for publicity it is vastly important that you should know where to get the most of it for the price. The American Newspaper Directory gives not only the present circulation rating of every paper in America, but shows their history by quoting past ratings.

The book costs five dollars a copy, and a single reference to it may readily save or make many times its cost.

All newspaper directories but one are erroneously optimistic about circulations. The American Newspaper Directory may occasionally err on the other side, but that makes it all the safer for the advertiser.

My advertising experience began in 1885, and one of the first things I did was to buy a copy of the American Newspaper Directory.

For sixteen years Rowell's "The American Newspaper Directory" has had a place of honor and usefulness on my desk.

Many a publisher is ready to prove by other directories that "Rowell's is wrong," but few indeed can be induced to prove it by opening their circulation books to the advertiser.

Among publishers who are not willing that their real circulations be known, it is the best hated book in print. The moral is not far to find.

CHARLES AUSTIN BATES.
New York, June 24, 1901.

PABST.

If the improvement of the American Newspaper Directory continues in the future as it has during the past twenty years I do not think I shall live long enough to see any other directory take its place. There will, however, be the usual crop of directories just as every other good thing is imitated. Your long years of experience in dealing with evasive circulation reports have most admirably fitted you for placing a proper valuation upon such statements. Advertisers have come to know that the Rowell estimates are nearer the proper figure than can otherwise be obtained. The American Newspaper Directory is therefore indispensable in every well regulated advertising department. Lines are being more tightly drawn every day; it is difficult to collect for twenty thousand when you print only eight. If the advertiser were buying barley he would not accept three pecks for a bushel, although the quality might at all times be open for discussion.

The American Newspaper Directory is the guide and companion of the advertising man, and it is to the interest of all concerned to help perfect it, support it, and hurrah for it.

SAPOLIO.

A growing need created it—the advertising agency system. One of the earliest and most successful workers, Geo. P. Rowell, is still in the field. He originated methods. Others followed his publication of a list of all the papers—the American Newspaper Directory. He has never ceased to love it, and labor for it. Soon out of the gross stupidity of imitation, it became a rule that every agency down to those of Oshkosh or Oklahoma must issue its own directory. An awful waste, for not more than one out of ten was worth shelf room. If the National Association of Advertising Agents could agree long enough to buy Mr. Rowell's Directory, publish it officially and drop all the others, it would accomplish something.

Advertising Manager for Sapolio.

WASHINGTON.

Every page of the American Newspaper Directory breathes the desire of its publishers that it shall be absolutely correct in every statement it makes.

SOUTHERN.

We subscribe to and pay cash for the American Newspaper Directory, and find it of great value in our advertising department. We have 6,892 miles of railway, extending from Washington, D. C., all over the South, and in advertising this system we use more than 1,000 publications, and in selecting this list we find that we get a correct idea of circulation from this Directory that can not be obtained from any other similar publication. We receive other newspaper directories gratis, but the fact that we pay cash for this one in addition shows that we can not place the same dependence upon the "free list."

We thoroughly appreciate the careful manner in which this Directory is compiled.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 12, 1900.
JOS. H. HANNEN,
Adv. Dept. Southern Railway.

I am looking forward to receiving the new edition with a great deal of anticipation as, although the American Newspaper Directory seemed to have reached a high state of perfection several years ago, there is always something new and of value in each succeeding edition. It is regarded as the standard authority with the Southern Railway.

S. H. HARDWICK,
General Passenger Agent,
Washington, D. C., May 21, 1901.

BALTIMORE.

We have used the American Newspaper Directory for many years and find it more valuable to us than any other similar publication. Much of the information given we cannot obtain in any other way. The book is not only a great help, but a necessity to our business, and we think its way of stating circulations is the ideal one.

Well, as a former Peterborough alderman was wont to sagely remark, "'We shall see what we shall see."

—Mr. A. L. Darragh, President of teh Dominion Show Case Co., 36 Richmond street east, Toronto, was in town on Wednesday putting in the show cases and wall fixtures in Frost's jewelry store, and the result reflects credit on the work turned out by this firm, which is one of the largest and most reliable of its kind in Canada. STORY QUITE UNTRUE.

To the Effect That There is no Work in Manitoba.

A letter appeared in the Examiner of the 13th, addressed to Miss Frankie Nicholls, of town, from her brother, who went out with the harvesters excursion to Manitoba.

The young man apparently had no idea that his letter would have found its way into print, or he would have been more accurate in his statements. It is not true that thousands of men can find no employment in the west, and are obliged to beg for a living.

It has been shown by a number of articles appearing in the Toronto papers that too many were not sent forward on these farm laborers excursions, and that there was plenty of work for all who would move out from Winnipeg and some of the larger towns on the main line. The trouble was that Winnipeg, Brandon and some of the larger points on the main line became congested, while many of the farmers along the branch lines were greatly in need of farm help.

Every assistance was given by the C.P.R. and also by the Manitoba government in the direction of ... help.

These stories are calculated to do untold mischief, for they are copied and used over and over again by enemies of the Canadian Pacific.

BREAD DYSPEPSIA.

Bread dyspepsia is common. It effects the bowels because white bread is nearly all starch, and starch is digested in the intestines, not in the stomach proper.

Up under the shell of the wheat berry Nature has provided a curious deposit which is turned into diastase when it is subjected to the saliva and to the pancreatic juices in the human intestines.

This diastase is absolutely necessary to digest starch and turn it into grape-sugar, which is the next form; but that part of the wheat berry makes dark flour, and the modern miller cannot readily sell dark flour, so nature's valuable digestor is thrown out and the human system must handle the starch as best it can, without the help that Nature intended.

Small wonder that appendicitis, peritonitis, constipation, and all sorts of trouble exist, when we go so contrary to Nature's law. The food experts that perfected Grape-Nuts Food, knowing these facts, made use, in their experiments, of the entire wheat and barley, including all the parts, and subjected them to moisture, and long continued warmth, which allows time and the proper conditions for developing the diastase, outside of the human body.

In this way the starchy part is transformed into grape-sugar in a perfectly natural manner, without the use of chemicals or any outside ingredients. The little sparkling crystals of grape-sugar can be seen on the pieces of Grape-Nuts. This food therefore is naturally pre-digested and its use in place of bread will quickly correct the troubles that have been brought about by the too free use of starch in the food, and that is very common in the human race to-day.

The effect of eating Grape-Nuts ten days or two weeks and the discontinuance of ordinary white bread, is very marked. The user will gain rapidly in strength and physical and mental health.

Where Was the Fault?

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I see the cement walks at the Morrow corner, at the intersection of George and Water streets, is being re-laid. Will The Times kindly inform its readers whose fault it is that such a bungle was made? The ratepayers should make no mistake this year in electing men to the Council who will have the backbone to do their duty, and place the blame where it belongs.

A DISGUSTED RATEPAYER

Reply,—The walks were laid under the supervision of the Town Engineer, who is primarily responsible for the work. That he allowed himself to be controlled by the contracters doing the work, is generally believed. Mr. Langford, who was chairman of the Board of Works of the Town Council, had a contract for building walks in his son's name, and no doubt this had much to do with the poor way the work was done. The low grades were manifestly in the interest of the contractor. It would have cost very much more to have built the said walk at the Morrow corner to the level that it is now being built to. But the fact that the contractors endeavored to make money out of the town is no reason why the Engineer, who is well paid to look after the interests of the ratepayers, should have allowed them to go so bare-facedly about it. This is all there is to it.

Should Visit Us.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I am one of those who think that, inasmuch as the Duke of York's father visited Peterborough when he was in Canada, so should the Duke. Surely we are as important now as we were then?

I would like to ask, Mr. Editor, if an invitation was sent, and by whom PETERBORONIAN.

Reply.—Yes, an invitation was sent to the proper authorities, signed by Mayor Denne and Town Clerk Armstrong.

While the Duke cannot make it convenient to visit Peterborough, this great family journal would suggest that our correspondents should lose no sleep on that account. No doubt we would all like to see the Duke, who is of the right stuff, and a veritable chip off the old block, still the sun will keep right on shining and the rain falling at intervals, as usual. Notwithstanding it is some months since it was known that Peterborough would not be on the Duke's calling list, our crop of potatoes is excellent, the pumpkins and squash have grown to ample proportions, and the turnips have not been injured by the frost. No, my dear boy, this g. f. g. would advise you to remember these things, and while we, like all patriotic and loyal Britons, would like to honor the heir apparent to the throne of the greatest empire on earth, we must learn to be contented without a visit from the Prince on this occasion.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I read in a Toronto paper of a street lounger being fined $1 for jostling a young woman on the street, and the opinion was expressed that if he was guilty the punishment was too light. With that opinion all decent people will agree. It is not pleasant for women to have to pass by staring, gaping corner or doorway loafers; it is intolerable that they sometimes add insult by sign, word or touch. And there are some youths in this town who might take a hint and mend their ways. By kindly publishing the above, you will greatly oblige

A PETERBOROUGH YOUNG LADY

Peterborough, Sept. 17.

Heart relief in half an hour.—A lady in New York State, writing of her cure by Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart, says: "I feel like one brought back from the dead, so great was my suffering from heart trouble and so almost miraculous my recovery through the agency of this powerful treatment. I owe my life to it."—19

CANCELLED HIS PASS.

The New Manager of the Opera House Snubs of the Press.

Yesterday the local manager of the Opera House called on the Times in a very angry mood, because we published, amongst the items of local news, the following paragraph:

"Marks Bros.' advance agent was in town yesterday completing arrangements for the appearance of that company here. We hope the show will be more liberal than the agent appears to be. If it is not, it might be a good one to steer clear of."

The item was written and printed because the agent referred to had shown poor taste in going from one printing office to another in order to beat the printer down in his price for a few bills which he wanted, and which he afterwards, according to the manager of the Opera House, had printed in Toronto. The hope expressed in the paragraph above, therefore, is only natural.

Our explanation did not satisfy the young man of the Opera House, and he informed us that our representative would no longer be admitted to the holy precincts of the building during "show" hours, without the price. The only fear we have is that, having lost the attractions that the theatre affords, he may take to drink, which would indeed be a sad outcome of an innocent paragraph. In the meantime, however, the public may rest assured that their interests will be safeguarded by this great family journal from shows of the barn-storming class.

LOST THREE FINGERS.

Painful Accident to Mr Wm. Guerin, of Ware Street.

While Mr. Wm. Guerin was operating a planer in McDonald's saw mill, on Monday afternoon, he had the misfortune to have three fingers amputated by coming in contact with the knives of the machine. It appears that though the belt was thrown off the pulley, the knives were still revolving, when he thrust his hand in to clear away an accumulation of shavings. The sharp knives caught his hand, and so badly lacerated three of the fingers that the surgeons found it necessary to amputate them. The hand was also severely injured, but it is not thougth that he will lose it.

A Daily Fashion Hint.

Well dressed women are becoming tired of the present over-ornamented styles, and there is a rumor that we are to have plainer effects. Especially during the warm weather simpler frocks are in demand. Some charming effects can be obtained in linen and pique, and these costumes can either be made very plain or quite dressy. Very smart little gowns are made of striped pique and blouse waists and rather wide collars edged with Russian lace. With these are worn a soft front of the same coarse lace. A favorite way of making the skirts consists in tucking them on the hips and finishing them at the bottom with a wide gored flounce. The latest idea for a linen gown is to have a plain collarless bolero trimmed with fancy buttons. An ordinary morning costume is made of white pique dotted with pink. Both waist and skirt are unlined. The former is made with three box plaits stitched flat and bishop sleeves terminating in cuffs of plain white. There are a white turndown linen collar and a full tie of pink taffeta. The belt is of pink taffeta embroidered with gold dots and fastened by means of a gold buckle. The skirt is made with a gored ruffle, headed by a strapped effect. The original little boating hat is of white straw trimmed with two black and white quills and a band of black velvet.

The Cause of Nervous Headache

This most distressing and common malady doubtless has its origin in some unbalanced condition of the nervous system. Probably the simplest, safest and most efficient remedy is Polson's Nerviline. Twenty drops in sweetened water gives immediate relief, and this treatment should be supplemented by bathing the region of pain with Nerviline. To say it acts quickly fails to express the result. Sold everywhere in large 25c., bottles.

FORTY-ONE YEARS SINCE ROYAL VISIT

The Reception Tendered to the Prince of Wales in 1860.

SKETCH OF THE ROYAL VISIT TO CANADA.

Peterborough Honored the Crown Prince and Party on the Occasion—Should be Visited by the Duke of Cornwall--Who is to Blame?

That Peterborough should have been honored with a visit by the Duke of Cornwall and party, we think few will deny. It was one of the few places visited by his father in 1860, and for this reason alone should not have been overlooked.

However, on account of the fact that the Prince will pass through Canada, it is not out of place to publish a sketch of the visit of the Prince of Wales to Peterborough forty-one years ago this month. The following is from the local papers published at that time:

"There are three arches erected by the Committee. One in Ashburnham, nearly opposite Mr. Roger's store; one on Hunter street, opposite St. John's Church; and one on George street, above McGregor's Hotel. They are really very fine structures, and their appearance is strikingly imposing. That in Ashburnham is a Roman design. On the east side of it, and surmounting the main arch, is the Prince of Wales Plume, under this the word "Welcome," in large letters. The rest of the bark is handsomely covered with evergreens. On the west side are the Royal Arms, over the words "God save the Queen," the body of the arch, like the reverse side, being covered with evergreens.

The view, in approaching this arch, is very fine. The Town Hall, Market block and Caisse's hotel are seen in the distance impinging upon the bright shrubbery of Colonsilla Hill in the rear, and giving the impression of a large city across the river.

"The arch opposite the Church is a Tudor arch. Along the centre, and immediately under the battlements, on the east side, are the words "Welcome to Peterborough." On the south tower is a panel surrounded by a wreath, combining the rose, thistle, shamrock and maple leaf, and within the wreath is the letter "P." On the north tower a similar panel has the letter "W." The west side was allotted by the Committee to the Temperance organizations, who decorated it according to their taste. On the centre, under the battlements, is the word "Temperance," surmounting a scroll with the words "Perseverance and Industry." Over the north arch is the motto "Union is Strength"; over the south "Knowledge is Power." On the north tower, the emblem and motto of the Good Templars; a fountain, and the words "Faith, Hope and Charity," are fixed in a panel. On the south tower those of the Sons of Temperance: a triangle and star, with the words "Love, Purity and Fidelity." The evergreen was beautifully interspersed with flowers, greatly relieving the appearance and adding materially to the effect."

"The third arch, that near McGregor's hotel, is decidedly the finest of the three. It is in the Gothic style. On the north side of it, that first approached by the Prince, immediately above the centre arch, are the words. "Welcome, thrice welcome to Canada," surmounted by a shield supported by beavers, and having upon it the Royal Arms. On the east tower, near the top, is a cornucopia, over the words. "Peace and Plenty," and under it a panel with the words, "Canada, the brightest gem, in the British Crown." On the west tower is a sheaf of wheat, over the word "Agriculture," and a panel with the words, "Albert our future King." On the south side of the arch, over the main entrance, are the words, "Victoria," "Albert," over these the Royal Arms in a shield, supported by beavers. On each tower is the Crown, Bible and Sceptre, and under them, on one, "God Save", on the other "the Queen". Lower down, the towers are panelled, one panel enclosing the words, "Our God and our Country"; the other, "The Queen and Constitution." This arch, approached by the procession from the north, had a most imposing appearance. Through it, George street with its hundreds of flags of every size and color, and its festoonings and mottoes of evergreens, and the lumberer's arch, manned by a score of lumbermen, appeared like a glimpse of fairy land. The coup d'oeil was magnificent, exceeding, according to the statement of gentlemen in the Royal party, anything they had yet witnessed in their tour.

"At the intersection of George and Simcoe streets and George and Hunter streets, large poles had been erected, tastefully wreathed with evergreens, surmounted by a large flag, and having festoonings of flags extended from the pole to the buildings on the four corners. From the string of flags were wreaths of evergreens to the poles, the whole having a very fine appearance from whatever direction approached."

"On the Court House green a pavilion had been erected, for the presentation of the addresses, covered with canvass ayning, and beautifully festooned. It was handsomely carpeted, and a chair covered with scarlet cloth, placed on it for His Royal Highness. In front of it seats had been fixed for 1000 children; and the rising ground of the Court House park afforded easy standing room for 30,000 people."

"It is impossible to speak in terms of too high praise of the zeal manifested by the citizens generally in giving to their buildings the best possible holiday appearance. Foremost, however, among the private decorations was the lumberer's arch. It was placed upon George street, near Charlotte street. The lumber was furnished by Messrs. Snyder and Dickson the teams by lumberers generally. Mr. Shaw had charge of the erection, and under his guidance, the whole was completed within fourteen hours of the time of its commencement. It was a triple arch, the lumber being so piled as to give to the curves a beautiful appearance. On the top of it, were a couple of deer, on each side of these a bark canoe, and as the procession approached, twenty-five lumbermen, dressed in red shirts and black pants, very pictures of able bodied, well developed men, were ranged along the top. On the fence of the arch, immediately above the centre, was a Prince of Wales plume, with the words, "Welcome, Prince of Wales," and on one side the words in a scroll, "the source of our wealth," on the other "ships, colonies and commerce." We detract nothing from the other decorations when we pronounce this one to have been the finest, as it was the most characteristic of the place, of them all. There was neither nail nor saw used in this erection."

"Starting from the station in Ashburnham, the streets were all lined with spruce trees, and from the buildings hung flags and evergreen festoonings. The bridge was prettily decorated with rows of flags along the different spans, and emerging from it, the Tudor arch, with its battlements and flags, loomed in view. The Post Office building was covered with evergreen festoonings and wreaths tastefully arranged. Over the door was the Prince of Wales plume, and on each side the letters A. E. Above this, extending the whole length of the building, were the words, in bold letters, "A thousand welcomes to the Prince." Continuing on towards George street, every building was decorated. McKeller and Cameron's had the appropriate motto "pro Regina et Patria." Ormond & Gilmour's was wreathed with evergreen and red maple bows. Facing Hunter street were the Royal Arms and the triple plume, and the mottoes "Our Queen and the land we live in," and "Thrice welcome to England's future King." Facing George street were the words "Victoria, Albert," and, in the corner window, a very handsome Prince of Wales plume made with flowers. Turning up George street, Swayne's cabinet shop was handsomely wreathed with evergreens. Over the entrance was a triple plume of spruce branches, and above it a beaver, with the motto "labor omnia vincet." Opposite this, McGregor's hotel was elaborately decorated with wreaths and festoonings of evergreens, interspersed with rosettes of red, white and blue, and having a beautiful crown, projecting from one of the galleries. Following still the line marked out for the procession, Miss Bailey's house on Water street displayed the words "welcome" in evergreen, and Messrs. Johnston's the words "Long live the Prince." All along Water street the same tasteful display was visible. Over Dr. Burnham's gate the word "welcome" was placed, and the fence wreathed; and along George street to the arch was planted with spruce trees. Passing the corner of Hunter street again, and continuing down George street, Kempt's Medical Hall had a very pretty balcony of evergreens raised above the shop door, draped with flowers, and having upon it a very handsome crown of flowers. On the balcony were the words "Welcome, Albert Prince of Wales." From the building was hung a handsome white banner with the Royal Arms painted upon it. Cluxton's, Stevenson's and Bradburn's four story buildings were very handsomely decorated. A large flag waved above the building, and from the roof, overhanging the street, a great number of flags and streamers were suspended. A handsome festooning of red, white and blue fell from the cornice, and along the face of the buildings; on white cloth, were the words, in large letters, "Welcome, Albert Edward, Prince of Wales." Below this were the words "Rejoice, Canada is honoured this day," and the Royal Arms with a wreath of evergreen around it. Further down, the market block had around the roof, above the cornice, a chain of evergreens, with posts every six feet, surmounted by flags. Across the street from the building to the opposite side were hung flags, one very fine one with the Prince of Wales plume upon it. From every window a flag was suspended, and on the top of the building a couple of large flags were raised on tall flag staffs. In front of the Review office was a beaver surrounded by maple leaves and a crown of flowers, and over the door of the Toronto bank was a handsome white triple plume. The Examiner office was almost covered with evergreens. It had the words "welcome" in spruce, and a couple of sheaves of wheat capped the whole. Caisse's hotel had a flag from every window, and a couple on the roof. The awning in front was very handsomely wreathed with evergreens, and at intervals along it were placed colored lamps. From Ryan's and Pool's flags were hung. Going round the market square, the Town Hall was wreathed with evergreens, and along the verandah, at intervals, were placed flags. The Bank of Montreal was very handsomely decorated. Round the door was a wreath of evergreens surmounted by an evergreen triple plume. On the face of the building, in letters beautifully formed of spruce, and placed on crimson cloth, were the words "Welcome, A. E. Prince of Wales." Messrs. Nicholls & Hall's premises were festooned with red, white and blue cloth, and flags and evergreens, and had a very imposing appearance."

"Besides these, every building had something to indicate the warmth of the reception. Hosts of "Welcomes" and "Bien venus" printed on paper could be seen, and away in the country as far as the eye could stretch, flags flying indicated the loyalty of the people. Throughout the whole town there was scarcely one house without its flag or green bow; along the line of procession there was only one dark undecorated spot. It was a stone building near Lannin's hotel."

"The day for which all this activity of preparation had been shown was as fine a one as could be desired. During the proceding night the streets had been watered, and along the route of the procession there was comparatively little dust. About nine o'clock the children were arranged in their seats, and about ten the Rifle Company marched over to the Railway station. An immense crowd had gathered, and about half-past ten the Temperance bodies arrived on the ground, dressed in their regalia, and having their flags unfurled. The train arrived about half-past eleven. As it approached, the crowd sent up a cheer such as has seldom rent the air in this neighborhood, and a general rush was made for the platform. With the greatest difficulty the space for the carriages was kept clear. As soon as His Royal Highness, who was dressed in plain clothes, entered his carriage, the Rifle Company presented arms. Some little delay occurred in getting the procession started, owing to the crush of people; but it was soon got over, and left in the following order:—

Marshal, on horseback,
Two Deputy Marshals, on horseback
Warden and Counties Council, in carriages,
Mayor and Town Council, in carriages,
Sheriff and County Judge, in carriage,
Carriage with
PRINCE and GOVERNOR GENERAL,
And the Rifle Company as a Guard of honour marching on each side of the carriage.
The Duke of Newcastle, Earl St. Germains,
General Bruce and others of the Prince's suite in carriages.
Members of the Legislature, in carriages,
Executive Committee, in carriages,
Band,
Two Marshals, on horseback,
Temperance Organizations,
Inhabitants.

The procession moved forward in this order through Ashburnham, the road on each side being crowded with people, who cheered heartily, and crossed the bridge. As it passed through the arch on Hunter street, the people who were crowded on the high sloping ground on either side, sent forth cheer, after cheer, the ladies in the windows waived their handkerchiefs, and threw bouquets to the Prince, and the wildest enthusiasm prevailed until he reached the Court House grounds. Here he alighted from his carriage, and, with his suite, ascended the dais; the County Council taking up a position at his right, the Town Council and Committee at his left, and the Rifle Company on each side of the platform in a space reserved for them. As soon as he appeared on the platform, the thousand children who occupied the seats immediately in front, and who were most neatly dressed, sang, under the direction of Mr. Glover and Mrs. Heathfield, as follows:

"God save our gracious Queen,
Long may Victoria reign,
God save the Queen.
Send her victorious,
Happy and glorious,
God save the Queen!"

"Thy choicest gifts in store,
On her be pleased to pour,
Long may she reign.
May she defend our laws,
And ever give us cause,
To sing with heart and voice,
God save the Queen!"

"Grant, Lord, our fervent prayer,
Still for old England's heir,
Thy love evince.
Watch o'er his early days,
Guide him in wisdom's ways,
So shall he sing Thy praise,
God save the Queen!"

"The singing was very good indeed, and the appearance of the children most commendable. The Prince and those with him seemed much delighted with the view from the dais. The fine sloping ground in front, gave to the 15,000 people assembled an ample opportunity to see the Royal party, and to be seen to the best advantage by them; and we doubt whether, since his arrival in this country, he has stood before a happier, a more industrious, or a more loyal people."

After the singing, addresses were read by William Lang, Esq., Warden, on behalf of the country, and by Augustus Sawers, Esq., Mayor, from the town, to which the Prince replied:—

"GENTLEMEN:—I thank you sincerely for the address which you have presented to me.

"In the Queen's name, I acknowledge the expressions of your loyalty to her crown and person; and for myself I am grateful to you for this welcome to your neighborhood."

A deputation from Cavan also presented an address, signed by John Swain, Esq., Reeve of that township, for which His Royal Highness expressed his cordial thanks."

"After the presentation of the addresses, the Governor General, having intimated that the limited time at the disposal of His Royal Highness, would compel him to move rapidly through the town, the Rifle Company marched directly to the Port Hope station to receive the Prince when he came up. The procession passed through the principal streets, the crowds cheering lustily as before, and as the Prince's carriage passed under the lumberer's arch, the men on it raised such a cheer as proved that the capacity of their voices was quite equal to the magnificent proportions of their persons. In a little less than an hour from the time the Prince arrived, he entered his car from the platform on Hunter street, and left, leaving after him thousands of hearts beating not only with a warm loyalty to his Royal Mother, but a whole souled personal attachment to himself."

"In the evening, Caisse's hotel was brilliantly illuminated, and fire-works were set off from the building. A large crowd of persons were in the streets to witness the display, which lasted until about ten o'clock, after which all went quietly home; the events of the day having passed over without any disturbance of the public peace, and without a single accident or mishap to detract from its enjoyment. It was indeed a day of pleasure without one particle of alloy. Long will the visit of the Prince of Wales to Peterborough be cherished as the brightest day she has known.

AFTERMATH OF THE ASSASSINATION

Queer Outbreaks in Various Parts of the United States

ONE CRANK ACCUSES CATHOLICS

Augusta, Ga., September 20.—(Special)—Several well known gentlemen were in the office of Ordinary Walton a day or two ago discussing the shooting of the president at Buffalo, when Policeman John E. Martin entered. After listening a moment to the discussion which was upon anarchy, Mr. Martin interrupted the conversation by remarking that all anarchists were Roman Catholics and that that church was responsible for the existence of the nefarious order.

Everybody present was surprised at the declaration and displeased, showing it in their actions to the policeman, but he failed to take the hint and, continuing, declared that an examination of the records would show that Czolgosz, as well as the man who assassinated Lincoln, Garfield, King Humbert, and all others, were members of the Catholic church.

Finally the incident reached the ears of the officials at the city headquarters and it was told to the chief of police. Chief Norris at once took up the matter and charges have been preferred against Martin before the board of police commissioners. The board meets Friday night, when the case will be heard.

Those who are familiar with the feeling of condemnation general among the officials predict that Martin will be dropped from the force.

CZOLGOSZ HANGED IN EFFIGY.

Chicago, September 20.—An effigy designed to represent Leon Czolgosz, the assassin of the late president, was set on fire tonight and hanged to an electric light pole at State and Madison streets, one of the busiest corners in Chicago. A large crowd shouted at the demonstration, hissed their contempt for the assassin and demand similar treatment for Emma Goldman.

EMMA GOLDMAN TOO

Baltimore, September 20.—Emma Goldman, the anarchist, was hunged in effigy late tonight from a telegraph pole in the eastern section of the city. A large crowd witnessed the hanging, cheering the youngsters and jeering and hooting at the dummy. A peach basket formed part of the framework of the effigy. A rainy-day skirt, an old pair of shoes and lurid shirtwaist completed the costume.

TIED TO A TREE AND WHIPPED.

Martinsville, Ind., September 20.—Joseph Pelferer, an anarchist, who was knocked down a week ago when he said he was glad President McKinley was shot, was visited by a party of unknown men last midnight, taken to a grove near town, stripped, tied to a tree and severely whipped.

A DOCTOR NEARLY LYNCHED.

Indianapolis, Ind., September 20—A special to The Sentinel from Auburn, Ind., says that Dr. Z. H. Stamets, a young physician enjoying a large practice in that city, was seized by Henry West, a blacksmith, and Jack Towne, a fireman, dragged down stairs from his office and narrowly escaped lynching. Stamets is accused by three men of saying after the president was shot "that McKinley was only suffering from what he had been instrumental in causing others to suffer and that in the event of McKinley's death Roosevelt would probably meet a similar fate."

NO JOKE AT ALL.

Brooklyn, N.Y., September 20.—Harry Garrett, a stylishly dressed young man panions in Fort Greene Park yesterday afternoon, and in the course of the conversation remarked in a loud voice:

"It serves him right," referring to President McKinley. "He should have been shot five years ago."

The people who were gathered around pounced on Garrett almost as soon as he had said this and he was in immediate danger of receiving serious injuries.

William Booth was passing by and overheard the remark. He was so angered that, it is alleged, he struck Garrett a hard blow with his walking stick. Officer Barry of the Classon avenue station arrived and took Garrett in charge.

He was arraigned in the Myrtle avenue police court this morning on a charge of using violent language. He did not show any signs of regret over the matter,

"I was only fooling and din't mean anything by it," said Garrett.

"Don't you know young man," said Judge Naumer, "that this is no time for fooling. This is too serious a time for such jokes. I'll fine you $10 or ten days."

BOYS WOULD KILL ASSASSINS.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 20.—Four boys, ranging in age from 10 to 13 years, were taken into custody today at Oregon, ten miles south of here. They were on their way to Buffalo to avenge the assassination of President McKinley. They were armed with a 45-caliber revolver and had planned to shoot their victim and cut out his heart.

The boys hail from Pine Island, Minn., and left home Sunday with sufficient money to carry them as far as Oregon, where they became stranded and applied to the police to help them on their mission of vengeance. They are proud of their undertaking and the action of the authorities in holding them is a great disappointment. Money has been telegraphed by their parents and the youngsters will be put on a late train tonight for their home.

EDITOR HANGED IN EFFIGY.

New Brunswick, N.J., Sept. 20.—An effigy of the editor of the New York Journal was hanged from a telegraph pole at the corner of Church and Dennis streets, the principal business corner of this city, last night. On the breast of the image was a placard bearing the inscription: "The beast behind the beast that fired the shot, Hearst." On the back was a placard bearing these words: "Riot, inciter, blackmailer, murderer."

TARRED AND FEATHERED.

Huntington, Ind., Sept. 20—Joseph A. Wildman, a United Brethern minister, was tarred and feathered by a committee of 100 last night and turned loose to wander back home because on Sunday night he rose in a prayer meeting in one of the city churches and said:

"I suppose there have been more lies told from the pulpit and sacred desk today than was ever told before. While I want to give all honor that is due Mr. McKinley, still when he was living he was nothing but a political demagogue."

Wildman has no regular charge.

ANARCHIST NEARLY KILLED.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 20.—An anarchist who was rejoicing over the annammination of President McKinley today at a resort on Lake Washington, was seized by a crowd of infuriated citizens, who tied a rope around his neck and threw him into the lake three times, nearly drowning him. But little effort was made to restore him.

Where is Carrie?

C. P. R. station agent Bamford received a telegram yesterday through A. H. Notman, Assistant General Passenger Agent, notifying him to search the 4.45 C. P. R. westbound express in the afternoon, and if Mrs. Carrie Nation was aboard, to notify the Toronto office at once. The train was searched, but Carrie was not discovered.

BRITISH FORCE ARE AMBUSHED BY BOERS

London, Sept. 20.—A despatch from Lord Kitchener, dated Pretoria, Sept. 18, announces that the Boers on September 17 ambushed three companies of mounted Infantry with three guns, commanded by Major Gough, in the vicinity of Sheepers Nek. After severe fighting the British were overpowered and lost their guns, the sights and breech-locks of which were first destroyed. Two officers and fourteen men were killed, and five officers and twenty-five men wounded. Five officers and 150 men were made prisoners. Major Gough, who escaped during the night, reports that the Boers numbered a thousand men and that they were commanded by General Botha.

General French reports that Commandant Smuts, in order to break through a cordon, rushed on a squadron of the 17th Lancers at Elands River Poort, killing three officers and twenty men, and wounding one officer and thirty men. The Boers, who were dressed in khaki, and were mistaken for British troops, lost heavily.

INVASION THREATENED.

Pietermaritsburg, Natal, Sept. 19---In view of the imminence of the reinvasion of Natal by General Louis Botha with a force of 1,500 men, a special issue of the Gazette has called out a number of men of the Natal Corps to muster here to-day.

THE DESTROYER COBRA FOUNDERED AT SEA

Only a Dozen Sailors Saved Out of a Crew of Fifty or Sixty.

SHE STRUCK A ROCK AND AT ONCE EXPLODED was a Turbine-Engined Vessel and Sister Ship of the Viper, Which Previously Wrecked.

London, Sept. 19. — The torpedo boat destroyer Cobra has foundered in the North Sea as the result of an explosion. The vessel was enroute from the yard of her bulgders, the Armstrongs, of Newcastle, to Portsmouth, and carried a navigating crew of from fifty to sixty men. It is reported that all were lost, with the exception of about a dozen persons.

The first intimation of the disaster was the arrival of a fishing boat at Yarmouth, with six bodies, which she had picked up in the vicinity of the spot where the Cobra was last seen. According to the fishermen the Cobra was sighted by the light ship Dowsing Sands, yesterday morning enveloped in steam, and soon afterwards she disappeared. The men on the lightship supposed the Cobra had sailed away, until the evening when they observed bodies floating in the water and signalled to the fishing boat to investigate the disaster.

A despatch from Middleboro says twelve survivors of the crew of the Cobra were landed there this morning and confirms the first report that all the others were drowned. The British Admiralty has received information that the explosion occurred after the Cobra struck a rock, and that she sank immediately.

The Cobra, like her sister boat, the Viper, wrecked off the coast of England recently, was a turbine-engined vessel. She had just left the yard of her contractors and was undergoing a boiler test.

About one year ago the torpedo boat destroyer Cobra beat the record of the Viper, and won the title of the fastest vessel in the world, making 37.7 knots, or 43.5 miles an hour.

The Cobra had on board forty-two naval men, and about 35 men in the employ of the contractors. So far as known the twelve men previously referred to are the only survivors. Five boats were launched after the Cobra struck, but some of them were swamped in the heavy sea.

EMMA GOLDRAN CZAR'S SPY.

Prominent Russian in Washington Makes Affidavit That Woman is Paid.

Washington, Sept. 19.—There are good reasons to believe that Emma Goldman, while posing as an anarchist, is in reality a paid spy of the Russian government. A wellknown Russian of this city and for years in close touch with high officials of the czar made the following statement in regard to this matter to the correspondent of The Chronicle to-day:

"Emma Goldman is a Russian spy and in the pay of the third section of the police of that country. She was and I believe is constantly in communication with the czar, and the Russian consul general at New York, and her work for that government is very effective. The pay of the Russian government is her real source of income. I would like to have Miss Goldman asked the following questions:

"'How many interviews did you have with Alexander Orlarovski, former consul general of Russian at New York?

"'Did you know the Ginsberg woman who was arrested at the winter palace, St. Petersburg, in 1891 for an attempt on the life of the czar?

"'How many interviews did you have with Consul General Peploff, who succeeded Orlarovski at New York?'

"Whatever her replies may be to these questions, I can state with absolute truth that it was through Emma Goldman's instrumentality that Miss Ginsberg was arrested in front of the winter palace as she was waiting a chance to kill the czar. I will also make an affidavit to the effect that I saw a secret communication sent by Miss Goldman to Orlarovski while the latter was in New York.

"It was as follows:

"'I would like to meet you at 8 o'clock to-night at the corner of One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street and Sixth avenue. I have important communications to make to you, and for God's sake destroy this paper, for it may endanger my life.'

"I am in position to state that Goldman was regularly giving information to the Russian consul general."

FRIENDS OF BOERS ADJOURN.

Postpone Mass Meeting Because of President McKinley's Death.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—Because of the death of President McKinley no action was taken at the boer sympathizer's meeting last night in Schiller hall, 109 East Randolph street. An adjourned meeting will be held in the Schiller hall Monday, Sept. 23, at which time, it is said, they will petition the President of the United States to submit to congress a message pointing out the sad condition of the women and children reconcentrado prisoners in South Africa, where, they assert, the death rate was over 20 per cent in July, 1901. At this rate all will be dead in from four to five years, say the boer sympathisers.

"Get the women and children out of the hands of the British," they say, "and the 17,000 boers now in the field will place the boer flag on the staff of the government building in Pretoria within a year. The boers say they are prevented from cutting off the food supplies now, knowing that the British soldier is to be fed before the boer women and children."

At the adjourned meeting they will probably decide to ask the United States government to intervene in favor of the boers, even by force, if necessary

Lakefields Fair

The annual fair of the Township of Smith and Ennismore and Village of Lakefield Agriculture Society will be held in the Society's Grounds, in Lakefield, on Tuesday and Wednesday, October 1st and 2nd, 1901.

Competition is open to the Province and a good exhibit is expected. Prize lists may be had on application to the Secretary, W. Sherin, Lakefield.

Death or lunacy seemed the only alternative for a well-known and highly respected lady of Wingham, Ont., who had travelled over two continents in a vain search for a cure for nervous debility and dyspepsia. A friend recommended South American Nervine. One bottle helped, six bottles cured, and her own written testimony closes with these words: "It has saved my life."—60

GEN. BOOTH COMING.

Will Again Visit the United States and Canada

The Aged Leader of the Salvation Army Will Personally Inspect the Work in America

New York, Sept. 19—For the fourth time since the Salvation Army became an integral part of America's Christianity Gen. William Booth, its founder, is coming to direct personally a campaign of righteousness. For four months and a half, in an itinerary that would stagger a less seasoned soldier, he will journey through the length and breadth of the land in his evangelical crusade.

The general's arrival in New York on September 28 will be the inception of the Eastern Congress of the army, which will be attended by 1000 officers. On Sunday, the 29th, the General will preach at three services—morning, afternoon and evening. "The Lesson of My Life" will be the subject of his lecture at Carnegie Hall on the evening of the 30th. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday will be given up to councils, in which field officers from the Central, New England, Atlantic Coast, and Western New York provinces will be represented.

Buffalo will be assaulted by the general on Sunday, October 6, which is expected to be a banner day; Rochester on the 7th, Syracuse, Albany, and Worcester, Mass., on the three succeeding days, bring him to a pause in Boston till the 14th. Two days each in New Haven and Philadelphia and a week in Toronto, Canada, for the Congress on that side of the line, and then the general jumps to Pittsburg, November 2, to reconnoitre in Allegheny, Indianapolis, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Columbus, Toledo and St. Louis till November 17, followed by a week in Chicago, where the Central Congress, with 800 officers, is held. Racine, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Des Moines, and Omaha come next, with Kansas City, where the Crusader stops four days for the Western Congress of 400 officers.

December 15 will find the general at Fort Amity Colony. Then follow Pueblo, Colorado Springs, two days at Denver, San Jose, and another pause at San Francisco on December 20. A day at Oakland and the general returns to San Francisco for the Pacific Congress, which assembles 300 officers. Then he goes to Los Angeles on January 6, and El Paso, Texas, on the 9th. San Antonio and Fort Worth are the two other points touched in the Lone Star State, and two days in New Orleans bring the traveller to the 17th. From New Orleans he goes to Birmingham, Ala.; Nashville, Tenn., and Atlanta, Ga., where there is a three days' stay.

At the national capital the General will be heard on the 26th and 27th, Baltimore on the 29th, and then a return to New York for a few final days before he sails on the 8th, complete this gigantic programme.

Commander and Mrs. Booth-Tucker and their aides at the Fourteenth street barracks are making elaborate preparations for the general's reception and tour.

GROWING BEET SUGAR.

An Industry That Has Made Astonishing Progress

Chicago, Sept. 20.—Nobody believed much in beet sugar ten years ago, because the process of getting sugar out of beets was so much more complicated and expensive than it was out of cane. But experiments were made, nevertheless, and plants were erected at enormous expense, when, the destruction of sugar plantations in Cuba compelled us to do something to make up the deficit in cane sugar.

One thing to be determined was where beets rich in sugar would best grow, and it has been found that they can be grown in acres as great as the wheat belt. In nearly every agricultural State, from Ohio to California, thousands of acres are now planted in beets, and the industry has grown to such proportions that it looks as if cane sugar would have to take second place.

It is worthy of note that the British Consul at Chicago predicts that this country will soon be producing all the $100,000,000 worth of sugar that it now imports.

RAILWAYS OF THE WORLD

At the close of the last century the railway mileage of the world was 180,-000, and for some years previously there has been an annual increase of nearly 2 1-2 per cent., the actual mileage added being 11,000. Most persons, if asked the question, would say that the largest amount of new mileage is in America, but Europe led the list on average construction during the last few years, as the following table will show:

	Miles.
Europe	4,100
America	3,500
Asia	2,250
Africa	1,100
Australasia	160

Russia has led the way in railway construction in Europe, her new mileage in the last ten years being 5,145, not including the Siberian railway. Germany has laid 2,547 miles with rails in the last decade, Austria 3,360, but Great Britain only shows up for 568 miles. Belgium has more railway mileage per capita than any other European country, England coming next. British railways are far more extensive per mile than those of any other country. There are three times as many miles of railway per thousand square miles of territory in England than in the United States. During the last four years Africa has made an excellent showing in railway construction, the new mileage in that period being 4,330 miles. Of this 826 miles are in Egypt, 494 miles in British South Africa, 586 in the Transvaal Colony, 596 in the Orange River Colony, and 590 in Algeria and Tunis. The mileage in British East Africa and Uganda is not given by Engineering, from which the above figures are taken, but it is very considerable, and in some aspects forms the most interesting piece of railway work accomplished in a long time. From present appearances Canada and British Africa seem to offer the greatest prospects of railway construction in the near future.

WEARING THEM DOWN

The flag at half-mast in front of the Court House, out of respect for President McKinley, reminds us that the mayor of New York refused to permit the flag to be hung at half-mast over the New York City Hall when Queen Victoria died.

London, Sept. 18.—A despatch from Lord Kitchener at Pretoria, dated yesterday, announces that since September 9, 47 Boers have been killed, 7 wounded and 411 captured. In addition to these one hundred and thirty-four Boers have quietly surrendered.

A commando of Boers attacked Belfast on the Delagoa Bay railroad last Sunday evening. They were easily repulsed by the defending force.

Several columns have returned to this place to refit. The situation in Cape Colony is unchanged.

Pretoria, Sept. 17.—The counsel for the prisoner Broechmans, at present on trial at Johannesburg for treason, objected to the jurisdiction of a military court-martial while civil courts are in existence, but the objection was not sustained. Broechmans was once a colleague of Dr. Krause, who is now on trial in England for espionage. A number of incriminating documents found in the prisoner's house are the basis of the charge laid. The documents also develop the fact that correspondence with the Boers was exchanged through the American Consul at The Hague.

The British Government, though taking cognizance of the evidence, will not bring it to the attention of the United States Government, leaving Washington to take action it necessary.

Pretoria, Sept. 17. — Although the day offered the last chance for the Boers to surrender, under the recent proclamation of Lord Kitchener, no news of any important surrenders has been received.

Pretoria, Sept. 17.—One of the officials of the late Boer Government, at present in this city, announced last night that one of the chief means of holding the Boers together was the pro-Boer speeches of the English statesmen. His opinion that these opinions were the foundation of Boer hopes had been corroborated during the past fortnight.

It is learned that the final plan of the Boers is to make for the Demaraland border and accept the offer of the German Government to sell them land at fourpence an acre. The only stipulations made by the Germans to which the Boers object are that they (the Boers) shall be liable to two years' military service, and that their children must be educated in German. This matter is a subject of talk in the refugee camps. Some estimate that 20,000 families will go.

A representative of the Boers called at the office of the American consul at Johannesburg recently to ascertain under what conditions the burghers could secure property in the United States.

The Cause of Nervous Headache

This most distressing and common malady doubtless has its origin in some unbalanced condition of the nervous system. Probably the simplest, safest and most efficient remedy is Polson's Nerviline. Twenty drops in sweetened water gives immediate relief, and this treatment should be supplemented by bathing the region of pain with Nerviline. To say it acts quickly fails to express the result. Sold everywhere in large 25c. bottles.

Children

Have "eyes bigger than their stomachs," according to an old saying. They over-eat themselves, and are tempted by all sorts of injurious and indigestible edibles. As a consequence the foundation of serious stomach trouble is often laid in childhood.

For children with "weak" digestion or whose stomachs are diseased, Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery may be confidently recommended. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, so that the nourishment contained in food is perfectly assimilated and the puny child is built up by food into a condition of robust health.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery contains neither alcohol nor narcotics.

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good" for diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition.

Mrs. Ella Gardner, of Waterview, Middlesex Co., Va., writes: "My little daughter is enjoying splendid health. I am glad I found a doctor who could cure my child. Whenever she feels badly I give her Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and she is soon all right. She took twelve bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' eight bottles of 'Pellets,' and one bottle of of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy and she is well. We thank God for your medicine."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE BURLEIGH POWER

The discussion of the lease of the Government Dam, or dam No. 6, to a company, which has brought it directly under contribution for power purposes, has stirred up the people to a consideration of franchises in general. Industrial power must not pass into the hands of mere speculators. The lease of the Government Dam was brought about solely by the inauguration of the Cordage factory scheme. It is therefore a legitimate lease, and one the people should consider favourably. Moreover, there is no spirit of monopoly manifest with regard to the surplus power of that dam. The town gets 400 h.p., free. However, we are glad to see that the Board of Trade,—which is the only popular assembly in town where every ratepayer may, if he likes, have his say, is taking it up. It should be the means of threshing the wheat from the chaff.

A great difficulty, however, in all these things is the persistent intrusion of political scheming. Politics—not capitalism—is the real curse of Canada. The country is bought and sold every day by scheming politicians, and by those willing to sell their own franchise for a paltry bribe. These two, form the upper and nether millstones, between which honest labour is crushed.

Is it not very strange that the public has not applied to the Government for a lease of the Burleigh Dam? Why should a lot of capitalists be allowed to buy this up for a paltry pittance to exact perhaps 1000 per cent dividend out of the public? The next move will be that when a company comes to town and wants power it will ask the town to present them with it, bought by the town from the Burleigh Falls Company. This Burleigh Falls business must be looked into promptly. We are being betrayed, however, with the latest appliances. Burleigh Falls power may be peddled out to rival centres, and Peterborough will see other places arise and make bows of sarcastic acknowledgement to the town that did not know a good thing when it had it. We seem to have very few men able and willing to serve the people. Are there no patriots—men anxious for the publics good? Let it be our resolve in future to see that power shall be sold to those only who propose to utilize it—that, unlike land, it shall not be cornered by the greedy speculator. Let us see that bribery shall be put a sudden stop to, so that honest men may have a chance of being elected to the parliaments of our country. Remember that we are bought and sold every day under our very noses by the very men who jolly us into believing that the people run everything. The day is coming, however, when we shall cease to be between the devil and the deep sea. We shall emerge from the darkness of our supineness and ignorance, and laugh to scorn the men whom we now worship. When bribery is abolished the hand of the political schemer will have to turn to a more honest employment, and the solid thought of the people will find a better outlet than through the the nozzle of the beer-pump, and all that is included in that name. Political trickery has bred a species of mutual distrust. Men are disinclined to believe in the independence and honesty of each other. This tide of rottenness is carrying us to perdition. Vanity and selfconceit have become the sails of our ship of state. Can the country pull through till we learn better ways? That is the searching question of every patriot. A new country, like a mining camp, is more or less a scene of disorder and crime—a prey to the plunderer and a sacrifice to evil dealing. Through years of civilizing contact with the outer world, a new condition arises, and a gradual improvement becomes noticeable. That is why we are hoping—ever hoping—for better things. God grant that they may come.

TO END THE BOER WAR

London, Sept. 19

Much anxiety exists as to the development of the new system of hostilities. The English taxpayer is compelled to spend £10.00 a week on maintaining the wives and families of the men who are engaged in blowing up trains, shooting women and children and murdering unarmed Kaffirs. The reprisals threatened by De Wet are probably no more than will be carried out by the Boers. It is believed by many old colonists now in this country that the war is about to become a war of extermination, and that the reputation for "magnanimity" which our War Office are so desirous of establishing will have to be exchanged for a resolve to beat the Boers in the field. This "magnanimity" has taken curious forms. The following is the diet of the Boer concentration camp at Port Elizabeth: Breakfast consists of porridge and milk, bread and butter, with coffee; there is served for dinner soup, meat, two kinds of vegetables and pudding; tea generally consists of bread and butter, with either jam or sardines. All the food is cooked for the Boer women. In contrast to this treatment of the Boers by the English, the English loyalists assembled in camp on the beach at East London, seventy miles farther east, have not received a penny from the Government. They are dependent upon charity, and the wives and children of the loyalists who have lost their all, and in many cases their lives, fare more hardly and live more roughly than the wives and children of their enemies. The 5000 Boer prisoners in Ceylon, located in a delightful climate, are said to be remarkably "fit." Within the Boer enclosure there are Boer curiosity shops, bakeries and wood carvers' huts, where little purchases can be made. In the centre of the camp there stands a big hut, which is used as a theatre, with a stage at one end, and piano on it. There is also an open space of ground, where football and cricket are played. All the necessary gear for these sports is provided, and a lawn tennis court with net, racquets and balls is not forgotten. The soldier who keeps guard over this part of the enclosure must surely sometimes wonder that a grateful country does not do a little more for him, too. The common sense of the English people is roused against the absurdity of the situation, and the coming autumn months are certain to witness a sharp division of opinion on the subject of the war.

TO STOP SUPPLIES.

The proposed action of England in denying the fighting burghers the rights of belligerents, will have a decidedly wholesome effect, as it will enable Britain to stop the smuggling of supplies through Portuguese territory.

PRO-BOER APPEAL.

A leading Baptist minister, Dr. Clifford, has succeeded in obtaining the signatures of 843 Nonconformist ministers, to a colorless peace manifesto, published on August 13. The basis of this manifesto is (a) the offer of an amnesty as large and as far reaching as possible; (b) the grant of autonomy to the two contending States, with the limitations incident to the federalizing of South Africa on Australian or Canadian lines, and (c) the gift of compensation to those who have suffered by the war. Dr. Clifford declares on his own account that the Boers are "fighting for life and liberty, for home and sheer existence." Every child in South Africa and everybody over 16 in Great Britain and the colonies knows that this is untrue. Lord Kitchener's conversation with Botha at Middleburg on February 28, and reported to Mr. Brodrick in the despatch of March 20, 1901, gave to the Boers of peace so generous that there is no parallel in history for them. Amnesty, the retention of their language, and capital to restock their farms, with local government as soon as possible, were refused.

There was a time when the Nonconformists of England would have declined to be made instruments of political firebrands of the type of Dr. Clifford. In the days of Dr. Binney, Dr. Dale, of the Hon. and Rev. Baptist Noel, the Free Churches would have refused to be made party to the prolongation of a war to the detriment of their own country and of their own people. The 843 ministers are inferentially pledged by Dr. Clifford to pro-Boerism. This is a political fact of the highest importance, and already the utter baselessness of Dr. Clifford's assumption is being shown. If the war is to be brought to an end, the weakness of the Government must be remedied by the definite instructions of the people to pursue it with greater vigor, to drop their "magnanimity" and to deal with murderers and thieves in South Africa as murderers and thieves are dealt with at Newgate.

RADICAL MEASURES URGED.

Dr. Clifford and his following are the allies of the enemies of the empire, and although many of those who find themselves in the same galley as Dr. Clifford were doubtless ignorant of the use that would be made of their support, the fact remains that, as in the navy, as in the case of Waims, and as in a hundred other cases, it is found necessary for the public at large to insist on the Government bringing the war to an end. We know that this cannot be done by proclamations, or by the use of ink or smooth words. It is suggested by persons of influence that for every week that the war continues after September 15 the Boer prisoners ought to be retained for a year, at the cost of the two conquered colonies; that every train ought to carry twelve Boer hostages who should be shot the instant the train is fired upon. The precedent followed by the Germans in France in 1871, as expressed by General von der Tann's proclamation, should be followed. It was as follows:

"The railways utilized by German troops are not to be injured.

"Every person injuring a railway or a part of a railway shall be punished by death.

"The communes to which persons guilty of injuring the railways belong, as also those of the territory where the injury takes place, shall be responsible for a fine equal in amount to their annual liability for State taxes.

"The Mayors are required to establish watchmen to look after the railways on their property in order to save the infliction of a fine upon their communes."

Sherman's march through Georgia continues to be studied in detail as a most convenient precedent for the policy of extermination.

ON THE WAY TO CANTON

Pittsburg, Sept. 18.—Daylight was dawning as the train bearing the remains of President McKinley arrived at Altoona, at the foot of the eastern slope of the Alleghanies. Through the semi-darkness as the forms of many people could be seen strung along the tracks. Outside the depot a throng of three or four thousand people surged up to the train. Many must have been there all night and others had waited for hours, as the train had been originally scheduled to reach that point at 3.20 a.m. Extra engines were coupled on here and the train was pulled laboriously up the mountains. The morning was raw, foggy, and cheerless. Mountaineers with axes on their shoulders came down from the steep slopes to pay their homage with uncovered heads.

Passing the summit at Cresson the descent began. Half the population of Johnstown, the first of the great steel manufacturing centres through which the train was now to pass on its way to the martyred President's home, was at the track and a company of local militia stood drawn up at attention. Men, women and children were there. Miners with lamps in their caps had rushed forth from the tunnels at the train's approach, and the steel mills along the Connemaugh River had been emptied. From the smoke-covered city came the sound of the church bells clanging out the universal sorrow.

At Pitcairn, the end of the railroad division, the train crews and engines were changed, and the railroad men were out in force.

Passing through Pittsburg at 9.35 a.m. a wonderfully impressive sight was presented. No stop was made, but fully 50,000 people were present near the railway. Along both sides of the track for miles were solid walls of humanity. In some places the people stood twenty deep while the embankments were black with them. On the top of every freight car was a human badge. The overhanging bridges bent beneath their burden. The roofs of the houses were lined. All stood with uncovered heads while the bells of all the churches were tolling.

THE MEMORIAL SERVICE.

Arrangements have been finally completed for the memorial service to the deceased President, at the Metropolitan Church tomorrow at 3 o'clock. Rev. Dr. Chown will preside, and among the other speakers expected to be present are Rev. Dr. Carman, A. E. Ames, president of the Board of Trade; Revs. J. A. Rankin, A. Brown, J. C. Speers, Wm. Hincks, Drs. Chambers, Hunter and Walker, Mr. F. H. Torrington will preside at the organ.

FIRED AT ANDREW JACKSON

An Attempt Made to Assassinate "Old Hickory."

Washington, Sept. 19.—The shooting of President McKinley has recalled an incident in the life of President Andrew Jackson, which historians have not recordered. An attempt was made on the life of President Jackson on January 30, 1835, by an English house painter named Lawrence. President Jackson on that day had gone to the House of Representatives to participate in funeral services held in honor of a deceased representative from South Carolina.

After the customary solemnities a procession was formed to escort the body to the place of interment. President Jackson walked near the head of the procession in company with Mr. Woodbury and Mr. Dickerson. The head of the conclave had just crossed the Capitol rotunda and was about to emerge upon the portico when Lawrence stepped from the crowd and when within a distance of eight feet from the President presented a pistol at Jackson's breast and pulled the trigger. The cap exploded, but for some reason the powder failed to ignite. Lawrence dropped the revolver to the ground, and, producing another which he had concealed beneath his cloak, again pulled the trigger. The second weapon also missed fire.

The President, as soon as he perceived the intent of the assassin, rushed furiously at him, with up-raised cane to fell him to the earth, but before he reached Lawrence, Lieutenant Gedney, a naval officer, had struck Lawrence down. The President immediately entered a carriage, and was driven to the White House.

Lawrence was at once taken to jail, webre his identity was learned, together with the fact that he was insane. He had been for a long time without work, and having heard that General Jackson was ruining the country, conceived the idea of assassinating him. It was several days before President Jackson could be convinced that the attempt to murder him had not been at the instance of a coterie of his political enemies.

Lawrence was never punished. He was permanently confined in an insane asylum where he died.

CARRIE SMASHED OTTAWA GLASS

Ottawa, Sept. 18. — Carrie Nation prefaced her lecture last night with a window-smashing trip about the city. At five o'clock she started down Sparks street, attired in a black dress with long linen cloak and poke bonnet. She carried a hatchet. A crowd followed her into the Globe hotel.

"You should be in better business," she said to the silent bartender, who kept looking at the hatchet.

"Don't you know you are a home smasher?" asked Mrs. Nation. "I don't want to hurt you, but I am going to show you that I don't approve of your business. I'm going to smash that looking-glass," said Mrs. Nation, pointing at a large mirror behind the bar.

"Don't you do it," said the barkeeper.

"Yes, I will," said Mrs. Nation.

"You'll go to jail if you do."

"No I won't, so there." Then she threw the hatchet and the glass scattered in a hundred pieces.

The crowd cheered, and when the noise subsided Mrs. Nation said, "Give me back my hatchet." The barkeeper refused, but Mrs. Nation said she would make him, and to get rid of the lady she was given the hatchet.

She next went down to the Hub hotel on Sussex street, lectured the bartender about selling liquor and then smashed a number of bottles with her hatchet. Two policemen put her out of the hotel and took her uptown to the Russel.

Ormes Hall was crowded at night to hear Carrie denounce rumsellers and their methods.

WHEN BABY IS SICK.

Crying the Best Index to Its Physical Condition.

A baby's cry should be to the intelligent mother the best index to its physical condition. The healthy baby cries very loudly and in a lusty, explosive, angry manner, and the tears flow freely. The sick baby, or the one on the verge of sickness, cries peevishly or whines in a low tone.

Watch the manner in which the baby takes its food. If it is perfectly well it will attack the bottle greedily, and will express its satisfaction much in the same manner as any other young suckling animal—that is, by soft and inarticulate noises or grunts. If, on the other hand, the baby contemplates its food before touching it, or, after tasting, turns from it, be sure there is something wrong.

Watch the baby closely while it sleeps. If it is in perfect health the skin will be moist, the lips damp and scarlet, the palms of the hands and the soles of the feet pink. The eyelids will be completely closed and there will be no twitching of the muscles about the mouth or nose or eyes. Save for a faint rhythmic sound of breathing the healthy baby when asleep will be as still as a piece of carved marble.

If the baby smiles in its sleep, if it throws out its little hands and feet with swift, spasmodic motions; if the eyes are only half closed, the corners of the mouth drawn down, the breathing irregular or labored, the face flushed and the head hot, then lose no time in calling in the family physician.

THE VALLEY SHADOWS.

The Shadows in the valley,
They gather grim and grey;
We needs must pass their darkness through,
It waits on every way;
But from the heights decending,
O soul, be brave and strong,
And make the valley shadows ring
Unto the hilltop song!

The shadows in the valley,
They gather grey and grim,
But all the darkened roads go straight
From mountain brim to brim;
And now the heights ascending,
The way behind you long,
How steadfast sounds your faithful chant,
The valley's hilltop song!

—Ripley D. Saunders.

A Word About the Bathroom

The bath itself must, of course, always be kept spotlessly clean and the taps brilliantly polished, and the linoleum covering the floor always carefully swept and washed, but even more than this is needed to make a really comfortable bathroom. A cork or rubber mat should be kept in every bathroom.

Woolen mats are useless; they absorb the moisture and become unhygienic. A place should be found on the wall for a mirror—a plain one with a black frame will answer the purpose admirably; the longer it is the better, and it should be placed where there is a good light. Two wire trays should also be fastened to the wall beside the bath, and low enough to be within easy reach of the person using it.

These are to hold the sponge and flannel and soap when not in use during the bath. Also shelves should be made and placed upon the walls of every bathroom. These may be of plain deal, enamelled any color that is liked.

Plenty of soap should always be provided and towels in abundance, and with all these little comforts the daily bath will be indeed an unmixed pleasure.

Proper Manners at the Table.

There is no place where a person's good breeding and early training, says a writer in The Delineator, are more clearly shown than at the table. Peculiarities of manner which might elsewhere pass without criticism are not there allowable. Conduct must be marked by serenity, and there must be no uncertainty of manner, but an easy knowledge of the use of all the belongings of the table. Customs which may seem insignificant are in reality of sufficient import not to show the difference between refinement and the lack of it, between a familiarity with social conventionalities or the reverse.

Whether a dinner is ceremonious or informal, certain customs remain the same.

We will suppose that a lady is taking her seat at a dinner party. She immediately removes her gloves, places them in her lap, unfoldes the napkin, takes the roll or bread from within it and places it at the left hand, on the table, and lays the napkin across her lap. At each place there may be on the right two large knives, a small silver fish knife and a tablespoon, and on the left three or four silver forks, one of them a fish fork and one an oyster fork.

The oysters are served on the shell and must be eaten whole, not cut in half.

Soup is taken with a tablespoon and from the side of the spoon; one must never tilt one's soup plate to secure the last spoonful and must never be served twice to soup.

For the fish course, the silver fish fork and knife are used. Butter is not served at dinner. It is not good form to eat bread between the courses, as if one were hungry.

Some entrees, such as cutlets or sweetbreads, may require the knife and fork; for others, such as patties, timbales or croquettes, a fork only is used. Meat is cut as required, a small piece at a time. When eating vegetables the knife is laid on the plate, the blade resting near the center. The knife must not be placed across the edge of the plate, nor with the handle resting on the table. The fork is then taken up in the right hand, the handle of the fork resting easily on the hand between the first finger and the thumb.

Small birds, such as quail and squab, are served whole, one for each person, and one cuts the meat from the breast and eats each piece at the time of cutting it.

—Hon. J. R. Stratton and Hon. J. M. Gibson were turned back by a gale of wind on Tuesday, and the Toronto News is unkind enough to remark that it is but a foretaste of the way they will be turned back by the votes of the electors when they appeal to the country. Well, as a former Peterborough alderman was wont to sagely remark, "We shall see what we shall see."

What Catarrhozone Is And Is Not.

Catarrhozone is not a wash. You cannot force liquids into the lungs. It is an ointment to be snuffed up the nostrils. Ointments are useless and disgusting. Nor is it a powder to be blown up the nostrils and still further irritate the already congested and irritated membrane. It is simply balsamic and healing substances breathed into the lungs and throat. Cures of course. That is nature's way of curing, and nature's way is the only way. If you suffer from disease of the throat lungs nasal passages, do not neglect to test Catarrhozone. Two sizes at all druggists, 25c. and $1.00. Guaranteed to cure Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis and Hay Fever, or your money back.

American Newspaper Directory.

Tells the circulations of all American newspapers. Revised, corrected and reissued every three months. Sixteen hundred pages. Price Five Dollars a volume or $20 a year.

BUFFALO.

We should hardly know how to get along without the American Newspaper Directory. We regard it by all odds the most complete and reliable guide that the advertiser can make use of; in fact we use no other.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 24, 1901.
R. V. PIERCE, M.D.,
President World's Dis. Med. Ass'n.

VERMONT.

ADVISOR.

The Advisor accepts the American Newspaper Directory as the standard in newspaper ratings. The obstacles which obstruct its efforts to get true and reliable information are many.

* * *

The directory question is one which interests every publisher in the country—nay, the entire world. But in the United States, directories are becoming altogether too numerous. In this, as with other books of reference, it is necessary to have one which may be relied on as being an authority on the matter of newspaper circulations. There can be no question about the fact that at this time, as for many years past, the American Newspaper Directory is that authority. The Advisor is not paid to make this announcement. It makes the statement in the interest of advertisers and publishers because it is true. One thing the advretiser is almost cock-sure of when he refers to the American Newspaper Directory is that the circulation figures he sees therein are not overstated to any great extent. In most other directories they are. Only the publisher himself is to be blamed for no securing a proper rating in that publication, and every advertiser of consequence knows it. Thus the publisher who refuses to furnish a statement places himself under a reasonable suspicion.—The Advisor for June.

New York, June, 1901.

CHICAGO.

Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co's American Newspaper Directory has long since earned the reputation of being the best of its character. It contains the result of patient, expensive and systematic effort to secure all attainable information of interest concerning American newspapers. The work has been honestly done. This will not be questioned by any unprejudiced examiner. The most important question is circulation. In attempting to give this information the Editor of the Directory encounters his most difficult work. It is the aim and necessity of the Directory to give the truth. The American Newspaper Directory is today hte dependence and guide in a greater or less degree, of every large advertiser in the country.—Chicago (Ill.) Daily News.

BATES.

The American Newspaper Directory is the only reliable guide for the advertiser.

No man who advertises can afford to do without it.

What Bradstreet and Dun are to the mercantile world, The American Newspaper Directory is to the world of periodical publications.

A new advertiser will get from the American Newspaper Directory a better idea of the greatness of his country, and the tremendous possibilities in newspaper advertising, than from any other source.

If an advertiser spends only $100 a year he should have the American Newspaper Directory. For his business may grow and his right expenditure of his money become increasingly important. The time to learn how to spend $10,000 a year is before it is spent, otherwise the spending may be disastrous.

Many times the best paper in town costs the advertiser no more than the poorest. The American Newspaper Directory tells which is which.

The paper that was the leader in its town five years ago may lag behind to-day. Even one year may witness astonishing changes. If you are spending money for publicity it is vastly important that you should know where to get the most of it for the price. The American Newspaper Directory gives not only the present circulation rating of every paper in America, but shows their history by quoting past ratings.

The book costs five dollars a copy, and a single reference to it may readily save or make many times its cost.

All newspaper directories but one are erroneously optimistic about circulations. The American Newspaper Directory may occasionally err on the other side, but that makes it all the safer for the advertiser.

My advertising experience began in 1886, and one of the first things I did was to buy a copy of the American Newspaper Directory.

For sixteen years Rowell's "The American Newspaper Directory" has had a place of honor and usefulness on my desk.

Many a publisher is ready to prove by other directories that "Rowell's is wrong," but few indeed can be induced to prove it by opening their circulation books to the advertiser.

Among publishers who are not willing that their real circulations be known, it is the best hated book in print. The moral is not far to find.

CHARLES AUSTIN BATES.
New York, June 24, 1901.

PABST.

If the improvement of the American Newspaper Directory continues in the future as it has during the past twenty years I do not think I shall live long enough to see any other directory take its place. There will, however, be the usual crop of directories just as every other good thing is imitated. Your long years of experience in dealing with evasive circulation reports have most admirably fitted you for placing a proper valuation upon such statements. Advertisers have come to know that the Rowell estimates are nearer the proper figure than can otherwise be obtained. The American Newspaper Directory is therefore indispensable in every well regulated advertising department. Lines are being more tightly drawn every day; it is difficult to collect for twenty thousand when you print only eight. If the advertiser were buying barley he would not accept three pecks for a bushel, although the quality might at all times be open for discussion.

The American Newspaper Directory is the guide and companion of the advertising man, and it is to the interest of all concerned to help perfect it, support it, and hurrah for it.

SAPOLIO.

A growing need created it—the advertising agency system. One of the earliest and most successful workers, Geo. P. Rowell, is still in the field. He originated methods. Others follow his publication of a list of all the papers—the American Newspaper Directory. He has never ceased to love it, and labor for it. Soon out of the gross stupidity of imitation, it became a rule that every agency down to those of Oshkosh or Oklahoma must issue its own directory. An awful waste, for not more than one out of ten was worth shelf room. If the National Association of Advertising Agents could agree long enough to buy Mr. Rowell's Directory, publish it officially and drop all the others, it would accomplish something.

Advertising Manager for Sapolio.

WASHINGTON.

Every page of the American Newspaper Directory breathes the desire of its publishers that it shall be absolutely correct in every statement it makes.

SOUTHERN.

We subscribe to and pay cash for the American Newspaper Directory, and find it of great value in our advertising department. We have 6,892 miles of railway, extending from Washington, D. C., all over the South, and in advertising this system we use more than 1,000 publications, and in selecting this list we find that we get a correct idea of circulation from this Directory that can not be obtained from any other similar publication. We receive other newspapr directories gratis, but the fact that we pay cash for this one in addition shows that we can not place the same dependence upon the "free list."

We thoroughly appreciate the careful manner in which this Directory is compiled.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 18, 1900.
JOS. H. HANNEN,
Adv. Dept. Southern Railway.

I am looking forward to receiving the new edition with a great deal of anticipation, as, although the American Newspaper Directory seemed to have reached a high state of perfection several years ago, there is always something new and of value in each succeeding edition. It is regarded as the standard authority with the Southern Railway.

S. H. HARDWICK,
General Passenger Agent,
Washington, D. C., May 21, 1901.

BALTIMORE.

We have used the American Newspaper Directory for many years and find it more valuable to us than any other similar publication. Much of the information given we cannot obtain in any other way. The book is not only a great help, but a necessity to our business, and we think its way of stating circulations is the ideal one.

KIDNEY TROUBLE FOR YEARS.

There are many women here in Peterboro suffering from backache and wrong action of the kidneys who are attributing their ill health and misery to some form of "female complaint." Kidney trouble is undermining the health, and sapping the strength, making the back ache and the head ache, bringing the feelings of tiredness and listlessness, dragging pains in the loins and all those other conditions of wretchedness that are undoubtedly produced by poisons circulating in the blood instead of being carried off by the natural channels.

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are the modern specific for all forms of Kidney trouble and all conditions of ill health arising therefrom. Just read what Mrs. Armstrong, Rubidge street, this city, has to say about them:— "For many years I have had trouble with my kidneys, and pain across my back. I have used all kinds of medicines in the past without any good results. I heard of the many cures that Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets were making, and got a bottle, and the use of the Tablets has made it possible for me to again attend to my household duties. I am glad to recommend them to others as certain to do good."

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Tablets are 50 cents a box at all druggists. The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto, Ont

ALL SAINTS HARVEST FESTIVAL

The Annual Harvest Home—The Church Elaborately Decorated.

All Saints' Church was crowded to the doors last evening on the occasion of the annual harvest festival of the congregation. Willing hands had lent their kindly aid in decorating the sacred edifice, and the result amply justified the many encomiums of praise bestowed upon the workers. The interior of the church was beautifully decorated with flowers of every description, the centre of the building being tastefully festooned with oats and other grains, while various agricultural implements were in evidence. The sanctuary in particular was a veritable tower of beauty, with the altar covered with bread and grapes, and the walls concealed by the bloom of potted plants. The work of decoration was performed by the women of the Chancel Guild, assisted by some of the members of the Girls' Guild.

The lessons and prayers were read by the Priest-in-charge, Rev. W. L. Armitage; Rev. Ernest Alvin Langfeldt, M. A., rector of Omemee, being present. An eloquent and scolarly sermon was delivered by the Rev. A. J. Fidler, rector of Uxbridge, his being the second chapter of Ruth, fourth verse: "And behold Boaz came from Bethlehem and sent unto the reapers, The Lord be with thee; and they answered him, The Lord bless thee."

There was a full choir, the music being a feature of the service enjoyed by all present, Miss Bullen presiding at the organ. Several elaborate chants and anthems were rendered, and such familiar hymns as, "Come, Ye Thankful People, come," "We plow the soil and Scatter the Good Seed o'er the Land," and "Praise O Praise our God and King,". The service throughout was intensely devotional and hearty, the congregational singing of the hymns being remarkably fervent. A handsome offertory goes to swell the fund for wiping out the small debt on the church.

Marriage of Mr Lyman Moore and Miss Green at Stirling—A Keene Wedding

At 6 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, at the residence of the bride's mother, Stirling, the marriage took place of Mr. Lyman F. Moon, of the National Hotel, Peterborough, and Miss Dolly Green, daughter of Mrs. Hester Green.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. S. S. Burns, pastor of the Stirling Presbyterian church, in the presence of a large number of invited guests. The bride was most handsomely gowned in a costume of white organdie, trimmed with white silk and applique lace, and was attended by Miss Bessie Parker, who wore white organdie trimmed with pink satin and also applique lace. Miss Moon was most becomingly attired in white organdie, with white silk trimmings, while her sister, Miss Gertie, was gowned in white muslin, trimmed with pale blue silk. Miss Edith Conley, of Stirling, played the wedding march at the conclusion of the ceremony. The groom was supported by Mr. Will Parker, of Parker's Bank, Stirling. A reception was held at the residence of the bride's mother after which the newly married couple left on the evening train for Peterborough amidst a shower of rice and good wishes for their future happiness, both of them being extremely popular in Stirling. The bride's travelling dress was navy blue, with hat to match. After a brief stay in Peterborough, where they were accorded a splendid reception and where the young gentlemen friends of Mr. Moon, popularly known as "The Bunch," presented him with a handsome silk plush sofa, the bridal couple proceeded to Port Hope, and from thence sailed for Rochester. After a two weeks' honeymoon in the principal American cities, Mr. and Mrs. Moon will return to Peterborough, and reside at the National.

ANDREWS-ROSE.

On Wednesday at 10.30 a.m., at the residence of Mr. A. Weir, Keene, Mr. James Andrews, of Toronto, formerly of Keene, was united in marriage to Miss Della Rose. At half-past ten the bridal party entered the parlor, suitably adorned for the occassion, to the strains of the wedding march, rendered by Miss M. Andrew. The bride looked charming in a travelling suit of fawn. The bridesmaid, Miss Ethel McIntyre, of Bobcaygeon, was also prettily attired. Mr. W. H. Andrews performed the duties of groomsman. The nuptial knot was tied by the Rev. Dr. Andrews, assisted by the Rev. D. A. Thompson, of Hastings. After the ceremony ample justice was done to a sumptuous wedding breakfast. The presents were numerous and costly, a proof of the high esteem in which both are held in the community. The groom's present to the bride was a beautiful chatelaine brooch and to the bridesmaid a gold bracelet. The young couple left on the afternoon train for Kingston and the Thousand Islands and other points. Mr. and Mrs Andrews, on their return, will reside at 61 Bellevue Place, Toronto, which with furniture complete, was presented to the bride and groom by the Rev. Dr. Andrews.

Children

Have "eyes bigger than their stomachs," according to an old saying. They over-eat themselves, and are tempted by all sorts of injurious and indigestible edibles. As a consequence the foundation of serious stomach trouble is often laid in childhood.

For children with "weak" digestion or whose stomachs are diseased, Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery may be confidently recommended. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, so that the nourishment contained in food is perfectly assimilated and the puny child is built up by food into a condition of robust health.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery contains neither alcohol nor narcotics.

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good" for diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition.

Mrs. Ella Gardner, of Waterview, Middlesex Co., Va., writes: "My little daughter is enjoying splendid health, I am glad I found a doctor who could cure my child. Whenever she feels badly I give her Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and she is soon all right. She took twelve bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' eight bottles of 'Pellets,' and one bottle of of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy and she is well. We thank God for your medicine."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

MONUMENT TO ALFRED THE GREAT UNVEILED

Lord Roseberry, Former Premier of England Eulogises the Great Saxon King.

KING EDWARD AND HIS QUEEN ARRIVE IN SWEDEN

Czar of Russia Spends a Quiet Day at Compiegne—Exchange of Visits Between Various Personages.

Winchester, Eng., Sept. 20.—In the presence of a vast concourse of Anglo-Saxon delegates and officials Lord Roseberry today unveiled the great statue of King Alfred. During the course of his eulogy of the Saxon King, the former Premier said:

"King Alfred wrought immortal work for us and for our sister nation over the sea, which in supreme moments of stress and sorrow is irresistibly joined to us across the centuries and across the sea."

KING EDWARD IN SWEDEN.

Helsingborg, Sweden, Sept. 20.—King Edward and Queen Alexandra arrived here at noon today on the British Royal yacht Osborne. The King of Sweden received them at the landing stage. The royal party drove to the castle of Sofiero, cheered by the populace.

MOVEMENTS OF THE CZAR.

Compiegne, Sept. 20.—The Czar is spending today in comparative repose, after a couple of very fatiguing days. He passed the morning in his apartments without signifying what he intended to do until lunch time. Even President Loubet was kept in suspense. The latter part of the morning was devoted to an exchange of visits with various personages. The weather brightened in the afternoon and crowds of people invaded Compiegne from Paris and the neighboring towns in the hope of obtaining a glimpse of the Czar, but they were disappointed. The streets are still decorated and will be illuminated this evening.

DUTCH BUDGET.

The Hague, Sept. 20.—The budget for 1902 shows an expenditure of 167,000,000 guilders, a deficit of 13,000,000 guilders.

VICEROYS HAVE RESIGNED

Hong Kong, Sept. 20.—Viceroy Tao Mu of the provinces of Kwang Tung and Kwang Si, and Viceroy Liu Kun Yi, of the provinces of Kiang Si and Kiang Su, have forwarded their resignations to Sian Fu, accompanied by a protest against the usurpation of power by the anti-foreign Conservatives.

MANY INDIANS STARVE

Fourteen Hundred Said to be in Want in North West

A STARTLING STORY TOLD

By a Methodist Missionary from the far North West Country.

He Comes to Solicit Aid for 1400 Starving Aborigines—A Queer Tale of a Peculiar Race of People.

Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 21. — Among the many strange stories brought here by Rev. F. G. Stevens, a Methodist missionary from the far northern district which borders the great Barren Grounds of the Canadian Northwest, who comes to solicit Government aid for 1,400 starving Indians, is that about Chief David, head of a band of 200 Cree Indians.

The chief ruled his little band with an iron hand. Many tales are told of his wide bursts of passion, when the men, women, and children of the tribe fled before him as before a hurricane. When in his tantrums the chief was a veritable Nero of the North and was feared and hated by all. In a wild fit of rage about a year ago he murdered his father-in-law and threatened to exterminate his whole family. Not a member of the tribe dared to interfere while he put his wife's father to a horrible death, first tearing out his tongue and cuting off his ears, and then sending a tomahawk crushing through his skull.

Chief David, after his crime, became gloomy and morose, for an avenging nemesis seemed to be following him. His wife first became sick, and notwithstanding the treatment of a famous medicine man from a distant tribe, died in great agony cursing her husband with her last breath. Following closely upon the death of his wife came the sickness of his four children. They, too, died of a most mysterious ailment.

About a year ago the members of the tribe decided that the Great Spirit was angry with Chief David for his crimes, and that if he remained among them they, too, would be visited with sickness and death. It was decided to expel him from the tribe, and giving him several blankets and skins, he was exiled to a lonely spot situated about three miles from the Indian encampment. Here the once powerful chieftain led an existence which in time drove him half crazy. No member of the tribe was permitted to speak to him, but he was frequently seen wandering through the woods in search of game.

About a month and a half ago David was seen to take his canoe and start out for a small rocky island in God's Lake, about a mile from shore. It was thought that he was going to gather gulls' eggs, and when he did not reappear in several days' time nothing was thought of it. When, however, a week passed by and the late chief was not seen around his accustomed haunts a search for him was instituted. No trace of the missing man could be found. No one apparently thought of looking on the rocky islet for him, until forty-five days after the disappearance of the chief, Mr Clements, a Hudson Bay trader, visited the encampment.

He was told the story, and at once suggested that a visit be made to the island, where he thought the skeleton of the chief might be found. A flotilla of canoes put out, and in the rank grass which was the only vegetation on the island, Chief David was found in the last stages of starvation. He had been on the little rock in full view of the encampment for forty-five days, and during that time had absolutely nothing to eat, as when he recovered he said he had been unable to gather any gulls' eggs and had taken no food with him.

Reduced to mere skin and bone it took the late chief a week to recover. He told his story to Mr. Clements, who had remained in the camp, and it was repeated to Mr. Stevens by members of the tribe several weeks ago. David tired of his isolation, and remorseful for his crimes had decided to commit suicide by starving himself to death when he started out in his canoe. Upon reaching the little rock in the centre of the lake he turned his canoe adrift and stoically laid down to die. He said he suffered terribly from the pangs of hunger for the first two weeks and prayed for death, but made no attempt to attract the attention of the Indians in the camp.

After the first ten days he became semi conscious and did nothing but take a drink occasionally and lie in the grass. When Mr. Stevens reached the camp of the Crees several weeks ago Chief David had been restored to his former position as leader. He was fat and hearty notwithstanding his terrible experience, which by the way, has made him one of the best-natured Indians in the entire district.

HOCKEY FOR WOMEN.

An English Game That Might be Introduced in Peterborough.

Hockey for women, for several years the vogue in England, is being introduced in the United States, and the game might be adopted here. The All-England Women's Hockey Association was founded in 1895, and ever since then there have been matches played throughout the kingdom. The All-England team is composed of the best players in England, picked from the winners at the county matches. It has played matches with the teams from Ireland and from Wales and it still remains invincible. Hockey may be played in any open field, but a closely clipped lawn, pretty firm in its makeup, is best suited to the game. The hockey ground is laid out 100x60 yds. and marked off in 50 and 25-yard lines in white, in much the same way that a football field or tennis court is laid out. The ball, which is very hard and always white, is about the size of a cricket ball—that is, three or four inches in diameter, and a little larger than your baseball. Two goal posts, four yards apart, are at either end of the field. Each side endeavors to get possession of the ball and send it through its opponent's territory, between the opposite goal posts. Players are divided into forwards, halfbacks and backs. The usual line-up is five forwards, consisting of one centre, two insiders and two wings—three half-backs and the right and left backs. That, of course, takes ten players. The eleventh is stationed at the goal and is called the goalkeeper. The goalkeeper has the privilege of kicking the ball when it becomes necessary for her to do so. She is the only player so privileged. She, however, has a hockey stick like all the others, the captain is generally centre forward and leads the game. There is no danger in this game, nor is it in the least rough or unwomanly. Players must keep the relative position they held at the original lineup, so there is no chance of hitting with each other's sticks. Nor is there any colliding. Girls are coached not to stoop when striking the ball with the hockey stick, and, as an added precaution, the stick is not swung up higher than the shoulder. This rule is rigidly adhered to, and if a player swings her stick too vigorously and too far, the opposing side can cry "Sticks," and is entitled to a free hit. All players are required to wear skirts which clear the ground by at least six inches. The big teams have costumes of special design. The conventional cap, when a cap is worn, is a Tam o' Shanter with a feather or pompom.

A Crepe Famine.

New York, Sept. 21.—The famine in mourning goods in Chicago will be broken in a few hours. To-day twenty-five cars loaded with black goods were dispatched to that city from Passaic, N. J. Mills which manufacture black goods, crepe and American flags have been working night and day, but cannot begin to fill orders.

VIEW OF U.S. CONSUL ON THE BOER WAR

Likes the Boers but Condemns Kruger and Co.

HOW THE BOERS ELUDE PURSUIT

Kansas City, Sept. 21—Colonel Stowe, formed United States consul at Cape Town, South Africa, arrived in Kansas City this morning. Colonel Stowe resigned his position in spite of the protests of the government and a large number of comerical organizations throughout the country. The salary was not sufficient to induce Colonel Stowe to retain the place.

"The pay is not enough," said Colonel Stowe today. "It is less than any other government pays its consul and all this in view of the fact that our trade has increased from 9 million dollars to 20 millions in the last few years.

"I cannot tell how far off the end of the Boer war is. The resistance seems to be steadily growing less. This may largely be accounted for by the reports by Boers who have been kept in the concentration camps. All these Boers had free permission to make any complaints they wished to me, but I was never appealed to. As a matter of fact, they are better cared for now than they ever were. They get new clothes, are well fed and 900 or 1,000 of them have joined the police force.

"The method of warfare is this: A British flying column starts out in pursuit of the Boers, or rather the Boer forces, composed of men of all nationalities. After a skirmish the Boers separate, to meet at some previously appointed place. They separate into squads of two or three, and retreat to the mountains, which are covered several inches deep with thorns and in which bridle paths are the only roads. If the British should attempt to separate in like manner and pursue the Boers they would be cut off and killed. Only occasionally the Boers come from the mountains for food.

"I like the Boers of the veldt, even the simple, ignorant and superstitious. They are a kindly, hospitable people and have been led like sheep to the slaughter. One cannot help but admire their blind patriotism, but the government of the so called South African republic, the immortal thirteen, the triumvirate with its Hollander attachments, was an oligarchy pure and simple, and Paul Kruger was its prophet."

Colonel Stowe says that after the war is ended prospects for trade in South Africa will be excellent. Stocks are depleted, and, in many cases, exhausted by the war and will have to be replenished. The Boers will return to their farms and should be kindly treated. In time iron and copper mines will be developed. There are also strong indications of oil. What am I going to do? Nothing. I am a diplomat out of a job."

Colonel Stowe was appointed consul to Cape Town, South Africa, in September, 1896, by President McKinley. His salary was only $3,000 a year, while the recompense of the German consul to the same place was $10,000 a year. The low salary was the principal reason which led to Colonel Stowe's resignation, although American commerical interests which he so ably represented agreed to add materially to his salary if he would remain in South Africa.

Colonel Stowe was in South Africa at the beginning and during the height of the Boer war and represented the United States during that time in a competent and diplomatic manner. A year ago last August Consul Stowe was a passenger on a special train which was derailed, fired upon and captured by the Boers. Many bullets passed through the compartment in which Colonel Stowe was sitting. Colonel Stowe was uninjured and he induced the Boers to release all persons and baggage captured on the train. At the time Colonel Stowe was going to Pretoria on a special mision for the United States government.

Colonel Stowe was directly responsible for a great increase of American trade with South Africa. He had been engaged in business in Kansas City since 1887 and is president of the Stowe Implement company.

CONCERNING THE ANARCHISTS.

What Sort of People They are and Where They Come From

Where do the anarchists come from?

The U. S. immigration bureau reports that 314,043 immigrants arrived from Europe in the first seven months of 1901. Three out of every four of them came from Italy, Austria-Hungary and Russia, in the following proportion:

Italy	96,190
Austria-Hungry	83,527
Russia	51,901
Total	233,918

These people have an inherited hatred for government.

The attempt to tract the lineage of Czolgosz recalls the connection of his father with the Molitor murder mystery which shocked Michigan 25 years ago. The elder Czolgosz was one of the colonists in Presque Isle County, ruled over by Henry Molitor, an illegitimate son of King Louis of Wurtemburg, who fled from Germany under sentence of death.

Stung to desperation by Molitor's tyrannies and vice a band of colonists poured a volley of bullets through the killing Molitor.

The principal actors in this tragedy were sentenced to prison for life, but were subsequently pardoned. Amid such surroundings Assassin Czolgosz was born and reared.

One of the members of a cabinetmaking firm in New York has reported to the police that he had had in his employ a number of Italian cabinetmakers, and on the day President McKinley was shot at Buffalo they set up wild cries in the shop in commendation of the assassin's act. They cheered and yelled with delight until the firm became frightened at having such characters in its employ and discharged about a dozen of the most desperate ones. Since then members of the firm have received a number of threatening letters.

It is difficult to prevent such a crime as that of the anarchist at Buffalo. "There were about 20,000 soldiers," it is noted, "close to President Carnot at the time of his assassination, and over 60,000 were near the Czar Alexander when he was struck down."

RUSSIA'S NEW SHIP

The New war Ship That Ranks Among the Best

Said to be the Most Powerful Vessel Ever Constructed.

Lewes, Del., Sept. 21. — The Russian battleship Retvizan proceeded to sea Saturday for the most important of the various tests incident to the construction and acceptance of a warship, that of the heavy batteries.

The ship steamed direct to the neighborhood of Five Fathom Bank lightship, where she had made remarkable success in her speed trail. Everything had been made in readiness for the test during the night, and the Russians who were in charge of the firing sent the first shell from the starboard 12-inch gun at 9.40 o'clock. It was only a half-service charge, and the effect produced on the ship was slight. After much delay on account of the nervousness of the foreigners, who fired the guns from the conning tower by means of long wires, another of the big guns sent a shell bounding across the sea with the velocity produced by a three-quarter service charge and the ship's vibrations were more noticeable from this shot. The motion was soon over, however.

The great shock came when both 12-inch after guns were fired simultaneously with full charges. The noise was terrible, and the frail wooden partitions and doors that temporarily separated the quarters of the main deck were smashed and twisted like splinters, and some of the electrical appliances were disturbed. Otherwise there was not noticeable damage to the ship and E. S. Cramp, who was on board in charge, was highly pleased with the stability of the ship as proved by this shot. Only a few shots were fired from the forward big guns. After one or two shots one of the ammunition hoists got out of order.

The only difference that occurred during the day between the builders and representatives of the Czar was when the foreign gunners proposed to fire both forward guns at once elevated to a pitch that threw them exceeding close to the overhang of the main bridge. Such a shot would necessarily endanger the bridge, and Engineer Mull, of the Cramp representatives, protested. After much argument the shot was not used.

The guns, turrets, ammunition, hoists, etc., were all products of Russia, and the turrets are undoubtedly of splendid construction, as the effect of the test by careful measurement did not move them 1-64th of an inch. The test will be completed in two days.

Much longer time was taken than was necessary on account of the Russians, who went to remote part of the ship at each shot. The Russians placed live rabbits in the gun turrets during the fire to see if they would live, so as to show the effect on the gunners in the turrets. Not a single rabbit was affected.

JUDGE LYNCH ABROAD.

The Danger of Disparaging the Late President McKinley.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 29—The Rev. Albert Dahlquist narrowly escaped from a howling mob of about 1,000 people tonight who demanded that he be lynched. Dahlquist is alleged to have made a speech in Minneapolis a few days ago in which he referred to the assassination of the President as a noble deed. The man is an itinerant preacher and has been holding meetings in a district largely inhabited by Scandinavians.

Many of these people had heard of his Minneapolis speech, and when he appeared at the hall to-night to preach, a crowd of 1000 had assembled. As soon as he was seen a rush was made for him and threats of hanging and other ill treatment were heard on all sides. A squad of police had great difficulty in protecting the man, and at last he broke away, jumped out of a window and ran down the street with the mob at his heels. He outfooted his pursuers and escaped.

Canton, Sept. 20—While the crowd was assembled yesterday, waiting to view the President's remains, someone accused an Italian of saying that he would kill President Roosevelt. The man could hardly speak a word of English, and his replies, given at random, enraged the crowd. The cry was raised to lynch him. If the militia had not rescued the poor fellow would have fallen a victim to the people's rage.

Bayonne, La., Sept. 20—Isaac Marshak, aged 14, made disparaging remarks about President McKinley to his schoolmates. Thereupon the boys gave him one of the soundest beatings any boy ever received. As a crowning punishment his hair was plastered with caterpillars.

New York, Sept. 20—Magistrate Cowell arrested yesterday and sentenced to two months on Blackwell's Island a Troy shoemaker, Wm. Davis, who sneered at the band of mourning he wore on his sleeve.

New York, Sept. 20—For using abusive language against President McKinley, Alfred Danschlall was sent to jail for sixty days at Plainfield, N.J.

Clear Lake, S.D., Sept. 20—G. N. Miller, of this place, was stabbed in the arm and severely injured by a tramp, whom he knocked down for remarking it was a good thing McKinley was shot. Miller was pounding the tramp unmercifully when other tramps came to his rescue, and a small riot was loose for a few minutes. The police finally got the tramps to jail, but not before the one who used the knife was badly pounded up.

Boers in the Field Get News.

Pretoria, Sept. 21.—On August 29 two dispatch riders were captured on the Portuguese border carrying letters to Mr. Reitz, which also contained clippings from the Review of Reviews and other pro-Boer publications. That similar literature has reached the fighting Boers is shown by the fact that ex-President Steyn told the Dutch Cape ministers who came as peace emissaries that the Boer position was more favorable than it was a year ago.

Boer View of an Oath Told by Great Britian

London, Sept. 21.—The Johannesburg correspondent of the Times says, in a dispatch referring to the number of falsehoods employed even by the Boers who have surrendered, declares that in the refugee camps elaborate arguments are heard to show that oaths taken to the British are not binding. Abuse of Boers who have taken office under the British often runs to the extent of recommendations that they be buried alive.

ONE SUSPENDED THE OTHER REPROVED

Finding Against Preachers Who Went Slumming at Syracuse

O GO BEFORE THE CONFERENCE

Smith's Falls, Sept. 20.—The committee of trial in the celebrated McAmmond Sanderson case finished its labors tonight and made a report. The committee recommended that the Rev. D. C. Sanderson be suspended until conference, and that Rev. Foster McAmmond be reproved by the Chairman. The suspension of the Rev. Mr. Sanderson was the limit of the committee's power and now it remains for conference to deal with him. The whole evidence will be submitted to the Montreal conference of the Methodist Church this June, when Mr Sanderson's case will be finally dealt with. Meantime, he is relieved of all ministerial work. The unhappy experience of the two men in Syracuse will be well remembered and need not be referred to at length now. They denied the truthfulness of the sensational reports published, and demanded an investigation by a church court, and this was granted. The committee consisted of the Rev. J. Tallman Pitcher, Chairman; the Rev. D. Antliff, Kingston; the Rev. Hugh Cairns, Morrisburg; the Rev. J. T. Mansell, Brockville; the Rev. Dr. Larmour, Easton's Corners, and the Rev. D. Cummings, Pakenham.

INVESTIGATION AT SYRACUSE.

When the committee met here first, on the 27th of August, the statements of the two clergymen were taken down, and then an adjournment was made. The Chairman delegated Mr. J. R. Lavell, M.P., a lawyer of this town, a commissioner to go to Syracuse and collect all the evidence bearing on the case that he could get. A great many of the sensational reports published at the time were proven to be false, and many of the principal witnesses examined bore out Mr. McAmmond and Mr. Sanderson's version of the affair. In Mr. Sanderson's case, however, there was no evidence obtainable as to how he came to be in the condition he acknowledged himself to have been in. He says strange men gave him drugged candies on the street, and then for some hours all is a blank to him. On this statement he rests his case, and disclaims any conscious conduct unbecoming his position as a minister of a Christian Church. Expert evidence was taken by the committee as to the probable effect of any drug that could be administered in candy drops, but it is understood that it did not tend to clear matters to any extent. The statement of the woman, Pearl Ashley, were shown to be unworthy of credence, as she offered for a consideration to sign any statement that was written out for her, either for or against the men.

The exact finding of the Trial Committee is as follows:—"We find that the charge against him, Mr. McAmmond, of associating with an immoral person is not sustained, and inasmuch as he pleaded guilty to the charge of registering at the Mansion House, Syracuse, under an assumed name, and having expressed extreme regret for having done so, while we believe that the act was not done with any evil intention, yet it indicated a serious lack of becoming gravity and has been a source of great reproach to the church, we think the ends of justice will be met by the Chairman administering a severe reproof, which we here by direct him to do." This was signed by all the members of the committee and was presented to the Chairman as their unanimous decision. It must be said that the committee have scarcely done themselves justice in the wording of the verdict, but the meaning is understood to be that, while Mr. McAmmond had been foolish and indiscreet, he had not been guilty of any grievous wrong, and a reproof from the Chairman was deemed sufficient punishment. The reproof was administered on the spot, and on Sunday Mr. Pitcher will go before Mr. McAmmond's congregation in Perth and repeat it.

WEDDING BELLS.

Interesting Events at Bridgenorth and at Lindsay.

A pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. Wesley Northcott, on Wednesday, Sept. 18th, at 8 p.m., when his daughter, Ruby, was married to Mr. Wm. Jas. Brumwell, of Lakefield. The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. Nickle, of Bridgenorth. The bride was neatly attired in light grey, and wore peach blossoms. The bridesmaids were her cousin, Miss F. Kemp, and her sister, Pearl. Each carried a beautiful bouquet of flowers. About fifty guests sat down to a nicely prepared tea, and the evening was pleasantly spent. All join in wishing the happy couple every pleasure and success in their new home in Lakefield.

At Lindsay on Wednesday afternoon Miss Celia E. Granger, of Sutton-West, Ont., was united in holy bonds of wedlock to Mr. Herbert W. Skitch, of Lindsay. The groom was assisted by his brother, Mr. W. F. Skitch, of Peterborough. After the ceremony a sumptuous wedding repast was served. Many beautiful and costly presents were received. Friends were in attendance from Gravenhurst, Sutton-West, Rochester, Millbrook, Omemee and Dunsford. The happy couple left on the 8 o'clock express for Trenton and other eastern points.

ILLUMINATIONS RIVAL THOSE AT BUFFALO

Imposing Procession Through the Streets--Civic Address Alluded to King Edward's Visit

Montreal, Que., Sept. 20.—The citizens of Montreal gave their Royal Highnesses a great send-off when they left for Ottawa this morning. The route from Lord Strathcona's house to the Windsor depot was well lined with spectators, while in front of the depot and all along the sides of Dominion square the crowd was as thick as at any time on Wednesday. The military guards were small, except the Fifth Royal Scots, who furnished a guard of honor, with a band which looked extremely well. The royal carriage was escorted by a squad of mounted police and the usual cavalry escort, and as it passed along the Duke and Duchess both bowed their acknowledgments and seemed to be delighted with the enthusiasm. His Royal Highness wore plain morning dress, while the Duchess was dressed in a simple black costume with bonnet to match. As they entered the station they were received by Lord Strathcona, the Mayor, Sir W. C. Van Horne, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy and the members of the Civic and Reception Committees. Their Royal Highnesses shook hands with all the members of the committee, winding up with Sir William Van Horne and Sir Thomas Shaughnessy. Mr. Baker received the party at the train and sharp at nine o'clock it pulled out for Ottawa amid renewed cheering. At St. Polycarpe the train will be handed over to the Canada Atlantic Railway Company, who will carry it to the Capital.

THE DUKE AT OTTAWA.

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 20.—Ottawa awoke early this morning, pulled up the window blinds, saw that the day would be fair, straightway got on its most regal attire and eagerly prepared to give royalty a most royal welcome. The capital of a young puissant nation, destined to rival, perhaps surpass, in the coming years, the old Mother Land in population and industries and affluence, rose nobly to the opportunity and gave a worthy greeting to the heir of the greatest of all world empires. Preparations for the royal festival were practically completed. Last night the illuminations on the Parliament Buildings were rehearsed. The many hundreds of incandescent lights lining the magnificent gothic architecture of the nation's council house on Parliament hill were turned on at first in a dim ruddy glow, then gradually in full splendor. The effect fell but little short of the boasted Buffalo Exposition illuminations.

On all the principal streets there is a lavish display of flags and bunting, the main walls of the Commons looking especially gorgeous with its long rows of flowing streamers leading up each side to the pavilion situated just below the main stairway, where their Royal Highnesses were officially welcomed. Early this morning a gang of men were putting on the finishing touches and dusting the large arch at the corner of Sparks and Metcalfe streets, just to the south of the main entrance to the Commons. "One hundred thousand welcomes" was the motto on one side of the arch, "One People, One Flag, One Empire," was written on another side. Both mottoes were appropriate. Judging by the enthusiasm of the cheering crowds the Duke and Duchess were thrice welcome to every one of Ottawa's 60,000 citizens, and in the heart of London itself the heir to the throne could not have found himself more warmly received by British subjects.

A RETROSPECT.

Forty years ago Ottawa, then a mere an historic river, welcomed to her gates the eldest son of Queen Victoria by sending down the river to greet him scores of canoes manned by the sturdy lumbermen who then mainly composed the city's population. They were picturesquely dressed in white trousers, red shirts, with sashes and caps to match. During the river trip up to the city they sang boat and shanty songs to the accompaniment of their flashing paddles. When the Prince and suite had landed the men of the axe and pikepole also disembarked and escorted the royal visitor to the old Victoria hotel.

Today how different the reception! Instead of a primitive steamer and an escort of shantymen bearing the implements of peace instead of those of war, the son of the then Prince arrived at the station in a sumptuous royal train and was escorted up the wide well-built streets of one of the busiest and most progressive cities in Canada, with all the pomp and ceremony of martial escorts and glittering uniforms.

Promptly at 11.45 this morning the royal train pulled into the Elgin street station. The approaches to the station and the whole neighborhood were black with cheering thousands. "The glory of the North" as one of Ottawa's poets has called her, gave a resonant welcome to the future King and Queen. The guns thundered out a royal salute from Nepean Point, and the bands struck up the National Anthem, and their Royal Highnesses and suite stepped from the train and were greeted by the dignitaries of the Capital.

THE PROCESSION.

The royal procession promptly joined up and proceeded up Parliament Hill via Elgin, McLeod, Metcalfe, Sparks, Bank and Wellington streets. The order of the procession was as follows:—

Three mounted police.
25 yards space.
Two troopers.
50 yards space.
One sergeant.
5 yards space.
A staff officer.
No. 1 troop of escorts.
50 yards space.
Carriages of royal suite.
No. 2 troop of escorts.

A staff officer.
Headquarters staff.

Second in command of escort.

Captain the Viscount Chrichton.

No. 3 troop of escorts.
50 yards space.
No. 4 troop of escorts.
50 yards space.
One sergeant.

Two troopers.
25 yards space.
Three mounted police.

It was 12.35 o'clock when the Royal party reached the main entrance to the Parliament Grounds. On either side of the carpeted walk just behind a row of erect soldiers, members of the Governor General's Foot Guards, were some 10,000 school children, each provided with a Union Jack. As the Duke and Duchess walked up to the pavilion, the school boys' band struck up "God Save the King," and the children sang the National Anthem, and cheered and waved their flags with regular school boy enthusiasism.

The Royal party were received by Mayor Morris and the Cabinet Ministers headed by Sir Wilfred Laurier, and led up to the pavilion, Mayor Morris, in long flowing red robes and lace collar, preceding Sir Wilfred with the Duchess and Lady Laurier keeping up an animated conversation with the Duke. On the platform of the pavilion were some two hundred of the elite of Ottawa society and of Ottawa officials, including all the Cabinet Ministers, the Deputy Ministers, Speaker Brodeur, Mgr. Falconio, and the Judges of Supreme Court, and other dignitaries of Church and State.

The Duke and Duchess were formally installed in the middle of the platform and the formalities of presenting addresses proceeded with. After enduring the ordeal for some minutes, his Royal Highness read a somewhat lengthy reply to all these tokens of fealty, and love from His Majesty's loyal subjects in Canada.

THE DUKE'S REPLY.

He declared his intention of taking back to his dear father all these eloquent expressions of devotion to his throne and person and stated that he and the Duchess were truly thankful for the heartiness of the reception accorded them upon their entrance into the capital of the Dominion. He referred to the fire calamity at Hull and was pleased to see that that city had again arisen from its ashes and was again facing its destiny with glowing hopes. Growing reminiscent, he referred to the fact that he was now standing on the threshold of the building whose foundation stone had been laid by his father forty years ago.

The change in local and national conditions since then was dwelt on briefly and his Royal Highness concluded with the hope that the two races in Canada will continue to aid and co-operate each according to its genius, in the building up of the great edifice whose foundations have been so well and truly laid.

After the ceremony on Parliament Hill, the Royal party proceeded to Government House for luncheon. This afternoon they are in attendance at the championship lacrosse match and tonight the official dinner at Government House takes place.

THE CIVIC ADDRESS.

The city's address to the Duke was in part as follows: "May it please your Royal Highness, with sentiments of the most profound gratification at teh opportunity thus afforded us, we, the Mayor and Corporation of the City of Ottawa, in the name of all our citizens, offer to your Royal Highnesses a sincere and hearty welcome to the capital of the Dominion of Canada and humbly beg to assure your Royal Highnesses of our unwervering loyalty and devotion to the throne and person of his Majesty the King. It is but natural that the presence of your Royal Highnesses should recall the ever memorable occasion when your august father visited the then infant capital and laid teh corner stone of these Legislative Halls which, in their massive and enduring character afford to-day a fitting symbol of our inalienable attachments to those great principles of Constitutional Government, to which are due in no small measure, the glory and the greatness of the British Empire. Four decades have since passed away, and the little town which, in the wisdom of the great and good Queen Victoria, was chosen for such high power, has become a flourishing and progressive city of sixty thousand inhabitants, the home of many and varied industries, and the centre of a great railway system, thus, we are proud to think, justifying the confidence, which the Prince, now our gracious King, was pleased to express in replying to the address from the corporation of that day that with increase of population and influence Ottawa would prove itself worthy of the country of which it is the capital and justify its selection by the sovereign.'" (Signed) W. D. Morris, Mayor; John Henderson, City Clerk.

The programme consisted of dancing, singing recitations, etc. The music was furnished by Thomas Guinlaw in his usual happy way, and was assisted by Chas. Waldun, with his banjo. After a couple of hours set dancing, room was made for Richard Healy, who danced a jig via., —"The Plains of Kildore"; Steve Murphy, of Indian River, and Felix Lynch, sang a song, entitled "I am a pet of every girl" which completely took down the house and brought rounds of applause from the audience, especially from the female portion.

CURE OF HYDROPHOBIA

Chicago, Sept. 19.—That hydrophobia, once thought to be nearly if not quite incurable, is robbed of its terrors is shown by the latest report of the Chicago Pasteur institute at 228 Dearborn avenue. Since the establishment of the institution 1,150 patients have been treated, and of this number only seven died, making the mortality but little more than one-half of 1 per cent.

Records of untreated cases show that the mortality is about 88 per cent. for bites on the face, 67 per cent for bites on the hands and 20 to 30 per cent for bites on the limbs and body.

Many states and territories, as well as Canada, have sent patients to the institute. Of the total number of patients received, 1,040 had been bitten by dogs. Cats had wounded 38 horses 41 skunks 12, wolves 5, cows 6, a calf a, a rat 1, a mule 1, a pig 1 and human beings 6.

Of the seven persons who died, four were overtaken by hydrophobia soon after reaching the institute many days having elapsed since they were bitten.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed. Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

WIFE GREETS PRESIDENT.

Washington, D. C. Sept. 20.—President Roosevelt to-night is at the residence of Captain Cowles, the home of his brother-in-law. He reached there at 9.40 o'clock, accompanied by Captain Cowles, who had been officially detailed to escort the President.

In a second carriage were Secretary Hay, of the State Department, and Secretary Gage, of the Treasury, the senior Cabinet officers, neither of whom went to Buffalo, and who met Mr. Roosevelt as President for the first time to-night.

The President ran lightly up the steps of the Cowles residence, after glancing at an American flag hanging at half-staff over the door. He went immediately to the parlor and greeted Mrs. Roosevelt, who had arrived at 4 o'clock, and who for the first time saw her husband as President of the United States.

Both Secretary Hay and Gage alighted, but neither entered the house. Secretary Gage walking to his own house on Massachusetts avenue and Secretary Hay driving to his residence.

"Is your mamma cross? Mine is awful cross! Does your mamma say 'Hush!' when you laugh or make a little bit of a noise? My mamma does. She has nerves, papa says."

The mother who overheard this account of herself would feel heart-broken to think of the shadow cast by her misery on those she loved. Yet her condition is real. Her nerves are strained to the point of torture. Lack of appetite and loss of sleep increase her weakness.

Such a condition may, in general be traced to disease of the delicate womanly organism, a cure for which is found in the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It establishes regularity, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. It tranquilizes the nerves, encourages the appetite and induces refreshing sleep.

"I had been a constant sufferer from uterine disease for five years" writes Mrs. J. A. Steorts, of Yankee Dam, Clay Co., West Virginia, "and for six months previous to taking your medicine I was not out of my room. Could not walk or stand as there was such pain and drawing in left side and bearing-down weight in region of uterus, accompanied with soreness. I suffered constantly with headache, pain in back, shoulders, arms and chest; and could not sleep nor lie down. When I had taken three bottles of the medicine the periods were regulated, I was not so nervous, could sleep well, and the pain in side and bearing down had vanished. My health is better at this time than it has been in five years."

FOUNDERING OF THE COBRA

London, Sept. 19. — The torpedo boat destroyer Cobra has foundered in the North Sea as the result of an explosion. The vessel was enroute from the yard of her builders, the Armstrongs, of Newcastle, to Portsmouth, and carried a navigating crew of from fifty to sixty men. It is reported that all were lost, with the exception of about a dozen persons.

The first intimation of the disaster was the arrival of a fishing boat at Yarmouth, with six bodies, which she had picked up in the vicinity of the spot where the Cobra was last seen. According to the fishermen the Cobra was sighted by the light ship Dowsing Sands, yesterday morning enveloped in steam, and soon afterwards she disappeared. The men on the lightship supposed the Cobra had sailed away, until the evening when they observed bodies floating in the water and signalled to the fishing boat to investigate the disaster.

A despatch from Middleboro says twelve survivors of the crew of the Cobra were landed there this morning and confirms the first report that all the others were drowned. The British Admiralty has received information that the explosion occurred after the Cobra struck a rock, and that she sank immediately.

The Cobra, like her sister boat, the Viper, wrecked off the coast of England recently, was a turbine-engined vessel. She had just left the yard of her contractors and was undergoing a boiler test.

About one year ago the torpedo boat destroyer Cobra beat the record of the Viper, and won the title of the fastest vessel in the world, making 37.7 knots, or 43.5 miles an hour.

The Cobra had on board forty-two naval men, and about 35 men in the employ of the contractors. So far as known the twelve men previously referred to are the only survivors. Five boats were launched after the Cobra struck, but some of them were swamped in the heavy sea.

EMMA GOLDMAN CZAR'S SPY.

Prominent Russian in Washington Makes Affidavit That Woman is Paid.

Washington, Sept. 19.—There are good reasons to believe that Emma Goldman, while posing as an anarchist, is in reality a paid spy of the Russian government. A wellknown Russian of this city and for years in close touch with high officials of the czar made the following statement in regard to this matter to the correspondent of The Chronicle to-day:

"Emma Goldman is a Russian spy and in the pay of the third section of the police of that country. She was and I believe is constantly in communication with the czar and the Russian consul general at New York, and her work for that government is very effective. The pay of the Russian government is her real source of income. I would like to have Miss Goldman asked the following questions:

"'How many interviews did you have with Alexander Orlarovski, former consul general of Russia at New York?

"'Did you know the Ginsberg woman who was arrested at the winter palace, St. Petersburg, in 1891 for an attempt on the life of the czar?

"'How many interviews did you have with Consul General Peploff, who succeeded Orlarovski at New York?'

"Whatever her replies may be to these questions, I can state with absolute truth that it was through Emma Goldman's instrumentality that Miss Ginsberg was arrested in front of the winter palace as she was waiting a chance to kill the czar. I will also make an affidavit to the effect that I saw a secret communication sent by Miss Goldman to Orlarovski while the latter was in New York.

"It was as follows:

"'I would like to meet you at 8 o'clock to-night at the corner of One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street and Sixth avenue. I have important communications to make to you, and for God's sake destroy this paper, for it may endanger my life.'

"I am in position to state that Goldman was regularly giving information to the Russian consul general."

To Starve is a Fallacy.—The dictum to stop eating because you have indigestion has long since been exploded. Dr. Von Stan's Pineapple Tablets introduced a new era in the treatment of stomach troubles. It has proved that one may eat his fill of anything and everything he relishes, and one tablet taken after the meal will aid the stomach in doing its work. 60 in a box, 35 cents.—64

BYGONE DAYS

That Peterborough should have been honored with a visit by the Duke of Cornwall and party, we think few will deny. It was one of the few places visited by his father in 1860, and for this reason alone should not have been overlooked.

However, on account of the fact that the Prince will pass through Canada, it is not out of place to publish a sketch of the visit of the Prince of Wales to Peterborough forty-one years ago this month. The following is from the local papers published at that time:

"There are three arches erected by the Committee. One in Ashburnham, nearly opposite Mr. Roger's store; one on Hunter street, opposite St. John's Church, and one on George street, above McGregor's Hotel. They are really very fine structures, and their appearance is strikingly imposing. That in Ashburnham is a Roman design. On the east side of it, and surmounting the main arch, is the Prince of Wales Plume, under this the word "Welcome," in large letters. The rest of the bark is handsomely covered with evergreens. On the west side are the Royal Arms, over the words "God save the Queen," the body of the arch, like the reverse side being covered with evergreens.

The view, in approaching this arch, is very fine. The Town Hall, Market block and Caisse's hotel are seen in the distance impinging upon the bright shrubbery of Colonsilla Hill in the rear, and giving the impression of a large city across the river.

"The arch opposite the Church is a Tudor arch. Along the centre, and immediately under the battlements, on the east side, are the words "Welcome to Peterborough." On the south tower is a panel surrounded by a wreath, combining the rose, thistle, shamrock and maple leaf, and within the wreath is the letter "P." On the north tower a similar panel has the letter "W." The west side was allotted by the Committee to the Temperance organizations, who decorated it according to their taste. On the centre, under the battlements, is the word "Temperance," surmounting a scroll with the words "Perseverance and Industry." Over the north arch is the motto "Union is Strength"; over the south "Knowledge is Power." On the north tower, the emblem and motto of the Good Templars: a fountain, and the words "Faith, Hope and Charity," are fixed in a panel. On the south tower those of the Sons of Temperance: a triangle and star, with the words "Love, Purity and Fidelity." The evergreen was beautifully interspersed with flowers, greatly relieving the appearance and adding materially, to the effect."

"The third arch, that near McGregor's hotel, is decidedly the finest of the three. It is in the Gothic style. On the north side of it, that first approached by the Prince, immediately above the centre arch, are the words, "Welcome, thrice welcome to Canada," surmounted by a shield supported by beavers, and having upon it the Royal Arms. On the east tower, near the top, is a cornucopia, over the words, "Peace and Plenty," and under it a panel with the words, "Canada, the brightest gem, in the British Crown." On the west tower is a sheaf of wheat, over the word "Agriculture," and a panel with the words, "Albert our future King." On the south side of the arch, over the main entrance, are the words, "Victoria," "Albert," over these the Royal Arms in a shield, supported by beavers. On each tower is the Crown, Bible and Sceptre, and under them, on one, "God Save", on the other "the Queen". Lower down, the towers are panelled, one panel enclosing the words, "Our God and our Country"; the other, "The Queen and Constitution." This arch, approached by the procession from the north, had a most imposing appearance. Through it, George street with its hundreds of flags of every size and color, and its festoonings and mottoes of evergreens, and the lumberer's arch, manned by a score of lumbermen, appeared like a glimpse of fairy land. The coup d'oeil was magnificent, exceeding, according to the statement of gentlemen in the Royal party, anything they had yet witnessed in their tour.

"At the intersection of George and Simcoe streets and George and Hunter streets, large poles had been erected, tastefully wreathed with evergreens, surmounted by a large flag, and having festoonings of flags extended from the pole to the buildings on the four corners. From the string of flags were wreaths of evergreens to the poles, the whole having a very fine appearance from whatever direction approached."

"On the Court House green a pavilion had been erected, for the presentation of the addresses, covered with canvass awning, and beautifully festooned. It was handsomely carpeted, and a chair covered with scarlet cloth, placed on it for His Royal Highness. In front of it seats had been fixed for 1000 children; and the rising ground of the Court House park afforded easy standing room for 30,000 people."

"It is impossible to speak in terms of too high praise of the zeal manifested by the citizens generally in giving to their buildings the best possible holiday appearance. Foremost, however, among the private decorations was the lumberer's arch. It was placed upon George street, near Charlotte street. The lumber was furnished by Messrs. Snyder and Dickson the teams by lumberers generally. Mr. Shaw had charge of the erection, and under his guidance, the whole was completed within fourteen hours of the time of its commencement. It was a triple arch, the lumber being so piled as to give to the curves a beautiful appearance. On the top of it, were a couple of deer, on each side of these a bark canoe, and as the procession approached, twenty-five lumbermen, dressed in red shirts and black pants, very pictures of able bodied, well developed men, were ranged along the top. On the fence of the arch, immediately above the centre, was a Prince of Wales plume, with the words, "Welcome, Prince of Wales," and on one side the words in a scroll, "the source of our wealth," on the other "ships, colonies and commerce," We detract nothing from the other decorations when we pronounce this one to have been the finest, as it was the most characteristic of the place, of them all. There was neither nail nor saw used in this erection."

"Starting from the station in Ashburnham, the streets were all lined with spruce trees, and from the buildings hung flags and evergreen festoonings. The bridge was prettily decorated with rows of flags along the different spans, and emerging from it, the Tudor arch, with its battlements and flags, loomed in view. The Post Office building was covered with evergreen festoonings and wreaths tastefully arranged. Over the door was the Prince of Wales plume, and on each side the letters A. E. Above this, extending the whole length of the building, were the words, in bold letters, "A thousand welcomes to the Prince." Continuing on towards George street, every building was decorated. McKeller and Cameron's had the appropriate motto "pro Regina et Patria." Ormond & Gilmour's was wreathed with evergreen and red maple bows. Facing Hunter street were the Royal Arms and the triple plume, and the mottoes "Our Queen and the land we live in," and "Thrice welcome to England's future King." Facing George street were the words "Victoria, Albert," and, in the corner window, a very handsome Prince of Wales plume made with flowers. Turning up George street, Swayne's cabinet shop was handsomely wreathed with evergreens. Over the entrance was a triple plume of spruce branches, and above it a beaver, with the motto "labor omnia vincet." Opposite this, McGregor's hotel was elaborately decorated with wreaths and festoonings of evergreens, interspersed with rosettes of red, white and blue, and having a beautiful crown, projecting from one of the galleries. Following still the line marked out for the procession. Miss Bailey's House on Water street displayed the words "welcome" in evergreen, and Messrs. Johnston's the words "Long live the Prince." All along Water street the same tasteful display was visible. Over Dr. Burnham's gate the word "welcome" was placed, and the fence wreathed; and along George street to the arch was planted with spruce trees. Passing the corner of Hunter street again, and continuing down George street, Kempt's Medical Hall had a very pretty balcony of evergreens raised above the shop door, draped with flowers, and having upon it a very handsome crown of flowers. On the balcony were the words "Welcome, Albert Prince of Wales." From the building was hung a handsome white banner with the Royal Arms painted upon it. Cluxton's, Stevenson's and Bradburn's four story buildings were very handsomely decorated. A large flag waved above the building, and from the roof, overhanging the street, a great number of flags and streamers were suspended. A handsome festooning of red, white and blue fell from the cornice, and along the face of the buildings; on white cloth, were the words, in large letters, "Welcome, Albert Edward, Prince of Wales." Below this were the words "Rejoice, Canada is honoured this day," and the Royal Arms with a wreath of evergreen around it. Further down, the market block had around the roof, above the cornice, a chain of evergreens, with posts every six feet, surmounted by flags. Across the street from the building to the opposite side were hung flags, one very fine one with the Prince of Wales plume upon it. From every window a flag was suspended, and on the top of the building a couple of large flags were raised on tall flag staffs. In front of the Review office was a beaver surrounded by maple leaves and a crown of flowers, and over the door of the Toronto bank was a handsome white triple plume. The Examiner office was almost covered with evergreens. It had the words "welcome" in spruce, and a couple of sheaves of wheat capped the whole. Caisse's hotel had a flag from every window, and a couple on the roof. The awning in front was very handsomely wreathed with evergreens, and at intervals along it were placed colored lamps. From Ryan's and Pool's flags were hung. Going round the market square, the Town Hall was wreathed with evergreens, and along the verandah, at intervals, were placed flags. The Bank of Montreal was very handsomely decorated. Round the door was a wreath of evergreens surmounted by an evergreen triple plume. On the face of the building, in letters beautifully formed of spruce, and placed on crimson cloth, were the words "Welcome, A. E. Prince of Wales." Messrs. Nicholls & Hall's premises were festooned with red, white and blue cloth, and flags and evergreens, and had a very imposing appearance."

"Besides these, every building had something to indicate the warmth of the reception. Hosts of "Welcomes" and "Bien venus" printed on paper could be seen, and away in the country as far as the eye could stretch, flags flying indicated the loyalty of the people. Throughout the whole town there was scarcely one house without its flag or green bow; along the line of procession there was only one dark undecorated spot. It was a stone building near Lannin's hotel."

"The day for which all this activity of preparation had been shown was as fine a one as could be desired. During the proceding night the streets had been watered, and along the route of the procession there was comparatively little dust. About nine o'clock the children were arranged in their seats, and about ten the Rifle Company marched over to the Railway station. An immense crowd had gathered, and about half-past ten the Temperance bodies arrived on the ground, dressed in their regalia, and having their flags unfurled. The train arrived about half-past eleven. As it approached, the crowd sent up a cheer such as has seldom rent the air in this neighborhood, and a general rush was made for the platform. With the greatest difficulty the space for the carriages was kept clear. As soon as His Royal Highness, who was dressed in plain clothes, entered his carriage, the Rifle Company presented arms. Some little delay occurred in getting the procession started, owing to the crush of people; but it was soon got over, and left in the following order:—

Marshal, on horseback,
Two Deputy Marshals, on horseback
Warden and Counties Council, in carriages,
Mayor and Town Council, in carriages,
Sheriff and County Judge, in carriage.
Carriage with
PRINCE and GOVERNOR GENERAL,
And the Rifle Company as a Guard of honour marching on each side of the carriage.
The Duke of Newcastle, Earl St. Germains,
General Bruce and others of the Prince's suite in carriages.
Members of the Legislature, in carriages,
Executive Committee, in carriages,
Band.
Two Marshals, on horseback,
Temperance Organizations,
Inhabitants.

The procession moved forward in this order through Ashburnham, the road on each side being crowded with people, who cheered heartily, and crossed the bridge. As it passed through the arch on Hunter street, the people who were crowded on the high sloping ground on either side, sent forth cheer after cheer, the ladies in the windows waived their handkerchiefs, and threw bouquets to the Prince, and the wildest enthusiasm prevailed until he reached the Court House grounds. Here he alighted from his carriage, and, with his suite, ascended the dais; the County Council taking up a position at his right, the Town Council and Committee at his left, and the Rifle Company on each side of the platform in a space reserved for them. As soon as he appeared on the platform, the thousand children who occupied the seats immediately in front, and who were most neatly dressed, sang, under the direction of Mr. Glover and Mrs. Heathfield, as follows:

"God save our gracious Queen,
Long may Victoria reign,
God save the Queen.
  Send her victorious,
  Happy and glorious,
God save the Queen!"

"Thy choicest gifts in store,
On her be pleased to pour,
Long may she reign.
  May she defend our laws,
  And ever give us cause,
  To sing with heart and voice,
God save the Queen!"

"Grant, Lord, our fervent prayer,
Still for old England's heir,
Thy love evince.
  Watch o'er his early days,
  Guide him in wisdom's ways,
  So shall he sing Thy praise,
God save the Queen!"

"The singing was very good indeed, and the appearance of the children most commendable. The Prince and those with him seemed much delighted with the view from the dais. The fine sloping ground in front, gave to the 15,000 people assembled an ample opportunity to see the Royal party, and to be seen to the best advantage by them; and we doubt whether, since his arrival in this country, he has stood before a happier, a more industrious, or a more loyal people."

After the singing, addresses were read by William Lang, Esq., Warden, on behalf of the country, and by Augustus Sawers, Esq., Mayor, from the town, to which the Prince replied:—

"GENTLEMEN:—I thank you sincerely for the address which you have presented to me.

"In the Queen's name I acknowledge the expressions of your loyalty to her crown and person; and for myself I am grateful to you for this welcome to your neighborhood."

A deputation from Cavan also presented an address, signed by John Swain, Esq., Reeve of that township, for which His Royal Highness expressed his cordial thanks."

"After the presentation of the addresses, the Governor General, having intimated that the limited time at the disposal of His Royal Highness, would compel him to move rapidly through the town, the Rifle Company marched directly to the Port Hope station to receive the Prince when he came up. The procession passed through the principal streets, the crowds cheering lustily as before, and as the Prince's carriage passed under the lumberer's arch, the men on it raised such a cheer as proved that the capacity of their voices was quite equal to the magnificent proportions of their persons. In a little less than an hour from the time the Prince arrived, he entered his car from the platform on Hunter street, and left, leaving after him thousands of hearts beating not only with a warm loyalty to his Royal Mother, but a whole souled personal attachment to himself."

"In the evening, Caisse's hotel was brilliantly illuminated, and fire-works were set off from the building. A large crowd of persons were in the streets to witness the display, which lasted until about ten o'clock, after which all went quietly home; the events of the day having passed over without any disturbance of the public peace, and without a single accident or mishap to detract from its enjoyment. It was indeed a day of pleasure without one particle of alloy. Long will the visit of the Prince of Wales to Peterborough be cherished as the brightest day she has known.

GEN. BOOTH COMING.

New York, Sept. 19—For the fourth time since the Salvation Army became an integral part of America's Christianity Gen. William Booth, its founder, is coming to direct personally a campaign of righteousness. For four months and a half, in an itinerary that would stagger a less seasoned soldier, he will journey through the length and breadth of the land in his evangelical crusade.

The general's arrival in New York on September 28 will be the inception of the Eastern Congress of the army, which will be attended by 1000 officers. On Sunday, the 29th, the General will preach at three services—morning, afternoon and evening. "The Lesson of My Life" will be the subject of his lecture at Carnegie Hall on the evening of the 30th. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday will be given up to councils, in which field officers from the Central, New England, Atlantic Coast, and Western New York provinces will be represented.

Buffalo will be assaulted by the general on Sunday, October 6, which is expected to be a banner day; Rochester on the 7th, Cyracuse, Albany, and Worcester, Mass., on th three succeeding days, bring him to a pause in Boston till the 14th. Two days each in New Haven and Philadelphia and a week in Toronto, Canada, for the Congress on that side of the line, and then the general jumps to Pittsburg, November 2, to reconnoitre in Allegheny, Indianapolis, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Columbus, Toledo and St. Louis till November 17, followed by a week in Chicago, where the Central Congress, with 300 officers, is held. Racine, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Des Moines, and Omaha come next, with Kansas City, where the Commander stops four days for the Western Congress of 400 officers.

December 18 will find the general at Fort Amity Colony. Then follow Pueblo, Colorado Springs, two days at Denver, San Jose, and another pause at San Francisco on December 23. A day at Oakland and the general returns to San Francisco for the Pacific Congress, which assembles 300 officers. Then he goes to Los Angeles on January 6, and El Paso, Texas, on the 9th. San Antonio and Fort Worth are the two other points touched in the Lone Star State, and two days in New Orleans bring the traveller to the 17th. From New Orleans he goes to Birmingham, Ala.; Nashville, Tenn., and Atlanta, Ga., where there is a three days' stay.

At the national capital the General will be heard on the 26th and 27th, Baltimore on the 29th, and then a return to New York for a few final days before he sails on the 8th, complete this gigantic programme.

Commander and Mrs. Booth-Tucker and their aides at the Fourteenth street barracks are making elaborate preparations for the general's reception and tour.

What Catarrhozone Is And Is Not.

Catarrhozone is not a wash. You cannot force liquids into the lungs. It is an ointment to be snuffed up the nostrils. Ointments are useless and disgusting. Nor is it a powder to be blown up the nostrils and still further irritate the already congested and irritated membrane. It is simply balsamic and healing substances breathed into the lungs and throat. Cures of course. That is nature's way of curing, and nature's way is the only way. If you suffer from disease of the throat lungs nasal passages, do not neglect to test Catarrhozone. Two sizes at all druggists, 25c. and $1.00. Guaranteed to cure Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis and Hay Fever, or your money back.

American Newspaper Directory.

Tells the circulations of all American newspapers. Revised, corrected and reissued every three months. Sixteen hundred pages: Price Five Dollars a volume or $20 a year.

BUFFALO.

We should hardly know how to get along without the American Newspaper Directory. We regard it by all odds the most complete and reliable guide that the advertiser can make use of; in fact we use no other.
Buffalo, N. Y., July 24, 1901.
R. V. PIERCE, M.D.,
President World's Dis. Med. Ass'n.

VERMONT.

The American Newspaper Directory stands, as it has always stood, the first and best of newspaper directories—the only one which cannot be ignored, the only one which every advertiser must have. No other can take its place; no other is needed.—Joseph Auld, in the Burlington (Vt.) News of July 3, 1896.

ADVISOR.

The Advisor accepts the American Newspaper Directory as the standard in newspaper ratings. The obstacles which obstruct its efforts to get true and reliable information are many.

* * *

The directory question is one which interests every publisher in the country—nay, the entire world. But in the United States, directories are becoming altogether too numerous. In this, as with other books of reference, it is necessary to have one which may be relied on as being an authority on the matter of newspaper circulations. There can be no question about the fact that at this time, as for many years past, the American Newspaper Directory is that authority. The Advisor is not paid to make this announcement. It makes the statement in the interest of advertisers and publishers because it is true. One thing the advertiser is almost cock-sure of when he refers to the American Newspaper Directory is that the circulation figures he sees therein are not overstated to any great extent. In most other directories they are. Only the publisher himself is to be blamed for no securing a proper rating in that publication, and every advertiser of consequence knows it. Thus the publisher who refuses to furnish a statement places himself under a reasonable suspicion.—The Advisor for June. New York, June, 1901.

CHICAGO.

Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co's American Newspaper Directory has long since earned the reputation of being the best of its character. It contains the result of patient, expensive and systematic effort to secure all attainable information of interest concerning American newspapers. The work has been honestly done. This will not be questioned by any unprejudiced examiner. The most important question is circulation. In attempting to give this information the Editor of the Directory encounters his most difficult work. It is the aim and necessity of the Directory to give the truth. The American Newspaper Directory is today the dependence and guide in a greater or less degree, of every large advertiser in the country.—Chicago (Ill.) Daily News.

BATES.

The American Newspaper Directory is the only reliable guide for the advertiser.

No man who advertises can afford to do without it.

What Bradstreet and Dun are to the mercantile world, The American Newspaper Directory is to the world of periodical publications.

A new advertiser will get from the American Newspaper Directory a better idea of the greatness of his country, and the tremendous possibilities in newspaper advertising, than from any other source.

If an advertiser spends only $100 a year he should have the American Newspaper Directory. For his business may grow and his right expenditure of his money become increasingly important. The time to learn how to spend $10,000 a year is before it is spent, otherwise the spending may be disastrous.

Many times the best paper in town costs the advertiser no more than the poorest. The American Newspaper Directory tells which is which.

The paper that was the leader in its town five years ago may lag behind to-day. Even one year may witness astonishing changes. If you are spending money for publicity it is vastly important that you should know where to get the most of it for the price. The American Newspaper Directory gives not only the present circulation rating of every paper in America, but show their history by quoting past ratings.

The book costs five dollars a copy, and a single reference to it may readily save or make many times its cost.

All newspaper directories but one are erroneously optimistic about circulations. The American Newspaper Directory may occasionally err on the other side, but that makes it all the safer for the advertiser.

My advertising experience began in 1885, and one of the first things I did was to buy a copy of the American Newspaper Directory.

For sixteen years Rowell's "The American Newspaper Directory" has had a place of honor and usefulness on my desk.

Many a publisher is ready to prove by other directories that "Rowell's is wrong," but few indeed can be induced to prove it by opening their circulation books to the advertiser.

Among publishers who are not willing that their real circulations be known, it is the best hated book in print. The moral is not far to find.
CHARLES AUSTIN BATES.
New York, June 24, 1901.

PABST.

If the improvement of the American Newspaper Directory continues in the future as it has during the past twenty years I do not think I shall live long enough to see any other directory take its place. There will, however, be the usual crop of directories just as every other good thing is imitated. Your long years of experience in dealing with evasive circulation reports have most admirably fitted you for placing a proper valuation upon such statements. Advertisers have come to know that the Rowell estimates are nearer the proper figure than can otherwise be obtained. The American Newspaper Directory is therefore indispensable in every well regulated advertising department. Lines are being more tightly drawn every day; it is difficult to collect for twenty thousand when you print only eight. If the advertiser were buying barley he would not accept three pecks for a bushel, although the quality might at all times be open for discussion.

The American Newspaper Directory is the guide and companion of the advertising man, and it is to the interest of all concerned to help perfect it, support it, and hurrah for it.
PABST BREWING CO.
J. R. Kathrens, Adv. Mgr.
Milwaukee, Wis., June 7, 1901.

SAPOLIO.

A growing need created it—the advertising agency system. One of the earliest and most successful workers, Geo. P. Rowell, is still in the field. He originated methods. Others followed his publication of a list of all the papers—the American Newspaper Directory. He has never ceased to love it, and labor for it. Soon out of the gross stupidity of imitation, it became a rule that every agency down to those of Oshkosh or Oklahoma must issue its own directory. An awful waste, for not more than one out of ten was worth shelf room. If the National Association of Advertising Agents could agree long enough to buy Mr. Rowell's Directory, publish it officially and drop all the others, it would accomplish something.
ARTEMAS WARD,
Advertising Manager for Sapolio.
—In Fame, March, 1901.

WASHINGTON.

Every page of the American Newspaper Directory breathes the desire of its publishers that it shall be absolutely correct in every statement it makes.
Truly yours,

Clerk of the Committee on Banking and Currency, House of Representatives, U. S.
Washington, D. C., Jan. 17, 1899.

SOUTHERN.

We subscribe to and pay cash for the American Newspaper Directory, and find it of great value in our advertising department. We have 6,892 miles of railway, extending from Washington, D. C., all over the South, and in advertising this system we use more than 1,000 publications, and in selecting this list we find that we get a correct idea of circulation from this Directory that can not be obtained from any other similar publication. We receive other newspapr directories gratis, but the fact that we pay cash for this one in addition shows that we can not place the same dependence upon the "free list."

We thoroughly appreciate the careful manner in which this Directory is compiled.
Washington, D. C., Sept. 12, 1900.
JOS. H. HANNEN,
Adv. Dept. Southern Railway.

I am looking forward to receiving the new edition with a great deal of anticipation, as, although the American Newspaper Directory seemed to have reached a high state of perfection several years ago, there is always something new and of value in each succeeding edition. It is regarded as the standard authority with the Southern Railway.
S. H. HARDWICK,
General Passenger Agent.
Washington, D. C., May 21, 1901.

BALTIMORE.

We have used the American Newspaper Directory for many years and find it more valuable to us than any other similar publication. Much of the information given we cannot obtain in any other way. The book is not only a great help, but a necessity to our business, and we think its way of stating circulations is the ideal one.

THE GRIM REAPER

Passing of Old Landmarks of the Midland District

Mrs. Coughlin, relict of the late John Coughlin died yesterday at the advanced age of eighty years. She and her late husband left their home in Belleville, where they lived fifty years, and came to the house of Providence here, where they received every possible care and attention in their declining days. Her husband preceded her to the grave by two months. They are survived by a family of four sons, Donnie and Timothy, of Belleville, and John and Michael, of town. The remains were taken to Belleville for interment.

One of the old land-marks of Tweed died on Monday in the person of John Downing. Deceased was born at Caledonia Springs, Nov. 6, 1840, so that he was nearly sixty-one years of age, and had been a resident of Tweed for fifty-eight years. Mr. Downing kept tavern for mmany years on the premises where Mr. John Shaw's store now stands. About 24 years ago he gave up the hotel, and went into the wholesale liquor business. After this he was in the boot and shoe busiense for some time but for a number of years past has lived a retired life. He leaves property valued at $40,000.

The Lindsay Watchman announces the death, in his 53rd year, of John Magwood, who was born in the township of Cavan, where he spent his early years. When about 21 years of age he settled on a bush farm in the township of Eldon, and soon became a prosperous farmer. Upon the building of the Toronto & Nipissing Railway he entered into mercantile business at Victoria Road, where he carried on an extensive trade with marked success for a number of years. He was afterwards engaged for some time in manufacturing at Orillia, and then in hardware trade in this town.

About six years ago he accepted the position of mmanaging director of the Victoria Loan & Savings Company, which he held until his death.

In the passing away of Mrs. Elizabeth Morrison another of the pioneers of this section has gone to her reward. She was born in Ireland in 1824 and came to Canada in 1844 on a visit to an elder sister, the late Mrs. William Wigmore, of Dummer, and not long after her arrival was married to Robert Morrison, a young man who had purchased a bush lot in the eastern part of the township. Mr. Morrison died in 1864. Deceased leaves sons and daughters as follows: Llewellyn A. Morrison, of Toronto, a well-known Mechanical and Mining Engineer; George A. Morrison, of Tacoma, Wash., engaged in finance and insurance; William F. Morrison, of Wall street, New York, business broker and financier; Mrs. Martha Patterson, of Otonabee, widow of the late Alexander Patterson, and Mrs. George Hill, of Alnwick, at whose home Mrs. Morrison had made her home for the last year.

William Morrison, of Belleview, dropped dead on the C. P. Ry. on Thursday afternoon last. It is supposed that heart failure was the cause. Deceased was about 80 years ago.

James Kyle, a much respected resident of Belleville is dead, aged 86 years. Deceased had lived in Belleville and vicinity for many years, and was well-known.

THE MILITARY BAND CONCERT

The Rink Well Filled - A Select Program

The promenade concert given by the 57th Regimental Band in the Charlotte street rink last night was an unqualified success, the audience being a large and appreciative one. A temporary band stand had been erected in the center of the rink, upon which the musicians, with their scarlet tunics and gilt-bound forage caps, presented quite a striking appearance. The band, though somewhat short of full strength, discoursed exquisite music, and the applause was frequent and hearty. Bandmaster Gliddon has an aggregation of which the town may well feel proud. Among the finest numbers on the program were the euphonium solos by Mr. Edward Cronk; the "Anvil Chorus," from Il Trovatore; the "Orchard Lake" march, with obligato of two cornets and two trombones, which was particularly well rendered, and the coon song, "Blushin Rosy" and character sketch by Mr. J. Halpany. Following is the full program:

March, Philharmonic; Overture, Bauer & Dicter; Euphonium solo with variations, by Mr. Edward Cronk; Waltzes, "Homage to the Ladies"; Anvil Chorus from Il Trovatore; Song, "Blushin' Rosy," Mr. Halpany; March, "Orchard Lake," with cornet and trombone obligato; "My Old Kentucky Home," with variations.

At the conclusion of the program Major Miller mounted the rostrum and announced the numbers winning prizes, which were as follows:

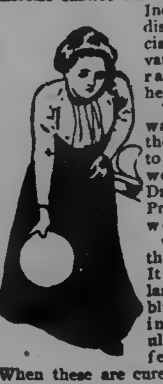
The Fad

Of the modern woman is health by exercise. It's an excellent fad, provided that it is always remembered that exercise cannot cure womanly diseases.



Indeed, where such diseases exist exercise is apt to aggravate the condition rather than to help it.

The first step toward establishing the general health is to establish the local womanly health. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures womanly diseases which undermine the general health. It establishes regularity, dries enfeebling drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. When these are cured, backache, headache and nervousness are things of the past. The universal testimony of weak and sickly women, cured by "Favorite Prescription," is this: "It has made me feel like a new woman."

"My wife has used three bottles of Dr. Pierce's medicine, and I never saw such results," writes A. B. Haynes, Esq., of Aurora, Lawrence Co., Mo. "It was wonderful in its work. We had used lots of medicine, also had one of the best physicians in Aurora, but my wife got no better; we heard one pitiful groan after another, day and night. A friend handed me a copy of Dr. Pierce's book, the Common Sense Medical Adviser, and after reading the testimonials of Dr. Pierce's successful treatment, and seeing that the cases described were similar to my wife's, I bought for her a bottle of Dr Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Before she had taken all of the medicine she was up and helping to do the work. She has taken three bottles and is now about well. Has better health than she has had for years."

We are at all times prepared to defend British rule here and in any part of the Empire; we are ready to imitate our forefathers in their prowess in repelling the attacks of the enemies of the country, and we, as their descendants, if required, are ready to do our utmost to preserve untarnished the fame acquired by them when last on the war path in defence of the British crown."

Some twenty pounds of addresses were also presented by various towns of Eastern Ontario, and by many of the local societies. The Duke was graciously pleased to accept them and they will be duly filed.

One of the addresses presented today was especially interested, as being from citizens of the United States. It was from about three thousand residents of the States of Massachusetts of Canadian birth, who assured his royal Highness, that they "had not forgotten their love for the reigning family in England, and that they had not lapsed in their affection for their native land."

WAR PROBLEM SOLVED HOW THE BOERS LIVE

Buried and Hidden Supplies Keep Them in Food and Ammunition.

THE QUESTION IS: HOW LONG WILL THEY LAST?

The Cunning Boer Thought to Have Many Tons of Food and War Material Stored Away.

London, Sept. 23

A despatch from Cape Town explains why the Boer war continues, by the discovery of a cache at Dordrecht, consisting of tinned foods, supplies sufficient for 500 men for seven days, while the boxes of ammunition have been variously estimated at from 10,000 to 50,000 rounds. Where do these brigands get their supplies, their ammunition, their recruits? It is the end of winter in Cape Colony, the country is bare of supplies for man and beast. We know of the the looting of the towns of Murraysburg, Jamestown, Van Rhynsdorp, of the sacking of sundry trains, of the farm raids, of all the avenues of supplies to a desperate and cunning enemy, but, dependent on these sources the commandoes could not have held out for eight weeks, leave alone eight months.

That cache at Dordrecht solves the problem—makes it all plain. Then Lord Roberts relieved Cape Colony and carried the war into the enemy's territory, he left behind him a popu- and suffer being struck off electoral and suffer being struck off eletoral rolls wherein, in six cases out of ten, their names did not appear. They seemingly were sick of war, tired of a hopeless struggle, but while awaiting trial they made holes in the hills and filled the holes with their reserve ammunition, with their best guns, and with their tinned food.

The day of resurrection came with the dawning of this year, and now, eight months after, the British begin to understand the secret of the marvellous mobility of the Boer, the reason why he can traverse long tracts of country depleted of all foodstuffs by British troops, and, above all, why he is able to hurl tons of lead on our men, and still is always found with his rifle and his bandolier full of cartridges.

The problem now awaiting solution is:—How many of these veldt depots does the enemy possess?

THE SITUATION SERIOUS.

The desperation of the lingering hostilities in South Africa is seen by tenor of current news. There are still over two hundred thousand British troops in the field, yet a mere handful of Boers by comparison are able by their daring and subtle tactics to keep this vast army occupied, and occasionally to ensure isolated detachments into their hands Gen. Botha with but 1,500 men in his commando even threatens to invade Natal, and the dispersed militia has been again summoned for eventualities. Meanwhile trainwrecking, shooting in cold blood, and ill-treatment of women and children, are frequently reported. The trainwrecking on Aug. 31 by Boers near Waterval, as reported in the London Daily Telegraph, furnishes a sample of the guerilla methods now pursued by the misguided followers of Paul Kruger in the name of the Christian religion.

ANOTHER AIRSHIP.

An Englishman's Invention Claimed to Surpass Santos-Dremonts.

London, Sept. 23.—If Dr. Barton, of Beckenham, England, isn't too enthusiastic concerning the airship he has invented he will be able to navigate the air with ease, speed and safety. It is said that his airship is engaging the attention of the English war office. He believes that his ship, whichh is a combination of flying machine and balloon, will be able to reach a maximum speed of thirty miles an hour, and will be equipped to remain in the air forty-eight hours. The conditions of purchase laid down by the government are that the machine shall be able to travel thirteen miles an hour consultation of those in charge of the days. Thus, so far as speed is concerned, Dr. Barton leaves himself a very considerable margin, though the staying power which he claims is exactly the same as that demanded by the government. The machine will be two hundred feet long, it will have a lifting capacity of four and a half tons, will be propelled by six screw propellers driven by two light petrol engines capable of developing seventy-two horse-power, and will carry a crew of three men. Dr. Barton expects the machine will be able to fly without the aid of the balloon, but meanwhile a gas vessel made of silk will be attached.

ROOSEVELT GUARDED.

Soldiers Surrounded the House he Slept in at Canton.

Canton, O., Sept, 23.—Extraordinary precautions were taken to guard President. Roosevelt. The guard at the Harter home was tripled and four complete lines of sentries encircled the house and grounds.

The precautions were taken after a in a calm, and remain in the airtwo arrangements. No one could approach the outer grounds around the house without being halted. The authorities deny a story that they had any specific grounds for fear and say the additional soldiers simply were precautionary measure.

Too Many Triplets.

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 21.—Eight years of letter correspondence between Deputy Postmaster T. H. Hartman of Blairstown, N. J., and Miss Inez Ostrander of Kansas City culminated last Wednesday evening in their marriage at the Methodist church in Blairstown. The couple became acquainted through answering advertisements eight years ago. The bride is only four feet four inches tall.

Long Wait For Little Bride.

Topeka, Kan., Sept. 21.—Governor Stanley has decided that his plan to give silver mugs to all triplets born in Kansas during his administration is too expensive and has abandoned it. The Governor came to this conclusion after having spent $125 for mugs for thirty-seven sets of triplets.

A PECULIAR EXPERIENCE.

Lady While Camping is Visited by two Wild Animals.

Lakefield News: "A lady, a resident of this village has come to the conclusion that camp life has its limitations as regards enjoyment. She is fond of fresh air and has generally preferred to sleep in a tent rather than endure the stuffy atmosphere occasioned by wooden walls. A few mornings since she was awakened by a peculiar rattle amongst the pots and pans in the kitchen of her summer quarters and on hastening to learn the cause discovered a ground hog busily engaged in discussing the pie which had been made for that day's dinner. In expelling the intruder she ran up against a skunk who was also on a foraging expedition on the outskirts of the establishment. This caused her to beat a hasty retreat back to the house, where she remained a prisoner for about three hours, being afraid to venture forth on account of the possible and unpleasant complications outside. In her enforced imprisonment she was compelled to listen to a disgraceful wrangle between the vermin aforesaid who had become involved in a terrible contest of teeth and profanity owing to the ground hog having run pell-mell into the skunk on its hurried exit from the house. To a naturalist the situation would undoubtedly have proved most interesting, but the lady in question was not particularly interested in such studies and if she was would probably desire to choose some more convenient time than three o'clock in the morning for her investigations.

A BIG SHOW FOR 25C.

What the Management of the Central Fair Has Provided For Wednesday Night.

Wednesday evening, Sept. 25, instead of opening the fair grounds for a night entertainment the entire programme of attractions will be put on in the market hall at 8 o'clock. The bill of fare will be varied and attractive and afford a capital 2 hours amusement, of songs, dances, acts, etc. The hall will be completely seated. Admission 25c, to all parts of the hall. The programme includes.

Lily Bletso, the Canadian Premier Cornet player, and the youngest of her sex in Canada who plays that difficult instrument; Nellie Franklin, the clever English dancer and singer; Areno, the contortionist, who performs feats which have mystified the medical profession in Canada and the United States; The Bletso children, national dancers, winners of numerous prizes and the cleverest young dancers in Canada; Harry Rich, Canada's foremost commedienne; Franklyn & Hiatt, the marvellous English lightning change impersonators; Varnin & Turenne, the celebrated Roman axe jugglers, in wonderful feats of daring and strength, handling a perfect shower of axes; Walton & Jones, in the funniest and prettiest comedy sketch ever put on any stage.

Draining Buckley's Lake.

Lakefield News: "We believe that Mr. Blackwell has made a second report to the Douro Council proposing to cut but the bar of the creek from the mouth to station 45 on its first profile which would cut out the natural dam on the creek and thus drain the lake, although not quite so early in the season. This can be done for $2,500. There cannot be any doubt about the reliability of the estimate as Mr. Blackwell offers, himself, to accomplish the work for this amount. It seems an exceedingly favorable proposition as it would reduce the cost of drainage to a trifle over $1.00 an acre on each owner's land. It remains to be seen whether the Douro Council will adopt this proposition.

LAID AT FEST.

The Late Mr. George Munroe Interred With Masonic Honors. Saturday Afternoon

The funeral of the late Mr. George Munroe, Vice-President of the Wm. Hamilton Mfg. Co., took place at three o'clock Saturday afternoon. Rev. Dr. Torrance, pastor of the St. Paul's Presbyterian church, conducted the service at the family residence on Brock street, where there were also present Revs. J. G. Potter, Wm. Bennett and G. Yule.

The obsequies were conducted with Masonic honors, deceased having been a long-standing member of Peterborough Lodge, A. F. & A. M., No. 155. The pallbearers were Rt. Wor. Bro. H. Rush, Rt. Wor. Bro. R. E. Wood, V. Wor. Bro. H. C. Winch, V. Wor. Bro. D. Spence, Wor. Bro. W. D. Parker, and Wor. R. A. Morrow.

The cortege was a very long one, and included past and present employees of the Wm. Hamilton Manufacturing Co., members of the two local Masonic bodies, and many of the town's prominent professional and business men.

The beautiful and impressive Masonic funeral rites, commencing at the house and ending at the grave in Little Lake Cemetery, were conducted by Rt. Wor. Bro. H. Rush, Rt. Wor. Bro. W. H. Walkey, Wor. Bro. W. L. Armitage and Wor. Bro. Geo. I. Roszel. The chief mourners were the deceased's three sons Hamilton, Reid and Allan.

Beautiful and costly floral tributes were sent by Mr. Albert Lech, Mr. Robert Hamilton, of Vancouver, and the Masonic fraternity, and a large wreath by the employees of the Wm. Hamilton Mfg. Co. Other floral mementos were received from the members of deceased's family and from many friends and acquaintances.

THE LATE MRS. LECH.

Demise of One of Peterboroughs Oldest and Most Esteemed Citizens.

On Friday afternoon last there passed away one of Peterborough's most esteemed citizens in the person of Rosina Henrietta Kornke, wife of Mr. William Lech. The deceased lady never fully recovered from a severe illness through which she passed last spring, which so weakened her physically, that she fell an easy prey when sickness overtook her a few days ago.

Mrs. Lech was born in Finsterwalde, Germany, the 18th of August, 1828, and was married in the same place to Mr. William Lech, on Feb. 12th, 1852. Mr. and Mrs. Lech shortly afterwards came to New York, where they remained for a brief period, removing to Montreal soon after, where they resided for seven years. They moved to Peterborough in 1861, and have since resided here, becoming ultimately identified with the early history and the progress of the town. A husband and eight children survive, the latter being Mrs. F. Zachau, Syracuse, N.Y.; Mrs. R. Graham, Mr. K. G., Mr. Albert E., and Mr. William E., of town; Mrs. Gnaedinger, of Montreal; Mrs. Paul Stoveing, of London, Eng., and Mrs. E. F. Walter, of Montreal.

Mrs. Lech was a lady whom everybody loved. Of a kindly disposition she made friends everywhere. She was light-hearted, thoughtful of those around her, and ever foremost in doing good and in making others happy. She will be sadly missed by many.

The funeral will take place this afternoon at three o'clock, from the family residence. Hunter street, interment being in the Little Lake Cemetery.

SEPTEMBER WEDDING.

That Took Place in Smith on Wednesday Evening Last.

A quiet, but very pretty wedding took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Northcott in Smith Wednesday evening, when their daughter, Miss Ruby, was united in holy bonds of wedlock to Mr. Wm. George Brumwell, of Lakefield.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. Nickle, of the Methodist church. The bride looked beautiful in a costume of silver-grey poplin trimmed with white silk chiffon and pearl trimming, and wore orange blossoms, carring a bouquet of pink and white asters. Miss Fannie Kempt, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid, and wore a dress similar, and carried a bouquet of pink asters. The bride's little sister, Miss Pearl, was maid of honour, and looked charming in a dress of cream cashmere trimmed with lace and silk, and carried a bouquet of flowers. The groom was assisted by Mr. Jack Blewett, of Lakefield The bride entered the room on the arm of her father amid the beautiful strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Miss Estella Davies, of Peterborough. The home was nicely arranged with flowers. After the ceremony a sumptuous wedding repast was served. Many beautiful and costly presents were received. Friends were in attendance from Peterborough, Lakefield and different parts. Mr. and Mrs. Brumwell left for their future home in Lakefield amid showers of rice, taking with them the good wishes of many friends.

BIG CONTRACT LET.

Mr. J. J. Hartley to Build the Cordage Company's Buildings.

The contracts for the erection of the new buildings for the Canadian Cordage and Manufacturing Company have been let. Mr. J. J. Hartley has secured the job of the excavating, concrete, stone and brickwork of the entire buildings, which will consist for the present of one building 343 x 92 feet, with a wing 30 x 73 feet, and a storehouse, 260 x 52 feet; also a boiler house 30 x 31 feet. Operations commence morning. Mr. Hartley has already secured a large quantity of the brick required. The contract requires that the work shall be completed by January 1 1902. Over a million brick will be used.

The Wild and Woolly West.

The small boy was in his glory on Saturday morning, when a troupe of Wild West cowboys visited town. They gave two performances, one in the afternoon and another at night. They gave some really fine exhibitions of fancy riding and lassoing, and showed how wild mustangs and cayuses are caught on the prairie and afterwards branded. They also gave sketches of camp life in the far west. The troupe consisted of twenty three horses and nine men. They came here direct from Calgary, and left on the C.P.R. midnight train for Almonte, where they exhibit next. They are making a tour of Canada, and will probably be back here before they return to the Alberta district.

EYE OF EUROPE ON ROOSEVELT

His Career as President will be Closely Watched

INNOVATION IN WORLD POLITICS

London, September 21—Further familiarity with the idea of Mr. Roosevelt as President is having its natural result in dissipating doubts entertained as to the effect of his succession upon the foreign policy of the United States. At any rate it is becoming generally conceded in Great Britain that the United States have obtained a President of great distinction of character. The exposition of his policy Sunday is the subject of general comment.

The Daily Graphic, which points out that the president of the United States occupies a more powerful position than any sovereign in Christendom, with the possible exceptions of the German Emperor and the czar of Russia, sums up his policy as "that of a sane imperialist devoted to the advancement and glory of his country without wronging others."

The Morning Post, in an editorial, says

"He is a personification of the younger generation of Americans who are looking forward rather than dreaming of the past. He is a man who seems made to be a leader of his countrymen in the new time which began with the war with Spain. He will be a president of great initiative, devoted to the national rather than to the party ideal."

This journal says that "No nation ever came to maturity without attempting to assert itself as one, if not the first, of the governing powers of the world."

The Daily Mail says:

"The United States have a great man at their head. We may expect with confidence that Mr. Roosevelt will be a moderating and not an exaggerating influence."

Mr. Roosevelt's personality attracts the sympathies of the English. Many stories are told of his athletic and sporting tastes, as well as his achievements as a man of letters, rough rider and public man.

"His accession to office is fraught with great possibilities," says the Westminster Gazette. "To a great extent an absolutely new element has been brought into the politics of the world."

After alluding to the Alaskan boundary and Nicaragua Canal questions the paper asks:

"Will his impulsiveness lead him to take short cuts that may prove long and expensive? Time and experience can alone determine."

The Globe thinks President Roosevelt has already shown such ability that he would have succeeded President McKinley in 1905 and is confident that he will be a strong and able president. Telegrams from the colonies continue to furnish world-wide evidence of respect for the late president. The parliament of New Zealand adjourned on the day of the funeral.

STEELE AT WORK.

The Gallant Soldier Again on the Veldt With a Regiment.

Orillia, Sept. 23—Col. Steele has written to a friend in town under date of Modderfontein, Aug. 6, and says: "Boyd and I arrived here two days ago. I reported to the chief of staff and was immediately placed in command of B division, which later on is to occupy the northern Transvaal, with headquarters at Petersburg. The division is to consist of 1,900 whites and 300 natives. I have organized my staff, with Major Canton second in command. He is a fine soldier. Boyd is chief staff officer, with the rank of major. Hildyard, son of Major-General Hildyard, who distinguished himself in Natal, is staff adjutant."

SHE USED COAL OIL.

And Her Burns Proved Fatal—Lighting a Kitchen Fire.

Montreal, September 22- Alma Sutherland, a married woman, 42 years of age, was fatally burned while lighting the fire in her kitchen to-day. With her husband she had moved into the premises, 740 St. Lawrence street, yesterday, and at an early hour this morning she arose to do her daily work. In lighting the fire she used some coal oil and this resulted in her clothing catching fire. When her husband reached her she was terribly burned, and, though everything that could be done was done for her at the General Hospital, she died in agony about Ten o'clock The coroner has been notified.

Nearly Killed by Bees

Duluth, Minn., Sept. 16.—Henry W. Philips, of this city, an employe of the Duluth & Iron Range road, has had an exciting and perilous experience with bees. While out in the woods recently, he was attached by a number of the insects, which stung him in the nose, eyes and chin. His face was soon badly swollen, and he applied the usual remedies, but not with the usual results. It became necessary at last to summon physicians, and they performed operations to save his eyesight, if not his life, for there were indications that blood poisoning was going to set in.

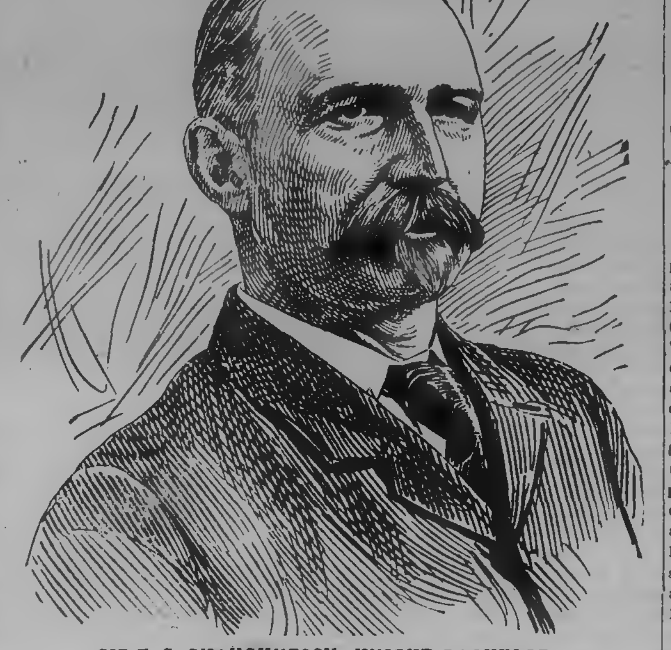
Murray Street Church.

—Rev. Mr. Baslow, of the Baptist church preached an eloquent sermon yesterday morning, "Were the prayers for the life of McKinley answered." The pulpit was occupied in the evening by Rev. Dr. Harris, of Toronto, who preached to a large congregation, on "The Incarnate Christ, the only Remedy for the world's ills." Both discourses were unusually thoughtful and interesting.

THE CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY'S PRESIDENT HONORED BY THE KING.



SIR T. G. SHAUGHNESSY, KNIGHT BACHELOR.

The Popular Head of the C. P. R. is Made a Knight Bachelor

Royal and Deserved Honors Conferred on Prominent Canadians

Who are Duly Invested With Their Newly Acquired Badges of Distinction on Saturday

On the occasion of the visit of their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York, His Majesty, the King, has been pleased to confer the following honors on distinguished Canadians:

To be Knight Commander of the Most Distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George: The Hon. Sir John Boyd, Chancellor of the High Court of Justice of Ontario.

The Hon. Louis Jette, Lieutenant-Governor of the Province of Quebec.

To be Companions of the Most Distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George: Mr. Joseph Pope, Under Secretary of State.

To be Companions of the Most (D.s-University, Montreal.

The Very Rev. George Grant, Principal of Queen's University, Kingston.

The Rev. Oliver Matthieu, Principal of Laval University, Quebec.

Mr. Oliver A. Howland, Mayor of Toronto.

To be Knight Bachelor: Mr. Thomas Shaughnessy, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

In the above list no name is more worthy of the distinction than that of Mr. Shaughnessy, the head of the world's greatest railway, who has done so much to make Canada what it is to-day. His promotion, therefore, is very popular from one end of this vast Dominion to the other.

Mr. T. G. Shaughnessy, C.M.G., was born at Milwaukee, Wis., on October 6th, 1853. After receiving a common school education, he, at the age of 16 years entered the service of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway in the capacity of clerk in the purchasing department. After serving in various capacities, he was, in 1879, promoted to the responsible position of general storekeeper of the road. The field here, however, was too limited for a man of his sterling qualities, and when Mr. Van Horne became general manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway, in 1882, he induced Mr. Shaughnessy to become connected with the company in the capacity of purchasing agent. In 1884 he was named assistant to the general manager, and in 1885 assistant president. In 1891 he was appointed vice-president, and finally succeeded Mr. Van Horne as president of the company in June, 1898.

A recent biographer, in writing of Mr. Shaughnessy, says: "The prime merit of Mr. Shaughnessy is that he can see into the heart of a question while a duller man would be touching the surface of it from the attitude of the stupid and the commonplace. He has penetration and foresight. He is thinking of to-morrow before to day is spent. He does not live in the present. His vision carries him to the future of unopened continents. He has a mind for detail and a love of order, but he has a mental grasp that embraces millions, and he can think out a plan for a new fleet as well as dictate to his secretary the idea of the company in the matter of the claim of the Widow Jones, whose cows were decapitated at a level crossing."

From the first day of his life as a railway man there was no doubt in the minds of those who knew him that he would be a success. The qualities of his mind are thoroughly modern, and fit exactly the service of this greatest branch of modern public service."

TURKEY'S END AND END OF WORLD

New York Adventists Predicts Christ's Second Coming

A REMARKABLE THEORY.

As Told by the New York Sun and Which Many Believe

How the Scriptures is to be Fulfilled Something That Others Besides Bible Students Are Deeply Interested in.

New York, Sept. 21.—The Sun says.—if the present crisis in the relations of France and Turkey should hasten the dissolution of the Turkish empire it would have a bearing upon the date of the end of the world and the second coming of Christ, according to the Seventh-Day Adventists. This they have proved to their own satisfaction in a publication now being distributed by missionaries of the sect which was printed by the Review and herald company of Battle Creek, Mich., and Toronto, and which is entitled "Bible Readings for the Home Circle." The year originally selected by William Miller for the end of the world was 1843. When this proved an error another date was selected and then another. At present many Adventists believe that the world's end is imminent.

Those who connect the downfall of Turkey with the approach of the judgement day depend upon the eleventh chapter of the Book of Daniel for proof of their theory. The authors of the Adventist publication in which their theory is set forth are anonymous, but in a perfatory note the publishers explain that several Biblical scholars contributed to the book, that it was edited and revised by John Corliss and others, and that finally it "passed under the examination of a committee appointed for that purpose."

A NEW EXEGESIS.

The eleventh chapter of Daniel recounts the wars and varying fortunes of the king of the north and the king of the south. Some scholars, Matthew Henry among them, hold that it refers entirely to the period beginning with the reign of Cyrus the Great and ending of the downfall of Anticehus the Great. Disregarding this view, one of the authors of the Adventists' publication says in a chapter headed "The Eastern Question,"

"Beginning with the first year of Darius the Mede, it the (prophecy) passes through the remainder of Persian history (verse 3) the brief reign of Alexander the Great (verse 3 and 4) followed by the long contests between the kings of Syria and Egypt, the former called 'the king of the north' and the latter 'the king of the south' these countries being respectively north and south from Jerusalem (verses 1, 15), then passes into a Roman history (verses 16, 20), notices the crucifixion of Christ (verse 22), touches upon the work of the papacy (verses 20, 33), the great Reformation (verse 34), the end of papal supremacy in 1798 (verse 35); then introduces and ends with the closing portion of the history of the Turkish empire, this empire now including as part of its domain the identical territory of the old Assyrian kingdom and for this reason receiving also the name 'the king of the north.' (verses 40, 45).

DOWN TO THE MODERN TIMES.

Verse 35, the Adventist whiter says, refers as the "end of Papal supremacy" meaning thereby the captivity of Pius VI. The Adventist calculates that according to prophetic symbol, "a time and times and the dividing of times" mentioned in Daniel vii, 25; xii, 7, and Revelations xii, 14, is analagous to the 1,260 "days" or prophetic years mentioned in Revelations xii, 14, and therefore means a period of 1,260 years, and that this coincides with the era beginning with the assumption by the Bishop of Rome of general ecclestical dominion in 588 A. D. and lasting to the French invasion of Rome in 1798.

"Thus," the writer continues, "we find ourselves located by verse 36 in the year 1798 at the end of 1,260 years, and at the beginning of a period called "the end of time."

With this for a basis for his end-of-the world theory, the rest is comparatively easy to the Adventist. The atheistical king of verse 36 and 37 is to him the nation of France during the Reign of Terror, and as confirmation of this view, he cites the subsequent Worship of Reason and the confiscation of the states of the nobility in France as answering the purpose of verses 38 and 39. Hence Daniel in verse 40 refers to Napolean's Egyptian campaign of 1798, caused obstensibly by the provocations of Egypt or "King of the South," in which Turkey or "King of the North," replied Napoleon at Acre and with the assistance of England and Russia "came at him "France" like a whirlwind." whereby owing to French reverses elsewhere Turkey was left in possession of Egypt.

The writer then points to verses 41 and 43 as referring to the Turkish occupation of French strongholds in Palestine and Turkish control of Egypt Verse 34 as to "Tidings out of the east and out of the north" therefore portended the aggression of the Persians and the Russians and the Crimean war, from which Turkey emerged safely with the help of England and France.

NOW FOR THE FINISH.

The forty-fifth and final verse of the chapter, "And he shall plant the tabernacles of his palace between the seas in the glorious holy mountain; yet he shall come to his end and none shall help him," is constructed as meaning that the Turk shall establish his government in some part of the Holy Land and perish. Bishop Newton is cited as asserting that "the expression 'between the seas, in the glorious holy mountain' must denote some part of the Holy Land," and the deduction is reached that the Turks will seek refuge in Asia when the powers finally resort to the partition of their European domain.

For this assertion that the end of the world will follow this catastrophe to Turkey the author replies on the opening verses of the next chapter of Daniel, in which the prophet says: "And at that time shall Michael stand up, the great prince which standeth for the children of the people; and there shall be a time of trouble such as never since there was a nation even to that same time and at that time Thy people shall be delivered * * * and many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt.

THE "SWEAT BOX."

How Stubborn Prisoners are Dealt With by American Police.

Whatever shape the mysterious third degree to which it is said Czolgosz has been subjected may take, it appears that the use of compulsion is not unusual by the American police. The "sweat-box" is the simplest method of compelling prisoners to give evidence. It consists of a long-drawn-out crossexamination, which is continued for several nights and days by relays of detectives until the victim, to purchase the percious sleep that is denied him, will divulge the information desired. Where this ingenious form of torture fails, and it is said to be successful in nine cases out of ten, it is supplemented by the use of force. In Chicago this is applied by a fictitious character who goes by the name of Shea, and plays a part which any able-bodied man, capable of delivering a heavy blow, may take. At stated intervals he enters the prisoner's cell and strikes him a forceful blow on the jaw. Without any remarks, he withdraws. The cross-examination proceeds, and the prisoner, who, after many repetitions of the experience, becomes terrified at his mysterious and brutal visitor, will finally break down and make a clean breast. For this extra judicial torture there may be some provocation when a prisoner is positively known to wilfully withhold valuable information. Yet it is altogether at variance with enlightened and civilized methods in the treatment of criminals. It cannot be countenanced without danger to the public.

BOER IBLEVERENCE.

They Steal the Bishop's Horses and Compel Him to Walk.

Cape Town, Sept. 23.—The Bishop of Zululand has been obliged lately to visit his extensive diocese on foot, in consequence of the Boers having stolen his horses. He had a seven-weeks' walk through Nhiwate, Isandhlwana and Rorke's drift. At the latter place the bishop had to retire to bed with influenza, getting up for a confirmation and going back again. This is the second time the Boers, who profess such great reverence for the clergy, have taken his horses. The first time they deprived him of his carriage and horses as he was travelling to Utrecht. On the second occasion they knocked him up in the middle of the night and took the horses out of the stable at Kwamagwaza.

PETERBOROUGH, SEPTEMBER 23 1901

NEWFOUNDLAND

A very strong feeling is growing up in Newfoundland in favor of the union of that province with Canada. On two previous occasions, namely in 1879 and 1885, the people of that colony had this question before them, and declined to entertain it. The change is said to be very marked, and it is now conceded on all sides that sooner or later the union must be accomplished. It may not be generally known that the original plan of Confederation embraced Newfoundland, delegates from which colony attended at Quebec and took part in the conference there. Reasons which were doubtless sufficient, or at least were thought to be so, led to the withdrawal of the delegates from the concluding negotiations, and since then there has been what St. John's newspaper calls "a mawkish spirit of sentiment" against a connection with Canada. The great desire of the people seemed to be for intimate trade relations with the United States, and Mr. James G. Blaine, when Secretary of State, did all in his power to foster these. He was a man of great ambition, and he undoubtedly anticipated that if he could bring about a close trade connection with the island colony, it would not be long before a political union would be accomplished.

Union with Canada would mean the addition to the Dominion of an island having an area of 42,000 square miles and a portion of the coast of Labrador not very well defined in area. It would add upwards of 210,000 people to the population of the Dominion. The colony has a public debt of £3,610,718, its revenue averaging about £340,000. Its total foreign trade according to the latest returns, amounted to upwards of £2,700.00 of which somewhat more than half consisted of exports, all being fish and fish products and lobsters, with the exception of a quantity of iron ore. Its largest import is of flour, which in 1899 was 415,738 barrels, Canada supplies the greater portion of the imports, Great Britain coming next and the United States third. Of the exports Brazil buys the most, the order of the other principal purchasing countries being Portugal, Great Britain, the United States and Canada. Full statistics are not at hand for 1900, but the British Board of trade says that Great Britain imported to the value of £524,367 from the colony and exported to it to the value of £377,00.

There are 638 miles of railway and 1,314 miles of telegraph line on the island. The acreage of cultivated land 64,494 acres, the products being generally the same as in the Dominion, except wheat which is not known. There is much timber on the island, although a great deal of it is small. In the centre is a large area consisting of lakes and hills, and it is not of very great value, except possibly for mineral. There is an abundance of iron ore, and a great deal of silver-lead ore, also some gold-bearing quartz. The island has not, as a whole, been anything like thoroughly prospected.

We shall be glad if the confederation movement now in progress proves successful. Canada ought to be rounded out by taking in the ancient colony, and we have no doubt that good terms can be arranged. The prosperity of the Dominion will be an incentive to the islanders to cast in their lot with us.

WHERE ANARCHISTS COME FROM

Where do the anarchists come from?

The U. S. immigration bureau reports that 314,043 immigrants arrived from Europe in the first seven months of 1901. Three out of every four of them came from Italy, Austria-Hungary and Russia, in the following proportion:

Italy	96,490
Austria-Hungry	83,527
Russia	54,901
Total	233,918

These people have an inherited hatred for government

The attempt to trace the lineage of Czolgosz recalls the connection of his father with the Molitor murder mystery which shocked Michigan 25 years ago. The elder Czolgosz was one of the colonists in Presque Isle County, ruled over by Henry Molitor, an illegitimate son of King Louis of Wurtemburg, who fled from Germany under sentence of death.

Stung to desperation by Molitor's tyrannies and vice a band of colonists poured a volley of bullets through the killing Molitor.

The principal actors in this tragedy were sentenced to prison for life, but were subsequently pardoned. Amid such surroundings Assassin Czolgosz was born and reared.

One of the members of a cabinetmaking firm in New York has reported to the police that he had had in his employ a number of Italian cabinetmakers, and on the day President McKinley was shot at Buffalo they set up wild cries in the shop in commendation of the assassin's act. They cheered and yelled with delight until the firm became frightened at having such characters in its employ and discharged about a dozen of the most desperate ones. Since then members of the firm have received a number of threatening letters.

It is difficult to prevent such a crime as that of the anarchist at Buffalo. "There were about 20,000 soldiers," it is noted, "close to President Carnot at the time of his assassination, and over 50,000 were near the Czar Alexander when he was struck down."

A GREAT BATTLE SHIP

Lewis, Del., Sept. 21. — The Russian battleship Retvizan proceeded to sea Saturday for the most important of the various tests incident to the construction and acceptance of a warship, that of the heavy batteries.

The ship steamed direct to the neighborhood fo Five Fathom Bank lightship, where she had made remarkable success in her speed trail. Everything had been made in readiness for the test during the night, and the Russians who were in charge of the firing sent the first shell from the starboard 12-inch gun at 9.40 o'clock. It was only a half-service charge, and the effect produced on the ship was slight. After much delay on account of the nervousness of the foreigners, who fired the guns from the conning tower by means of long wires, another of the big guns sent a shell bounding across the sea with the velocity produced by a three-quarter service charge and the ship's vibrations were more noticeable from this shot. The motion was soon over, however.

The great shock came when both 12-inch after guns were fired simultaneously with full charges. The noise was terrible, and the frail wooden partitions and doors that temporarily separated the quarters of the main deck were smashed and twisted like splinters, and some of the electrical appliances were disturbed. Otherwise there was not noticeable damage to the ship and E. S. Cramp, who was on board in charge, was highly pleased with the stability of the ship as proved by this hot. Only a few shots were fired from the forward big guns. After one or two shots one of the ammunition hoists got out of order.

The only difference that occurred during the day between the builders and representatives of the Czar was when the foreign gunners proposed to fire both forward guns at once elevated to a pitch that threw them exceeding close to the overhang of the main bridge. Such a shot would necessarily endanger the bridge, and Engineer Mull, of the Cramp representatives, protested. After much argument the shot was not used.

The guns, turrets, ammunition, hoists, etc., were all products of Russia, and the turrets are undoubtedly of splendid construction, as the effect of the test by careful measurement did not move them 1-64th of an inch. The test will be completed in two days.

Much longer time was taken than was necessary on account of the Russians, who went to remote part of the ship at each shot. The Russians placed live rabbits in the gun turrets during the fire to see if they would live, so as to show the effect on the gunners in the turrets. Not a single rabbit was affected.

A U. S. CONSUL'S VIEW

Kansas City. Sept. 21—Colonel Stowe formed United States consul at Cape Town, South Africa, arrived in Kanasa City this morning. Colonel Stowe resigned his position in spite of the protests of the government and a large number of comerical organizations throughout the country. The salary was not sufficient to induce Colonel Stowe to retain the place.

"The pay is not enough," said Colonel Stowe today. "It is less than any other government pays its consul and all this in view of the fact that our trade has increased from 9 million dollars to 20 millions in the last few years.

"I cannot tell how far off the end of the Boer war is. The resistance seems to be steadily growing less. This may largely be accounted for by the reports by Boers who have been kept in the concentration camps. All these Boers had free permission to make any complaints they wished to me, but I was never appealed to. As a matter of fact, they are better cared for now than they ever were. They get new clothes, are well fed and 900 or 1,000 of them have joined the police force.

"The method of warfare is this: A British flying column starts out in pursuit of the Boers, or rather the Boer forces, composed of men of all nationalities. After a skirmish the Boers separate, to meet at some previously appointed place. They separate into squads of two or three, and retreat to the mountains, which are covered several inches deep with thorns and in which bridle paths are the only roads. If the British should attempt to separate in like manner and pursue the Boers they would be cut off and killed. Only occasionally the Boers come from the mountains for food.

"I like the Boers of the veldt, even the simple, ignorant and superstitious. They are a kindly, hospitable people and have been led like sheep to the slaughter. One cannot help but admire their blind patriotism, but the government of the so-called South African republic, the immortal thirteen, the triumvirate with its Hollander attachments, was an oligarchy pure and simple, and Paul Kruger was its prophet."

Colonel Stowe says that after the war is ended prospects for trade in South Africa will be excellent, Stocks are depleted, and, in many cases, exhausted by the war and will have to be replenished. The Boers will return to their farms and should be kindly treated. In time iron and copper mines will be developed. There are also strong indications of oil. What am I going to do? Nothing. I am a diplomat out of a job."

Colonel Stowe was appointed consul to Cape Town, South Africa, in September, 1896, by President McKinley. His salary was only $3,000 a year, while the recompense of the German consul to the same place was $10,000 a year. The low salary was the principal reason which led to Colonel Stowe's resignation, although American commerical interests which he so ably represented agreed to add materially to his salary if he would remain in South Africa.

Colonel Stowe was in South Africa at the beginning and during the height of the Boer war and represented the United States during that time in a competent and diplomatic manner. A year ago last August Consul Stowe was a passenger on a special train which was derailed, fired upon and captured by the Boers. Many bullets passed through the compartment in which Colonel Stowe was sitting. Colonel Stowe was uninjured and he induced the Boers to release all persons and baggage captured on the train. At the time Colonel Stowe was going to Pretoria on a special mision for the United States government.

Colonel Stowe was directly responsible for a great increase of American trade with South Africa. He had been engaged in business in Kansas City since 1887 and is president of the Stowe implement company.

THE ROYAL VISIT.

Montreal, Que., Sept. 20.—The citizens of Montreal gave their Royal Highnesses a great send-off when they left for Ottawa this morning. The route from Lord Strathcona's house to the Windsor depot was well lined with spectators, while in front of the depot and all along the sides of Dominion square the crowd was as thick as at any time on Wednesday. The military guards were small, except the Fifth Royal Scots, who furnished a guard of honor, with a band which looked extremely well. The royal carriage was escorted by a squad of mounted police and the usual cavalry escort, and as it passed along the Duke and Duchess both bowed their acknowledgments and seemed to be delighted with the enthusiasm. His Royal Highness wore plain morning dress, while the Duchess was dressed in a simple black costume with bonnet to match. As they entered the station they were received by Lord Strathcona, the Mayor, Sir W. C. Van Horne, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy and the members of the Civic and Reception Committees. Their Royal Highnesses shook hands with all the members of the committee, winding up with Sir William Van Horne and Sir Thomas Shaughnessy. Mr. Baker received the party at the train and sharp at nine o'clock it pulled out for Ottawa amid renewed cheering. At St. Polycarpe the train will be handed over to the Canada Atlantic Railway Company, who will carry it to the Capital.

THE DUKE AT OTTAWA.

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 20. Ottawa awoke early this morning, pulled up the window blinds, saw that the day would be fair, straightway got on her most regal attire and eagerly prepared to give royalty a most royal welcome. The capital of a young puissant nation, destined to rival, perhaps surpass, in the coming years, the old Mother Land in population and industries and affluence, rose nobly to its opportunity and gave a worthy greeting to the heir of the greatest of all world empires. Preparations for the royal festival were practically completed. Last night the illuminations on the Parliament Buildings were rehearsed. The many hundreds of incandescent lights lining the magnificent gothic architecture of the nation's council house on Parliament hill were turned on at first in a dim ruddy glow, then gradually in full splendor. The effect fell but little short of the boasted Buffalo Exposition illuminations.

On all the principal streets there is a lavish display of flags and bunting, the main walls of the Commons looking especially gorgeous with its long rows of flowing streamers leading up each side to the pavilion situated just below the main stairway, where their Royal Highnesses were officially welcomed. Early this morning a gang of men were putting on the finishing touches and dusting the large arch at the corner of Sparks and Metcalfe streets, just to the south of the main entrance to the Commons. "One hundred thousand welcomes" was the motto on one side of the arch. "One People, One Flag, One Empire," was written on another side. Both mottoes were appropriate. Judging by the enthusiasm of the cheering crowds the Duke and Duchess were thrice welcome to every one of Ottawa's 60,000 citizens, and in the heart of London itself the heir to the throne could not have found himself more warmly received by British subjects.

A RETROSPECT.

Forty years ago Ottawa, then a mere an historic river, welcomed to her gates the eldest son of Queen Victoria by sending down the river to greet him scores of canoes manned by the sturdy lumbermen who then mainly composed the city's population. They were picturesquely dressed in white trousers, red shirts, with sashes and caps to match. During the river trip up to the city they sang boat and shanty songs to the accompaniment of their flashing paddles. When the Prince and suite had landed the men of the axe and pikepole also disembarked and escorted the royal visitor to the old Victoria hotel.

Today how different the reception: Instead of a primitive steamer and an escort of shantymen bearing the implements of peace instead of those of war, the son of the then Prince arrived at the station in a sumptuous royal train and was escorted up the wide well-built streets of one of the busiest and most progressive cities in Canada, with all the pomp and ceremony of martial escorts and glittering uniforms.

Promptly at 11.45 this morning the royal train pulled into the Elgin street station. The approaches to the station and the whole neighborhood were black with cheering thousands. "The glory of the North" as one of Ottawa's poets has called her, gave a resonant welcome to the future King and Queen. The guns thundered out a royal salute from Nepean Point, and the bands struck up the National Anthem, and their Royal Highnesses and suite stepped from the train and were greeted by the dignitaries of the Capital.

THE PROCESSION.

The royal procession promptly joined up and proceeded up Parliament Hill via Elgin, McLeod, Metcalfe, Sparks, Bank and Wellington streets. The order of the procession was as follows:—

Three mounted police.
25 yards space.
Two troopers.
50 yards space.
One sergeant.
5 yards space.
A staff officer.
No. 1 troop of escorts.
50 yards space.
Carriages of royal suite.
No. 2 troop of escorts.
50 yards space.
A staff officer.
Headquarters staff.
Canadian militia.
50 yards space.
Royal carriages.
Lieut. the Duke of Roxburgh.
M.V.O., R.H.G.O.
Second in command of escort.
50 yards space.
Captain the Viscount Crichton.
D.S.O., R.H.G.O.C.
The escorts trumpeter.
No. 3 troop of escorts.
50 yards space.
No. 4 troop of escorts.
50 yards space
One sergeant.
50 yards space.
Two troopers.
25 yards space.
Three mounted police.

It was 12.35 o'clock when the Royal party reached the main entrance to the Parliament Grounds. On either side of the carpeted walk just behind a row of erect soldiers, members of the Governor General's Foot Guards, were some 10,000 school children, each provided with a Union Jack. As the Duke and Duchess walked up to the pavilion, the school boys' band struck up "God Save the King," and the children sang the National Anthem, and cheered and waved their flags with regular school boy enthusiasism.

The Royal party were received by Mayor Morris and the Cabinet Ministers headed by Sir Wilfred Laurier, and led up to the pavilion, Mayor Morris, in long flowing red robes and lace collar, preceding Sir Wilfred with the Duchess and Lady Laurier keeping up an animated conversation with the Duke. On the platform of the pavilion were some two hundred of the elite of Ottawa society and of Ottawa officials, including all the Cabinet Ministers, the Deputy Ministers, Speaker Brodeur, Mgr. Falconio, and the Judges of Supreme Court, and other dignitaries of Church and State.

The Duke and Duchess were formally installed in the middle of the platform and the formalities of presenting addresses proceeded with. After enduring the ordeal for some minutes, his Royal Highness read a somewhat lengthy reply to all these tokens of fealty, and love from His Majesty's loyal subjects in Canada.

THE DUKE'S REPLY.

He declared his intention of taking back to his dear father all these eloquent expressions of devotion to his throne and person and stated that he and the Duchess were truly thankful for the heartiness of the reception accorded them upon their entrance into the capital of the Dominion. He referred to the fire calamity at Hull and was pleased to see that that city had again arisen from its ashes and was again facing its destiny with glowing hopes. Growing reminiscent, he referred to the fact that he was now standing on the threshold of the building whose foundation stone had been laid by his father forty years ago.

The change in local and national conditions since then was dwelt on briefly and his Royal Highness concluded with the hope that the two races in Canada will continue to aid and co-perate each according to its genius, in the building up of the great edifice whose foundations have been so well and truly laid.

After the ceremony on Parliament Hill, the Royal party proceeded to Government House for luncheon. This afternoon they are in attendance at the championship lacrosse match and tonight the official dinner at Government House takes place.

THE CIVIC ADDRESS.

The city's address to the Duke was in part as follows: "May it please your Royal Highness; with sentiments of the most profound gratificatin at teh opportunity thus afforded us, we, the Mayor and Corporation of the City of Ottawa, in the name of all our citizens, offer to your Royal Highnesses a sincere and hearty welcome to the capital of the Dominion of Canada and humbly beg to assure your Royal Highnesses of our unswerving loyalty and devotion to the throne and person of his Majesty the King. It is but natural that the presence of your Royal Highnesses should recall the ever memorable occasion when your august father visited the then infant capital and laid teh corner stone of these Legislative Halls which, in their massive and enduring character afford to-day a fitting symbol of our inalienable attachments to those great principles of Constitutional Government, to which are due in no small measure, the glory and the greatness of the British Empire. Four decades have since passed away, and the little town which, in the wisdom of the great and good Queen Victoria, was chosen for such high power, has become a flourishing and progressive city off sixty thousand inhabitants, the home of many and varied industries, and the centre of a great railway system. thus, we are proud to think, justifying the condence, which the Prince, now our gracious King, was pleased to express in replying to the address from the corporation of that day that with increase of population and influence Ottawa would prove itself worthy of the country of which it is the capital and justify its selection by the soveriegn.'"

INDIAN ADDRESS.

The Ojibway Indians of Ontario also presented an address in which they declared that "although the long period of quietness with which this country has been blessed and which has caused the war club to be buried under foot has not afforded us an occasion of furnishing proof of our courage. We are at all times prepared to defend British rule here and in any part of the Empire; we are ready to imitate our forefathers in their prowess in repelling the attacks of the enemies of te counhtry, and we, as their descendants, if required, are ready to do our utmost to preserve untarnished the fame acquired by them when last on the war path in defence of the British crown."

Some twenty pounds of addresses were also presented by various towns of Eastern Ontario, and by many of the local societies. The Duke was graciously pleased to accept them and they will be duly filed.

One of the addresses presented today was especially interested, as being from citizens of the United States. It was from about three thousand residents of the State of Massachusetts of Canadian birth, who assured his royal Highness, that they "had not forgotten their love for the reigning family in England, and that they had not lapsed in their affection for their native land."

JUDGE LYNCH ABROAD.

The Danger of Disparaging the Late President McKinley.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 20—The Rev. Albert Dahlquist narrowly escaped from a howling mob of about 1,000 people tonight who demanded that he be lynched. Dahlquist is alleged to have made a speech in Minneapolis a few days ago in which he referred to the assassination of the President as a noble deed. The man is an itinerant preacher and has been holding meetings in a district largely inhabited by Scandinavians.

Many of these people had heard of his Minneapolis speech, and when he appeared at the hall to-night to preach, a crowd of 1000 had assembled. As soon as he was seen a rush was made for him and threats of hanging and other ill treatment were heard on all sides. A squad of police had great difficulty in protecting the man, and at last he broke away, jumped out of a window and ran down the street with the mob at his heels. He outfooted his pursuers and escaped.

Canton, Sept. 20—While the crowd was assembled yesterday, waiting to view the President's remains, someone accused an Italian of saying that he would kill President Roosevelt. The man could hardly speak a word of English, and his replies, given at random, enraged the crowd. The cry was raised to lynch him. If the militia had not rescued the poor fellow would have fallen a victim to the people's rage.

Bayonne, La., Sept. 20—Isaac Marshak, aged 14, made disparaging remarks about President McKinley to his schoolmates. Thereupon the boys gave him one of the soundest beatings any boy ever received. As a crowning punishment his hair was plastered with caterpillars.

New York, Sept. 20—Magistrate Cowell arrested yesterday and sentenced to two months on Blackwell's island a Troy shoemaker, Wm. Davis, who sneered at the band of mourning he wore on his sleeve.

New York, Sept. 20—For using abusive language against President McKinley, Alfred Danschiall was sent to jail for sixty days at Plainfield, N.J.

Clear Lake, S.D., Sept. 20—G. N. Miller, of this place, was stabbed in the arm and severely injured by a tramp, whom he knocked down for remarking it was a good thing McKinley was shot. Miller was pounding the tramp unmercifully when other tramps came to his rescue, and a small riot was loose for a

HOCKEY FOR WOMEN.

Hockey for women, for several years the vogue in England, is being introduced in the United States, and the game might be adopted here. The All-England Women's Hockey Association was founded in 1895, and ever since then there have been matches played throughout the kingdom. The All-England team is composed of the best players in England, picked from the winners at the county matches. It has played matches with the teams from Ireland and from Wales and it still remains invincible. Hockey may be played in any open field, but a closely clipped lawn, pretty firm in its makeup, is best suited to the game. The hockey ground is laid out 100x60 yds. and marked off in 50 and 25-yard lines in white, in much the same way that a football field or tennis court is laid out. The ball, which is very hard and always white, is about the size of a cricket ball—that is, three or four inches in diameter, and a little larger than your baseball. Two goal posts, four yards apart, are at either end of the field. Each side endeavors to get possession of the ball and send it through its opponent's territory, between the opposite goal posts. Players are divided into forwards, halfbacks and backs. The usual line-up is five forwards, consisting of one centre, two insiders and two wings—three half-backs and the right and left backs. That, of course, takes ten players. The eleventh is stationed at the goal and is called the goalkeeper. The goalkeeper has the privilege of kicking the ball when it becomes necessary for her to do so. She is the only player so privileged. She, however, has a hockey stick like all the others. the captain is generally centre forward and leads the game. There is no danger in this game, nor is it in the least rough or unwomanly. Players must keep the relative position they held at the original lineup, so there is no chance of hitting with each other's sticks. Nor is there any colliding. Girls are coached not to stoop when striking the ball with the hockey stick, and, as an added precaution, the stick is not swung up higher than the shoulder. This rule is rigidly adhered to, and if a player swings her stick too vigorously and too far, the opposing side can cry "Sticks," and is entitled to a free hit. All players are required to wear skirts which clear the ground by at least six inches. The big teams have costumes of special design. The conventional cap, when a cap is worn, is a Tam o' Shanter with a feather or pompom.

Marriage Announced With Bride's Death

Paterson, N. J., Sept. 21.—A belated marriage notice, together with a notice of the bride's death, was sent to the newspaper offices last night. The marriage notice read: "Field — Ten Eyck—On Tuesday, February 19, 1901, Joseph Field to Jessie Ten Eyck of Greenwood Lake, N. J." The other notice announced the death of "Jessie Ten Eyck, beloved wife of Joseph Field" at Jersey City on Saturday, September 14. The bride died in hospital of peritonitis.

American Newspaper Directory.

Tells the circulations of all American newspapers. Revised, corrected and reissued every three months. Sixteen hundred pages. Price Five Dollars a volume or $20 a year.

BUFFALO.

We should hardly know how to get along without the American Newspaper Directory. We regard it by all odds the most complete and reliable guide that the advertiser can make use of; in fact we use no other.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 24, 1901.
R. V. PIERCE, M.D.,
President World's Dis. Med. Ass'n.

VERMONT.

The American Newspaper Directory stands, as it has always stood, the first and best of newspaper directories—the only one which cannot be ignored, the only one which every advertiser must have. No other can take its place; no other is needed.—Joseph Auld, in the Burlington (Vt.) News of July 3, 1896.

ADVISOR.

The Advisor accepts the American Newspaper Directory as the standard in newspaper ratings. The obstacles which obstruct its efforts to get true and reliable information are many.

The directory question is one which interests every publisher in the country—nay, the entire world. But in the United States, directories are becoming altogether too numerous. In this, as with other books of reference, it is necessary to have one which may be relied on as being an authority on the matter of newspaper circulations. There can be no question about the fact that at this time, as for many years past, the American Newspaper Directory is that authority. The Advisor is not paid to make this announcement. It makes the statement in the interest of advertisers and publishers because it is true. One thing the advertiser is almost cock-sure of when he refers to the American Newspaper Directory is that the circulation figures he sees therein are not overstated to any great extent. In most other directories they are. Only the publisher himself is to be blamed for not securing a proper rating in that publication, and every advertiser of consequence knows it. Thus the publisher who refuses to furnish a statement places himself under a reasonable suspicion.—The Advisor for June, New York, June, 1901.

CHICAGO.

Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co's American Newspaper Directory has long since earned the reputation of being the best of its character. It contains the result of patient, expensive and systematic effort to secure all attainable information of interest concerning American newspapers. The work has been honestly done. This will not be questioned by any unprejudiced examiner. The most important question is circulation. In attempting to give this information the Editor of the Directory encounters his most difficult work. It is the aim and necessity of the Directory to give the truth. The American Newspaper Directory is to-day the dependence and guide in a greater or less degree, of every large advertiser in the country.—Chicago (Ill.) Daily News.

BATES.

The American Newspaper Directory is the only reliable guide for the advertiser.

No man who advertises can afford to do without it.

What Bradstreet and Dun are to the mercantile world, The American Newspaper Directory is to the world of periodical publications.

A new advertiser will get from the American Newspaper Directory a better idea of the greatness of his country, and the tremendous possibilities in newspaper advertising, than from any other source.

If an advertiser spends only $100 a year he should have the American Newspaper Directory. For his business may grow and his right expenditure of his money become increasingly important. The time to learn how to spend $10,000 a year is before it is spent, otherwise the spending may be disastrous.

Many times the best paper in town costs the advertiser no more than the poorest. The American Newspaper Directory tells which is which.

The paper that was the leader in its town five years ago may lag behind to-day. Even one year may witness astonishing changes. If you are spending money for publicity it is vastly important that you should know where to get the most of it for the price. The American Newspaper Directory gives not only the present circulation rating of every paper in America, but show their history by quoting past ratings.

The book costs five dollars a copy, and a single reference to it may readily save or make many times its cost.

All newspaper directories but one are erroneously optimistic about circulations. The American Newspaper Directory may occasionally err on the other side, but that makes it all the safer for the advertiser.

My advertising experience began in 1885, and one of the first things I did was to buy a copy of the American Newspaper Directory.

For sixteen years Rowell's "The American Newspaper Directory" has had a place of honor and usefulness on my desk.

Many a publisher is ready to prove by other directories that "Rowell's is wrong," but few indeed can be induced to prove it by opening their circulation books to the advertiser.

Among publishers who are not willing that their real circulations be known, it is the best hated book in print. The moral is not far to find.

CHARLES AUSTIN BATES.
New York, June 24, 1901.

PABST.

If the improvement of the American Newspaper Directory continues in the future as it has during the past twenty years I do not think I shall live long enough to see any other directory take its place. There will, however, be the usual crop of directories just as every other good thing is imitated. Your long years of experience in dealing with evasive circulation reports have most admirably fitted you for placing a proper valuation upon such statements. Advertisers have come to know that the Rowell estimates are nearer the proper figure than can otherwise be obtained. The American Newspaper Directory is therefore indispensable in every well regulated advertising department. Lines are being more tightly drawn every day; it is difficult to collect for twenty thousand when you print only eight. If the advertiser were buying barley he would not accept three pecks for a bushel, although the quality might at all times be open for discussion.

The American Newspaper Directory is the guide and companion of the advertising man, and it is to the interest of all concerned to help perfect it, support it, and hurrah for it.

PABST BREWING CO.
J. R. Kathrens, Adv. Mgr.
Milwaukee, Wis., June 7, 1901.

SAPOLIO.

A growing need created it—the advertising agency system. One of the earliest and most successful workers, Geo. P. Rowell, is still in the field. He originated methods. Others follow his publication of a list of all the papers—the American Newspaper Directory. He has never ceased to love it, and labor for it. Soon out of the gross stupidity of imitation, it became a rule that every agency down to those of Oshkosh or Oklahoma must issue its own directory. An awful waste, for not more than one out of ten was worth shelf room. If the National Association of Advertising Agents could agree long enough to buy Mr. Rowell's Directory, publish it officially and drop all the others, it would accomplish something.

ARTEMAS WARD,
Advertising Manager for Sapolio.
—In Fame, March, 1901.

WASHINGTON.

Every page of the American Newspaper Directory breathes the desire of its publishers that it shall be absolutely correct in every statement it makes.

Truly yours,
FRANK ROE BATCHELD,
Clerk of the Committee on Banking and Currency, House of Representatives, U. S.
Washington, D. C., Jan. 17, 1899.

SOUTHERN.

We subscribe to and pay cash for the American Newspaper Directory, and find it of great value in our advertising department. We have 6,892 miles of railway, extending from Washington, D. C., all over the South, and in advertising this system we use more than 1,000 publications, and in selecting this list we find that we get a correct idea of circulation from this Directory that can not be obtained from any other similar publication. We receive other newspaper directories gratis, but the fact that we pay cash for this one in addition shows that we can not place the same dependence upon the "free list."

We thoroughly appreciate the careful manner in which this Directory is compiled.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 12, 1900.
JOS. H. HANNEN,
Adv. Dept. Southern Railway.

I am looking forward to receiving the new edition with a great deal of anticipation, as, although the American Newspaper Directory seemed to have reached a high state of perfection several years ago, there is always something new and of value in each succeeding edition. It is regarded as the standard authority with the Southern Railway.

S. H. HARDWICK,
General Passenger Agent,
Washington, D. C., May 21, 1901.

BALTIMORE.

We have used the American Newspaper Directory for many years and find it more valuable to us than any other similar publication. Much of the information given we cannot obtain in any other way. The book is not only a great help, but a necessity to our business, and we think its way of stating circulations is the ideal one.

DEATH OF COLONEL LOUCKS.

He Passed Away on Sunday Morning at Nicholls Hospital.

The many friends of Mr. Colonel Loucks will be greatly shocked to hear of his death, which took place at the Nicholls Hospital early on Sunday morning. The deceased was stricken with typhoid fever about a month ago, and, although he appeared to rally for a time, complications arose, and he gradually sank till death came. The late Colonel Loucks has been a resident of Peterborough for several years, and was universally popular. He was a son of the late George Loucks, of Marmora, in which town he was born, and where his mother is still residing. He has four brothers and two sisters, one of whom, Mrs. W. H. Meredith, is a resident of Peterborough. Six years ago he was united in marriage to Miss Maggie Kennedy, of this town, who, with one child, about five years old, is left to mourn his loss, and who will have the heartfelt sympathy of everyone in her sad bereavement.

The funeral will take place tomorrow at 3 o'clock from the residence of his sister, Mrs. W. H. Meredith, 676 Aylmer street.

LABORERS ARE WANTED.

Employment Agents Are Unable to Fill Orders for Men Wanted For Railway Construction Work and on Farms.

Prominent employment agents in the city complain of a dearth of laborers; men are wanted for nearly all kinds of work, and many harvesters who came out here from the East, intending to stay but for a short while, are shipping on railroad construction gangs. The building season is a good one, and a great deal of railroad construction is in progress, and every day the demand for men increases. The threshing absorbs a great deal of the available labor, but it is the opinion of contractors and employment agents that even when threshing operations are over throughout the country there will be no reason for men being out of work in the province.

Owing to the successful crop many farmers contemplate an extension to their properties, and as a preparatory move are adding to their permanent help by one or two hands. The immigration department here is in receipt of many applications for farm hands, and the agents are daily sending men to good berths on Manitoba farms. In their letters the farmers mention wages which run from $18.00 to $30.00 per month including board. Some applicants do not state definite wages, but mention "$30.00 for the first month, when future wages will be mutually agreed upon." Experienced farm hands of British origin are most in demand.—"Winnipeg Telegram."

The Right of Way.

Several complaints have reached the Morning Times of carelessness on the part of bicyclists and drivers of vehicles at street crossings, several persons having narrowly escaped being run over. One lady, Mrs. J. H. McClelland, was severely injured on Saturday evening by being run over by a lad on a bicycle, on George street. She was assisted into Eminson's drug store, and recovered sufficiently to proceed home, although her injuries were such as to confine her to the house for some days. The "scorcher" may be ignorant of the fact, but it is a well established principle of law that in crossing streets or highways the person on foot has the right of way. Drivers and bicycle riders should always bear this in mind. It is law, and if you injure a pedestrian by careless driving or riding you are responsible for it. A person is not required by the law to run across the street to keep out of the way of vehicles and bicycles. The drivers and riders are the ones to look out for a clear track.

Laid At Rest.

The remains of the late Margaret Sullivan, who passed away on Friday evening, were interred yesterday. The deceased was the wife of the late Daniel Sullivan, and had been a resident of Peterborough for 35 years. The funeral took place from the residence of her son, Mr. Simon Murphy, No. 81 Lake street, and proceeded to St. Peter's Cathedral, and thence to the R. C. Cemetery, followed by a large number of relatives and friends.

LIKE OPIUM EATERS.

Coffee Drinkers Become Slaves.

"The experience, suffering, and slavery of some coffee drinkers would be almost as interesting as the famous "Confessions of an Opium Eater," says a Boston man, W. J. Tuson, 131 W. Newton St. "For twenty years I used coffee at the breakfast table and incidentally, through the day. I craved it as a whiskey drinker longs for his morning bracer; I knew perfectly well that it was slowly killing me, but I could not relinquish it.

The effect on the nervous system was finally alarming and my general health greatly impaired. I had dyspepsia, serious heart difficulty, and insomnia. When I would lie down, I would almost suffocate. My doctor assured me it was due to the action of caffeine (which is the active principle of coffee) on the heart.

I persisted in its use, however, and suffered long just as drunkards do. One day when I was feeling unusually depressed, a friend whom I met, looked me over and said: 'Now, look here, old man, I believe I know exactly what's the matter with you. You are a coffee fiend and it's killing you. I want to tell you my experience. I drank coffee and it ruined my nerves, affected my heart, and made me a sallow, bilious old man, but through a friend who had been similarly afflicted, I found a blessed relief and want to tell you about it. Try Postum Food Coffee, a grateful, delicious beverage, full of nourishment, that will satisfy your taste for coffee and feed your nervous system back into health, rather than tear it down as coffee has been doing.'

I took my friend's advice, and within a week from that time, my digestion seemed perfect, I slept a sweet, refreshing sleep all night, and my heart quit its quivering and jumping. I have been steadily gaining in health and vitality right along."

DREDGES COMPLETED.

One at Lily Lake and Another at Lakefield For the Cement Works

Mr. John Strauch, of the Excelsior Iron Works, Cleveland, left for his home Friday night, having completed two steam dredges—one at Lakefield and the other at Lily Lake. At the latter place Engineer Finn is busy these days loading blue clay, a train load being shipped to Lakefield each day. Experts say that this deposit of clay is of a superior quality, and the Lakefield Cement Works were fortunate in securing it.

Accidentally Shot.

There are hundreds of women in Toronto and [illegible] in Canada [illegible] whose life is [illegible] on account of the [illegible] the [illegible] the dragging pains in the loins, the headaches and sideaches.

Many, too, are suffering from kidney irritability, bladder and urinary troubles, who are reticent about mentioning their ailments to anyone.

To all these kidney and backache sufferers Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets come as a veritable boon and blessing. They clear out the clogged-up kidneys, cure the backache and urinary troubles, roll away the burden of pain, and give health, strength and energy.

"For a number of years I have had kidney trouble and backache, so bad that in the morning I could hardly raise myself. A severe dragging pain would catch me in the small of my back, and I had no appetite and often suffered from severe headaches, and a general breaking down of the entire system was the result. But, thanks to Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets, they put new life and energy in me, relieving me of that awful pain and soreness gently and easily, so much so, that I continued to get better, until I was entirely cured. I am in condition now to make known to the world what Dr. Pitcher's Tablets have done for me and for whose future welfare I have the best wishes."

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are 50 cents a box at all druggists. The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto, Ont.

SERIOUS TROUBLE IN CHINA THROUGH COLLECTOR OF WAR TAXES

Serious Conditions of Affairs in The Flowery Kingdom

Refusal to Pay War Tax Sure to Lead to Civil War.

Tocamo, Wash., Sept. 24.

The steamship Clavering brings news of a thrilling battle which took place at the city of Chimo, China, between Chinese troops and 10,000 armed citizens who were determined not to pay indemnity taxes recently levied. The people decided that the new taxation was too heavy and asked for reductions. The mandarin declined to comply.

An ultimatum was thereupon sent him to the effect that if he did not make the desired reductions the population of the surrounding country would come out and storm the city. The mandarin made great preparations for this defence, fortifying the gates of the city with planks and stone, and posting all soldiers at his command on the city walls.

On the date fixed, September 22, a mob of 40,000 people approached the city walls with red flags and armed with weapons of all kinds. The mob gradually increased to nearly 100,000 people, and beleaguered the city for two days. Many were killed on both sides, as the mandarin gave his soldiers orders to fight desperately and keep the mob at bay as long as they could.

Seeing his case was hopeless the mandarin finally gave in and reduced the taxes as the people demanded. Magistrates have been sent from Shanghai and Kaichaouw to Chimo to enquire into the matter and devise means whereby that district can raise its full quota of the indemnity tax.

VICEROYS OF CHINA QUIT.

Prominent Officials Protest Against Rising Anti-Foreign Elements.

Hong Kong, Sept. 24.—Viceroy Tao-Mu of the province of Kwang-Tung and Kwang-Si and Viceroy Liu Kun Yi of the provinces of Kiang-Si and Kiang-Su have forwarded their resignations to Sian-Fu accompanied by a protest against the usurpation of power by the anti-foreign conservatives.

Some of the Berlin papers sharply criticise the emperor's complimentary treatment of Prince Chun. "The Chinese Prince should not be noticed," says the Deutsche Tags Zeitung. "The only justifiable attention was the treatment he has received from the mother and widow of Baron Von Ketteler and their conduct toward him might fairly bee regarded as a model." Prince Chun returned to Berlin to-day.

Dantzic, Sept. 24.—Emperor William has conferred the grand cross of the Order of the Red Eagle upon Prince Chun, head of the Chinese mission of expiation for the murder of Baron Von Ketteler.

WAR'S MOST CRUEL METHODS

German Commanders' Cruel Proclamations Resurrected

MANY FRENCHMEN WERE KILLED

Paris, Sept. 24.—Some correspondents of the English press, as a reply to the criticisms that have been passed here and in Germany on the English conduct of the war in South Africa, have been hunting up the records of the German treatment of the French in the war of 1870 and some of the "proclamations" issued by the German commanders during that struggle. In view of the discussions which have arisen as to the legality, from the point of view of international law, of some of Kitchener's proclamations, the following issued by the Germans in France in 1870 will be interesting:

"The railroads employed by the Germans are not to be injured. Any persons damaging these lines will be punished with death. The communes to which the guilty parties belong, as well as the commune through which the railroad passes, will be fined an amount equal to their annual taxation.

"The Mayors are requested to post guards along the railroads in order to spare their communes these severe penalties. Signed, Baron von der Tann, Commander-in-Chief, General of Infantry, Orleans, October 30, 1870."

They Called It Treason.

The following is another proclamation: "I hereby notify the inhabitants of the country that all persons other than soldiers who shall be found bearing arms against the German troops or committing other acts of hostility or of treason, will be immediately put to death.

"Only those wearing a uniform or some insignia immediately recognizable as denoting a military capacity will be considered as soldiers."—V. Wittich, General-in-Chief, Orleans, October 27.

The Governor General of the north of France hereby publishes the following notification with regard to the periodical press:

"All articles of a tendency hostile to the German troops, all criticism of the German authorities are strictly prohibited. All contravention of this rule will be punished by the immediate suppression of the offending paper and the imprisonment of its editor."—Von Fabrice, Governor General, Versailles, January 18.

SAYS SAMPSON IS INSANE.

A New York Man Predicts That the Admiral Will Not Live Six Months.

New York, Sept. 24.—In spite of all the statements that have been made regarding Admiral Sampson's sound mental condition and his general good health a well known New York man who has just returned from the New Hampshire hills, where the admiral is stopping, says that his condition is actually pitiable. According to this gentleman, whose veracity cannot be doubted, the admiral is a mental as well as a physical wreck. "I stopped at the same cottage with them," said the gentleman, "and never for an instant does Mrs. Sampson allow him out of her sight. She attends him as a mother would a sick child, humoring and petting him constantly. Sampson will sit for hours at a time on the verandah without uttering a word or seeming to notice anyone. The other day I was on the verandah when the Sampsons returned from a drive. After he had been helped from the carriage the admiral walked like a man afflicted with locomotor ataxia. When led up to the verandah and to within a few feet of where I was seated, he gazed vacantly about him and in a bewildered voice asked: 'Why am I being brought here? Where am I?' Sampson had been stopping at the house for weeks and yet he did not know where he was. Admiral Sampson is insane, and from his appearance I predict that he will not live six months.

The Yukon Indians Dying of Plague.

Seattle, Sept. 24.—The Rev. Father Rene, in charge of the Catholic missions of Alaska, returned to Dawson on Sept. 2 from a trip to Nome and Teller, and brought the first news as to the full extent of the awful ravages of plague among the Lower Yukon Indians last summer. Father Rene states that thousands died over an area spreading from Nulato down to St. Michael and southward to Kuskowim and northward toward Behring strait. Many in the lower Yukon basin were victims. The mortality amounted to many thousands, yet he is not able to state just how many thousands. The old Indians were chiefly the victims. The epidemic was a sort of cholera that seemed to affect the natives alone. Father Rene says it is thought to have been brought over in some way from the Siberian coast. The shortage of fish and other food among the natives did a great deal to spread the plague by rendering the Indians impoverished as to strength, which left them unable to withstand the disease.

THE KAISER GREATLY ANGERED

Policy of President Roosevelt May Offend Germany

SOME TROUBLE IS EXPECTED

London, September 23—British and continental newspapers devote much space to forecasts of President Roosevelt's foreign policy. Some of the London papers believe that the new executive's outspoken imperialism and strict faith in the Monroe doctrine may cause a serious friction with Germany.

The Spectator which appears in black border for Mr. McKinley, devotes much space of comment upon the sad event of his death and upon the accession of Mr. Roosevelt. With reference to the new President it says:

"He will be a thoroughly American President. As proof of his statesmanlike moderation we note his retention in the cabinet of Mr. Hay, one of the ablest and most sincerely patriotic of living American statesmen.

"President Roosevelt will not try to quarrel with England, but he will show her no special favor. The chief danger before him is that, while insisting upon the policy of 'hands off,' he may come into violent collision with Germany and that this collision may come while America is not prepared and Germany is prepared. We may be sure Germany will only respect the Monroe doctrine so long as she feels too weak at sea to challenge it."

Summing up President Roosevelt's foreign policy, the Spectator says.

"It will be neither for nor against England, but merely for his own country. This should not all bring about any diplomatic hitch between England and America. Mr. Roosevelt's declarations regarding the Nicaragua canal in no way conflicts with what is best for England."

After deprecating the idea of Great Britain urging that the Clayton-Bulwer treaty gives her any right of veto as compared with the importance of having the canal made and made by a friendly power, the Spectator concludes as follows.

"The outburst of English National feeling for America in her sorrow gives our government a unique opportunity of going a step further by giving America a free hand on the isthmus and accepting the Monroe doctrine despite the protest of other European powers."

Commenting upon the accession of Mr. Roosevelt to the Presidency, the Statist decries the idea that he is an imperialist in an agressive sense and it expresses the opinion that he will maintain the present excellent financial status of the United States

IN DEFENCE OF THE DOCTORS

The New York Medical News Says the Buffalo Physicians Deserve Sympathy.

New York, Sept. 24.—The Medical News in its issue Saturday, after a review of President McKinley's case from a medical point of view, will say regarding the physicians who were in attendance: "They did their work skilfully and judiciously. Their behavior was dignified, restrained and worthy of the best traditions of the profession. They had the misfortune, when success seemed to have been secured, of seeing it overthrown by a complication which could not have been foreseen nor avoided. They deserve our admiration and sympathy, not our criticism."

KRITZIGER WAS BEATEN BACK

Boer Commandant Unsuccessfully Tried to Force Orange River

THE PRISONERS ARE RELEASED

London, Sept. 23.—Lord Kitchener's message last night clears up the mystery as to the location of the waterworks mentioned in Friday's despatch reporting the capture of two guns by the Boers. It was generally understood that the Pretoria waterworks was referred to. But it is now clear that it was the Bloemfontein waterworks from which the captured guns and escort started. It is a singular coincidence that the battery which lost a gun near the waterworks in the fight of March 31st, 1900, should lose two more within fifteen miles of that place eighteen months later. For the first time it is now known in this country that Scheepers succeeded in capturing loyal delegates on their return to their homes in Oudtshoorn from welcoming the Duke of Cornwall at Cape Town. The Daily Express (an unreliable journal) says in a letter from Cape Town that a very serious state of things prevails in Cape Colony. From the Orange River to the sea it is in a condition of open or incipient rebellion. A letter from the Express correspondent at Cape Town tells of pillaging commandoes wandering free from serious interference, of farms deserted by their rebel proprietors, of armored trains that have been forced to patrol the lines as far south as Parl or Worcester, and of the strengthening of the defences of Cape Town.

LOVAT'S SCOUTS RUSHED

London, Sept. 23.—The War Office has received the following despatch from Lord Kitchener, dated Pretoria, Sept. 22:

"Kritzinger while endeavoring to force a passage of the Orange River near Herschell at 1 o'clock Friday morning, rushed the camp of a party of Lovat's scouts. He failed to cross the river, but the scouts lost heavily. Lieut.-Col. Hon. Andrew Murray and Captain Murray, his Adjutant, were killed. Deeply regret the loss of Colonel Murray, who throughout the war had led Lovat's Scouts with great gallantry.

"Under cover of darkness the Boers managed to carry off a gun. They were promptly followed up and the gun was recovered in a smart engagement, in which Kritzinger lost two killed and twenty taken prisoners."

PRISONERS RELEASED.

Lord Kitchener also reports that the British captured by the Boers in the ambush near Scheeper's Nek, September 17, have been released, and that the British casualties in the recent Vlakfontein engagement, when the Boers captured a company of mounted infantry and two guns, when one officer and five men killed, 23 men wounded and six officers and 169 men taken prisoners he announces that these prisoners have since been released.

TWO COMMANDOES TAKEN

He further reports the capture of two commandoes, one, consisting of 65 men, under Commandant Kochs, who were taken, together with their entire transport, west of Adenburg, and the other, consisting of 64 men, including J. P. Botha, who were taken with 48 wagons and their belongings, 45 miles southeast of Carolina.

MAJOR GOUGH'S FIGHT.

Pretoria, Sept. 23.—Details have been received here of the fight between Major Gough and the Boers, in which the British were ambushed and lost heavily. The country is rough and difficult. Major Gough, with 180 mounted infantry, made a dashing attack upon 200 Boers who were descending a hill in front of the British. Six or eight hundred Boers were ambushed on the British flanks and encompassed the capture of the force, with three guns. Twenty-five of the British escaped. Major Gough and Capt. Craycroft effected their escape later in the darkness. It is reported that Commander-in-Chief Botha and Commander Chris Botha were present. The sights and breech locks of the captured guns were destroyed.

It is believed here that about 2,000 Boers have concentrated for operations in Natal. It is not certain at what point of the Natal border they are aiming. If they attempt to go through Zululand they will probably get into a fight with the natives, who are friendly to the British. Gen. Lyttleton is planning counter-operations.

It is believed by the British military authorities that owing to the diminished numbers of Boers in the field it will be comparatively easy for the English to concentrate an overwhelming force at any point on the shortest notice.

CZOLGOSZ TALKS OF CRIME.

In Four Brief Sentences He Tells of His Act

Buffalo, New York, Sept. 24.—The assassin of President McKinley talked of his crime for the first time. In talking to Frank A. Olozanowski, editor of a Polish paper, he said:

"What's the use of talking about that? I killed the President. I am an anarchist. I simply did my duty. That's all I'll say."

The editor, who visited Czolgosz at the instance of the prosecution, said afterward:

"Czolgosz spoke earnestly and determinedly. I tried him several ways but he would not add a word to his declaration. I don't believe anyone has any more from him about the crime. Czolgosz is intelligent, and I don't believe he will tell more."

The closest watch is being kept on Czolgosz, and the sheriff's officers seem also bent on aiding the prosecution by getting admissions from the prisoner, but so far they have been unsuccessful. The prisoner talks on ordinary subjects occasionally, but will not talk at all on subjects leading up to the assassination of the President. When questioned in that relation, Czolgosz resumes his stubborn silence.

Through Our Newspaper.

The advertiser who reaches most of the reading people of a community does well. It is possible to reach approximately three-quarters of the population of the locality through one newspaper. To reach the remaining quarter it would be necessary to advertise in five or six newspapers. Many a successful advertising campaign has been conducted in the columns of The Times exclusively.

McKINLEY'S SLAYER NOW ON TRIAL

Hundreds of Citizens Clamor For Admittance

HAS NO GROUND FOR DEFENCE

Buffalo, N.Y., Sept. 24.—The trial of Leon F. Czolgosz for the murder of President McKinley began at 10 o'clock this morning. Long before that hour the streets near the City Hall were the objective of many curious people. They were willing to take chances on being admitted to the court room even though they knew that there were but 150 seats available. The various entrances to the great building with the exception of that on Franklin street were closed and guarded. Policemen were everywhere and rigid discipline was the order of the day. Squads of blue-coated men were stationed on every landing and in double line far outside the place of entrance to keep back the crowds, while in a station not far away were a number of reserves ready to reinforce them should the feelings of the people become aroused to the extent of an attempt at roting. Mounted officers paced slowly around every side of the structure and no one was allowed to stand on the sidewalk for a moment, so that at no time was the crowd large.

THROUGH THE TUNNEL

No one outside of the building saw the prisoner as he was taken from his cell to the court room. His guard again made use again of the "tunnel of sobs" under the street from the jail to the City Hall and Czolgosz was brought into the court room only a few moments before the hour set for the opening his trial. No person was admitted to the building without a pass signed by the chief of police, and it was necessary to show this to every policeman on every landing and in every corridor. The officer at the door of the court room was exceptionally vigilant and not only examined the little white paper pass but scrutinized the bearer critically, hesitating not to ply him with questions before admitting him to the room.

The City Hall elevator man was even forbidden to stop at the second floor where the court room is located and every one had to walk up the stairs and before the lines of policemen. The interior of the City Hall as well as the outside of the doorways still bore the sombre draperies of mourning, and quiet was enforced as befitting the occasion. Scores of newspaper correspondents and artists were on hand early. The counsel for Czolgosz, former Supreme Court Justices Loren L. Lewis and Robert C. Titus, chosen by the Bar Association of Erie County, and Carlton E. Ladd, saw him again this morning before the time for the opening of court, but he had no more to say to them than at each of the previous times they visited him. In view of the meagreness of the opportunity for a defence, and the fact that the prisoner refuses, absolutely to aid them, it is not improbable that the entire proceedings may be completed within two days.

THE ONLY DEFENCE.

"The mental condition of the assassin will absolutely be the only defence to be offered," are the words of Judge Titus, and there is no little expectancy that they will publicly abandon the case to-day or to-morrow and merely represent Czolgosz formally during the trial. As a result of the examination of two famous experts on mental diseases, Dr. Carlos T. McDonald and Dr. Allan M. Hamilton of New York City, the question of insanity is eliminated from the subjects upon which the defence can rely for support. Counsel are therefore placed in the peculiar position of being chosen to defend a prisoner for whom no defence is possible. The trial therefore is but a mere necessary formality of law, but its result is probably less in doubt than any other trial for murder in the history of American courts.

THE COURT ROOM.

Part III., of the Supreme Court of Erie County, wherein Leon F. Czolgosz to-day appeared to answer for the murder of the President, is a small room on the south side of the second floor of the city hall. The enclosure for the bench and bar occupies over one-half of the floor space, while the balance is given over to seats for the general public. Not over 150 of the latter could be accommodated, and these seats today were mainly occupied by the jurymen who were called in readiness for the panel on the Czolgosz case. Very few of what is termed "the general public" were spectators at the opening of the case to-day, because of this fact. Czolgosz, with his counsel, occupied seats directly in front of the judges' bench. The prisoner's chair rested just back of that of Judge Titus, and there were plenty of policemen near for the protection of the court and the officials from any untoward action on his part. Deputy-sheriffs, with their mahogany staves of office, were placed at various points in the room, and quiet was enforced upon all.

Dr. Allan McLane Hamilton, of New York, who examined Czolgosz yesterday because he "happened to be in Buffalo," was one of the first of those connected with the case to take a position inside the enclosure. Dr. Hamilton, who was the chief insanity expert at the trial of Garfield's assassin, Guiteau, occupied a seat at the table reserved for the prosecution, and this indicated that he was to be called by the Government to prove beyond a shadow of doubt the sanity of the prisoner.

Promptly at ten o'clock Justice White took his place on the bench and court was convened. The clerk began calling the names of the first panel of jurors called.

At 10.15 Czolgosz was brought into the courtroom, surrounded by deputy-sheriffs and policemen. He was seated between guards directly in front of the bar.

District Attorney Penney read the charge against Czolgosz at 10.20 and asked the prisoner how he pleaded.

"Guilty," responded Czolgosz, in a low tone.

Judge Lewis arose, and addressing the court, stated that according to the law this plea could not be accepted, and on behalf of the prisoner asked that a plea of not guilty be entered.

The trial then proceeded.

Former Justice Titus, counsel for the defense, then rose, and stated to the court the facts already known as to his connection with the case. He explained that the position of himself and his associates, Judge Lewis, and Mr. Ladd, was a peculiar one, and consisted mainly in making sure that all forms of law and justice were observed in the prosecution.

Justice White in reply paid a tribute to the counsel for the defence, and said that the prisoner could have no better counsel and that whatever the outcome, it would reflect only credit and honor to themselves.

The examination and swearing in of the jurors then began, the prisoner standing as each was sworn. The questions asked by Mr. Lewis for the defense, of nearly all of the jurors, were particularly directed toward the fact of whether or not they had been present in the Temple of Music at the time of the crime.

HOW STEYN ESCAPED HIS CABINET CAUGHT

London Telegraph's War Correspondent's Graphic Account of the Incident.

THE EX-PRESIDENT'S DARING RIDE FOR LIFE.

One of the Most Thrilling Incidents of the War—The Boers Will Hold Out Till Supplies Are Exhausted.

Pretoria, Sept. 24.—The London Telegraph's war correspondent says:—

That the Boers will continue to fight until their supplies are exhausted, is now regarded as extremely probable. A prominent burgher, who surrendered at the capture of Pretoria, told me that there was no doubt that the war would continue. The men now in the field have nothing to gain by surrendering, and will fight until the last round of ammunition is exhausted.

I must tell you how the capture of Steyn's eleven came about on the morning of the 21th inst. Gen. De Lisle's column had passed through Reitz, in the north eastern part of the Orange River Colony a few days previously. Gen. Broadwood, with the Seventh Dragoon Guards, the Fourth Imperial Yeomanry and the Third Dragoons, I think were near the place when they received an order from Lord Kitchener to turn back and search the town. The columns had been annoyed by snipers, but these had drawn off somewhat when Reitz was passed. Broadwood turned back as directed, intending to surround the place by daybreak. It is a square or rectangular built town, of straggling dimensions, with about 100 houses of all sorts. Unluckily, the scouts about 5 a.m., followed some loose horses, thinking they were part of their own force. When the mistake was discovered day was breaking, so less than a dozen of the Seventh Dragoon Guards turned and rode for the town, led by Lieut. Shaw. They saw a tent behind a house in a garden, with a fire smoking near, and early coffee being prepared. As they charged up about an equal number of Boers came running out, as if they had suddenly tumbled out of their beds. "Hands up!" our fellows yelled, and the majority of the Boers instantly complied. One of them, now identified as General or Commandant Cronje, reached into the tent for for a rifle, but the flash of a dragoon's sword made him desist, and another Boer found his cheek hot from showing a disposition to flee. The whole affair was over in a minute, and Broadwood's supports and main body were still far away. The scouts had no clear idea, nor had anybody else, I am told, what was expected to be found in Reitz, or that Steyn was anywhere in the neighborhood. They imagined they were going back to round up some refugees or snipers, or both, and not a man had the least idea at the moment that the eleven prisoners in night clothes and partly clad were the members of Steyn's Cabinet or War Council. To Lieut. Shaw and his men their shirted captives were but ordinary burghers, and they were unaware they had caught Steyn's younger brother, the Orange Free State Secretary and Treasurer, Mr. Brain, Commandant Fraser, Gen. Cronje, Gens. Darvel and Wessels or Mr. Fisher.

Moreover, creeping away around the corner of an adjoining house, bareheaded, in night dress, and with only socks upon his feet, was a tall, stout, swart, full-bearded, partly baldheaded elderly man. If anybody saw him, he probably smiled at the spectacle, and did not trouble in particular about an unclad burgher more or less. But the skulking personage was none other than ex-President Steyn himself, now reduced to this woeful plight. A Boer companion near by found him a pony and assisted Steyn to mount, for the ex-President prefers a wheeled vehicle to horseback. With a cut and a kick the Boer sent Steyn adrift upon a most uneasy seat. If, in the hurry, there had been a saddle thrown upon the pony it was ungirthed, and had turned beneath in a stride or two. Then the unwonted apparition appeared in the one long main street of Reitz of a dark, heavy figure of a man, bareheaded and barelimbed, with a flowing shirt, clinging to a horse's neck, and galloping madly to the eastward. He had to pass the corner where some of Lieut. Shaw's men were. A challenge rang out for him to halt yet not Steyn, but the horse, was in charge of that wild John Gilpin ride. I am told Steyn would have gladly stopped, but could not, and looked pitifully, as if he would have liked to Sergt. Cobb, the crack shot of the Seventh Dragoon Guards, repeated the challenge, and at ten paces lifted his rifle to bring the horse and rider down. But the weapon missed fire. Slipping out the cartridge, he put in another, but the second also missed fire. And why? Because the oil supplied the men was of inferior quality, and had frozen blocking the spring and the striker.

Owing to the intense cold, similar mishaps had previously occurred with the men's rifles. Lieut. Shaw snapped his pistol, but missed. There was more laughing than vexation at the man's escape till later on it was found that it was Steyn himself who had got away. When the columns came up, scouts were dispatched after him, but Steyn had been met a few miles out by three or four brother Boers, who had helped him upon a better and more comfortable mount, and conducted him by Kaffir tracks into the kopjes. Subsequently the Cabinet Ministers were brought into Heilbron, when Brain was allowed to visit his family. Thence they were taken via Elandsfontein, where I saw them, to Pretoria, and lodged in the old Birdcage upon the north side of the town. Their escort comprised Major Deitz, Lieuts. Shaw and Sullivan and 16 men of the Seventh Dragoon Guards. Since their arrival here they have been visited by their friends, and those willing to give their parole have been told that it will be taken, and they will be permitted to go about for a few days before being sent elsewhere. With the Cabinet was captured all the State papers, including correspondence with Reitz, Botha De Wet, etc., Steyn's clothes, a number of refugees, including women and children, and several hundred pounds in gold, with about £12,000 in bluebacks. The prisoners have recovered their equanimity, and Brain thinks that the end of the war is very close at hand.

ANARCHISTS SET FREE.

Chicago, Sept. 23.—The Anarchists under arrest here are to go free. In the hearing before Judge Chetlain to-day the prosecution said there was no evidence against them and agreed to their discharge. Similar action will be taken in the case of Emma Goldman in the lower court.

A BIG STEEL TRUST.

A Vast Organization From Kingston Said to be on the Tapis.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 24.—The Journal of this city says:—"It is reported here that a Canada Steel and Trust Company has been organized with a paid capital of $25,000,000. The company owns a billion tons of iron ore worth one dollar a ton at the mines. The plant in Kingston will cost $850,000 and will float $8,000,000 of bonds in the United States."

Kingston, Sept. 24.—Mr. B. W. Folger, of this city, was asked if he knew anything about the matter and said he did not. He continued, "But there might be many Kingstonians concerned in such a thing without my knowledge. I know that a good deal of iron has changed hands lately at K. & P. points. It would be quite possible to get fifty thousand tons of iron there. In fact I should think perhaps one man, Mr. Coldwell, has that much bought up out there."

MOVING FOR BOER ARBITRATION

International Court to Have the Matter Laid Before It.

The Hague, Sept. 24.—Baron Van Lynden, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, has forwarded to the Legations and members of the Council of the Court of Arbitration a copy of the Boer appeal for arbitration, with a notification that he intends to bring up the appeal for consideration at the first meeting of the Council. The date of the meeting is not fixed.

TOM MARKS PACKS THE OPERA HOUSE

The Opening play, "The Rose of Kerry," a Signal Success.

Over Two Hundred Unable to Gain Admission—"Under Two Flags" Tonight.

Marks Brothers No. 1 Company, under the management of the old favorite comedian Tom Marks, opened a four days engagement in the opera house last night to a house crowded to suffocation. It is estimated that over a couple of hundred people were unable to gain admission. Although the house was uncomfortably crowded, the audience was a thoroughly good-natured and enthusiastic one, and were loud in their praise of the company and the play presented, which was the romantic Irish drama, "The Rose of Kerry." The company has been strengthened since its last appearance here, both from a dramatic standpoint and in the matter of specialties. As usual, Tom Marks kept the audience convulsed with laughter with his clever impersonation of Terence O'Malley the witty Irish lad. Oscar O'Shea, a Peterborough boy (son of Mr. O'Shea, of the Commercial house) received quite an ovation on this his first appearance in his native town with this company. His portrayal of the character of Mister Mulligan was exceedingly well done, and he is sure to be a hot favorite during the balance of the engagement. James R. Field as Bat Keenan, as an Irish comedian, shared honors with Mr. Marks; while Chris. Allen as Captain Hardness, his partner in crime, played a difficult role in an artistic manner. Mr. Arnold Baldwin as Captain Fitzwilliams, captivated the audience with his splendid portrayal of the part assigned him. M. S. Goldaine, as Daniel Casey, played his difficult role in an artistic and finished manner. Miss Emma Gertrude Shea, as Rose Delevan, as an emotional actress is without a peer and should have a brilliant future before her in her chosen profession. Miss Esther Evans captivated the hearts of the audience as Norah O'Shea. The intended young lady will always be a favorite with a Peterborough audience. Mrs. James Field did the part of the Widdy O'Malley to perfection, and shared honors with Mrs. Sutherland as Mary O'Connell. The specialties by the different members of the company were particularly good—especially the dancing of the little Misses Elsie and Corinne Long. The play to-night is entitled "Under Two Flags;" to-morrow evening "His Atonement," and Thursday evening "The Wife, or, Rash Marriage. Take it in, or you will miss a good thing.

A TREMENDOUS PROVOCATION

The anarchist is bred by unequal conditions. These are perhaps inevitable, but when wealth is truculent and poverty grinding, there will always be found those who will express their despair of social conditions by what has been termed "the wild justice of revenge." The best minds in the United States have deplored conditions which are so favorable to the accumulation of great wealth—conditions which, while they foster trusts, produce a state of misery in the proletariat more shocking than that at which the visitor states in the slums of London. The multi-millionaire builds his marble palace; thousands of human creatures who helped to make the wealth of the city magnate, huddle together in dark alleys and tenements,—doomed to conditions which are worse than slavery. From this mass of festering humanity a man, a dozen men, will spring—sullen, brooding, maddened men, who simply see effects—simply see the awful contrasts, the palace and the attic—bloated wealth and starving children. A devil enters the heart. There is a mad desire for revenge—a revenge which shall be notable, which shall startle the world. There will always be inequalities of condition, but capital should be content with moderate profits, should be willing to give labor such rewards as will make for comfort and decency. Capital should do this in its own interest, for you cannot legislate against feelings which express themselves, at least, in murder, while the disposition to be considerate would make for the safety of capital and the stability of society. Market wages does not express the whole duty of capital. Market wages may be the devil's wages. Labor is entitled to living wages. The enormous aggregations of capital which exist in the United States, and which control the industries of a nation, are a tremendous provocation.

CANADA AND JAPAN

The London Times discussing the question of colored labor, notes that while in Australia this is likely to be the first real difficulty in the path of the new Federal Parliament, in Canada, and especially in British Columbia, the immigration of Japanese and Chinese, "appears to be causing, in a minor degree, the same disquiet as has been stirring in California for many years with regard to the Chinese invasion." Some British Columbians anticipate dire results from what one of them calls "the Mongolian invasion of Canada;" but the Times urges British Columbians to give a more patient hearing to "imperial considerations." With regard to the Japanese, especially, it urges that it should be borne in mind, in Canada as well as in Australia, that Japan is now freely admitted, and has fully vindicated her right to be admitted into the comity of civilized nations:

She has thrown the whole of her territory open to foreigners who wish to travel, or reside, or trade there, and it would be a serious matter to attempt to curtail offhand in any part of the British Empire, the rights to which her subjects are entitled by reciprocity. The vigorous protest entered a few days ago by the Japanese Government against the contumelious treatment to which some Japanese subjects were subjected by the United States authorities in Hawaii shows that Japan is determined to uphold those rights without fear or favor. Apart moreover, from the serious damage which the hasty action of the colonies might do in this respect to our Imperial relations with Japan, they would do well to remember that Japan is in a position to exercise reprisals against them, and possibly to inflict upon them losses which would far outweigh the benefits they hope to reap from a restriction of Japanese immigration. We are surprised that this aspect of the question should be ignored by a Canadian writing from Victoria, British Columbia, who has under his eyes, in the splendid fleet of the Empress Line, constantly passing to and fro between Canada and Japan, the evidence of the great trade which has sprung up during the last decade between the two countries and which is annually increasing, to the benefit of both. The case against Chinese immigration must necessarily stand on a somewhat different footing so long as China refuses to open up her own territory to foreigners as freely as Japan does, and continues to hold aloof as far as possible from all contact with the outer world.

British Columbians are too nearly affected by the Mongolian invasion to take so calm and detached a view of the question at first glance; yet it is a view of great importance to Canada as a whole, and especially to the Province, to whose shores the trade of the Orient is destined to come in increasing volume.

STEELE AT WORK.

Orillia, Sept. 23—Col. Steele has written to a friend in town under date of Modderfontein, Aug. 6, and says: "Boyd and I arrived here two days ago. I reported to the chief of staff and was immediately placed in command of B division, which later on is to occupy the northern Transvaal, with headquarters at Petersburg. The division is to consist of 1,[illegible] whites and [illegible] natives. I have organized my staff, with Major Canton second in command. He is a fine soldier. Boyd is chief staff officer, with the rank of major. Hildyard, son of Major-General Hildyard, who distinguished himself in Natal, is staff adjutant."

Are walked by the billiard player, as he moves around the table. That is the only exercise many a city man gets. It is this lack of exercise in the shut-in-life of the city, combined with irregular eating and indigestible dishes which tend to make the city man the victim of "stomach trouble."

When there is undue fullness after eating, with belching, sour risings and other distressing symptoms, a prompt use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will effect a speedy cure. In the most extreme cases of disease of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, the persistent use of the "Discovery" will result in a complete cure in ninety-eight cases out of every hundred.

"The praise I would like to give your 'Golden Medical Discovery' I cannot utter in words or describe with pen," writes James B. Ambrose, Esq., of 1205½ Mifflin Street, Huntingdon, Pa. "I was taken down with what our physicians said was indigestion. I doctored with the best around here and found no relief. I wrote to you and you sent me a question blank to fill out and I did so and you then advised me to use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I took three bottles and I felt so good that I stopped being, as I think, cured. I have no symptoms of gastric trouble or indigestion now."

THE LASSIES O' BOURN BRAE

By M. H. Windsor.

Oh! the sun rises bright on Blinkbonny,
And pleasant its orchards and fields;
Free and fair are the tomes of Blinkbonny,
And richly each broad acre yields,
There my heart wanders oft o'er the hills and away.
To the merry young lassies—the winsome sweet lassies
Who dwell at Bourn Brae.

There's charming Miss Josie sweet voiced in song,
And blithe as a robin is she,
Kindness doth dwell in the eyes of Mabelle,
Her eyes and her heart they agree.
I'm sae lonely the while when I think every day
O' the dear bonnie lassies, the lassies who brighten
The halls of Bourn Brae.

May the sun linger long on Blinkbonnie,
Its meadows, orchards and bowers,
Where we laughed, chaffed and chatted together,
We, and those fair cousins of ours.
Heaven guide them, and guard from all evil we pray.
The sweet hearted lassies, the fair peerless lassies
Who dwell at Bourn Brae.

LABORERS ARE WANTED.

Employment Agents Are Unable to Fill Orders for Men Wanted For Railway Construction Work and on Farms.

Prominent employment agents in the city complain of a dearth of laborers, men are wanted for nearly all kinds of work, and many harvesters who came out here from the East, intending to stay but for a short while, are shipping on railroad construction gangs. The building season is a good one, and a great deal of railroad construction is in progress, and every day the demand for men increases. The threshing absorbs a great deal of the available labor, but it is the opinion of contractors and employment agents that even when threshing operations are over throughout the country there will be no reason for men being out of work in the province.

Owing to the successful crop many farmers contemplate an extension to their properties, and as a preparatory move are adding to their permanent help by one or two hands. The immigration department here is in receipt of many applications for farm hands, and the agents are daily sending men to good berths on Manitoba farms. In their letters the farmers mention wages which run from $18.00 to $30.00 per month including board. Some applicants do not state definite wages, but mention "$20.00 for the first month, when future wages will be mutually agreed upon." Experienced farm hands of British origin are most in demand.—"Winnipeg Telegram."

WORLD'S END COMING.

New York, Sept. 21.—The Sun says.—If the present crisis in the relations of France and Turkey should hasten the dissolution of the Turkish empire it would have a bearing upon the date of the end of the world and the second coming of Christ, according to the Seventh-Day Adventists. This they have proved to their own satisfaction in a publication now being distributed by missionaries of the sect which was printed by the Review and herald company of Battle Creek, Mich., and Toronto, and which is entitled "Bible Readings for the Home Circle." The year originally selected by William Miller for the end of the world was 1843. When this proved an error another date was selected and then another. At present many Adventists believe that the world's end is imminent.

Those who connect the downfall of Turkey with the approach of the judgement day depend upon the eleventh chapter of the Book of Daniel for proof of their theory. The authors of the Adventist publication in which their theory is set forth are anonymous, but in a prefatory note the publishers explain that several Biblical scholars contributed to the book, that it was edited and revised by John Corliss and others, and that finally it "passed under the examination of a committee appointed for that purpose."

A NEW EXEGESIS.

The eleventh chapter of Daniel recounts the wars and varying fortunes of the king of the north and the king of the south. Some scholars, Matthew Henry among them, hold that it refers entirely to the period beginning with the reign of Cyrus the Great and ending of the downfall of Autiochus the Great. Disregarding this view, one of the authors of the Adventists' publication says in a chapter headed "The Eastern Question,"

"Beginning with the first year of Darius the Mede, it the (prophecy) passes through the remainder of Persian history (verse 3) the brief reign of Alexander the Great (verse 3 and 4) followed by the long contests between the kings of Syria and Egypt, the former called 'the king of the north' and the latter 'the king of the south' these countries being respectively north and south from Jerusalem (verses 1, 15), then passes into a Roman history (verses 16, 20), notices the crucifixion of Christ (verse 22), touches upon the work of the papacy (verses 20, 33), the great Reformation (verse 34), the end of papal supremacy in 1798 (verse 85); then introduces and ends with the closing portion of the history of the Turkish empire, this empire now including as part of its domain the identical territory of the old Assyrian kingdom and for this reason receiving also the name 'the king of the north.' (verses 40, 46).

DOWN TO THE MODERN TIMES.

Verse 35, the Adventist whiter says, refers as the "end of Papal supremacy" meaning thereby the captivity of Pius VI. The Adventist calculates that according to prophetic symbol, "a time and times and the dividing of times" mentioned in Daniel vii, 25; xii, 7, and Revelations xii, 14, is analagous to the 1,260 "days" or prophetic years mentioned in Revelations xii, 14, and therefore means a period of 1,260 years, and that this coincides with the era beginning with the assumption by the Bishop of Rome of general ecclestical dominion in 588 A. D. and lasting to the French invasion of Rome in 1798.

"Thus," the writer continues, "we find ourselves located by verse 35 in the year 1798 at the end of 1,260 years, and at the beginning of a period called 'the end of time.'"

With this for a basis for his end-of-the world theory, the rest is comparatively easy to the Adventist. The atheistical king of verse 38 and 37 is to him the nation of France during the Reign of Terror, and as confirmation of this view, he cites the subsequent Worship of Reason and the confiscation of the states of the nobility in France as answering the purpose of verses 38 and 39. Hence Daniel in verse 40 refers to Napoleon's Egyptian campaign of 1798, caused ostensibly by the provocations of Egypt or "King of the South," in which Turkey or "King of the North," replied Napoleon at Acre and with the assistance of England and Russia "came at him (France) like a whirlwind," whereby owing to French reverses elsewhere Turkey was left in possession of Egypt.

The writer then points to verses 41 and 43 as referring to the Turkish occupation of French strongholds in Palestine and Turkish control of Egypt. Verse 34 as to "Tidings out of the east and out of the north" therefore portended the aggression of the Persians and the Russians and the Crimean war, from which Turkey emerged safely with the help of England and France.

NOW FOR THE FINISH.

The forty-fifth and final verse of the chapter, "And he shall plant the tabernacles of his palace between the seas in the glorious holy mountain; yet he shall come to his end and none shall help him," is constructed as meaning that the Turk shall establish his government in some part of the Holy Land and perish. Bishop Newton is cited as asserting that "the expression 'between the seas, in the glorious holy mountain' must denote some part of the Holy Land," and the deduction is reached that the Turks will seek refuge in Asia when the powers finally resort to the partition of their European domain.

For this assertion that the end of the world will follow this catastrophe to Turkey the author replies on the opening verses of the next chapter of Daniel, in which the prophet says: "And at that time shall Michael stand up, the great prince which standeth for the children of the people; and there shall be a time of trouble such as never since there was a nation even to that same time and at that time Thy people shall be delivered * * * and many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt.

Too Many Triplets.

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 21.—Eight years of letter correspondence between Deputy Postmaster T. H. Hartman of Blairstown, N. J., and Miss Inez Ostrander of Kansas City culminated last Wednesday evening in their marriage at the Methodist church in Blairstown. The couple became acquainted through answering advertisements eight years ago. The bride is only four feet four inches tall.

EYE OF EUROPE ON ROOSEVELT

London, September 21—Further familiarity with the idea of Mr. Roosevelt as President is having its natural result in dissipating doubts entertained as to the effect of his succession upon the foreign policy of the United States. At any rate it is becoming generally conceded in Great Britain that the United States have obtained a President of great distinction of character. The exposition of his policy Sunday is the subject of general comment.

The Daily Graphic, which points out that the president of the United States occupies a more powerful position than any sovereign in Christendom, with the possible exceptions of the German Emperor and the czar of Russia, sums up his policy as "that of a sane imperialist devoted to the advancement and glory of his country without wronging others."

The Morning Post, in an editorial, says; "He is a personification of the younger generation of Americans who are looking forward rather than dreaming of the past. He is a man who seems made to be a leader of his countrymen in the new time which began with the war with Spain. He will be a president of great initiative, devoted to the national rather than to the party ideal."

This journal says that "No nation ever came to maturity without attempting to assert itself as one, if not the first, of the governing powers of the world."

The Daily Mail says:

"The United States have a great man at their head. We may expect with confidence that Mr. Roosevelt will be a moderating and not an exasperating influence."

Mr. Roosevelt's personality attracts the sympathies of the English. Many stories are told of his athletic and sporting tastes, as well as his achievements as a man of letters, rough rider and public man.

"His accession to office is fraught with great possibilities," says the Westminster Gazette. "To a great extent an absolutely new element has been brought into the politics of the world."

After alluding to the Alaskan boundary and Nicaragua Canal questions the paper asks:

"Will his impulsiveness lead him to take short cuts that may prove long and expensive? Time and experience can alone determine."

The Globe thinks President Roosevelt has already shown such ability that he would have succeeded President McKinley in 1905 and is confident that he will be a strong and able president. Telegrams from the colonies continue to furnish world-wide evidence of respect for the late president. The parliament of New Zealand adjourned on the day of the funeral.

HONORS TO CANADIANS

On the occasion of the visit of their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York, His Majesty, the King, has been pleased to confer the following honors on distinguished Canadians:

To be Knight Commander of the Most Distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George: The Hon. Sir John Boyd, Chancellor of the High Court of Justice of Ontario.

The Hon. Louis Jette, Lieutenant-Governor of the Province of Quebec.

To be Companions of the Most Distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George: Mr. Joseph Pope, Under Secretary of State.

To be Companions of the Most Dis- University, Montreal.

The Very Rev. George Grant, Principal of Queen's University, Kingston.

The Rev. Oliver Matthieu, Principal of Laval University, Quebec.

Mr. Oliver A. Howland, Mayor of Toronto.

To be Knight Bachelor: Mr. Thomas Shaughnessy, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

In the above list no name is more worthy of the distinction than that of Mr. Shaughnessy, the head of the world's greatest railway, who has done so much to make Canada what it is to-day. His promotion, therefore, is very popular from one end of this vast Dominion tot he other.

Mr. T. G. Shaughnessy, C.M.G., was born at Milwaukee, Wis., on October 6th, 1853. After receiving a common school education, he, at the age of 16 years entered the service of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Rail- purchasing department. After serving in various capacities, he was, in 1879, promoted to the responsible position of general storekeeper of the road. The field here, however, was too limited for a man of his sterling qualities, and when Mr. Van Horne became general manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway, in 1882, he induced Mr. Shaughnessy to become connected with the company in the capacity of purchasing agent. In 1884 he was named assistant to the general manager, and in 1885 assistant president. In 1891 he was appointed vice-president, and finally succeeded Mr. Van Horne as president of the company in June, 1898.

A recent biographer, in writing of Mr. Shaughnessy, says: "The prime merit of Mr. Shaughnessy is that he can see into the heart of a question while a duller man would be touching the surface of it from the attitude of the stupid and the commonplace. He has penetration and foresight. He is thinking of to-morrow before to day is spent. He does not live in the present. His vision carries him to the future of unopened continents. He has a mind for detail and a love of order, but he has a mental grasp that embraces millions, and he can think out a plan for a new fleet as well as dictate to his secretary the idea of the company in the matter of the claim of the Widow Jones, whose cows were decapitated at a level crossing."

From the first day of his life as a railway man there was no doubt in the minds of those who knew him that he would be a success. The qualities of his mind are thoroughly modern, and fit exactly the service of this greatest branch of modern public service."

ANOTHER AIRSHIP.

An Englishman's Invention Claimed to Surpass Santos-Dumonts.

London, Sept. 23.—If Dr. Barton, of Beckenham, England, isn't too enthusiastic concerning the airship he has invented he will be able to navigate the air with ease, speed and safety. It is said that his airship is engaging the attention of the English war office. He believes that his ship, which is a combination of flying machine and balloon, will be able to reach a maximum speed of thirty miles an hour, and will be equipped to remain in the air forty-eight hours. The conditions of purchase laid down by the government are that the machine shall be able to travel thirteen miles an hour consultation of those in charge of the days. Thus, so far as speed is concerned, Dr. Barton leaves himself a very considerable margin, though the staying power which he claims is exactly the same as that demanded by the government. The machine will be two hundred feet long, it will have a lifting capacity of four and a half tons, will be propelled by six screw propellers driven by two light petrol engines capable of developing seventy-two horse-power, and will carry a crew of three men. Dr. Barton expects the machine will be able to fly without the aid of the balloon, but meanwhile a gas vessel made of silk will be attached.

THE "SWEAT BOX."

How Stubborn Prisoners are Dealt With by American Police.

Whatever shape the mysterious third degree to which it is said Czolgosz has been subjected may take, it appears that the use of compulsion is not unusual by the American police. The "sweat-box" is the simplest method of compelling prisoners to give evidence. It consists of a long-drawn-out crossexamination, which is continued for several nights and days by relays of detectives until the victim, to purchase the percious sleep that is denied him, will divulge the information desired. Where this ingenious form of torture fails, and it is said to be successful in nine cases out of ten, it is supplemented by the use of force. In Chicago this is applied by a fictitious character who goes by the name of Shea, and plays a part which any able-bodied man, capable of delivering a heavy blow, may take. At stated intervals he enters the prisoner's cell and strikes him a forceful blow on the jaw. Without any remarks, he withdraws. The cross-examination proceeds, and the prisoner, who, after many repetitions of the experience, becomes terrified at his mysterious and brutal visitor, will finally break down and make a clean breast. For this extra judicial torture there may be some provocation when a prisoner is positively known to wilfully withold valuable information. Yet it is altogether at variance with enlightened and civilized methods in the treatment of criminals. It cannot be countenanced without danger to the public.

BOER IRREVERENCE.

They Steal the Bishop's Horses and Compel Him to Walk.

Cape Town, Sept. 23.—The Bishop of Zululand has been obliged lately to visit his extensive diocese on foot, in consequence of the Boers having stolen his horses. He had a seven-weeks' walk through Ntriwate, Isandhlwana and Rorke's drift. At the latter place the bishop had to retire to bed with influenza, getting up for a confirmation, and going back again. This is the second time the Boers, who profess such great reverence for the clergy, have taken his horses. The first time they deprived him of his carriage and horses as he was travelling to Utrecht. On the second occasion they knocked him up in the middle of the night and took the horses out of the stable at Kwamagwaza.

ROOSEVELT GUARDED.

Soldiers Surrounded the House he Slept In at Canton.

Canton, O., Sept, 23.—Extraordinary precautions were taken to guard President. Roosevelt. The guard at the Harter home was tripled and four complete lines of sentries encircled the house and grounds.

The precautions were taken after a in a calm, and remain in the airtwo arrangements. No one could approach the outer grounds around the house without being halted. The authorities deny a story that they had any specific grounds for fear and say the additional soldiers simply were precautionary measure.

The Wild and Woolly West.

The small boy was in his glory on Saturday morning, when a troupe of Wild West cowboys visited town. They gave two performances, one in the afternoon and another at night. They gave some really fine exhibitions of fancy riding and lassoing, and showed how wild mustangs and cayuses are caught on the prairie and afterwards branded. They also gave sketches of camp life in the far west. The troupe consisted of twenty three horses and nine men. They came here direct from Calgary, and left on the C.P.R. midnight train for Almonte, where they exhibit next. They are making a tour of Canada, and will probably be back here before they return to the Alberta district.

Long Walk For Little Bride.

Topeka, Kan., Sept. 21.—Governor Stanley has decided that his plan to give silver mugs to all triplets born in Kansas during his administration is too expensive and has adbandoned it. The Governor came to this conclusion after having spent $125 for mugs for thirty-seven sets of triplets.

—King Edward has his throat sprayed constantly, but the average man applies his favorite brand of moisture in a much more wholesale manner.

American Newspaper
Directory.

Tells the circulations of all American newspapers. Revised, corrected and reissued every three months. Sixteen hundred pages: Price Five Dollars a volume or $20 a year.

BUFFALO.

We should hardly know how to get along without the American Newspaper Directory. We regard it by all odds the most complete and reliable guide that the advertiser can make use of; in fact we use no other.
Buffalo, N. Y., July 24, 1901.
R. V. PIERCE, M.D.,
President World's Dis. Med. Ass'n.

VERMONT.

The American Newspaper Directory stands, as it has always stood, the first and best of newspaper directories—the only one which cannot be ignored, the only one which every advertiser must have. No other can take its place; no other is needed.—Joseph Auld, in the Burlington (Vt.) News of July 3, 1896.

ADVISOR.

The Advisor accepts the American Newspaper Directory as the standard in newspaper ratings. The obstacles which obstruct its efforts to get true and reliable information are many.

The directory question is one which interests every publisher in the country—nay, the entire world. But in the United States, directories are becoming altogether too numerous. In this, as with other books of reference, it is necessary to have one which may be relied on as being an authority on the matter of newspaper circulations. There can be no question about the fact that at this time, as for many years past, the American Newspaper Directory is that authority. The Advisor is not paid to make this announcement. It makes the statement in the interest of advertisers and publishers because it is true. One thing the advertiser is almost cock-sure of when he refers to the American Newspaper Directory is that the circulation figures he sees therein are not overstated to any great extent. In most other directories they are. Only the publisher himself is to be blamed for no securing a proper rating in that publication, and every advertiser of consequence knows it. Thus the publisher who refuses to furnish a statement places himself under a reasonable suspicion.—The Advisor for June.
New York, June, 1901.

CHICAGO.

Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co's American Newspaper Directory has long since earned the reputation of being the best of its character. It contains the result of patient, expensive and systematic effort to secure all attainable information of interest concerning American newspapers. The work has been honestly done. This will not be questioned by any unprejudiced examiner. The most important question is circulation. In attempting to give this information the Editor of the Directory encounters his most difficult work. It is the aim and necessity of the Directory to give the truth. The American Newspaper Directory is today hte dependence and guide in a greater or less degree, of every large advertiser in the country.—Chicago (Ill.) Daily News.

BATES.

The American Newspaper Directory is the only reliable guide for the advertiser.

No man who advertises can afford to do without it.

What Bradstreet and Dun are to the mercantile world, The American Newspaper Directory is to the world of periodical publications.

A new advertiser will get from the American Newspaper Directory a better idea of the greatness of his country, and the tremendous possibilities in newspaper advertising, than from any other source.

If an advertiser spends only $100 a year he should have the American Newspaper Directory. For his business may grow and his right expenditure of his money become increasingly important. The time to learn how to spend $10,000 a year is before it is spent, otherwise the spending may be disastrous.

Many times the best paper in town costs the advertiser no more than the poorest. The American Newspaper Directory tells which is which.

The paper that was the leader in its town five years ago may lag behind to-day. Even one year may witness astonishing changes. If you are spending money for publicity it is vastly important that you should know where to get the most of it for the price. The American Newspaper Directory gives not only the present circulation rating of every paper in America, but shows their history by quoting past ratings.

The book costs five dollars a copy, and a single reference to it may readily save or make many times its cost.

All newspaper directories but one are erroneously optimistic about circulations. The American Newspaper Directory may occasionally err on the other side, but that makes it all the safer for the advertiser.

My advertising experience began in 1885, and one of the first things I did was to buy a copy of the American Newspaper Directory.

For sixteen years Rowell's "The American Newspaper Directory" has had a place of honor and usefulness on my desk.

Many a publisher is ready to prove by other directories that "Rowell's is wrong," but few indeed can be induced to prove it by opening their circulation books to the advertiser.

Among publishers who are not willing that their real circulations be known, it is the best hated book in print. The moral is not far to find.
CHARLES AUSTIN BATES.
New York, June 24, 1901.

PABST.

If the improvement of the American Newspaper Directory continues in the future as it has during the past twenty years I do not think I shall live long enough to see any other directory take its place. There will, however, be the usual crop of directories just as every other good thing is imitated. Your long years of experience in dealing with evasive circulation reports have most admirably fitted you for placing a proper valuation upon such statements. Advertisers have come to know that the Rowell estimates are nearer the proper figure than can otherwise be obtained. The American Newspaper Directory is therefore indispensable in every well regulated advertising department. Lines are being more tightly drawn every day; it is difficult to collect for twenty thousand when you print only eight. If the advertiser were buying barley he would not accept three pecks for a bushel, although the quality might at all times be open for discussion.

The American Newspaper Directory is the guide and companion of the advertising man, and it is to the interest of all concerned to help perfect it, support it, and hurrah for it.
PABST BREWING CO.
J. R. Kathrens, Adv. Mgr.
Milwaukee, Wis., June 7, 1901.

SAPOLIO.

A growing need created it—the advertising agency system. One of the earliest and most successful workers, Geo. P. Rowell, is still in the field. He originated methods. Others follow his publication of a list of all the papers—the American Newspaper Directory. He has never ceased to love it, and labor for it. Soon out of the gross stupidity of imitation, it became a rule that every agency down to those of Oshkosh or Oklahoma must issue its own directory. An awful waste, for not more than one out of ten was worth shelf room. If the National Association of Advertising Agents could agree long enough to buy Mr. Rowell's Directory, publish it officially and drop all the others, it would accomplish something.
ARTEMAS WARD,
Advertising Manager for Sapolio.
—In Fame, March, 1901.

WASHINGTON.

Every page of the American Newspaper Directory breathes the desire of its publishers that it shall be absolutely correct in every statement it makes.
Truly yours,
FRANK ROE BATCHELD,
Clerk of the Committee on Banking and Currency, House of Representatives, U. S.
Washington, D. C., Jan. 17, 1899.

SOUTHERN.

We subscribe to and pay cash for the American Newspaper Directory, and find it of great value in our advertising department. We have 6,892 miles of railway, extending from Washington, D. C., all over the South, and in advertising this system we use more than 1,000 publications, and in selecting this list we find that we get a correct idea of circulation from this Directory that can not be obtained from any other similar publication. We receive other newspapr directories gratis, but the fact that we pay cash for this one in addition shows that we can not place the same dependence upon the "free list,"

We thoroughly appreciate the careful manner in which this Directory is compiled.
Washington, D. C., Sept. 12, 1900.
JOS. H. HANNEN,
Adv. Dept. Southern Railway.

I am looking forward to receiving the new edition with a great deal of anticipation, as, although the American Newspaper Directory seemed to have reached a high state of perfection several years ago, there is always something new and of value in each succeeding edition. It is regarded as the standard authority with the Southern Railway.
S. H. HARDWICK,
General Passenger Agent,
Washington, D. C., May 21, 1901.

BALTIMORE.

We have used the American Newspaper Directory for many years and find it more valuable to us than any other similar publication. Much of the information given we cannot obtain in any other way. The book is not only a great help, but a necessity to our business, and we think its way of stating circulations is the ideal one.

Permanent Cures of Cancer

We here give a few cases, where the efficacy of our Constitutional treatment in curing Cancer, is established beyond all question. We have plenty on fyle.

There is ample proof that where our remedy cures, it cures to stay and saves people from the torture of knife and plaster.

CANCER OF THE BREAST—A lady had Cancer of the breast, which rendered her right shoulder and arm almost helpless. Our remedy cured her over five years ago, and there is not the slightest return of the trouble.

CANCER OF THE FACE—This case of a gentleman who was so bad that his right cheek was almost eaten off with the disease, plasters aggravated his trouble. Our treatment cured him five years ago and he has been all right since.

CANCER OF THE STOMACH—Doctors pronounced the trouble cancer of the stomach. There was vomiting of material that looked like Coffee grounds. Great weakness and prostration. Cured over four years ago and well to-day.

CANCER OF THE NOSE—A severe case which was cured by our remedy in 1891 and has never returned to this day.

Full accounts of the above cases, together with the names and addresses of the persons, are given in our new book, "Cancer, Its Cause and Cure," sent to anyone, in plain wrapper on receipt of 2 stamps. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont.

Morning Times

PETERBOROUGH SEPTEMBER 24 1901

JOTTINGS ABOUT TOWN.

—Everybody reads The Times.

—The Peterborough Central Exhibition opens to-day.

—Prof. Sheets' dancing classes will open to-day.

—The roads in the country were never better than at present.

—The weekly parade of the 57th Regiment will take place this evening.

—Marks Bros' Company, consisting of 21 artists, are registered at the National Hotel.

—The re-opening meeting of the girls' Guild of All Saints' Church took place last night.

—With a face like that, it is no wonder that mirrors are cracked whenever Carrie Nation does.

—This will be a busy day at the fair grounds. Things are all to be in shape for the formal opening to-morrow.

—Thanksgiving Day will be celebrated on November 28, on which occasion you may give thanks, if it doesn't snow.

—The Toronto Globe says that the New Ontario colonization tent will be sent to Peterborough for exhibition.

—There are still a few copies of the new map of the county of Peterborough on hand. For sale at The Times Bookstore.

—Principal Grant, of Queen's University, Kingston, is dangerously ill, and his recovery is regarded as extremely doubtful.

—Every photograph taken at Whiten's studio is guaranteed not to fade, and is the best quality of work that can be made.

—Why doesn't some boarding-house landlady suddenly acquire a fortune by advertising her place as a sanitarium for the cure of obesity.

—It is suggested that the Mayor proclaim a public holiday on Thursday, Oct. 10th., on the occasion of the visit of the Duke of Cornwall to Toronto.

—The funeral of the late Colonel Loucks will take place this afternoon at two o'clock from the residence of Mr. W. H. Meredith, No. 576 Aylmer street.

—The Bletso family and other performers at the Central Exhibition, ten in number, arrived in town this evening and will be quartered at the National hotel.

Just in—the best assortment of English novels ever shown in Peterborough. Sell on first sight. 10 cents each. See north window in Times Bookstore, Market block, Peterborough.

—The Social Committee of the Y.M.C.A. met on Saturday evening and arranged for the grand opening reception to be held next Thursday evening from 7.30 to 10.

—It seems, according to the despatches, that Czolgsz both eats and sleeps, which means that any Peterboroulan caught indulging in similar practices hereafter will be regarded with suspicion.

—It is comforting chiefly for her own dear sake that Carrie Nation does not intend to stop off at Peterborough and break any glass-ware. If she did, our police force would soon give her a pane.

—Mr. T. J. Parker, the bicycle repairer, opposite St. John's church, is doing a phenomenally large trade for this time of the year, and has orders ahead that will take him till New Year's to overtake.

—The steamers Majestic and Empress have discontinued their regular trips, so that parties wishing to visit the lakes will require to watch the papers for announcements of when these boats will be going up. The Empress will run a trip to Stony lake on Friday next, returning to connect with the afternoon train for Peterborough.

—On Sunday twenty-five new members were added to the St. Peter's Total Abstinence Society, which speaks well for the zeal and activity of the members. Their rooms on George St. will shortly be lit by electric lights, and made comfortable and pleasant for the accommodation of the members during the coming winter months. The library will be increased considerably $100 being voted for the purpose. The first of a series of concerts to be held by the society will take place on September 28.

—A lad named Arthur Quibell, six years old, living on McDonell street, narrowly escaped death yesterday afternoon. While attempting to climb on to a wagon loaded with slabs he became entangled in one of the wheels, which had to be taken off the wagon before he could be extricated. His ankle was badly crushed, but fortunately no bones were broken. This should be a warning to other youths who are in the habit of hanging on to vehicles.

ONE OF THE PRETTIEST.

Diamond Hall. Formally Opened for Business.

Mr. R. J. Frost, the proprietor of the new jewelry establishment on George street, opposite the Daily Times office, has completed the interior arrangement of the store, and formally opened for business on Saturday. "Diamond Hall," as the store will hereafter be known, is without doubt the neatest establishment of its kind in the whole district, and the large and well assorted stock of silverware, watches, clocks, and jewelry, is well worthy the inspection of any one requiring anything in this line. The store, which is the acme of neatness, is lined with show cases put in last week by the Dominion Show Case Co., of Toronto, and the other furnishings throughout are both expensive and elegant.

As "Diamond Hall" is one of three associated jewelry stores in which Mr. Frost is interested, the firm is able to buy their stocks to the best advantage, and by this means can effect a large saving to their customers, who can thus secure goods in some cases at wholesale cost.

Mr. Frost comes recommended as a jeweler and optician of wide experience, having at different times been connected with some leading houses in Canada.

What Catarrhozone is and is Not.

Catarrhozone is not a wash. You cannot force liquids into the lungs. It is not an ointment to be snuffed up the nostrils. Ointments are useless and disgusting. Nor is it a powder to be blown up the nostrils and still further irritate the already congested and irritated membrane. It is simply balsamic and healing substances breathed into the lungs and throat. Cures of course. That is nature's way of curing, and nature's way is the only true way. If you suffer from disease of the throat, lungs, nasal passages, do not neglect to test Catarrhozone. Two sizes at all druggists, 25 cents and $1.00. Guaranteed to cure catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis and Hay Fever, or your money back.

Dancing and Deportment.

Prof. O. O. Sheets' classes in dancing and deportment are opening this week in the C.O.F. hall, Snowden Block on Simcoe street. Private lessons, 10 a.m. to 2.30 p.m. Physical culture, 2.30 to 4. Children or Juvenile class, 4.30 to 6. Two evening classes, one 7 to 9, and one 9 to 11. All the latest fancy and society dances taught. The classes will close with a grand entertainment. Join now and get the benefit of first lessons. For further information apply at Snowden House to Prof. Sheets, or at the Hall on Tuesday. Telephone 142.

A Veteran's Story — [illegible] Lewis, of Shamokin, Pa., writes: "I am eighty years of age. I have been troubled with Catarrh for fifty years, and in my time have used a great many catarrh cures, but never had any relief until I used Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder. One box cured me completely." 50 cents.—25

Sold by H. H. Edmison.

Police Suspicions.

Washington, Sept. 24.—The police are looking for a man who approached several pedestrians early to-day and asked the address of President Roosevelt's sister, the wife of Commander Cowles of the navy. Several officers were detailed to guard the Cowles residence. The man is described as about forty years of age, speaks with a foreign accent, has light moustache, wears dark clothes and carried a box about eight inches long and three and a half wide.

A UNIVERSAL FOOD.

Following Nature's Footsteps

"I have a boy, two years old, weighing forty pounds and in perfect health who has been raised on Grape-Nuts and milk.

This is an ideal food and evidently furnishes the elements necessary for a baby as well as for adults. We have used Grape-Nuts in large quantities and greatly to our advantage." F. W. Leavitt, Minneapolis, Minn.

One advantage about Grape-Nuts Food is that it is pre-digested in the process of manufacture; that is, the starch contained in the wheat and barley is transformed into Grape-sugar in exactly the same method as this process is carried out in the human body, that is by the use of moisture and long exposure to moderate warmth, which grows the diastase in the grains and makes the remarkable change from starch to grape-sugar. Therefore, the most delicate stomach can handle Grape-Nuts and the food is absorbed into the blood and tissue, certain parts of it going directly to building and nourishing the brain and nerve centres.

Made at the pure food factories of the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich.

SUDDEN DEATH.

Demise of Mrs. Thomas Mann, of Bridgenorth, Very Suddenly.

Mrs Thomas Mann, of Bridgenorth, died very suddenly yesterday morning or Sunday night. She had been in good health on Sunday, and attended church as usual. She retired to bed without any complaint of illness, and was found yesterday morning rigid in death.

The late Mrs. Mann's maiden name was Hannah Nicholls. She was 58 years of age, and a widow.

She leaves a family of two — Mr. Charles Henry Mann, of Hamilton, and Miss Margaret Mann, of Peterborough. Mr. A. R. Nicholls, of the Peter Hamilton Co., and Mr. Thos. R. Nicholls, of Lakefield, are brothers of deceased, and Mrs. R. Northey, of Clare, Mich., is a sister of deceased.

The funeral will leave her late residence, Bridgenorth, at ten a.m., tomorrow morning and proceed to the Lakefield cemetery.

Malt Breakfast Food.

A Triumph in The Science of Dietetics

Heller, the noted German food expert, declared years ago that perfect health cereal (grain) foods should, in some scientific manner be combined with pure malt. In delicious Malt Breakfast Food, now so popular in Canada, this happy combination has been successfully accomplished. Predigested Malt Breakfast Food agrees with the weakest stomach, and gives more true nourishment to the body than any other food now sold. Its use banishes dyspepsia and general stomach troubles. Your Grocer will recommend Malt Breakfast Food.

FROM THE OLD COUNTRY

Mayor Denne and Mrs. Denne Have Returned to Town.

Our popular Mayor, Mr. Harry Denne and Mrs. Denne, have arrived home after a prolonged trip to Europe. They left Peterborough over two months ago, and spent most of the time with relatives in England.

Mayor Denne visited Glasgow Exhibition, where he met Ex-Ald. J. B. Oke, who with Mrs. Oke, is enjoying the best of health. Mr. Denne also met Miss Sophia Cameron, of Aberdeen, daughter of Mr. Chas. Cameron, of town.

Mayor Denne appears to be in the best of health, and says that he enjoyed his trip immensely.

THE DUMMER EXCURSION.

A Large Party Take in the Trip to Fenelon Falls.

The second annual excursion of the farmers of the township of Dummer to Fenelon Falls, took place on Thursday and Friday of last week, and was a decided success. The weather was a trifle cold, which no doubt kept many from going; but there was about 100 on board the steamer Sunbeam as she steamed away from McCracken's Landing on Thursday morning.

Dancing was the favorite pastime, and was kept up without intermission. Most of those on board brought baskets with them, in the old-fashioned picnic style, which was most enjoyable; but those who did not do this had ample opportunity to satisfy their hunger at different points along the route. The first stop was made at Buckhorn, where dinner was partaken of, after which a move was made to Bobcaygeon, where the party stopped an hour. Fenelon Falls was reached at five o'clock, and the party partook themselves to the various hotels for the night.

In the morning they again embarked for Rosedale, at the head of Cameron Lake, where they arrived in due course.

The return home was made in easy stages, the party arriving at McCracken's at 7 o'clock, and Lakefield at 9.

The Committee of Management were heartily thanked for the successful way in which the excursion was handled. It was one of the most enjoyable that could be imagined. The gentlemen who had charge of the affair were: Reeve Moore, Messrs. J. J. Crowe, W. J. Doughty, and Richard Crowe.

Lakefield's Fair

The annual fair of the Township of Smith and Ennismore and Village of Lakefield Agriculture Society will be held in the Society's Grounds, in Lakefield, on Tuesday and Wednesday, October 1st and 2nd, 1901.

Competition is open to the Province and a good exhibit is expected. Prize lists may be had on application to the Secretary, W. Sherin, Lakefield.

Track Being Torn Up.

The work of sewer construction on George street north, under contractor Hayes, is proceeding satisfactorily. The track of the Street Railway is being torn up and the ties and rails thrown aside. This is really too bad. Cannot something be done to save the railway?

Nervous Dyspepsia.

How it shakes one up, invades sleep, destroys strength, adds a real misery to life. Not the stomach but the nerves are affected. Starved nerves make the whole trouble. You need Ferrozone because its a nerve food. It supplies the elements that are needed to make rich, red blood. This is the savings bank of health. The richer the blood in red cells, the richer you're sure to be in health. Ferrozone quickly makes blood, strengthens the nervous system, strengthens the digestive organs, and prestol the nervous disturbance disappears. Sold by Ormond & Walsh.

Laid at Rest.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Lech took place yesterday afternoon to the Little Lake cemetery. The floral offerings were beautiful, several coming from Montreal and elsewhere. The remains were followed to their last resting place by a large number of sorrowing relatives and friends.

Our Sidewalks.

Editor Morning Times

Sir,—The Town Engineer is developing some marvellous novelties in the way of sidewalk construction in this town. The granolithic sidewalk on the east side of George street was graded from the north, and was supposed to have been started on average scientific principles. But on wearing due south it was suspected that the sidewalk science of this town was leading the well meaning engineer astray, for on taking accurate observations from the north pole star it was found that if the same grade was continued the sidewalk would lift the unwary citizen gradually into the air, until at last his head would brush against the clock on the tower of the market building, and in order to avoid this calamity the grade was suddenly dropped at Brock street, which leaves a small perpendicular wall across the sidewalk at that point.

But they say that this can be easily remedied by using a step ladder or a hoist by day and a red lamp by night for the convenience and safety of pedestrians, convenience and safety of pedestrians, and as the Hon. President of the Lime Juice Club is on parole at present, his services might be secured on easy terms, to oversee the works. The exact location of the President's duties would be directly across the street from the Commercial, so that when weary and athirst he wouldn't have far to go for a quencher.

CITIZEN.

The Cause of Nervous Headache.

This most distressing and common malady doubtless has its origin in some unbalanced condition of the nervous system. Probably the simplest, safest and most efficient remedy is Polson's Nerviline. Twenty drops in sweetened water gives immediate relief, and this treatment should be supplemented by bathing the region of pain with Nerviline. To say it acts quickly fails to express the result. Sold everywhere in large 25 cent bottles.

EYE WITNESSES TESTIFY OF McKINLEY'S MURDER

Dr. Mann on the Causes Which Led to the Gangrenous Condition of Wound

SOME INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT GERMS WERE DISCLOSED ON TUESDAY

Medical Expert States That The President Had No Chance From The Beginning—Interesting Evidence.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 24.—The trial of Leon F. Czolgosz for the murder of President McKinley was resumed to-day, with every prospect that it would be concluded with adjournment of the court at 4 o'clock. It was the opinion of those connected with the case that it would not, at furtherest, be prolonged beyond a few hours' session to-morrow.

The crowd about the court room this morning was slightly larger than yesterday, but the vigilance of the police was in no way relaxed.

The prisoner was brought over from the jail at 9.45 and placed in the same chair which he occupied yesterday. Drs. Mynter, Mann, and Fowler came in early, and Dr. Mann was ready to take the stand at once for cross-examination. At 9.50 the members of the jury filed in and took their seats.

ANARCHISTS REFUSED.

It became known this morning that application for seats had been made by representatives of several Anarchist papers, and refused.

Justice White arrived at the exact hour of ten, and the crier immediately uttered the formal notice of the opening of the court. The jurymen were polled, and Samuel J. Fields, chief engineer of the Pan-American Exposition, was recalled as the first witness. He was asked by District Attorney Penney the meaning of a certain figure on the floor plan of the Temple of Music. He said it was intended to show the direction which the file of the people took in entering the building, passing in front of the President and then out of the building.

HANDKERCHIEF PRODUCED.

The first bit of evidence directly connected with the shooting of the President was offered at 11.15 in the shape of the handkerchief which the prisoner used around the hand. It was dirty and stained with blood. There was a large hole in it and one corner was torn. Detective Gallagher of the Secret Service had possession of it.

DR. MANN'S EVIDENCE

Following is the testimony of Dr. Mann:

"Was the condition which you found at the autopsy to be expected from the nature of the wounds which the President received?" asked Mr. Lewis.

"It was not expected, and was very unusual. I never saw anything just exactly like it," replied Dr. Mann.

"To what, then do you attribute the symptoms or indications which you have discovered—the gangrenous condition of the wounds?"

"I have no positive opinion," answered the doctor.

"I presume, therefore, that the optimistic bulletins that were issued from time to time by the physicians were without any knowledge or suspicion of these symptoms that were afterwards discovered?" said Mr. Lewis.

"The bulletins on the conditions were optimistic in that they gave no idea of what was to come," was the reply.

"They expressed no opinion. They merely stated facts."

"But the opinions which were held by the staff seemed to be fully warranted by the condition of the President?"

"We had no reason to suspect the existence of any such state of affairs as was found," replied the witness.

"Now, doctor, you say it was due to several causes. Can you give either of them?"

"The entrance of germs into the parts may have been one of the causes. The very low state of vitality may have been one cause. The action of the pancreatic juice may have been one; undoubtedly it contributed to it."

"The germs which you speak of are present, I understand, in all our bodies?"

"Yes."

"And make their work prominent when the body is in any way injured?"

"That is true."

"That you expected, of course, in this case?"

"If the operation is carefully and properly performed we can to a certain extent guard against the entrance of these germs. We cannot do so entirely."

"How?"

KILLING OF GERMS.

"By having everything absolutely clean which is used in the operation—the hands of the operatives, the instruments, the ligatures and things we use. Nature can take care of a certain number of germs and overcome their bad effects."

"Are there any remedies known to the profession to prevent the action of these germs?"

"There are remedies which will kill the germs, but it is very difficult to apply them deep down in the tissues of the body. After they have got lodgement in the tissues it is impossible to kill them."

"The President was not a very good physical condition, was he?" asked the attorney.

"He was somewhat weakened by hard work and want of air, and conditions of that kind," replied the doctor.

"You think that had something to do with the result?"

"Undoubtedly," was the answer.

"You agree with the other physicians that the pancreas was not injured by the ball?"

"As near as could be determined, that organ was not injured by the ball, but it was injured in some way, possibly by concussion. Once the organ is injured, the pancreatic juice can pass through the gland and attack other portions of the tissues."

"The only attribute of that organ is to aid digestion?"

"Yes."

On re-direct examination by Mr. Penney, Dr. Mann was asked if there was anything known to medical science that could have saved the President's life.

"No," was the reply without hesitation.

THE MURDER DESCRIBED.

Louis L. Babcock, who was in charge of the ceremonies in the Temple of Music on the day of the shooting, followed Dr. Mann. He gave details of the arrangements made for the reception, and described the position of the President, the points of exit and entrance to the Temple of Music, and told where he had stood when the fatal shots were fired.

"I heard two shots," said the witness. "I immediately turned to the left. I saw the President standing still, and he was deathly pale. In front of him was a group of men bearing the prisoner to the floor."

"Did you recognise any of the men in this group?"

"Yes, the artillerymen, and two secret service men. They bore him to the floor in a second. I did not recognize the men who took the pistol away from the prisoner. The hall was at once cleared."

"What became of the prisoner then?"

"He was surrounded by detectives and secret service men. There was some controversy as to who had the right to the prisoner, but that was quickly settled, and he was taken to a side room, and later to police headquarters."

"It seemed as if all these men went to the floor in the mass. A few minutes later the prisoner was lifted to his feet. He was struck in the face by one of the secret service men and again went to the floor. He was then removed to one of the side rooms of the building."

On reaching police headquarters the night of the shooting, Mr. Quackenbush had accompanied the District Attorney to the office of Superintendent of Police Bull, where the prisoner was being examined. He told what transpired there, including the prisoner's confession, previously published.

"Did he give any reasons for wishing to kill the President?"

"Yes, he said that he did not believe in the present form of Government or in any of the institutions of it."

NONSENSE AT CHURCH.

Continuing, Mr. Quackenbush said: "He (Czolgosz) said he had for several years studied the doctrine of anarchy. He believed in no Government, no marriage relations, and said that he attended church for some time, but they talked nonsense, and he would not continue there."

"He said he did not believe in the church of state?" asked Mr. Penney.

"Yes; he said he believed in free love. He said that he had been influenced by the teachings of Emma Goldman and by another woman living in Cleveland whose name I don't recall."

CHAIRMAN RICE SPEAKS.

Edward R. Rice, Chairman of the Committee of Ceremonies in the Temple was next called.

"Where were you at the time of the shooting?" asked District Attorney Penney.

Mr. Rice indicated the spot on the ground floor plan of the Temple, near where the President stood.

"Tell us what you saw."

"As chairman of the Committee of Ceremonies, I stood close to the President. The line had been passing about ten minutes. I took my watch out of my pocket, indicating to Secretary Cortelyou that the time for the reception was nearly up. At this instance I noticed something white pushed over to the President. After that two shots rang out. The white object fell to the floor, with the man who had it in his hand. The hall was cleared and the President was taken to a chair."

"Was this man borne to the floor the same one who fired that shot?" asked Mr. Penney.

"Yes," answered the witness.

Cross-examined by Judge Titus, Mr. Rice said there had been no one between him and the President to obstruct his view.

"Were there officers on both sides of the line of people."

"Yes."

SAW SOMETHING WHITE.

This concluded Mr. Rice's testimony and James L. Quaskenbush, another member of the Reception Committee, was called to the stand.

"Tell us what you know," said District Attorney Penney.

"I was standing at Mr. Rice's right directly opposite the President," began Mr. Quackenbush. "just before the shots were fired I noticed this man (the prisoner), lift something white. Immediately there were two shots. Then the artillerymen who had been standing behind the President plunged forward, as also did Secret Service Officer Gallagher. The prisoner was borne to the floor. Secret service men, officers Ireland and Foster, were also in the group scrambling on the floor about the prisoner. At the President's right stood Secretary Cortelyou, and back of him the other officers and artillerymen."

EMMA GOLDMAN RELEASED.

Chicago, Sept. 24.—Emma Goldman has been released by Justice Prindiville.

WHY BULLET WAS NOT FOUND

The first witnesses called yesterday afternoon at the trial of Leon F. Czolgosz, charged with the murder of President McKinley, were Samuel J. Fields and Perry A. Biles, who described the plan of the building and the location of the parties at the time of the murder.

Dr. Harvey A. Gaylord, who performed the autopsy, was closely cross-examined by Judge Lewis, counsel for the prisoner, on the question as to whether antiseptics were not used to prevent inflammation. This Dr. Gaylord would not admit, "in spite of the popular idea."

Regarding the operation performed on President McKinley at the Exposition, Dr. Herman Mynter said that the operation was agreed to by President McKinley, and was absolutely necessary to save his life for an hour. The witness described the operation minutely. He was among the consulting surgeons present at the autopsy, when four hours were spent in endeavoring to locate the bullet.

"Why did you stop then?" asked the counsel.

"The family of the President would not allow them to continue any longer or to injure the corpse any more. They would not permit anything to be removed from the body for bacteriological examination," said the surgeon.

Dr. Matthew D. Mann, another of the physicians who attended President McKinley, said that to find the track of the bullet behind the stomach it would have been necessary to remove the bowels from the abdominal cavity. This would almost undoubtedly have resulted fatally, in the President's week state.

THE POSITION IS VERY UNSATISFACTORY.

Lord Kitchener's proclamation warning the Boers that banishment awaited all found with arms in their possession has had the expected, although not the desired effect. Instead of a rush of burghers toward the British camp to surrender thsir rifles, the rush has been in the opposite direction and the ranks of DeWet's and Botha's forces have been perceptibly augmented. It is now estimated by British officers in a position to know whereof they affirm that there are at present at least 18,000 burghers under arms, an increase of at least 5,000 over the estimated number previous to the circulation of General Kitchener's proclamation. These men realize thnt they need expect no mercy if captured, and therefore they are prepared to fight to the death. Almost every despatch received from the front chronicles some disaster to the British arms. Taken separately, these reverses are of small account, but collectively they show that the Boers are yet capable of inflicting serious injury upon the British.

CASE OF DR. KRAUSE THE GREAT BOER SPY

Who Was Arrested in London Charged With High Treason.

IS A HIGH GRADE BOER.

And Was a Memberof the late Transvaal Government

The Case Likely to Disclose Some Startling Facts.—History of the Prisoner.

London, Sept. 25.—Few of the incidents of the later stages of the South African war have created a greater sensation than the arrest in London a few days ago of Dr. F. E. C. Krause, a lawyer of the Inner Temple, who was a prominent member of the late Government of the Transvaal, and who was Governor of Johannesburg when the war commenced.

Dr. Krause is not only a member of the Transvaal Bar, but is also an English barrister, having been "called" at the Middle Temple in Trinity term 1893. On his return to South Africa after "call" he rapidly obtained a large criminal practice and became the Public Prosecutor at Johannesburg under the Kruger regime. He was considered to be favourably disposed towards the English, although he carried out his duties as Public Prosecutor with vigour. In the frequent emiutes which arose between Dutch and Outlanders in Johannesburg, it was Dr. Krause's duty to prosecute the offending parties, and it is a tribute to his fairmindedness that he did not incur the great ill-will of the Outlanders against whom he often had to appear. When the war broke out Dr. Krause was appointed Commandant of Johannesburg and this post he retained until the entry of Lord Roberts into the town in June last year. It is stated that Lord Roberts offered Commandant Krause an important administrative post in the Transvaal, but the ex-Public Prosecutor felt bound to decline the post, inasmuch as it would lay him open to the charge of treachery to his own country. This was understood by Lord Roberts, and Commandant Krause shortly afterwards left South Africa for Europe. Early in the year he commenced to resume his studies of the law in the Middle Temple, London. A frequenter of the library and common-room and a capital chess player, he soon won the respect of his fellow-Templars.

Dr. Krause was summoned by Lord Roberts to meet him at Germiston, outside Johannesburg, on May 30, 1900. At the interview he begged the Commander-in-Chief to defer entering the town for twenty-four hours, as there were many armed burghers still inside. To this Lord Roberts assented. Dr. Krause had previously caused a notice to be posted up on the walls of the town ordering all armed men to quit the place by daybreak and join their respective commandoes. He also organised special police to stop looting and outrages. When Lord Roberts entered Johannesburg on June 1, Dr. Krause met him, rode by his side to the Government offices, and introduced him to the heads of the several departments. His conduct at this time was warmly praised by the British authorities.

The following is the portion of Lord Roberts' message to the War Office on the occupation of Johannesburg relating to Dr. Krause. It was written on May 31, and telegraphed on June 1:

"The occupation of Johannesburg passed off quite satisfactorily to-day, thanks to the excellent arrangements made by Dr. Krause, the Transvaal commandant here, and order prevailed throughout the town. Dr. Krause met me at the entrance to Johannesburg, and rode by my side to the Government offices, where he introduced me to the heads of the several departments, all of whom acceded to my request that they would continue to carry on their respective duties until they could be relieved of them."

It can consequently be imagined what a sensation was caused by the announcement of the arrest in London of Dr. Krause, upon a charge of treason. Dr. Krause had been in England for four months, and it is asserted that after signifying his allegiance to the British Crown, he has secretly forwarded from England information which would be of service to the enemy. The police authorities had been aware of this fact for some time past, and a warrant was recently granted for his arrest. Dr. Krause, however, had disappeared from the purview of the police. It appears that along with his sister, Mrs. Liescher Dixon, he had been staying for some time at the Station Hotel, Inverness, and Mr Dixon wrote to the manager of the St. Ermin's Hotel, London, engaging two single rooms. Dr. Krause and his sister reached Euston station at six o'clock one night, and drove immediately to the St. Ermin's Hotel, where they arrived an hour later. For two hours previously, however, two detectives from Scotland Yard had been waiting for the appearance of Dr. Krause, and in the interval had informed the manager that they held a warrant for his apprehension.

A few minutes past seven a cab loaded with luggage drove up the hotel courtyard, and from this vehicle Dr. Krause and his sister descended. After giving instructions to the hotel porter regarding his luggage Dr. Krause stepped into the main hall of the hotel, where he found himself confronted by the detectives. One of the gentlemen from Scotland Yard immediately produced his warrant, which he read to Dr. Krause, and it is said that that gentleman was so overcome at this unexpected denouement that he was scarcely able to utter a word. The detectives, however, proceeded about their work expeditiously but quietly, and few if any of the residents of the hotel knew what was happening. Dr. Krause, escorted by one of the detectives, returned to the cab in which he had driven to the hotel, and directions were given that his sister's luggage was to be removed into the hotel, while that of Dr. Krause remained on the cab. Another detective busied himself with examining Mrs. Dixon's luggage before it was permitted to be removed to her room. It is conjectured that this inspection was mainly for the purpose of ascertaining if Mrs. Dixon was in possession of any incriminating documents. Evidently the inspection was satisfactory, as Mrs. Dixon was allowed to proceed to her room without further inconvenience. The other detectives then joined Dr. Krause in the cab and they departed with their prisoner.

TAKE OATH OF ALLEGIANCE.

Aguinaldos Bodyguard, Consisting of 36 Men Surrenders.

Manila, Sept. 25.—Aguinaldo's bodyguard, Major Alhambra, two captains, two lieutenants and twenty-nine men, with twenty-eight rifles, surrendered about forty miles north of Baler, island of Luzon, to Captain, George A. Detchmendy of the Twenty-second United States infantry yesterday took the oath of allegiance and were released.

After Alhambra kidnaped the president of Casiguran Sept. 12 Captain Detchmendy requisitioned a steamer and pursued him closely. He would have been captured within an hour if he had not surrendered.

Since Aguinaldo left General MacArthur's house for his present place of confinement he has never left the premises, although he is at liberty to do so if accompanied by an officer. The reason assigned is that he fears assassination at the hands of the partisans of the late General Luna.

General Chaffee has refused the request for the release of the prisoners on the island of Guam. He considers that their release would not be safe until the surrender or capture of Malvar and Lukban, and he also believes that the friends of the prisoners, desiring their release, will use their influence to bring about the surrender of the insurgent leaders named.

SIFTON ON TRIAL FOR ALLEGED PATRICIDE

Pathetic Scene Created by the Wife of the Prisoner in Court at London.

THE JURY VIEW THE SCENE OF THE TRAGEDY

Sent off Upon This Errand as Soon as They Were Empanelled—Story of the Case

London, Ont., Sept. 24.—Gerald Sifton this morning faced the bar of justice on the charge of having compassed the death of his father, Joseph Hammersley Sifton, on Saturday, June 30, 1900. Before 10 o'clock this morning a large crowd had gathered at the front entrance of the court house, and when the doors were opened they surged in and filled the lower corridors. They were not allowed upstairs, until jurors, witnesses and others having business in court had entered. Enough of the public were then allowed in to comfortably fill the court house, but no crowding of the aisles was permitted. Many ladies were present in the court room. Among the counsel and others present were: W. R. Riddell, K.C., of Toronto; the crown prosecutor, County Crown Attorney James Magee, K.C.; J. B. McKillop and Provincial Detective John Murray. At the defence's table were E. F. B. Johnston, K.C., of Toronto; I. F. Hellmuth, now of Toronto, but formerly of London, and the other lawyers connected with the case.

About 10.10 Mr. Justice McMahon took his seat on the bench, and five minutes later the prisoner, Gerald Sifton, was brought into court. He was accompanied by his wife, dressed in black and veiled. The prisoner was seated in the dock, and Mrs. Sifton took a seat at the corner of the dock in advance of her husband's left. During the reading of the indictment Mrs Sifton sought to grasp her husband's hand which rested on the edge of the dock, but on the constable gently restraining her from doing so she was overcome by tears. Leaning her head on the dock she wept quietly for some minutes, and was in fact greatly moved during all the time the jury was being empanneled. The prisoner, on the contrary, maintained the ordinary degree of composure that has marked his demeanor on all his appearances in court, and betrayed no signs of nervousness. The work of securing a jury occupied only an hour. As soon as the jurors were sworn they were permitted, at the request of the Crown and with the consent of the defence, to visit, in company with the clerk of the court and four constables, the scene of the alleged murder in London township.

For the third time within a year Jabez Fitzgerald Sifton has been placed on trial at London on the charge of having killed his father, Joseph Hammersley Sifton, on Saturday, June 30 1900. This was to have been the old man's third wedding day. In the morning he went to his barn, where were his son, Gerald Sifton, and the latter's hired man, Walter Herbert, to show them where to put up a hay carrier. It was necessary to knock out some boards from the gable end of the barn, and while doing this the elder Sifton fell headlong to the ground and his skull was crushed. This, at least, was the story as told by Herbert and the younger Sifton. The old man died the same afternoon. Three weeks later Gerald Sifton and Walter Herbert were arrested, charged with murder.

At the preliminary examination Edgar Morden, James Morden, and Martin Morden, the first two being brothers and the latter a cousin, all swore that Gerald Sifton had approached them separately the night before the tragedy at the barn, and asked their aid in putting his father out of the way, in order to prevent the old man marrying Gerald's servant girl, Mary McFarlane. The reason given was that Gerald was financially involved, and did not wish to lose his rights as sole heir of his father, who possessed an estate totalling nearly $20,000. A part of Edgar Morden's story upon which much hinges was that he drew up for old Sifton a will whereby the latter left practically all his estate to Mary McFarlane, and made Edgar Morden his executor. This will was hidden by Morden and was not produced until the murder charge had been laid, when it was entered for probate.

Dr. MacNeill, of Arva, who was called to attend the elder Sifton's injuries, swore that while the old man lay unconscious the son stood by and moaned, "Oh, my poor father, how I hate to see you suffer." Then he asked the doctor if something could not be given to put an end to his father's sufferings. Dr. MacNeill told Gerald the patient was not suffering. "If you have not got it, I have," Sifton is said to have replied. "I have strychnine." Then he added, If money is any consideration——" The doctor says he then clapped his hand over Sifton's mouth and prevented his continuing. Gerald Sifton, the doctor says, told him that he (Sifton) had given his father something to put him out of misery. Rev. W. H. Cooper of Arva testified that Gerald Sifton told him that he had given Dr. MacNeil $1,000 in notes to refrain from exercising his duty as coroner by holding an inquest.

The result of the preliminary examination was that the prisoners were committed for trial at the fall Assizes, Sept. 24, 1900. On the case being called then, Herbert, instead of entering the customary plea of not guilty to the murder charge, pleaded guilty. He was remanded for sentence and has remained in jail ever since. At this court Gerald Sifton's lawyers applied for and secured a postponement of the trial until the spring Assizes. At the spring Assizes in April a further postponement was asked and granted.

In the meantime, at the winter Assizes in January, a civil action was brought by the executors of Joseph Sifton to have set aside and declared void the will produced by Edgar Morden, on the ground that it was a forgery. After a trial in which the leading handwriting experts of Canada and the United States appeared, and in which no defence was entered, the Morden will was pronounced by a jury to be a forgery. Morden, however, was not arrested.

EUROPE TO TAKE ACTION.

The German Press Calls for United Action on the Part of Europe

Opposition to New Tariff Bill Prohibition of Commercial Treaties Calls Forth Protests.

Berlin, Sept. 25.—Apart from the visit of Emperor Nicholas to France, the German papers are chiefly concerned with a discussion of the tariff questions. There are protests on all sides against the first paragraph of the new tariff bill, which prohibits commercial treaties, because of its minimal tariff on grain. Among the latest protests are those of the Cologne Chamber of Commerce, the Central Association for the advancement of Lumber Interests, the Society for Guarding the Interests of the Chemical Industry, the Association of Central German Commercial Chambers and the Oldenburg Chamber of Commerce.

The Kruez Zeitung publishes an article of obvious tendency on "American competition in the world market." It says:—"Undoubtedly the American protective tariff has proved most advantageous to the economical deliverance of the New World from the Old. The United States increased its total exports from 836,000,000 marks in 1870 to 1,394,000,000 marks in 1900, while their imports increased only from 667,000,000 marks to 849,000,000 marks. Professor Blondell calls such phenomenal progress 'alarming.' This is correct: but, on the other hand, the figures show how the United States depends upon its treaty relations with countries importing their products.

"In that enormous prosperity have participated their agricultural and industrial products, as iron, textiles, coal, minerals, cast iron and the like. Their wheat export has continually increased, and so has their cattle raising.

"Germany imported in 1889 products of the United States to the value of 272,000,000 marks, and in 1898 to the value of 620,000,000 marks, or an increase of 130 per cent.

"Professor Blondel attributes the success of the United States mainly to the wonderful organisation of labor, the matchless development of industry by means of the latest machinery, the energy of the gigantic trusts, which aim at the economical conquest of the Old World and to unite commercial and scientific boldness. The United States seek to form most dangerous coalitions against Europe. Nothing is left to European nations but to unite against their transatlantic competitor."

WRONG DOSE KILLED HUSBAND

Wife Gave Him Carbolic Acid in Mistake for Castor Oil.

McKeesport, Pa., Sept. 24.—William Huberling, aged 37, died this morning of a dose of carbolic acid administered in mistake by his wife, who thought she was giving him castor oil. The fatal dose was given yesterday morning and the man lingered until this morning. His wife is mentally unbalanced over the affair, and is under guard to prevent her from doing herself an injury.

Victims of Catarrh, Prejudiced

Tried snuffs. They failed. Ointments and washes failed. Said there was no cure. Knew there wasn't because he had tried them all. This is how prejudice acts. There is, however, a balm in Gilead, a sovereign remedy for Catarrh, not dangerous because it acts quickly, not unpleasant because it is sure to cure. Its name is Catarrhozone. It destroys germs, it soothes, it heals. As certain as death to cure, as pleasant as sunshine to use. That's Catarrhozone. Your money back if it is not so. 25 cents and $1.00.

Cement Works Notes

Lakefield News: The public will no doubt be pleased to learn that the Cement Company has commenced to take out its raw material for the manufacture of cement, nine cars of blue clay having been brought in from Lily Lake on Tuesday and ten on Wednesday. A load of ten cars will be brought in every day from now on. The first load of marl from Buckley's Lake was received on Wednesday. The hydraulic elevator at Buckley's Lake is working beautifully, elevating material from under water at a depth of 17 feet. The company is very much pleased at the good showing made by this machine.

To Inspect the Works.

We understand that Mr. A. L. Davis, President of the Peat Fuel Company, has invited a number of business men to visit the works at Kirkfield tomorrow. The party are to leave on the morning train, returning in the evening. It is said that a large number of leading citizens have been asked to go.

NOT DISCOURAGED.

The Destruction of two of Britains Fastest Boats.

London, Sept. 25—The destruction of the two most rapid vessels in the British navy, the only two constructed on the new turbine principle, within a few weeks of each other, looks like something more than a coincidence; but the circumstances, so far as reported, go to show that it is not. Both boats were wrecked by running ashore, the Viper in a fog and the Cobra probably in a fog also. If any fault with the turbine system is to be argued from their loss, it is that the system permits the development of a rate of speed too high to be used on a dangerous coast, and this would be an absurd argument, since the turbines, like boilers and all other parts of the vessel's machinery, are supposed to be under the control of human intelligence. Both the Viper and the Cobra were demonstrations of the efficiency of the turbine system for attaining high speed at sea, and their loss establishes nothing derogatory to it.

The March Out Last Night.

The 57th Regiment headed by the band had a march out last night. The men looked well, each company being almost up to the required standard as regards numbers. After parade the men were put through a half-hour's drill on Central Park.

Watered the Flowers.

A story was told The Times the other day, which is too good to keep. It appears that a certain lady broke up house and went to a well known local hotel to board for the winter. Amongst her belongings were a profusion of plants and palms, all of which are artificial. Soon after the proprietor engaged the services of a young man whose appearance indicated that he had but recently been separated from the bogs of old Ireland. "See, here, Mike," said the proprietor, "these plants seem in very bad condition. Your first duty in the morning will be to water them. See that you don't forget it." Michael replied that it should be done according to orders. The next day the lady who owns the plants, came upon the scene, and found the new porter with a big watering-pot carefully and copiously drenching the artificial plants. Most of them were spoiled, and the lady is now looking for another boarding house.

It Will Give You an Appetite.

And a stomach to take care of it, a digestion that will fill your veins with rich blood; if weak it will strengthen the heart; will make the liver discharge its functions. Ferrozone will do this, and more too. Ferrozone will increase your nerve force, and capacity for mental labor, and will make work a real pleasure. Every man, woman and child can derive benefit from Ferrozone. Ormond & Walsh.

PENSION FOR MRS. M'KINLEY

Congress is Expected to Vote Widow $5,000 a Year

Washington, Sept. 25.—It is not doubted here that congress will vote Mrs. McKinley a pension of $5,000 a year. Precedent establishes this. Mrs Garfield and Mrs. Grant have pensions of this amount and in addition the widows of presidents have the privilege of franking their mail by simply writing their names on the envelopes containing letters.

War Does Exist.

Washington, Sept. 25.—General Chaffee's action in releasing a Filipino prisoner sentenced to death for murder is interesting as an official acknowledgment that a state of war exists in the Philippines. That Captain Gumban killed an official who tried to resist him in a raid is conceded. If the raid was an act of insurrection, robbery or rebellion, the killing was murder, and the Captain was properly sentenced to death; but General Chaffee decides that it was "a legitimate act of war," and the killing, however deplorable, cannot be punished as a felony.

Doig's Trial.

David Doig, who is mixed up in the wire stealing case, will appear before Judge Weller, at the County Criminal Court, tomorrow.

PETERBOROUGH. SEPTEMBER 25 1901

McAMMOND'S CASE.

Rev. Mr Pitcher Addresses the Perth Congregation

Perth, Sept. 25.—Rev. J. T. Pitcher preached here, to-day. He had been invited by Rev. Mr. McAmmond to give an explanation of his (Mr. McAmmond's) relation to the recent troubles and the finding of the Committee of Trial.

After preaching in the morning Mr. Pitcher made the following statement: "Let me at the beginning say that some newspapers have greatly exaggerated the matter and published most wicked and foul slanders. They have been the mouthpiece of depraved and designing people. The press, which should be a moral power for the uplifting of society, sometimes prostitutes that power for unholy purposes. In this instance some newspapers have earned the contempt of every pure-minded man. We have all been pained and humbled in the dust by the reproach which has been brought upon Christianity. Seven men for four days and two nights, besides engaging the services of a commissioner, have made a thorough investigation of the painful case.

"From the evidence submitted to the committee but one offence had been proved against Mr. McAmmond, namely, that of signing the register in the hotel in Syracuse under an assumed name and giving an untruthful address. This act in itself was considered by the committee most blameworthy and merited the severest condemnation and rebuke. It was an illegal act, making him liable to an action in the civil courts. The integrity and purity of society can only be preserved by every man appearing what he is and being known by his own name.

"But the immorality of the act was great for anyone, and especially so for a Christian minister, one who has been called of God to a sacred office, called to minister at His altar in holy things. He is called to be an example unto all, and in every word and deed to teach truth and purity. A Christian minister can never get away from the fact that he is an ambassador for Jesus Christ in the world. How Mr. McAmmond could have so far forgotten himself and his sacred trust, is inexplicable. Though the committee has exonerated Mr. McAmmond from any evil intention, yet the act has brought great reproach to the cause of God and great sorrow to many hearts. No language is too strong to condemn the folly and wrong of the deed.

"To the charge Mr. McAmmond has pleaded guilty, and has expressed his extreme sorrow and deep repentance. To him, no doubt, this will be a lesson as long as he lives. He has paid the penalty put upon him by the committee, and now comes back to you chastened and reproved. You have already by signing your names expressed your attachment to him. I am glad of this. It shows your appreciation of the services which he has faithfully rendered, and your loyalty to the church and its minister. No words of yours can so prove your love and loyalty as unanimously rallying around him next Lord's day and listening to his message. Every minister needs the sympathy and prayers and co-operation of his people. Let your minister feel and know in this his dark day that you give him your open hearts and faith.

RUSSIAN CENSORSHIP.

"Proposals" That Are in the Nature of Commands

St. Petersburg, Sept. 25.—The Russian Government has peculiar ways of doing certain things. For instance, shortly after Count Tolstoi was pronounced heretical by the Holy Synod, the Russian Red Cross Society placed postal cards, adorned with Tolstoi's likeness on the market. This society is under the patronage of the Dowager Empress, and is an arm of the Government. Recently the Railroad Ministry offered Count Tolstoi a special car in which to travel to the Crimea. To-day the correspondent received a copy of the following secret circular:

Ministry of the Interior.—Chief Board of Press, Aug. 24, 1901.—In addition to the communication of March last prohibiting the publication in periodicals of any telegrams or communications expressing sympathy with Count L. Tolstoi, the Chief Board of Press, by order of the Minister of the Interior, by authority of Article 140 of the statutes of censorship and press, proposes to the editors of periodicals not submitted to previous censorship, that they shall not publish any information about the journey of Count Tolstoi to the South of Russia, or about the greetings directed to this writer on the part of his admirers.

PRINCE CHAKHOVSKY.

Nearly every week this Board issues secret circulars prohibiting the discussion or publication of information about some question or other. These circulars are also sent to provincial censors. Most of the periodicals published in St. Petersburg and Moscow are exempt from undergoing the so-called previous censorship, but nearly all the provincial papers must submit to it. There is consequently, no need to send circulars to these papers, but only to the censors who duty it is to examine everything going to press.

The Board's proposals are usually considered commands. It is not advisable to ignore them.

SO NERVOUS I COULD NOT SLEEP.

When there is disease of the delicate female organism, it is only a question of time until the general health becomes undermined. Nervousness, sleeplessness, loss of appetite and "sinking spells" produce suffering almost indescribable. There can be no restoration of the general health until the local health of the womanly organism is re-established.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription establishes regularity, dries offensive drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. It encourages the appetite, tranquilizes the nerves and induces refreshing sleep.

"You would be surprised if you could have seen me when I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's medicine and could see me now," writes Mrs. Isaac S. Harris, of Gayville, Yankton Co., So. Dakota. "I had no appetite, was completely run down. Have had stomach trouble for years and was so nervous I could not sleep. We have spent a lot of money doctoring, but there was not one thing that I took that did me any good, except for a short time; till I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery.' In three days after I commenced taking his medicines I could see a change for the better, and from that time I have steadily been getting better. Can walk or ride to any place I want to, and I feel like a new person. Since taking Dr. Pierce's medicines I can sleep all night and never get up tired in the morning; can eat anything and it don't hurt me."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure biliousness and sick headache.

A CHARITY FAILURE

Denmark's Efforts to Take Care of Her Old People

Copenhagen, Sept. 25.—Denmark has found a big state and community charity scheme of hers an utter failure. It provides for a pension to every destitute male person who has passed his 60th year and has led a reputable life. Its advocaters and promoters had the best intentions in the world, but they have seen that their scheme is woefully demoralizing. The poor people, knowing that they will have a support from the public treasury when they get old, no longer make an effort to lay up anything for themselves. Sons and daughters that are in good circumstances utterly refuse to help their needy parents, because the Government pension will take care of them. Savings bank deposits have withdrawn and squandered, and benefit associations have failed and gone into bankruptcy. The whole thing has proved to be a premium on destitution and an incentive to improvidence. Which shows that a "parental" government is sometimes so only in name.

LABORERS ARE WANTED.

Employment Agents Are Unable to Fill Orders for Men Wanted For Railway Construction Work and on Farms.

Prominent employment agents in the city complain of a dearth of laborers, men are wanted for nearly all kinds of work, and many harvesters who came out here from the East, intending to stay but for a short while, are shipping on railroad construction gangs. The building season is a good one, and a great deal of railroad construction is in progress, and every day the demand for men increases. The threshing absorbs a great deal of the available labor, but it is the opinion of contractors and employment agents that even when threshing operations are over throughout the country there will be no reason for men being out of work in the province.

Owing to the successful crop many farmers contemplate an extension to their properties, and as a preparatory move are adding to their permanent help by one or two hands. The immigration department here is in receipt of many applications for farm hands, and the agents are daily sending men to good berths on Manitoba farms. In their letters the farmers mention wages which run from $18.00 to $30.00 per month including board. Some applicants do not state definite wages, but mention "$20.00 for the first month, when future wages will be mutually agreed upon." Experienced farm hands of British origin are most in demand.—"Winnipeg Telegram."

ONE OF THE PRETTIEST.

Diamond Hall. Formally Opened for Business.

Mr. R. J. Frost, the proprietor of the new jewelry establishment on George street, opposite the Daily Times office, has completed the interior arrangement of the store, and formally opened for business on Saturday. "Diamond Hall," as the store will hereafter be known, is without doubt the neatest establishment of its kind in the whole district, and the large and well assorted stock of silverware, watches, clocks, and jewelry, is well worthy the inspection of any one requiring anything in this line. The store, which is the acme of neatness, is lined with show cases put in last week by the Dominion Show Case Co., of Toronto, and the other furnishings throughout are both expensive and elegant.

As "Diamond Hall" is one of three associated jewelry stores in which Mr. Frost is interested, the firm is able to buy their stocks to the best advantage, and by this means can effect a large saving to their customers, who can thus secure goods in some cases at wholesale cost.

Mr. Frost comes recommended as a jeweler and optician of wide experience, having at different times been connected with some leading houses in Canada.

What Catarrhozone is and is Not.

Catarrhozone is not a wash. You cannot force liquids into the lungs. It is not an ointment to be snuffed up the nostrils. Ointments are useless and disgusting. Nor is it a powder to be blown up the nostrils and still further irritate the already congested and irritated membrane. It is simply balsamic and healing substance breathed into the lungs and throat. Cures of course. That is nature's way of curing, and nature's way is the only true way. If you suffer from disease of the throat, lungs, nasal passages, do not neglect to test Catarrhozone. Two sizes at all druggists, 25 cents and $1.00. Guaranteed to cure Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis and Hay Fever, or your money back.

McKINLEY'S SLAYER NOW ON TRIAL

Buffalo, N.Y., Sept. 24.—The trial of Leon F. Czolgosz for the murder of President McKinley began at 10 o'clock this morning. Long before that hour the streets near the City Hall were the objective of many curious people. They were willing to take chances on being admitted to the court room even though they knew that there were but 150 seats available. The various entrances to the great building with the exception of that on Franklin street were closed and guarded. Policemen were everywhere and rigid discipline was the order of the day. Squads of blue-coated men were stationed on every landing and in double line far outside the place of entrance to keep back the crowds, while in a station not far away were a number of reserves ready to reinforce them should the feelings of the people become aroused to the extent of an attempt at rioting. Mounted officers paced slowly around every side of the structure and no one was allowed to stand on the sidewalk for a moment, so that at no time was the crowd large.

THROUGH THE TUNNEL.

No one outside of the building saw the prisoner as he was taken from his cell to the court room. His guardians made use again of the "tunnel of sobs" under the street from the jail to the City Hall and Czolgosz was brought into the court room only a few moments before the hour set for the opening his trial. No person was admitted to the building without a pass signed by the chief of police, and it was necessary to show this to every policeman, on every landing and in every corridor. The officer at the door of the court room was exceptionally vigilant and not only examined the little white paper pass but scrutinized the bearer critically, hesitating not to ply him with questions before admitting him to the room.

The City Hall elevator man was even forbidden to stop at the second floor where the court room is located and every one had to walk up the stairs and before the lines of policemen. The interior of the City Hall as well as the outside of the doorways still bore the sombre draperies of mourning, and quiet was enforced as befitting the occasion. Scores of newspaper correspondents and artists were on hand early. The counsel for Czolgosz, former Supreme Court Justices Loren L. Lewis and Robert C. Titus, chosen by the Bar Association of Erie County, and Carlton E. Ladd, saw him again this morning before the time for the opening of court, but he had no more to say to them than at each of the previous times they visited him. In view of the meagreness of the opportunity for a defence, and the fact that the prisoner refuses, absolutely to aid them, it is not improbable that the entire proceedings may be completed within two days.

THE ONLY DEFENCE.

"The mental condition of the assassin will absolutely be the only defence to be offered," are the words of Judge Titus, and there is no little expectancy that they will publicly abandon the case to-day or to-morrow and merely represent Czolgosz formally during the trial. As a result of the examination of two famous experts on mental diseases, Dr. Carlos T. McDonald and Dr. Allan M. Hamilton of New York City, the question of insanity is eliminated from the subjects upon which the defence can rely for support. Counsel are therefore placed in the peculiar position of being chosen to defend a prisoner for whom no defence is possible. The trial therefore is but a mere necessary formality of law, but its result is probably less in doubt than any other trial for murder in the history of American courts.

THE COURT ROOM.

Part III., of the Supreme Court of Erie County, wherein Leon F. Czolgosz to-day appeared to answer for the murder of the President, is a small room on the south side of the second floor of the city hall. The enclosure for the bench and bar occupies over one-half of the floor space, while the balance is given over to seats for the general public. Not over 150 of the latter could be accommodated, and these seats to-day were mainly occupied by the jurymen who were called in in readiness for the panel on the Czolgosz case. Very few of what is termed "the general public" were spectators at the opening of the case to-day, because of this fact. Czolgosz, with his counsel, occupied seats directly in front of the judges' bench. The prisoner's chair rested just back of that of Judge Titus, and there were plenty of policemen near for the protection of the court and the officials from any untoward action on his part. Deputy-sheriffs, with their mahogany staves of office, were placed at various points in the room, and quiet was enforced upon all.

Dr. Allan McLane Hamilton, of New York, who examined Czolgosz yesterday because he "happened to be in Buffalo," was one of the first of those connected with the case to take a position inside the enclosure. Dr. Hamilton, who was the chief insanity expert at the trial of Garfield's assassin, Guiteau, occupied a seat at the table reserved for the prosecution, and thus indicated that he was to be called by the Government to prove beyond a shadow of doubt the sanity of the prisoner.

Promptly at ten o'clock Justice White took his place on the bench and court was convened. The clerk began calling the names of the first panel of jurors called.

At 10.15 Czolgosz was brought into the courtroom, surrounded by deputy-sheriffs and policemen. He was seated between guards directly in front of the bar.

District Attorney Penney read the charge against Czolgosz at 10.20 and asked the prisoner how he pleaded.

"Guilty," responded Czolgosz, in a low tone.

Judge Lewis arose, and addressing the court, stated that according to the law this plea could not be accepted, and on behalf of the prisoner asked that a plea of not guilty be entered.

The trial then proceeded.

Former Justice Titus, counsel for the defense, then rose, and stated to the court the facts already known as to his connection with the case. He explained that the position of himself and his associates, Judge Lewis, and Mr. Ladd, was a peculiar one, and consisted mainly in making sure that all forms of law and justice were observed in the prosecution.

Justice White in reply paid a tribute to the counsel for the defence, and said that the prisoner could have no better counsel and that whatever the outcome, it would reflect only credit and honor to themselves.

The examination and swearing in of the jurors then began, the prisoner standing as each was sworn. The questions asked by Mr. Lewis for the defence, of nearly all of the jurors, were particularly directed toward the fact of whether or not they had been present in the Temple of Music at the time of the crime.

ANARCHISTS SET FREE.

Chicago, Sept. 23.—The Anarchists under arrest here are to go free. In the hearing before Judge Chetlain to-day the prosecution said there was no evidence against them and agreed to their discharge. Similar action will be taken in the case of Emma Goldman in the lower court.

THE KAISER GREATLY ANGERED

London, September 23—British and continental newspapers devote much space to forecasts of President Roosevelt's foreign policy. Some of the London papers believe that the new executive's outspoken imperialism and strict faith in the Monroe doctrine may cause a serious friction with Germany.

The Spectator which appears in black border for Mr. McKinley, devotes much space of comment upon the sad event of his death and upon the accession of Mr. Roosevelt. With reference to the new President it says:

"He will be a thoroughly American President. As proof of his statesmanlike moderation we note his retention in the cabinet of Mr. Hay, one of the ablest and most sincerely patriotic of living American statesmen.

"President Roosevelt will not try to quarrel with England, but he will show her no special favors. The chief danger before him is that, while insisting upon the policy of 'hands off,' he may come into violent collision with Germany and that this collision may come while America is not prepared and Germany is prepared. We may be sure Germany will only respect the Monroe doctrine so long as she feels too weak at sea to challenge it."

Summing up President Roosevelt's foreign policy, the Spectator says:

"It will be neither for nor against England, but merely for his own country. This should not all bring about any diplomatic hitch between England and America. Mr. Roosevelt's declarations regarding the Nicaragua canal in no way conflicts with what is best for England."

After deprecating the idea of Great Britain urging that the Clayton-Bulwer treaty gives her any right of veto as compared with the importance of having the canal made and made by a friendly power, the Spectator concludes as follows:

"The outburst of English National feeling for America in her sorrow gives our government a unique opportunity of going a step further by giving America a free hand on the isthmus and accepting the Monroe doctrine despite the protest of other European powers."

Commenting upon the accession of Mr. Roosevelt to the Presidency, the Statist decries the idea that he is an imperialist in an agressive sense and it expresses the opinion that he will maintain the present excellent financial status of the United States.

SAYS SAMPSON IS INSANE.

A New York Man Predicts That the Admiral Will Not Live Six Months.

New York, Sept. 24.—In spite of all the statements that have been made regarding Admiral Sampson's sound mental condition and his general good health a well known New York man who has just returned from the New Hampshire hills, where the admiral is stopping, says that his condition is actually pitiable. According to this gentleman, whose veracity cannot be doubted, the admiral is a mental as well as a physical wreck. "I stopped at the same cottage with them," said the gentleman, "and never for an instant does Mrs. Sampson allow him out of her sight. She attends him as a mother would a sick child, humoring and petting him constantly. Sampson will sit for hours at a time on the verandah without uttering a word or seeming to notice anyone. The other day I was on the verandah when the Sampsons returned from a drive. After he had been helped from the carriage the admiral walked like a man afflicted with locomotor ataxia. When led up to the verandah and to within a few feet of where I was seated, he gazed vacantly about him and in a bewildered voice asked: 'Why am I being brought here? Where am I?' Sampson had been stopping at the house for weeks and yet he did not know where he was. Admiral Sampson is insane, and from his appearance I predict that he will not live six months.

KRITZIGER WAS BEATEN BACK

London, Sept. 23.—Lord Kitchener's message last night clears up the mystery as to the location of the waterworks mentioned in Friday's despatch reporting the capture of two guns by the Boers. It was generally understood that the Pretoria waterworks was referred to. But it is now clear that it was the Bloemfontein waterworks from which the captured guns and escort started. It is a singular coincidence that the battery which lost a gun near the waterworks in the fight of March 31st, 1900, should lose two more within fifteen miles of that place eighteen months later. For the first time it is now known in this country that Scheepers succeeded in capturing loyal delegates on their return to their homes in Oudtshoorn from welcoming the Duke of Cornwall at Cape Town. The Daily Express (an unreliable journal) says in a letter from Cape Town that a very serious state of things prevails in Cape Colony. From the Orange River to the sea it is in a condition of open or incipient rebellion. A letter from the Express correspondent at Cape Town tells of pillaging commandoes wandering free from serious interference, of farms deserted by their rebel proprietors, of armored trains that have been forced to patrol the lines as far south as Parl or Worcester, and of the strengthening of the defences of Cape Town.

LOVAT'S SCOUTS RUSHED

London, Sept. 23.—The War Office has received the following despatch from Lord Kitchener, dated Pretoria, Sept. 22:

"Kritzinger while endeavoring to force a passage of the Orange River near Herschell at 1 o'clock Friday morning, rushed the camp of a party of Lovat's scouts. He failed to cross the river, but the scouts lost heavily. Lieut.-Col. Hon. Andrew Murray and Captain Murray, his adjutant, were killed. Deeply regret the loss of Colonel Murray, who throughout the war had led Lovat's Scouts with great gallantry.

"Under cover of darkness the Boers managed to carry off a gun. They were promptly followed up and the gun was recovered in a smart engagement, in which Kritzinger lost two killed and twenty taken prisoners."

PRISONERS RELEASED.

Lord Kitchener also reports that the British captured by the Boers in the ambush near Scheeper's Nek, September 17, have been released, and that the British casualties in the recent Vlakfontein engagement, when the Boers captured a company of mounted infantry and two guns, when one officer and five men killed, 23 men wounded and six officers and 160 men taken prisoners he announces that these prisoners have since been released.

TWO COMMANDOES TAKEN

He further reports the capture of two commandoes, one, consisting of 65 men, under Commandant Kochs, who were taken, together with their entire transport, west of Adenburg, and the other, consisting of 54 men, including J. P. Botha, who were taken with 48 wagons and their belongings, 45 miles southeast of Carolina.

MAJOR GOUGH'S FIGHT.

Pretoria, Sept. 23.—Details have been received here of the fight between Major Gough and the Boers, in which the British were ambushed and lost heavily. The country is rough and difficult. Major Gough, with 180 mounted infantry, made a dashing attack upon 200 Boers who were descending a hill in front of the British. Six or eight hundred Boers were ambushed on the British flanks and encompassed the capture of the force, with three guns. Twenty-five of the British escaped. Major Gough and Capt. Craycroft effected their escape later in the darkness. It is reported that Commander-in-Chief Botha and Commander Chris Botha were present. The sights and breech locks of the captured guns were destroyed.

It is believed here that about 2,000 Boers have concentrated for operations in Natal. It is not certain at what point of the Natal border they are aiming. If they attempt to go through Zululand they will probably get into a fight with the natives, who are friendly to the British. Gen. Lyttleton is planning counter-operations.

It is believed by the British military authorities that owing to the diminished numbers of Boers in the field it will be comparatively easy for the English to concentrate an overwhelming force at any point on the shortest notice.

—The steamers Majestic and Empress have discontinued their regular trips, so that parties wishing to visit the lakes will require to watch the papers for announcements of when these boats will be going up. The Empress will run a trip to Stony lake on Friday next, returning to connect with the afternoon train for Peterborough.

MISS A. DEFOE.

A TORONTO LADY'S STORY

Suffered From Backache So Severe She Could Hardly Raise Herself in Bed.

SHE THANKS DR. PITCHER'S BACKACHE KIDNEY TABLETS FOR COMPLETELY CURING HER AND GIVING HER NEW LIFE AND ENERGY.

There are hundreds of women in Toronto and thousands in Canada to whom life is an absolute burden on account of the unceasing ache in the back, the dragging pains in the loins, the headaches and sideaches.

Many, too, are suffering from kidney irritability, bladder and urinary troubles, who are reticent about mentioning their ailments to anyone.

To all these kidney and backache sufferers Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets come as a veritable boon and blessing. They clear out the clogged-up kidneys, cure the backache and urinary troubles, roll away the burden of pain, and give health, strength and energy.

Miss Anna Defoe, a young lady whose address is 355 King street west, Toronto, recently wrote as follows:

"For a number of years I have had kidney trouble and backache, so bad that in the morning I could hardly raise myself. A severe dragging pain would catch me in the small of my back, and I had no appetite, and often suffered from severe headaches, and a general breaking down of the entire system was the result. But, thanks to Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets, they put new life and energy in me, relieving me of that awful pain and soreness gently and easily, so much so, that I continued to get better, until I was entirely cured. I am in condition now to make known to the world what Dr. Pitcher's Tablets have done for me and for whose future welfare I have the best wishes."

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are 50 cents a box at all druggists. The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto, Ont.

BUFFALO.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 24, 1901.

R. V. PIERCE, M.D.,
President World's Dis. Med. Ass'n.

VERMONT.

The American Newspaper Directory stands, as it has always stood, the first and best of newspaper directories—the only one which cannot be ignored, the only one which every advertiser must have. No other can take its place; no other is needed.—Joseph Auld, in the Burlington (Vt.) News of July 3, 1896.

ADVISOR.

The Advisor accepts the American Newspaper Directory as the standard in newspaper ratings. The obstacles which obstruct its efforts to get true and reliable information are many.

* * *

The directory question is one which interests every publisher in the country—nay, the entire world. But in the United States, directories are becoming altogether too numerous. In this, as with other books of reference, it is necessary to have one which may be relied on as being an authority on the matter of newspaper circulations. There can be no question about the fact that at this time, as for many years past, the American Newspaper Directory is that authority. The Advisor is not paid to make this announcement. It makes the statement in the interest of advertisers and publishers because it is true. One thing the advertiser is almost cock-sure of when he refers to the American Newspaper Directory is that the circulation figures he sees therein are not overstated to any great extent. In most other directories they are. Only the publisher himself is to be blamed for no securing a proper rating in that publication, and every advertiser of consequence knows it. Thus the publisher who refuses to furnish a statement places himself under a reasonable suspicion.—The Advisor for June.

New York, June, 1901.

CHICAGO.

Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co's American Newspaper Directory has long since earned the reputation of being the best of its character. It contains the result of patient, expensive and systematic effort to secure all attainable information of interest concerning American newspapers. The work has been honestly done. This will not be questioned by any unprejudiced examiner. The most important question is circulation. In attempting to give this information the Editor of the Directory encounters his most difficult work. It is the aim and necessity of the Directory to give the truth. The American Newspaper Directory is to-day the dependence and guide in a greater or less degree, of every large advertiser in the country.—Chicago (Ill.) Daily News.

BATES.

The American Newspaper Directory is the only reliable guide for the advertiser.

No man who advertises can afford to do without it.

What Bradstreet and Dun are to the mercantile world, The American Newspaper Directory is to the world of periodical publications.

A new advertiser will get from the American Newspaper Directory a better idea of the greatness of his country, and the tremendous possibilities in newspaper advertising, than from any other source.

If an advertiser spends only $100 a year he should have the American Newspaper Directory. For his business may grow and his right expenditure of his money become increasingly important. The time to learn how to spend $10,000 a year is before it is spent, otherwise the spending may be disastrous.

Many times the best paper in town costs the advertiser no more than the poorest. The American Newspaper Directory tells which is which.

The paper that was the leader in its town five years ago may lag behind to-day. Even one year may witness astonishing changes. If you are spending money for publicity it is vastly important that you should know where to get the most of it for the price. The American Newspaper Directory gives not only the present circulation rating of every paper in America, but shows their history by quoting past ratings.

The book costs five dollars a copy, and a single reference to it may readily save or make many times its cost.

All newspaper directories but one are erroneously optimistic about circulations. The American Newspaper Directory may occasionally err on the other side, but that makes it all the safer for the advertiser.

My advertising experience began in 1865, and one of the first things I did was to buy a copy of the American Newspaper Directory.

For sixteen years Rowell's "The American Newspaper Directory" has had a place of honor and usefulness on my desk.

Many a publisher is ready to prove by other directories that "Rowell's is wrong," but few indeed can be induced to prove it by opening their circulation books to the advertiser.

Among publishers who are not willing that their real circulations be known, it is the best hated book in print. The moral is not far to find.

CHARLES AUSTIN BATES.

New York, June 24, 1901.

PABST.

If the improvement of the American Newspaper Directory continues in the future as it has during the past twenty years I do not think I shall live long enough to see any other directory take its place. There will, however, be the usual crop of directories just as every other good thing is imitated. Your long years of experience in dealing with evasive circulation reports have most admirably fitted you for placing a proper valuation upon such statements. Advertisers have come to know that the Rowell estimates are nearer the proper figure than can otherwise be obtained. The American Newspaper Directory is therefore indispensable in every well regulated advertising department. Lines are being more tightly drawn every day; it is difficult to collect for twenty thousand when you print only eight. If the advertiser were buying barley he would not accept three pecks for a bushel, although the quality might at all times be open for discussion.

The American Newspaper Directory is the guide and companion of the advertising man, and it is to the interest of all concerned to help perfect it, support it, and hurrah for it.

PABST BREWING CO.
J. R. Kathrens, Adv. Mgr.
Milwaukee, Wis., June 7, 1901.

SAPOLIO.

A growing need created it—the advertising agency system. One of the earliest and most successful workers, Geo. P. Rowell, is still in the field. He originated methods. Others follow. His publication of a list of all the papers—the American Newspaper Directory. He has never ceased to love it, and labor for it. Soon out of the gross stupidity of imitation, it became a rule that every agency down to those of Oshkosh or Oklahoma must issue its own directory. An awful waste, for not more than one out of ten was worth shelf room. If the National Association of Advertising Agents could agree long enough to buy Mr. Rowell's Directory, publish it officially and drop all the others, it would accomplish something.

ARTEMAS WARD,
Advertising Manager for Sapolio.
—In Fame, March, 1901.

WASHINGTON.

Every page of the American Newspaper Directory breathes the desire of its publishers that it shall be absolutely correct in every statement it makes.

Truly yours,
FRANK ROE BATCHELD,
Clerk of the Committee on Banking and Currency, House of Representatives, U. S.
Washington, D. C., Jan. 17, 1899.

SOUTHERN.

We subscribe to and pay cash for the American Newspaper Directory, and find it of great value in our advertising department. We have 6,892 miles of railway, extending from Washington, D. C., all over the South, and in advertising this system we use more than 1,000 publications, and in selecting this list we find that we get a correct idea of circulation from this Directory that can not be obtained from any other similar publication. We receive other newspaper directories gratis, but the fact that we pay cash for this one in addition shows that we can not place the same dependence upon the "free list."

We thoroughly appreciate the careful manner in which this Directory is compiled.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 12, 1900.
JOS. H. HANNEN,
Adv. Dept. Southern Railway.

I am looking forward to receiving the new edition with a great deal of anticipation, as, although the American Newspaper Directory seemed to have reached a high state of perfection several years ago, there is always something new and of value in each succeeding edition. It is regarded as the standard authority with the Southern Railway.

S. H. HARDWICK,
General Passenger Agent,
Washington, D. C., May 21, 1901.

BALTIMORE.

We have used the American Newspaper Directory for many years and find it more valuable to us than any other similar publication. Much of the information given we cannot obtain in any other way. The book is not only a great help, but a necessity to our business, and we think its way of stating circulations is the ideal one.

Permanent Cures of Cancer

We here give a few cases, where the efficacy of our Constitutional treatment in curing Cancer, is established beyond all question. We have plenty on fyle.

There is ample proof that where our remedy cures, it cures to stay and saves people from the torture of knife and plaster.

CANCER OF THE BREAST—A lady had Cancer of the breast, which rendered her right shoulder and arm almost helpless. Our remedy cured her over five years ago, and there is not the slightest return of the trouble.

CANCER OF THE FACE—This case of a gentleman who was so bad that his right cheek was almost eaten off with the disease. Plasters aggrivated his trouble. Our treatment cured him five years ago and he has been all right since.

CANCER OF THE STOMACH—Doctors pronounced the trouble cancer of the stomach. There was vomiting of material that looked like Coffee grounds. Great weakness and prostration. Cured over four years ago and well to-day.

CANCER OF THE NOSE—A severe case which was cured by our remedy in 1891 and has never returned to this day.

Full accounts of the above cases, together with the names and addresses of the persons, are given in our new book, "Cancer, Its Cause and Cure," sent to anyone, in plain wrapper on receipt of 2 stamps. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont.

—The Town Council met last night in Committee of the Whole.

—All the steamers on the lower waters will run excursions to town today.

—The Board of Trade will meet on Thursday night to discuss water power and manufactories.

—A writer elsewhere strongly opposes a holiday on October 10th,—the date of the Duke's visit to Toronto.

—If the Boers do not behave themselves better, the Canadians may turn themselves loose on South Africa again.

—Routley, the Park street grocer, near Elm has choice groceries, and solicits the patronage of citizens in the neighborhood.

—Visitors too the Fair, don't fail to call and inspect the choic enew stock of jewelry at Diamond Hall, R. J. Frost, proprietor.

—Every photograph taken at Whiten's studio is guaranteed not to fade, and is the best quality of work that can be made.

—Don't forget the big sale of paper bound books now going on at Times Bookstore. The best value ever offered —only ten cents each.

China Hall will sell 300 dozen Quart Crown Fruit Jars, all best selected goods, at 60c per doz., while they last. Buy quickly.

—The Times is in receipt of a complimentary ticket of admission to the fall fair of the East Durham and Cavan Agricultural Society, which will take place at Millbrook.

—Every preparation is being made by the good ladies of St. John's church for the annual Harvest Home tomorrow evening. The work of decoration will be proceeded with today.

Just in—the best assortment of English novels ever shown in Peterborough. Sell on first sight. 10 cents each. See north window in Times Bookstore, Market block, Peterborough.

—The police was notified that a child, belonging to a family in the north end, had wandered away. The little one was found in a house on Reid street, where it had wandered, and where it was being tenderly cared for.

—Don't miss the chance—people residing out of town to call next time when in town at Times Bookstore and have a look through the new English novels we are selling at less than cost. Perhaps you will find the titles you have been waiting for years to find.

—Readers of the Times are requested not to forget the Social night for men at the Y.M.C.A. to-morrow evening, Sept 26. A novel feature of the entertainment will be a basket ball match between teams, the members of which have never before played the game. The referee will also be a "greenie."

—Armor-Sergeant Thomas Worth, of Kingston, who has been inspecting the guns and accoutrements of the left section of the Durham Field Battery, returned to the Limestone City yesterday. Sergeant-Holland, who is one of the right sort, was royally entertained by those of the 57th Regiment and the Battery men whose acquaintance he chanced to make, and expresses his intention of coming to Peterborough for his holidays. He will shortly start on a tour of inspection west as far as the Pacific Coast.

THE TOWN IN DARKNESS.

Through a Wa-hout in the Dam at the Electric Light Station.

Through a leak in the dam or raceway at the electric light station the light had to be shut off for several hours last night, leaving the town in darkness. It appears that the water somehow undermined the embankment, and there was no alternative but to shut down.

The Times had to procure a supply of coal oil lamps, and it was with difficulty that our typesetting machines could be worked at all, for good light is absolutely necessary in manipulating these delicately-constructed machines.

An open meeting will be held next Monday evening, when it is hoped that there will be a large attendance.

A CATHEDRAL WEDDING

Mr. George Hayes United in Marriage to Miss Minnie Welsh.

Yesterday morning St. Peter's Cathedral was the scene of a very interesting event, when Mr. George Hayes was united in marriage to Miss Minnie Welsh. The nuptial knot was tied by Ven. Archdeacon Casey. Both young people belong to Peterborough. The bride was given away by her father, Mr. D. Hennessey. She was charmingly attired in a costume of blue-grey home spun and picture hat, and was attended by her cousin, Miss Daisy O'Hern, who was gowned in grey home spun and wore a black picture hat. The groom was supported by Mr. John Grisdole. The numerous and costly presents showed the high esteem in which the young couple are held. Among the presents was a China dinner set and tea set from the weaving department of the Auburn Mills.

Mr. and Mrs. Hayes will take up residence at 201 Harvey street. Their many friends wish them a long and happy married life.

THE CENTRAL EXHIBITION.

The Exhibition, should Fine Weather Prevail Will be a success.

The Central Exhibition will be formally opened today, and should fine weather prevail, it will be a big success. The entries are many, and exhibits good.

Yesterday was spent in putting the exhibits in order and arranging interior of the building. The inside exhibits are away ahead of last year.

This afternoon the schools will be closed, and everything indicates a large attendance.

"CHILDREN AND FOOLS."

"Judge of a thing Half Done."

This is particularly applicable in cases where persons seriously troubled from the effects of coffee drinking and who take up Postum Food Coffee in its place, attempt to make the new beverage with a little hot water and two or three minutes boiling. That sort of a "lick and a promise" produces a drink that is simply exasperating. It is flat and tasteless, whereas the person who will boil the Postum full fifteen minutes after the actual bubbling and boiling egins, will have a beverage that is something.

There is a point between twelve and fifteen minutes of boiling, when the character of Postum is changed, the food value is extracted and the delicious flavor which much resembles the milder and more expensive grades of Java coffee is produced.

A lady in Salem, Ore., says: 'Whenever I drank coffee at night, I always passed a restless, wakeful night. Extreme nervousness and a weak stomach have followed me ever since I have been using coffee. Finally I got into such a state that my dyspepsia took the form of spasms and heart weakness.

I suffered intensely, and when a physician was called, he enquired, among other things, if I drank coffee, and insisted that I leave it off. I did so and took up tea, which I found almost as bad. Finally husband brought home a package of Postum, and we tried it (strictly according to directions, for we believe in the adage that 'Children and fools judge of a thing half done.')

The new coffee was delicious and from that day until now (which is a year) it has been our only drink at meals. My dyspepsia, spasms, etc., are a thing of the past. My husband had suffered some years with bilious headaches, and indigestion, but during the past year on Postum Food Coffee, he has entirely recovered his health and gained much in weight. Our friends frequently comment on our improved appearance and change in complexion." Name of writer supplied by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

THE WIRE STEALING CASE.

Stevenson Had His Trial Yesterday and Judgment Was Reserved.

Chas. Stevenson, who was charged with receiving wire stolen from the Canadian General Electric Company, and who was committed for trial by Police Magistrate Dumble, came before the County Criminal Court yesterday, His Honor Judge Weller presiding.

The evidence was practically the same as was given at the Police Court.

The case was concluded and judgment reserved until tomorrow.

Her Heart like a Polluted Spring.—Mrs. James Srigley, Pelee Island, Ont., says: "I was for five years afflicted with dyspepsia, constipation, heart disease and nervous prostration. I cured the heart trouble with Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart, and the other ailments vanished like mist. Had relief in half an hour after the first dose."—27

Opera House Again Crowded.

Last night, the opera house was again crowded to overflowing, when the Dramatic and Vaudeville Marks Company presented "Under Two Flags" a dramatization of Ouida's famous novel in prologue. As on the first night, the audience was a thoroughly appreciative one and the applause at times was almost deafening. As Rakes, the valet of Lord Bertie Cecil, Tom Marks was the hit of the evening, and kept the audience convulsed with laughter. This popular comedian is undoubtedly the greatest mirth-provoker who ever visited Peterborough. Oscar O'Shea played the role assigned with consummate skill. The popular J. R. Field played a dual part in a highly artistic manner. As usual Messrs. Chris Allen and Arnold Baldwin came in for a fair share of applause. Both are artists of rare ability. Miss Emma Gertrude Shea won the hearts of the audience as "Cigarette," the heroic Moorish girl, and the pathetic scene showed the possession of histrionic talent of a high order. Miss Esther Evans looked sweetly pretty as Lady Venetia Corona, and played her part with both grace and skill. This talented young lady possesses a fine stage presence, combined with a voice of exceptional clearness and sweetness and deserved the applause she frequently received. The other members of the troupe acquitted themselves creditably, and the specialties were even better than on the first night. The play tonight will be "The Wife, or a Rash Marriage." It is sure to be a record breaker.

Increasing His Facilities.

Mr. Cobb, the popular florist, has found it necessary to increase his facilities and has decided to erect a special new fifty foot greenhouse for the cultivation of carnations. This addition contains one thousand new plants of the choicest Canadian and American growths, some already coming into bloom. The new greenhouse permits of two long beds fifty feet long, covered by over one thousand feet of new glass. Both Mr. and Mrs. Cobb are enthusiasts in flower culture, and these yearly additions to their green houses is the best proof of the success they are enjoying.

Sir,—I see that it is proposed to have a holiday on the occasion of the Duke of York's visit to Toronto, on October 10. I hope our Mayor and Council will not act hastily in this matter. We have had altogether too many holidays of late, and the line must be drawn somewhere. No good purpose would be served by a holiday on the occasion referred to, for a comparatively few have the means to go to Toronto to see his Royal Highness whom we all delight to honor.

TAXING CHINESE IN AMERICA

Commissions Coming to Urge Help in Paying the Indemnity.

Pekin, Sept. 24.—The city has been perfectly quiet since the evacuation of Pekin by the foreign troops. General Yuan Shi Kai's soldiers are orderly and efficient, and the people are friendly. Foreigners, unarmed, visit all sections of the city and suburbs unmolested. Prince Ching has written to the foreign Ministers that the Government is preparing to dispatch three Commission, headed by a Taotai and two Prefects to visit America, the Philippines, Australia and elsewhere, for the purpose of soliciting subscriptions from Chinese residents toward the indemni to be paid to the Powers, and will request the foreign Ministers here to furnish the Commissions with credentials. Some of the Ministers do not approve of the scheme to tax the Chinese abroad.

ROOSEVELT SHOWS NO FEAR

Walks Through Washington Streets Unaccompanied.

Washington, Sept 24.—About 1.30 o'clock, shortly after the conclusion of the cabinet meeting to-day, President Roosevelt left the white house to go to the residence of his sister, the wife of Commander Cowles of the navy, for luncheon. Disdaining a carriage, he walked swiftly and alone. No one had known when he would leave his office and as he passed briskly out of the grounds of the executive mansion he attracted little attention, scarcely anybody recognizing him. He crossed Pennsylvania avenue into Lafayette Square and thence up Sixteenth street to his destination. In the course of an hour and a half he returned to the white house, still alone and still walking.

NEW BOER CAMPAIGN IN THE BRITISH LINES

Burghers Prepared to Operate on English Territory Hereafter

THE END OF THE WAR IS NOT YET IN SIGHT

Unsatisfacaory Condition of Lord Kitchener's Forces—More Men to be Sent to South Africa.

London, September 26.

The Telegraph calls on the Government to dispatch additional reinforcements to South Africa without delay, and force the war to a conclusion. For this purpose 50,000 additional men should be mobilized at once. It would be a serious mistako to assume that because about 20,000 Boers are Prisoners it would be impossible for battles of the magnitude of the first struggles at the Tugela and Modder River to be repeated. The Boers in the past year have probably recruited 5,000 Colonial Dutch, while the Republican forces are now at their fullest available strength, instead of, as originally, leaving one man of each family to reside on the farm.

On the other hand, Lord Kitchener's army, although five times the strength of General Buller's first force, does not report a proportionately greater combatant capacity. Before the invasion of the Boer Republics the total British force was available for seeking and engaging the Boers, but now nearly 3,000 miles of railway has to be guarded so closely that adjoining posts must meet daily and nightly. In consequence, about 70,000 are free to deal with the commandos.

There is no means of enumerating the armed Boers, but there are probably over 12,000 fighting men with an invaluable intelligence department, which consists of the strong sympathy of 90 per cent of the inhabitants of the entire area over which they have hitherto moved. Commander-in-Chief Botha's present plan is simple and apparently feasible. As soon as Lord Kitchener's date of September 15 for the general surrender of the burghers lapsed and the Boer leaders were placed under the ban of the forfeiture of their property and lifelong exile, it was obvious that, having decided not to surrender, they could serve no purpose by remaining in the Republican territory.

They therefore struck immediately into the British Colonies, where they were enabled to make immediate reprisals on their enemy's subjects. It is significant that there is no record of their releasing prisoners during the present week's engagement.

Secretary Brodrick's most notable contribution to the field force was in sending out 15,000 Yeomanry. Lord Kitchener's criticism of them, in a report which the War Office was constrained to publish, was: "Many of them were unable either to ride or shoot, and others are quite unsuitable for the work in hand. Numbers of them had to be taught the elements of a soldier's business when they were sorely needed at the front. Over 100 of the 400 officers had to be sent home."

As weary and disgusted as the English people are with the war, yet the dangerous quicksand on which they seem to see their general regulars and volunteers alike has compelled the newspapers to give great prominence to the bad news of the week, and yesterday and to-day the War Office messages supplanted the rest of the world's news for prominence in all the journals. The misgivings in regard to the future have deepened by the announcement that Secretary Brodrick, after his professions that proved competence alone would entitle a man to promotion, has appointed Sir Redvers Buller to the command of the First Division.

TO CROSS THE CHANNEL

William Beedle of London Prepares to Accomplish Feat

Goes to Paris to Vie for the Prize Offered by Henri Deutsch—Englishman Will Prove Formidable Rival to M. Dumont—Special Feature of Invention is a Perfected Steering Apparatus.

London, Sept. 25.—The British rival to M Santos-Dumont was interviewed yesterday at his temporary residence in Marda Vale.

William Beedle leaves for Paris tonight in connection with his invention and will have a consultation with Wilfred de Fonville, president of the French Aeronautical Society, who has expressed satisfaction that an Englishman is to enter for the Deutche prize.

The course to be sailed for the ex-merchant's $22,500 prize is one of fourteen miles, from the society's clubhouse round the Eiffel tower and back.

Mr. Beedle is a resident of Cape Town and an engineer who has been seven years in perfecting his machine. He claims to have reached the high-water mark in aerial navigation, and the fact that the well-known firm of experts, Messrs. Spencer & Sons, is identified with him is a proof of the meris of his invention.

So far the trials have been made with a thirty foot model. Naturally Mr. Beedle requires a fair sum of money before he can complete the full ship, but he is steadily progressing with the work.

The motor is now being made in Paris, the frame is ready, and Messrs. Spencer & Sons have made arrangements to put the whole together in their baloon factory, whence the trial trip may soon be looked for.

The challenge prize is open until the year 1906, so that Mr. Beedle has plenty of time. A French expert is taking an especial interest in his progress.

The plan of the ship is that of a car suspended from a cylendrical baloon, holding 18,000 feet of hydrogen. The length of the balloon is 001 feet and the diameter sixteen feet. The untearable balloon skin is attached to hte inside of six aluminium hoops, which placing renders the baloon collapsible a provides a ready vacum when refilling, which increases the foot power by forty-two pounds.

Driving an airship is an accomplished fact, but where Mr. Beedle scores over his rivals is in the steering and lifting. His steering fan is at the front and turns the nose of the craft while his driving is done from the rear with a twenty-eight horse power motor cooled with four air cylinders.

The whole machine is portable and marks a distinct advance upon Santos Dumont's, Renard's or Deutch's ship.

Mr Beedle hopes to travel at the rate of forty miles an hour.

"Is that faster than Santos-Dumont?" asked your correspondent.

"Oh, yes," replied Mr. Beedle, "the machine is much stronger."

"Why did Santos-Dumont fail?"

"His steering apparatus is deficient," replied the Cape Town inventor. "He uses a rudder which steers to the right and left and does not possess the fine points of steering which I claim to have invented."

"Where did you learn your aeronautics?"

"At the Cape," replied Mr. Beedle, "where I have been experimenting for some years. I am trying to form a syndicate to complete the building. Several hundred pounds have already been spent, and not much more is required. At the very latest I shall sail for the Deutsch prize next year."

The weight of the machine is 1,200 pounds, and the loss of gas during an ascent will be overcome by compressed gas carried in a tube. The lifting power is just sufficient to raise the vessel from the ground when the fan comes into play. The nose of the craft cants upward and away it goes in any wind.

The machine carries two men. Mr. Beedle proposes to cross the channel when ready. Who'll take the second seat?

TELL OF BIG GOLD FINDS

Schooners Report Discovery of Rich Mines on Solomon Island.

Sydney, N. S. W., Sept. 25.—Two schooners which recently arrived at Brisbane from the Solomon islands bring astonishing tales of finds of gold in the island of Choiseul. Both vessels, which were privately fitted out for expedition to the Solomons, bore tangible proof of the stories in the form of large quantities of the yellow metal.

One of the schooners brought more than 8,000 ounces of gold, which had been mined by the fifteen persons on board, and the other brought 6,000 ounces, belonging to the twelve who manned the vessel.

A great rush to the new gold fields is anticipated. Miners from all over Australia are expected to take part in it.

The climate of the Solomon islands is described as healthy although sligtly malarial, and persons who go there need only be furnished with quinine to ward off illness. It is stated that the natives are now seldom seen, and that there are no proofs that they are cannibalistic.

It is expected that the coming gold rush will be the means of colonizing the islands, which belong to Great Britain. No white settlements have yet been established upon them.

IN SERIOUS DANGER.

The Condition of St. Paul's Cathedral Causing Great Alarm.

London, Sept. 26—The injury wrought to the foundation of St. Paul's cathedral by tunneling in its vicinity for an underground railway is more serious than was at first reported. The architect of the cathedral, after making a thorough examination, estimates that it will take $1,000,000 to make the building actually secure. A reporter sought the opinion of Mr. Harding, clerk of the cathedral, who said:

"No doubt the building of a new foundation is possible, but it is a very large order and must be a national enterprise. At the outset Wren was obliged to do something of the kind, for the foundation at the northeast angle of the cathedral was so insecure that he had to go down forty feet to the blue clay and build up a massive pier of masonry to take the corner of the building. The axis of the old and new structures did not agree and he could not build on the previous foundations. It was a pity he did not go down to the clay with all the foundations, as the new edifice was much bigger and heavier than the old one."

"But there was no danger till the advent of the tube railways and things of that sort?"

"Undoubtedly, we should have been all right if our surroundings had been left alone. Modern enterprises seem to have drained the running sand between the layers of London and blue clay. That is what we have to fight against. Seeing how we are threatened, probably the only way of thoroughly securing the place is to have better foundations. We must keep underground enterprises away from the cathedral, but it is a great tax upon the dean and chapter to fight scheme after scheme as they arise. It is all a question of money, and I don't quite see how the expense of underpinning, as suggested, is to be met except by a public subscription."

IRON FOUND IN WISCONSIN.

Rich Veins of Ore are Discovered on the Penokee Range.

Ashland, Wis., Sept. 25.—This city and vicinity are in a furore of excitement over the discovery of the first vein of iron ore ever found in Ashland county, and land values in the new mineral section have greatly appreciated. For some time past Jas. Guest has been prospecting on the Penokee range, and last week his efforts were rewarded by the encountering of a body of specular ore of great promise. A company has now been organized at Mellan to develop the property, while numerous others have been formed to conduct exploratory operations elsewhere on the Penokee range, particularly along the western end.

Advice to Mothers.

If your little boy or girl comes home with a sore throat, the first thing to do is to rub the thorat and chest with Polson's Nerviline. Don't be afraid to use Nerviline freely—a whole bottle full wouldn't burn or blister the tenderest skin. Rub in until all taken up by the pores, and just before the child goes to sleep give him a glass of hot water in which 30 drops of Nerviline has previously been stirred. This is a sure pleasant and speedy cure. Large bottles 25 cents.

Delivered 100 Men.

Mr. T. Cavanagh returned yesterday from Sault Ste. Marie, where he delivered 100 men to the lumber camps of Mr. Frank Perry, who is extensively operating in the district. The camp is situated 12 miles from the "Soo," and is a model one in every respect. Mr. Cavanagh says he never saw better board in any camp he ever was in. The wages run from $22 to $30 per month. He is advertising elsewhere in the Times for 100 saw log men, to whom the highest wages will be paid.

THE MURDERER SEES RELATIONS

Father, Brother and Sister of McKinley's Assassin Visit Him.

THE VERDICT REACHED IN COURT

Buffalo, N. Y. Sept. 26.—Paul, Waldeck and Victoria Czolgosz, father brother and sister of Leon Czolgosz, the convicted assassin of President McKinley, were granted an interview with the prisoner in the Erie County jail at noon. Assistant District Attorney Frederick Haller and Assistant Superintendent of Police P. V. Cusack were present, under instructions of District Attorney Penney, throughout the interview. No other person will be allowed to see the prisoner until after the sentence of death is imposed to-morrow afternoon.

VERDICT OF MURDER.

Buffalo, Sept. 25.—Leon Czolgosz was yesterday found guilty of the murder of President McKinley, the jury deliberating on the evidence for a little more than half an hour. The actual time taken up with the trial of the anarchist was eight hours and twenty-six minutes, extending over two days.

Throughout the entire afternoon session yesterday the prisoner manifested absolute indifference. He sat with one leg crossed over the other and his hands resting on the arms of his chair. Even when the verdict of the jury was announced the vacant stare which has characterized him from the commencement never left his eyes.

Mr. Quackenbush, one of the Pan-American officials, resumed his evidence after recess. In answer to a question of the prosecuting attorney, the witness said that during his confession the prisoner discussed his crime freely, and claimed to have acted entirely alone. He had not used the term "anarchy" at all.

Secret Service Officers Gallagher and Foster described the circumstances surrounding the crime. John Branch, a colored employe of the Exposition, swore that he thought he heard the President say: "Be easy with him, boys."

Judge Lewis, the counsel for the prisoner, in a short address, pointed out the peculiar position in which he had been placed. In some communities, he said, a case of this kind would be disposed of by mob law. It was a hard matter to pick up a newspaper today and find nothing about some case of mob or lynch law, but this spirit did not exist in this community. "This man," he said, "has declared that he is an anarchist. We all feel that organizations of this kind are dangerous, but I don't think that they are nearly so dangerous as the doctrine of lynch law. That is something that will sweep aside the strongest of ou institutions if allowed to grow at its present rat eof progress. Every man charged with a crime, no matter how heinous its nature, should get a fair trial in a court of justice."

EAST PETERBOROUGH.

Dr. Ford, the Conservative Candidate, is Very Hopeful.

Yesterday Dr. Ford, of Norwood, the Conservative candidate for the Ontario Legislature in East Peterborough, was in town and favored The Times with a call. Dr. Ford is leaving no stone unturned to insure his election, and speaks most hopefully of the outlook not only as regards the East Riding, but for the Conservative party throughout the Province. He says he is meeting with every encouragement that he could wish for. He has just returned from a trip through the northern portion of the riding and the outlook is better than anyone could imagine.

The Doctor took in the exhibition, and was the guest of Mr. J. H. Burnham.

An Essay on Water.

The following, evidently an essay on "Water," was picked up a few days ago near the west ward school, and sent to The Times for publication in their columns:

"Water," the writer says, "is used for a good many things. Sailors use water to go to sea on. Water is a good thing to fire at boys with a squirt gun and to catch fishes in."

But the strangest of all uses for water is this:

"Nobody," he says, "could be saved from drowning if there wasn't water to pull them out of."

THE SOUTH AMERICAN WAR

A Stiff Battle In Which Revolutionists were Badly Worsted.

New Orleans, Sept. 26.—The steamer Stillwater, which arrived here last night, brings the full details of the battle at Bocas del Toro, Colombia, in which the Government troops were victorious over the revolutionists, dispersing those in the neighborhood of Bocas, and inflicting a heavy loss.

The fighting occupied all last Sunday, and was unusually bloody for a South American battle. The Government troops at Bocas, having been reenforced by the arrival of a large contingent from Bogota, soldiers of experience and discipline, under the command of General Nunez, attacked the revolutionists on Old Bank Island, the headquarters of the revolutionists on the coast. Here was the largest body of men, although there were several small camps on the mainland around Bocas.

A large red flag floated over the camp at Old Bank. The force is said to have been under the command of an American adventurer. Among the revolutionists were many Jamaica negroes, who had been fruit loaders at Bocas, and many planters from the coast country.

For more than a week the Government forces have been collecting launches to make the expedition. Enough were obtained by Saturday for a small force to be sent to Old Bank. As it approached the island, the revolutionists opened fire on the advancing boats, wounding four soldiers. The Government troops, however, succeeded in making a landing on the north end of the island. The next morning heavy firing was begun, when the Government troops at New Bank landed on the south end of the island, and the two parties advanced toward each other, catching the rebels between them.

The centre of the island is covered with brush, into which the revolutionists fled after their army broke. The Government troops kept up a brisk hunt all day long, and over one hundred of the revolutionists were shot down in the brush including the American commander and most of the Jamaica negroes. Some thirty prisoners were captured and brought to Bocas, the Government troops returning amid cheering and great enthusiasm.

A PRETTY WEDDING.

Marriage of Miss Beatrice Roxborough and Mr. C. A. Stuart.

A very interesting social event took place at "Cessnock," the residence of Mr. W. E. Roxburgh, Norwood, on Tuesday, when his daughter, Miss Beatrice J., was united in marriage to Mr. Chas. A. Stuart, of Calgary, Alberta, N.W.T. Ferns and autumn flowers were used in profusion to decorate the interior of the house. The bridal party entered to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Mr. Wilson Cameron. The bride was attended by Miss Theresa Fowlds, Hastings, as bride's maid, and her two little nieces, Madge and Helen Cameron of Peterborough, as flower girls.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. F. Somerville, assisted by Rev. F. D. Roxburgh, brother of the bride, in the presence of the immediate relatives of the contracting parties.

The bride looked exquisite in a gown of grey silk with lace and pearl trimmings and carried a shower bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid was also handsomely attired in grey silk, and carried a beautiful bouquet of pink roses. The groom was supported by Mr. A. T. De Lury, M.A., of Toronto University.

After hearty congratulations had been extended to the happy couple, a sumptuous wedding dejuner was served.

The many handsome and expensive wedding presents showed that the bride was held in high esteem by her friends. The happy couple left on the 4.45 train for their future home in Calgary.

Amongst those who were present were the following: Mr. and Mrs. Stuart, and Miss Moss, of Paris; Mr. Alex. Stuart, K. C., London; Mr. A. T. De Lury, M.A. Mrs. Wm. Houston and Mr. L. W. Cameron, Toronto; Rev. F. D. Roxburgh, of Smithville; Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Cameron, Misses Madge and Helen Cameron, Miss Cameron, Peterborough; Dr. and Miss Berry, Mr. and Mrs. Fowlds, Misses Elizabeth and Threesa Fowlds, of Hastings.

The bride carried with her the hearty good wishes of many friends of whom not a few reside in Peterborough.

A PRESENTATION.

To Rev. E. A. Langfeldt by the Congregation of St James Church.

At the conclusion of the services in St. James' church, Emily, on Tuesday evening, Rev. E. A. Langfeldt was presented with a purse and the following address by the members as an evidence of the esteem in which he has been held by the congregation:

Rev. E. A. Langfeldt,—

Reverend and Dear Sir, — We, the members of St. James church, Emily, desire to take this means of expressing our grateful appreciation of your earnest and faithful ministrations to us.

Your pastorate will ever be remembered in our congregation as that in which our new and beautiful church was built. This, we consider, was largely the result of your enthusiastic inspiration and skilful leadership, which have also been directed towards building up the congregation as a spiritual temple.

The Sunday school, too, owes much to your careful teaching. We warmly thank you for all these efforts on our behalf, and for your general personal interest in us individually.

Congratulating you on the promotion which has come to you, and trusting that, while it breaks parochial relations all too soon, it may not sever personal ties.

We remain on behalf of the congregation.

WM. J. CLARK,
JOHN GILLIS,
Churchwardens.

PETERBOROUGH CENTRAL NOW IN FULL SWING

Formal Opening Yesterday When Warden Fitzgerald Did the Honors.

GOOD WEATHER AND A LARGE CROWD PRESENT

Mayor Denne, T. Blezard, M. P. P., and Dr Willoughby Were the Speakers--A Big Crowd Expected To-day

Contrary to past records the Peterborough Central Exhibition was yesterday favored with superb weather. On many former occasions rain or unfavorable weather usually interfered with the fair, and when yesterday morning broke clear and bright, there was a look of genuine satisfaction on the faces of the directors and friends of the exhibition everywhere.

The fair has rallied from its low financial condition of two years ago, when rain almost wiped out the gate receipts, and made it impossible for the directors to pay the full amount of the prizes. This year the old-time crowds are present, with largely increased entry list. The grand stand was packed to overflowing during the afternoon, while several thousand persons wandered around the grounds, and took in the other attractions.

Sociability and sunshine exuded from all present; it was a love-feast, with all manner of compliments passed. The ticket agent and gatekeepers were kept busy all day, and Secretary W. J. Green was overwhelmed with enquiries from agitated exhibitors, who perchance had got things mixed up, or forgotten their tickets, or done something wrong. The main hall contained a good display of the usual articles. The domestic manufactures, roots, grain, fruit, fancy work, and fine arts, were especially good. The hall was always crowded with ladies, who examined and discussed minutely all the exhibits.

Outside the hall the grounds presented a gay and festive scene. The 57th Regimental band, led by Professor Glidden, played chaste melodies. The horses neighed, the cattle lowed, bleated and squealed, the poultry squawked; everybody was gorgeously upholstered and talked gaily, and Old Sol shone brightly over all. The excitement was such that a dignified Plymouth Rock hen among the poultry pens laid an egg to celebrate the day, to the scandal of a family of bantams and a brace of discordant guinea hens adjoining.

The special attractions before the grand stand were the best we have ever seen in connection with the exhibition. The programme will be repeated to-day.

THE FORMAL OPENING.

The formal opening took place at 1.30. In the unavoidable absence of Hon. Dr. Borden and Hon. J. R. Stratton, the opening ceremony was performed by Warden Fitzgerald.

The president, Mr. F. H. Dobbin, welcomed everybody to the exhibition after accounting for the absence of Hon. J. R. Stratton and Mr. James Kendry, M.P. He then called on the other notabilities on the platform to address the assembled throng.

Mayor Denne was pleased to see such a large attendance, and the large exhibits of agricultural products, and stock, on the grounds. He had visited the Glasgow exhibition only a few weeks ago, and he spoke with pride of the showing made there by Canada. Outside of England itself no country made a better display than did Canada, and he felt that the effort was a fine one, for the millions who saw the Canadian exhibit would not fail to be impressed with Canada and its possibilities. He referred to what had been done by cold storage, which made limitless our trade with Great Britain. If shippers were careful about the products they sent forward and made sure that they were all in prime condition and properly labelled it would work wonders for Canada. In concluding, he expressed his pleasure at the exhibition and wished it success and all a pleasant time.

The next speaker was Dr. Willoughby ex-M.P.P., who disclaimed any ambition to make a speech, but had come to work. In the absence of the oratorical "big guns," however, he was filling the gap. The Grits are all away said the doctor, and you only have the Conservatives left here. He thought the local men should have been here. He made reference to the proud record Canada is making. He eulogised the work of the directors, but thought the people of Peterborough were not properly supporting them. The exhibition should have had a larger attendance from town. The fair, he hoped, would be a success.

Mr. Thos. Blezard, M.P.P., said he would let Dr. Willoughby know there was one Grit there, anyway. He was in favor of country and district shows, which should be supported by all, because they were the shows of the people themselves. Mr Blezard, amid a salvo of applause and laughter, assured the audience that although Mr. Stratton and Dr. Borden were not here, it didn't matter, as he and Dr. Willoughby were just as good men as they were, and could tell more about agriculture then either of them. The doctor had bred some of the besthorses in the country, and he had bred some of the best cattle and sheep. (Applause.)

Warden Fitzgerald was loudly applauded on rising to speak, but said he did not deem it prudent to take up much time. He hoped that the exhibition would be marked by a large attendance, for it certainly deserved it. He then formally declared the exhibition open.

This concluded the formal proceedings, and the programme commenced in front of the grand stand.

SPECIAL FEATURES.

Gough Bros., the Wonderful Cheap Men, as usual occupied the "same old stand" as in former years. The neat and comprehensive display of ready made clothing, manufactured in the most advanced styles known to the trade, attracted thousands during the day by the originality and skill shown in its exhibit. Gough Bros. endeavored year after year to make their exhibit an attractive advertisement for their mammoth clothing establishment, and they have succeeded this year beyond all preceding ones. Gough Bros. exhibit included an interesting display of medium and high-class ready-to-wear suits, overcoats, and ulsters for fall and winter wear, marked in plain and convincing figures. Men's, youths' and boys garments were shown in satisfactory variety. Light fall overcoats, heavy winter ulsters, men's round and square cut coats, youths' and boys' suits and reefers, in all the various new styles of the season. There was also seen the new Raglan overcoat, the swell long overcoat of the season, which is enjoying so much popular favour now; also the "Raglanette," and standard short box coat, with full back, in all the most up-to-date styles of fabrics. The display was effectively decorated with white and blue bunting, attractively designed price tickets, and appropriately lettered show cards. The dressing bore evidence of a carefully prepared plan to give an artistic effect, such as is frequently seen in the massive show windows of the firm on George street. To Mr. W. T. Merrill belongs the credit of designing and decorating the exhibit, which entitles him to all the praise so liberally bestowed on it. Emmet Dougherty was in charge of the display and was industriously engaged handing out Gough Bros. pretty "Duke and Duchess" cards to the crowds of admirers.

The man with the long-haired wig who was running the knife board and cane racket did a big business, and roared continuously. Small boys swarmed around this guileless diversion.

The feature of the crowd yesterday was the noticeable absence of townspeople, the great majority of those on the ground being from the surrounding townships.

Grafton & Co., although not making an exhibit on the grounds this year, nevertheless kept the assembled thousands aware, though a plentiful use of printer's ink and sign-boards and posters exhibited profusely at every possible point of vantage, that they were still doing business on a larger scale than ever, and had as well-assorted a stock of ready-made clothing of every description as can be found in Central Ontario. Visitors to the fair have not been slow to recognise the opportunity of getting the best, most durable, and at the same time cheapest clothing to be found in no other town but Peterborough, men's clothing, boy's clothing, light fall overcoats, heavy winter ulsters—in short, anything in the way of clothing. No one should fail to call and inspect the magnificent stock, now that the cool season is setting in, and heavier clothing is the order of the day. The manager, and his obliging assistants, will always be pleased to show goods to callers, no matter whether you intend to purchase at the time or not.

One of the prettiest exhibits in the main hall was that made by Mr. C. B. Routley, the enterprising George street fancy goods dealer. It consisted mainly of wall papers of the neatest and most modern design; jardiniere flower pots, rare and antique china, etc., etc. The display made by Mr. Routley, this year surpasses in excellence anything seen in the building for years, yet nevertheless it gives but a faint idea of the endless variety of well assorted goods to be seen in Mr. Routley's store on George street, which at this season is daily thronged with customers who are able to procure in their establishment goods at a price that no similar house in Ontario can approach.

The old established house of Messrs. J. C. Turnbull & Co., had a special carpet exhibit, and the profusion of patterns shown was a study of ingenuity and beauty. The moderateness of the prices, too, was a matter of surprise to many who examined the choice of designs, embracing elegant velvets, Brussels, tapestries, all wools and unions. The richest weaves have been unrolled and spread out, forming the walls, floor and ceiling of the effective display. The beautifully decorated interior shows rolls of the bright-

PUNISHMENT ADMINISTERED

Rev. Mr. Sanderson was suspended and Rev. Mr. McAmmond reprimanded. The first named must retire from the ministry and as for McAmmond, his silencing cannot come any too quickly. Every church has its black sheep and it is a healthy spirit that refrains from keeping in the fold those who by certain acts cause a blush to come to the cheeks of faithful adherents. It is to the credit of the Methodist Church that in the case of the two men no sympathy has been shown. We are all human, but it is true that the man who wears the clerical garb should be able to control his passions. If he is not the sooner he is stripped of the clothing that declares to the world his business the better for the church and the world at large.

The sympathy of all those who rejoice in the bond of kindly love will go out to the wives of the two who so far forgot themselves. No man or woman will blame the innocent.

EDITORIAL NOTES

A Globe despatch suggests that the Dominion Parliament will not meet before February, and that the Redistribution Bill may not be introduced during the next session, as an effort will be made to get through the business of Parliament in time to let the Premier be present at the King's coronation.

Carrie Nation, the saloon-smasher, and Emma Goldman, the anarchist agitator would make a nice team to hitch together, if there were only a good place to drive them to. How would it do to put them on a farm in the uttermost parts of New Ontario, force them to keep house together, and let them exhaust their oratorical powers jawing one another to death?

How do you like our fair?

The Peterborough Central Exhibition is coming up, it will soon rival the Toronto Industrial.

The 1,000 Montreal ladies, who had spent $100 each on new dresses for the royal reception, were of course disappointed when the function was called off on account of the President's death and funeral, but they did not murmur audibly until they read in the newspapers about the reception at Ottawa. Then they wished they had their money back, and Mayor Prefontaine, speaking on their behalf, is inclined to doubt if the true reason for the cancellation of the Montreal reception has been given. Ask Maude.

Perhaps the frequency of such names as Laing's Nek, Commando Nek, Nicholson's Nek and Scheeper's Nek in South Africa may help to account for small parties of British so frequently getting it where the chicken got the axe.

There are more practical anarchists than the Mosts and Goldmans and Czolgoszs. Every man who teaches contempt for law fosters anarchy. Every man who teaches that capital and labor are natural enemies, has become fitted to receive its doctrines.

Hon. James Sutherland will look after the Marine and Fisheries Department, made vacant by the appointment of Sir Louis Davies to the Bench, but a Globe despatch announces that the arrangement is only temporary, and foreshadows a reorganization of the Cabinet in the near future.

IN THE PHILIPPINES

Manila, Sept. 25.—Aguinaldo's bodyguard, Major Alhambra, two captains, two lieutenants and twenty-nine men, with twenty-eight rifles, surrendered about forty miles north of Baler, island of Luzon, to Captain George A. Detchmendy of the Twenty-second United States infantry yesterday took the oath of allegiance and were released.

After Alhambra kidnaped the president of Casiguran Sept. 12 Captain Detchmendy requisitioned a steamer and pursued him closely. He would have been captured within an hour if he had not surrendered.

Since Aguinaldo left General MacArthur's house for his present place of confinement he has never left the premises, although he is at liberty to do so if accompanied by an officer. The reason assigned is that he fears assassination at the hands of the partisans of the late General Luna.

General Chaffee has refused the request for the release of the prisoners on the island of Guam. He considers that their release would not be safe until the surrender or capture of Malvar and Lukban, and he also believes that the friends of the prisoners, desiring their release, will use their influence to bring about the surrender of the insurgent leaders named.

The Cause of Dyspeptic Pains.

They arise from the formation of gas owing to improper digestion. A very prompt and efficient remedy is Polson's Nerviline. It relieves the distention instantly, and by its stimulating action on the stomach, aids digestion. Nerviline cures dyspeptic pains by removing the cause. Nerviline is also highly recommended for cramps, colic, summer complaint and inflammation. Sold in large 25c. bottles everywhere.

CHECKED SOUTH.

When the first keen winds of winter begin to be felt in the North, many an invalid is hurried away by anxious friends to the kindlier climate of the South. The cause is apparent as you look at the hollow cheeks and listen to the rasping cough of the traveler.

Persons suffering with weak lungs, obstinate cough and severe hemorrhage even, have found the change of climate made unnecessary by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It strengthens weak lungs, cures obstinate coughs, and builds up the body with sound, healthy flesh. It contains no alcohol, neither opium, cocaine nor other narcotic.

"I feel that I owe a debt of gratitude to a friend for recommending your medicine, as well as to you for preparing such grand remedies for chronic diseases especially, which the doctors failed to reach," writes I. B. Staples, Esq., of Barclay, Osage Co., Kans. "I desire to pass the good word along for the benefit of others who need your remedies. I am a railroad agent, and four years ago my work keeping me in a warm room and stepping out frequently into the cold air gave me bronchitis, which became chronic and deep seated. Doctors failed to reach my case and advised me to try a higher air, but, fortunately for me, a friend also advised me to try Dr. Pierce's medicines. I commenced taking your 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and by the time I had taken the first bottle I was better, and after taking about four bottles my cough was entirely gone. This was a year ago last winter; and again last winter I took about three bottles to prevent a return of the trouble. I have found no necessity for seeking another climate."

Free. The Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1008 pages, cloth bound, sent free on receipt of 50 one-cent stamps, to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

TAXING CHINESE IN AMERICA

Pekin, Sept. 24.—The city has been perfectly quiet since the evacuation of Pekin by the foreign troops. General Yuan Shi Kai's soldiers are orderly and efficient, and the people are friendly. Foreigners, unarmed, visit all sections of the city and suburbs unmolested.

Prince Ching has written to the foreign Ministers that the Government is preparing to despatch three Commission, headed by a Taotai and two Prefects to visit America, the Philippines, Australia and elsewhere, for the purpose of soliciting subscriptions from Chinese residents toward the indemnity to be paid to the Powers, and will request the foreign Ministers here to furnish the Commissions with credentials. Some of the Ministers do not approve of the scheme to tax the Chinese abroad.

THE TRIAL OF McKINLEY'S SLAYER

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 24.—The trial of Leon F. Czolgosz for the murder of President McKinley was resumed to-day, with every prospect that it would be concluded with adjournment of the court at 4 o'clock. It was the opinion of those connected with the case that it would not, at furtherest, be prolonged beyond a few hours' session to-morrow.

The crowd about the court room this morning was slightly larger than yesterday, but the vigilance of the police was in on way relaxed.

The prisoner was brought over from the jail at 9.45 and placed in the same chair which he occupied yesterday. Drs. Mynter, Mann, and Fowler came in early, and Dr. Mann was ready to take the stand at once for cross-examination. At 9.50 the members of the jury filed in and took their seats.

ANARCHISTS REFUSED.

It became known this morning that application for seats had been made by representatives of several Anarchist papers, and refused.

Justice White arrived at the exact hour of ten, and the crier immediately uttered the formal notice of the opening of the court. The jurymen were polled, and Samuel J. Fields, chief engineer of the Pan-American Exposition, was recalled as the first witness. He was asked by District Attorney Penney the meaning of a certain figure on the floor plan of the Temple of Music. He said it was intended to show the direction which the file of the people took in entering the building, passing in front of the President and then out of the building.

HANDKERCHIEF PRODUCED.

The first bit of evidence directly connected with the shooting of the President was offered at 11.15 in the shape of the handkerchief which the prisoner used around the hand. It was dirty and stained with blood. There was a large hole in it and one corner was torn. Detective Gallagher of the Secret Service had possession of it.

DR. MANN'S EVIDENCE

Following is the testimony of Dr. Mann:

"Was the condition which you found at the autopsy to be expected from the nature of the wounds which the President received?" asked Mr. Lewis.

"It was not expected, and was very unusual. I never saw anything just exactly like it," replied Dr. Mann.

"To what, then do you attribute the symptoms or indications which you have discovered—the gangrenous condition of the wounds?"

"I have, no positive opinion," answered the doctor.

"I presume, therefore, that the optimistic bulletins that were issued from time to time by the physicians were without any knowledge or suspicion of these symptoms that were afterwards discovered?" said Mr. Lewis.

"The bulletins on the conditions were optimistic in that they gave no idea of what was to come," was the reply.

"They expressed no opinion. They merely stated facts."

"But the opinions which were held by the staff seemed to be fully warranted by the condition of the President?"

"We had no reason to suspect the existence of any such state of affairs as was found," replied the witness.

"Now, doctor, you say it was due to several causes. Can you give either of them?"

"The entrance of germs into the parts may have been one of the causes. The very low state of vitality may have been one cause. The action of the pancreatic juice may have been one; undoubtedly it contributed to it."

"The germs which you speak of are present, I understand, in all our bodies?"

"Yes."

"And make their work prominent when the body is in any way injured?"

"That is true."

"That you expected, of course, in this case?"

"If the operation is carefully and properly performed we can to a certain extent guard against the entrance of these germs. We cannot do so entirely."

KILLING OF GERMS.

"By having everything absolutely clean which is used in the operation—the hands of the operatives, the instruments, the ligatures and things we use. Nature can take care of a certain number of germs and overcome their bad effects."

"Are there any remedies known to the profession to prevent the action of these germs?"

"There are remedies which will kill the germs, but it is very difficult to apply them deep down in the tissues of the body. After they have got lodgement in the tissues it is impossible to kill them."

"The President was not a very good physical conditin, was he?" asked the attorney.

"He was somewhat weakened by hard work and want of air, and conditions of that kind," replied the doctor.

"You think that had something to do with the result?"

"Undoubtedly," was the answer.

"You agree with the other physicians that the pancreas was not injured by the ball?"

"As near as could be determined, that organ was not injured by the ball, but it was injured in some way, possibly by concussion. Once the organ is injured, the pancreatic juice can pass through the gland and attack other portions of the tissues."

"The only attribute of that organ is to aid digestion?"

"Yes."

On re-direct examination by Mr. Penney, Dr. Mann was asked if there was anything known to medical science that could have saved the President's life.

"No," was the reply without hesitation.

THE MURDER DESCRIBED.

Louis L. Babcock, who was in charge of the ceremonies in the Temple of Music on the day of the shooting, followed Dr. Mann. He gave details of the arrangements made for the reception, and described the position of the President, the points of exit and entrance to the Temple of Music, and told where he had stood when the fatal shots were fired.

"I heard two shots," said the witness. "I immediately turned to the left. I saw the President standing still, and he was deathly pale. In front of him was a group of men bearing the prisoner to the floor,"

"Did you recognize any of the men in this group?"

"Yes, the artillerymen, and two secret service men. They bore him to the floor in a second. I did not recognize the men who took the pistol away from the prisoner. The hall was at once cleared."

"What became of the prisoner then?"

"He was surrounded by detectives and secret service men. There was some controversy as to who had the right to the prisoner, but that was quickly settled, and he was taken to a side room, and later to police headquarters."

"It seemed as if all these men went to the floor in the mass. A few minutes later the prisoner was lifted to his feet. He was struck in the face by one of the secret service men and again went to the floor. He was then removed to one of the side rooms of the building."

On reaching police headquarters the night of the shooting, Mr. Quackenbush had accompanied the District Attorney to the office of Superintendent of Police Bull, where the prisoner was being examined. He told what transpired there, including the prisoner's confession, previously published.

"Did he give any reasons for wishing to kill the President?"

"Yes, he said that he did not believe in the present form of Government or in any of the institutions of it."

NONSENSE AT CHURCH.

Continuing, Mr. Quackenbush said: "He (Czolgosz) said he had for several years studied the doctrine of anarchy. He believed in no Government, no marriage relations, and said that he attended church for some time, but they talked nonsense, and he would not continue there."

"He said he did not believe in the church of state?" asked Mr. Penney.

"Yes; he said he believed in free love. He said that he had been influenced by the teachings of Emma Goldman and by another woman living in Cleveland, whose name I don't recall."

Edward R. Rice, Chairman of the Committee of Ceremonies in the Temple was next called.

"Where were you at the time of the shooting?" asked District Attorney Penney.

Mr. Rice indicated the spot on the ground floor plan of the Temple, near where the President stood.

"Tell us what you saw."

"As chairman of the Committee of Ceremonies, I stood close to the President. The line had been passing about ten minutes. I took my watch out of my pocket, indicating to Secretary Cortelyou that the time for the reception was nearly up. At this instance I noticed something white pushed over to the President. After that two shots rang out. The white object fell to the floor, with the man who had it in his hand. The hall was cleared and the President was taken to a chair."

"Was this man borne to the floor the same one who fired that shot?" asked Mr. Penney.

"Yes," answered the witness.

Cross-examined by Judge Titus, Mr. Rice said there had been no one between him and the President to obstruct his view.

"Were there officers on both sides of the line of people."

"Yes."

This concluded Mr. Rice's testimony and James L. Quackenbush, another member of the Reception Committee, was called to the stand.

"Tell us what you know," said District Attorney Penney.

"I was standing at Mr. Rice's right directly opposite the President," began Mr. Quackenbush. "just before the shots were fired I noticed this man (the prisoner), lift something white. Immediately there were two shots. Then the artillerymen who had been standing behind the President plunged forward, as also did Secret Service Officer Gallagher. The prisoner was borne to the floor. Secret service men, officers Ireland and Foster, were also in the group scrambling on the floor about the prisoner. At the President's right stood Secretary Cortelyou, and back of him the other officers and artillerymen."

Chicago, Sept. 24.—Emma Goldman has been released by Justice Prindiville.

WHY BULLET WAS NOT FOUND

The first witnesses called yesterday afternoon at the trial of Leon F. Czolgosz, charged with the murder of President McKinley, were Samuel J. Fields and Perry A. Biles, who described the plan of the building and the location of the parties at the time of the murder.

Dr. Harvey A. Gaylord, who performed the autopsy, was closely cross-examined by Judge Lewis, counsel for the prisoner, on the question as to whether antiseptics were not used to prevent inflammation. This Dr. Gaylord would not admit, "in spite of the popular idea."

Regarding the operation performed on President McKinley at the Exposition, Dr. Herman Mynter said that the operation was agreed to by President McKinley, and was absolutely necessary to save his life for an hour. The witness described the operation minutely. He was among the consulting surgeons present at the autopsy, when four hours were spent in endeavoring to locate the bullet.

"Why did you stop then?" asked the counsel.

"The family of the President would not allow them to continue any longer or to injure the corpse any more. They would not permit anything to be removed from the body for bacteriological examination," said the surgeon.

Dr. Matthew D. Mann, another of the physicians who attended President McKinley, said that to find the track of the bullet behind the stomach it would have been necessary to remove the bowels from the abdominal cavity. This would almost undoubtedly have resulted fatally in the President's week state.

NOT DISCOURAGED.

The Destination of two of Britains Fastest Boats.

London, Sept. 25—The destruction of the two most rapid vessels in the British navy, the only two constructed on the new turbine principle, within a few weeks of each other, looks like something more than a coincidence; but the circumstances, so far as reported, go to show that it is not. Both boats were wrecked by running ashore, the Viper in a fog and the Cobra probably in a fog also. If any fault with the turbine system is to be argued from their loss, it is that the system permits the development of a rate of speed too high to be used on a dangerous coast, and this would be an absurd argument, since the turbines, like boilers and all other parts of the vessel's machinery, are supposed to be under the control of human intelligence. Both the Viper and the Cobra were demonstrations of the efficiency of the turbine system for attaining high speed at sea, and their loss establishes nothing derogatory to it.

THE SIFTON MURDER

London, Ont., Sept. 23.—Gerald Sifton this morning faced the bar of justice on the charge of having compassed the death of his father, Joseph Hammersley Sifton, on Saturday, June 30, 1900. Before 10 o'clock this morning a large crowd had gathered at the front entrance of the court house, and when the doors were opened they surged in and filled the lower corridors. They were not allowed upstairs, until jurors, witnesses and others having business in court had entered. Enough of the public were then allowed in to comfortably fill the court house, but no crowding of the aisles was permitted. Many ladies were present in the court room. Among the counsel and others present were: W. R. Riddell, K.C., of Toronto; the crown prosecutor, County Crown Attorney James Magee, K.C.; J. B. McKillop and Provincial Detective John Murray. At the defence's table were E. F. B. Johnston, K.C., of Toronto; I. F. Hellmuth, now of Toronto, but formerly of London, and the other lawyers connected with the case.

About 10.10 Mr. Justice McMahon took his seat on the bench, and five minutes later the prisoner, Gerald Sifton, was brought into court. He was accompanied by his wife, dressed in black and veiled. The prisoner was seated in the dock, and Mrs. Sifton took a seat at the corner of the dock in advance of her husband's left. During the reading of the indictment Mrs. Sifton sought to grasp her husband's hand which rested on the edge of the dock, but on the constable gently restraining her from doing so she was overcome by tears. Leaning her head on the dock she wept quietly for some minutes, and was in fact greatly moved during all the time the jury was being empanneled. The prisoner, on the contrary, maintained the ordinary degree of composure that has marked his demeanor on all his appearances in court, and betrayed no signs of nervousness. The work of securing a jury occupied only an hour. As soon as the jurors were sworn they were permitted, at the request of the Crown and with the consent of the defence, to visit, in company with the clerk of the court and four constables, the scene of the alleged murder in London township.

For the third time within a year Jabez Fitzgerald Sifton has been placed on trial at London on the charge of having killed his father, Joseph Hammersley Sifton, on Saturday, June 30, 1900. This was to have been the old man's third wedding day. In the morning he went to his barn, where were his son, Gerald Sifton, and the latter's hired man, Walter Herbert, to show them where to put up a hay carrier. It was necessary to knock out some boards from the gable end of the barn, and while doing this the elder Sifton fell headlong to the ground and his skull was crushed. This, at least, was the story as told by Herbert and the younger Sifton. The old man died the same afternoon. Three weeks later Gerald Sifton and Walter Herbert were arrested, charged with murder.

At the preliminary examination Edgar Morden, James Morden, and Martin Morden, the first two being brothers and the latter a cousin, all swore that Gerald Sifton had approached them separately the night before the tragedy at the barn, and asked their aid in putting his father out of the way, in order to prevent the old man marrying Gerald's servant girl, Mary McFarlane. The reason given was that Gerald was financially involved, and did not wish to lose his rights as sole heir of his father, who possessed an estate totalling nearly $20,000. A part of Edgar Morden's story upon which much hinges was that he drew up for old Sifton a will whereby the latter left practically all his estate to Mary McFarlane, and made Edgar Morden his executor. This will was hidden by Morden and was not produced until the murder charge had been laid, when it was entered for probate.

Dr. MacNeill, of Arva, who was called to attend the elder Sifton's injuries, swore that while the old man lay unconscious the son stood by and moaned, "Oh, my poor father, how I hate to see you suffer." Then he asked the doctor if something could not be given to put an end to his father's sufferings. Dr. MacNeill told Gerald the patient was not suffering. "If you have not got it, I have," Sifton is said to have replied. "I have strychnine." Then he added, if money is any consideration——" The doctor says he then clapped his hand over Sifton's mouth and prevented his continuing. Gerald Sifton, the doctor says, told him that he (Sifton) had given his father something to put him out of misery. Rev. W. H. Cooper of Arva testified that Gerald Sifton told him that he had given Dr. MacNeil $1,000 in notes to refrain from exercising his duty as coroner by holding an inquest.

The result of the preliminary examination was that the prisoners were committed for trial at the fall Assizes, Sept. 24, 1900. On the case being called then, Herbert, instead of entering the customary plea of not guilty to the murder charge, pleaded guilty. He was remanded for sentence and has remained in jail ever since. At this court Gerald Sifton's lawyers applied for and secured a postponement of the trial until the spring Assizes. At the spring Assizes in April a further postponement was asked and granted.

In the meantime, at the winter Assizes in January, a civil action was brought by the executors of Joseph Sifton to have set aside and declared void the will produced by Edgar Morden, on the ground that it was a forgery. After a trial in which the leading handwriting experts of Canada and the United States appeared, and in which no defence was entered, the Morden will was pronounced by a jury to be a forgery. Morden, however, was not attested.

War Does Exist.

Washington, Sept. 25.—General Chaffee's action in releasing a Filipino prisoner sentenced to death for murder is interesting as an official acknowledgment that a state of war exists in the Philippines. That Captain Gumban killed an official who tried to resist him in a raid is conceded. If the raid was an act of insurrection, robbery or rebellion, the killing was murder, and the Captain was properly sentenced to death; but General Chaffee decides that it was "a legitimate act of war," and the killing, however deplorable, cannot be punished as a felony.

BUFFALO.

We should hardly know how to get along without the American Newspaper Directory. We regard it by all odds the most complete and reliable guide that the advertiser can make use of; in fact we use no other.
Buffalo, N. Y., July 24, 1901.
R. V. PIERCE, M.D.,
President World's Dis. Med. Ass'n.

VERMONT.

The American Newspaper Directory stands, as it has, always stood, the first and best of newspaper directores—the only one which cannot be ignored, the only one which every advertiser must have. No other can take its place; no other is needed.—Joseph Auld, in the Burlington (Vt.) News of July 3, 1896.

ADVISOR.

The Advisor accepts the American Newspaper Directory as the standard in newspaper ratings. The obstacles which obstruct its efforts to get true and reliable information are many.

• • •

The directory question is one which interests every publisher in the country—nay, the entire world. But in the United States, directories are becoming altogether too numerous. In this, as with other books of reference, it is necessary to have one which may be relied on as being an authority on the matter of newspaper circulations. There can be no question about the fact that at this time, as for many years past, the American Newspaper Directory is that authority. The Advisor is not paid to make this announcement. It makes the statement in the interest of advertisers and publishers because it is true. One thing the advertiser is almost cock-sure of when he refers to the American Newspaper Directory is that the circulation figures he sees therein are not overstated to any great extent. In most other directories they are. Only the publisher himself is to be blamed for no tsecuring a proper rating in that publication, and every advertiser of consequence knows it. Thus the publisher who refuses to furnish a statement places himself under a reasonable suspicion.—The Advisor for June.
New York, June, 1901.

CHICAGO.

Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co's American Newspaper Directory has long since earned the reputation of being the best of its character. It contains the result of patient, expensive and systematic effort to secure all attainable information of interest concerning American newspapers. The work has been honestly done. This will not be questioned by any unprejudiced examiner. The most important question is circulation. In attempting to give this information the Editor of the Directory encounters his most difficult work. It is the aim and necessity of the Directory to give the truth. The American Newspaper Directory is to-day hte dependence and guide in a greater or less degree, of every large advertiser in the country.—Chicago (Ill.) Daily News.

BATES.

The American Newspaper Directory is the only reliable guide for the advertiser.

No man who advertises can afford to do without it.

What Bradstreet and Dun are to the mercantile world, The American Newspaper Directory is to the world of periodical publications.

A new advertiser will get from the American Newspaper Directory a better idea of the greatness of his country, and the tremendous possibilities in newspaper advertising, than from any other source.

If an advertiser spends only $100 a year he should have the American Newspaper Directory. For his business may grow and his right expenditure of his money become increasingly important. The time to learn how to spend $10,000 a year is before it is spent, otherwise the spending may be disastrous.

Many times the best paper in town costs the advertiser no more than the poorest. The American Newspaper Directory tells which is which.

The paper that was the leader in its town five years ago may lag behind to-day. Even one year may witness astonishing changes. If you are spending money for publicity it is vastly important that you should know where to get the most of it for the price. The American Newspaper Directory gives not only the present circulation rating of every paper in America, but shows their history by quoting past ratings.

The book costs five dollars a copy, and a single reference to it may readily save or make many times its cost.

All newspaper directories but one are erroneously optimistic about circulations. The American Newspaper Directory may occasionally err on the other side, but that makes it all the safer for the advertiser.

My advertising experience began in 1880, and one of the first things I did was to buy a copy of the American Newspaper Directory.

For sixteen years Rowell's "The American Newspaper Directory" has had a place of honor and usefulness on my desk

Many a publisher is ready to prove by other directories that "Rowell's is wrong," but few indeed can be induced to prove it by opening their circulation books to the advertiser.

Among publishers who are not willing that their real circulations be known, it is the best hated book in print The moral is not far to find.
CHARLES AUSTIN BATES.
New York, June 24, 1901.

PABST.

If the improvement of the American Newspaper Directory continues in the future as it has during the past twenty years I do not think I shall live long enough to see any other directory take its place. There will, however, be the usual crop of directories just as every other good thing is imitated. Your long years of experience in dealing with evasive circulation reports have most admirably fitted you for placing a proper valuation upon such statements. Advertisers have come to know that the Rowell estimates are nearer the proper figure than can otherwise be obtained. The American Newspaper Directory is therefore indispensable in every well regulated advertising department. Lines are being more tightly drawn every day; it is difficult to collect for twenty thousand when you print only eight. If the advertiser were buying barley he would not accept three pecks for a bushel, although the quality might at all times be open for discussion.

The American Newspaper Directory is the guide and companion of the advertising man, and it is to the interest of all concerned to help perfect it, support it, and hurrah for it.
PABST BREWING CO.
J. R. Kathrens, Adv. Mgr.
Milwaukee, Wis., June 7, 1901.

SAPOLIO.

A growing need created it—the advertising agency system. One of the earliest and most successful workers, Geo. P. Rowell, is still in the field. He originated methods. Others follow his publication of a list of all the papers—the American Newspaper Directory. He has never ceased to love it, and labor for it. Soon out of the gross stupidity of imitation, it became a rule that every agency down to those of Oshkosh or Oklahoma must issue its own directory. An awful waste, for not more than one out of ten was worth shelf room. If the National Association of Advertising Agents could agree long enough to buy Mr. Rowell's Directory, publish it officially and drop all the others, it would accomplish something.
ARTEMAS WARD,
Advertising Manager for Sapolio.
—In Fame, March, 1901.

WASHINGTON.

Every page of the American Newspaper Directory breathes the desire of its publishers that it shall be absolutely correct in every statement it makes.
Truly yours,
FRANK ROE BATCHELD,
Clerk of the Committee on Banking an dCurrency, House of Representatives, U. S.
Washington, D. C., Jan. 17, 1899.

SOUTHERN.

We subscribe to and pay cash for the American Newspaper Directory, and find it of great value in our advertising department. We have 6,892 miles of railway, extending from Washington, D. C., all over the South, and in advertising this system we use more than 1,000 publications, and in selecting this list we find that we get a correct idea of circulation from the Directory that can not be obtained from any other similar publication. We receive other newspapr directories gratis, but the fact that we pay cash for this one in addition shows that we can not place the same dependence upon the "free list,".

We thoroughly appreciate the careful manner in which this Directory is compiled.
Washington, D. C., Sept. 12, 1900.
JOS. H. HANNEN,
Adv. Dept. Southern Railway.

I am looking forward to receiving the new edition with a great deal of anticipation, as, although the American Newspaper Directory seemed to have reached a high state of perfection several years ago, there is always something new and of value in each succeeding edition. It is regarded as the standard authority with the Southern Railway.
S. H. HARDWICK,
General Passenger Agent,
Washington, D. C., May 21, 1901.

BALTIMORE.

We have used the American Newspaper Directory for many years and find it more valuable to us than any other similar publication. Much of the information given we cannot obtain in any other way. The book is not only a great help, but a necessity to our business, and we think its way of stating circulations is the ideal one.

Permanent Cures of Cancer

We here give a few cases, where the efficacy of our Constitutional treatment in curing Cancer, is established beyond all question. We have plenty on fyle.

There is ample proof that where our remedy cures, it cures to stay and saves people from the torture of knife and plaster.

CANCER OF THE BREAST—A lady had Cancer of the breast, which rendered her right shoulder and arm almost helpless. Our remedy cured her over five years ago, and there is not the slightest return of the trouble.

CANCER OF THE FACE—This case of a gentleman who was so bad that his right cheek was almost eaten off with the disease. Plasters aggrivated his trouble. Our treatment cured him five years ago and he has been all right since.

CANCER OF THE STOMACH—Doctors pronounced the trouble cancer of the stomach. There was vomiting of material that looked like Coffee grounds. Great weakness and prostration. Cured over four years ago and well to-day.

CANCER OF THE NOSE—A severe case which was cured by our remedy in 1891 and has never returned to this day.

Full accounts of the above cases, together with the names and addresses of the persons, are given in our new book, "Cancer, Its Cause and Cure," sent to anyone, in plain wrapper on receipt of 2 stamps. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont.

THE LASSIES O' BOURN BRAE

By M. H. Windsor.

Oh! the sun rises bright on Blink-
bonny,
And pleasant its orchards and fields;
Free and fair are the homes of Blink-
bonny,
And richly each broad acre yields,
There my heart wanders oft o'er the hills and away.
To the merry young lassies—the win-
some sweet lassies
Who dwell at Bourn Brae.

There's charming Miss Josie sweet voiced in song,
And blithe as a robin is she,
Kindness doth dwell in the eyes of Ma-
belle,
Her eyes and her heart they agree.
I'm sae lonely the while when I think every day
O' the dear bonnie lassies, the lassies who brighten
The halls of Bourn Brae.

May the sun linger long on Blink-bonnie,
Its meadows, orchards and bowers,
Where we laughed, chaffed and chatted together,
We, and those fair cousins of ours.
Heaven guide them, and guard from all evil we pray.
The sweet hearted lassies, the fair
peerless lassies
Who dwell at Bourn Brae.

—The crowds yesterday put us in mind of the old days when everybody took in the fall shows.

—Every photograph taken at Whiten's studio is guaranteed not to fade, and is the best quality of work that can be made.

—Now is the season to plant the seed for a good fall trade. The Morning Times is the soil, and attractive advertisements are the seed.

—Mr. D. Walker has presented the Historical Society with a cannon ball taken from the British gunboat General Meyra, sunk in the river Thames during the war of 1812.

—Don't forget the harvest home festival at St. John's tonight. Special music will be furnished, and the choristers will be assisted by an orchestra. The church is beautifully decorated for the occasion.

—Yesterday Frank Arkles was discharged in the police court, there being no evidence offered against him in connection with the charge of abducting Ethel Bell.

—The barns of Maurice Cosgrave, Ennismore, were, together with their contents, destroyed by fire early yesterday morning. It is said that the loss is partly covered by insurance.

—The whistle on the C.P.R. locomotive that pulls the early express through Peterborough, blew off at Tweed yesterday morning, and kept the train an hour late.

—The Committee of the Whole Council met and decided that the market scales should be widened. The matter of purchasing a new boiler for heating the municipal buildings was also discussed.

—Harry Rich, the comedian, and the other artists who performed yesterday at the Fair, appeared to a full house in the Market hall last night. The program was a select one, and thoroughly enjoyed by the audience.

—This will make local duck hunters feel sad. In a letter received recently by Conductor Jack Britton, of Lindsay, from his son Arthur, in Winnipeg, the latter gave some details of a two days' shoot with a companion at a spot 25 miles from the city. They returned with 169 ducks, mostly canvas backs.

—Last night the opera house was again packed to the doors, many not being able to enter on account of the jam. Tom Marks and his admirable company this time presented "A Rash Marriage." The troupe was joined yesterday by the famous Pepper twins of Lindsay, two of the cleverest children singers on the stage. The company will play tonight "The Silver King," a romantic drama.

est, favourites, as well as handsome art squares, novelties in rugs, fancy doormats, rich bed comforters, etc. Rich lace curtains, portieres and drapes lend additional embellishments to the display. Mr. Might, who was in charge, is confident that the sterling qualities offered by the firm will influence the biggest fall trade in this line ever experienced.

An artificial broken tree, made of Bedford free stone, and manufactured by Coughlin Bros., was one of the prettiest sights in the building and the design was exceedingly beautiful, calling forth expression of admiration from all beholders. This monument is the work of an artist of rare ability, and is very natural—the knots, the rough bark, and the shape of the tree bring brought out with wonderful effect. To any one requiring monuments of any kind a visit to the Messrs. Coughlin's warerooms on Hunter street would repay inspection.

The New Ontario advertising tent was under the direction of Mr. Thomas Southworth, Director of Colonization for the Ontario Government, assisted by Mr W G Fee, representing the great Clergue Syndicate. Hundreds visited the tent for information during the day.

The Schneider Challenge Cup for 100 yards race was won in two straight heats by Taylor, over Rutherford, of Norwood, his only opponent. Mr. Rutherford protested the race on account of a horse and buggy being driven across the track, but as he finished the heat, the committee decided that the heat should count. This was fair the judges offering to have the race run over on Thursday afternoon at the same place, but Mr. Rutherford would not agree to this. Taylor now holds the cup subject to a challenge from any amateur in the county. He has to hold it for three years in order to become possessor of it.

Considerable interest was shown in the open trotting race, which resulted as follows: Fred S., 1 1 1; Little Diamond 2 2 2; Harold E. 3 3 3, and Gladstone (drawn)

PERSONAL MENTION.

—Dr. Willoughby, of Warkworth, is in town in connection with the fair.

—Dr. Ford, Norwood, was in town yesterday taking in the fair.

—Mr. H. G. Buck, of Norwood, was a visitor to the Exhibition yesterday.

—Mr. John T. Shunk, bandmaster of Hastings aggregation of brass blowers, is in town attending the Exhibition.

—Miss May Hatley, of Orillia, is visiting Mrs. Langfeldt, at St. Luke's rectory.

—Mr. G. M. Hamilton, and Miss M. Hamilton, have gone to Buffalo for a few days.

—Mrs. James Woodward, of Toronto, is visiting her sister, Mrs. E. Brittain, Murray street.

—The many friends of Mrs. D. Belleghem, who suffered a fracture of her limb a short time ago, will be pleased to learn that she is doing nicely.

—Captain Eastwood has returned from Toronto, where he made satisfactory arrangements for the housing of the 57th during its stay there.

—Messrs. W. C. Ackerman and G. E. Hay took in the Pan-American together. Mr. Hay returned home yesterday, while Mr. Ackerman extended his trip to Boston and New York.

—Mr. "Jimmy" Spellman, the popular wine clerk at the Palace hotel, returned yesterday from a months' visit to Buffalo and other American cities. Mr. Spellman, while in Buffalo, had a conversation with the father of Czolgosz, the assassin of McKinley.

—The Lindsay Post says: Mr. John Kylie, of Peterborough, spent Sunday and Monday in town, the guest of his brother Richard. Mr. Kylie was a resident of Lindsay some fifteen years ago, and some ten years have sped since he last visited the town. He was kept busy exchanging greetings with his many old friends, but found time to look about the town, and was surprised and delighted to observe so many evidences of solid progress and prosperity. Of course, he was loyal to his own town, and when informed that the assessors had not found one empty house in all three wards he remarked, "the same state of affairs prevails in Peterborough. I honestly believe the same cannot be said of any other two towns in Canada."

Under the Nerve Lash – The torture and torment of the victim of nervous prostration and nervous debility no one can rightly estimate who has not been under the ruthless lash of these relentless human foes. M. Williams, of Fordwich, Ont., was for four years a nervous wreck. Six bottles of South American Nervine worked a miracle, and his doctor confirmed it.—28

Big Order for Chickens

The Canadian Produce Co., of Toronto, has received a definite contract from London, Eng., for 100,000 lbs. of Canadian chickens. This is the largest order for this kind of produce ever given to a Canadian firm. It only remains with the farmers of Ontario to raise enough chickens to supply the demand. The Canadian Produce Co. say they are prepared to buy every chicken that can be raised in the Province of Ontario.

THE TIMES LETTER BOX

Letters from the People on Interesting Topics.

Worth Trying.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I had a conversation recently—with a well known mariner regarding dairy products, butter in particular. He said that nearly all summer he was pilot on a steam yacht on Lake Ontario for a party of wealthy Americans. They made the butter they used every day on board the boat. On being asked how this was accomplished he replied that the cook put two quarts of fresh milk into a self-sealing glass jar, and adding as much of Boston Powder as could be lifted on a ten-cent piece, shook it lively for half a minute. It was allowed to stand for an hour, at the end of which time the jar was full of butter that he could not distinguish it from the ordinary article. All the milk was consumed in the operation. Later I asked a Kingston expert about the powder. He said that there was such a thing, and that the article made was wholesome. However, it would keep no longer than milk would, so that it would have to be made daily. It contained only 25 per cent of fat while the dairy butter contained 90 per cent. It is a question if this powder would not be a good thing for the poor man. He could always have a supply of butter at a very small cost. It might be worthy of a trial, so I take the liberty of giving the formula to the readers of the Times.

VOX.

Torture for the Duke.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—It will be noted that the address fiend is again at his nefarious work. It is the intention, I believe, to fire addresses at the Duke and Duchess of York in a wholesale manner when they reach Toronto, and the practice may be observed at the various stopping places on the route. They are made to endure the torture of listening to addresses which mean nothing and are only concocted in order to give somebody an opportunity to make himself conspicuous. If there is any person in this fair Canada of ours who should be suppressed, it is the address fiend. He is a nuisance and should be frowned down. Who even heard of anybody who ever enjoyed having addresses fired at him? If we in this fair country wish to let the King's son and his fair Duchess know we love and appreciate them, let us do it in a way that will make them believe we are in earnest. Let us cheer them till we are hoarse, but in the name of all that is merciful let us save them from the address fiend.

JOHNNY CANUCK.

Cruelty to Animals

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Is there such an organization in town as a Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals? I have not been a resident of Peterborough, but in the short time I have been here I have been pained to notice the supineness of the citizens in regard to the cruelty shown by many of the drivers of coal wagons, delivery rigs, etc. To unnecessarily and wantonly punish the poor speechless beast that cannot appeal to the commiseration of the passers-by is simply unpardonable, and anyone who is guilty of such vindictive cruelty is not fit to be called a man. A driver of a coal wagon on George street the other evening about six o'clock drew the attention of passing pedestrians by his treatment of the animal under his charge.

HUMANITY.

No Holiday Wanted.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I cordially endorse the sentiment expressed by a writer in the Times that we have too many holidays. It would be absurd to make the occasion of the Duke's visit to Toronto a holiday in Peterborough, and I hardly think Mayor Denne will consent. Workingmen have themselves and their families to keep, and cannot afford to lose another day. Let those who want to see royalty and take part in the festivities of the occasion go to Toronto, by all means, if they want to, but they should not compel me and others like me to lose a day's pay.

KRUGER'S VAIN APPEAL TO THE GREAT POWERS

An Impertinent and Unusually Untruthful Manifesto of the Boers.

THEY PRETEND NOW TO WANT ARBITRATION.

And Refer to England as Being Altogether in the Wrong—Their Appeal in Vain.

London, Sept. 27.—The Dutch representatives here assert earnestly that President Kruger's intention is not to embarrass the United States in their diplomatic relations. President Kruger is not at this time seeking intervention. He desires most earnestly to convince Great Britain that pending differences may be settled through arbitration at this time as well as before the beginning of the war. The following is the official text of the memorial presented by the South African Republics to The Hague Court of Arbitration:

The undersigned allege that England, at and since the outbreak of the war now raging, has acted, and continues to act in contravention of the rules of war between civilized Powers. These rules are acknowledged solemnly and generally by England herself and were as solemnly confirmed by The Hague Convention of July 29, 1899, regulating the laws and usages of war by land and sea. England's action is more particularly in contravention of the following articles, to wit: 4, 5, 7, 14, 15, 16 and 23 (and in detail the subsections C. D. E. F. G.) and 25, 28, 32, 44, 45, 47, 50, 52, 53 and [illegible]. Moreover and recently by proclamation of Lord Kitchener, Field Marshal of England, dated at Pretoria, the 7th day of August, 1901, virtually notified the world that she intends to take action in contravention of article 20 also.

CAN PROVE THEIR CASE.

The Governments of the States represented by the undersigned are fully prepared, as soon as an opportunity thereto shall be afforded them, to substantiate the allegation herein made by setting forth and proving the particular facts to which they refer. Since England thinks it right to deny this continual violation of the laws of warfare, the States represented by the undersigned consider that they may also seek a decision in regard to this difference from the permanent Court of Arbitration.

The undersigned and their Governments are aware that in order to obtain such a decision, the consent of England is required. They therefore take the liberty of soliciting your council to apply for such consent or to endeavour to obtain the same by your meditations or that of the Governments represented by you. They feel themselves all the more encouraged to make this request, since it quite accords with the grand principle on which Article 27 of the said convention is based.

EFFECT OF AN UNFAVORABLE REPLY.

Should the English Government give an unfavorable reply it will thereby be manifest that they dare not submit themselves to the judgment of a conscientious, learned and impartial tribunal. They will then, moreover, continue to bear the responsibility for the prolongation of a war as terrible as it is unnecessary; and they will tacitly have acknowledged that the manner in which they have carried on the war is in conflict with the demands of humanity or civilization as confirmed by themselves.

In the hope that it may please you to give effect to their requests and therefore to accord your meditation or assistance in a matter of such urgency, they tender you the assurance of their sincere esteem.

A VAIN APPEAL.

London, Sept. 27.—The Telegraph, referring to the above, says that the untruthful statements above printed only shows what Kruger and his pals are capable of doing. Britain, they know, could not now consent to arbitration. The time for it was before Kruger issued his ultimatum.

BOTHA'S RAID INTO NATAL.

New York Sept. 27.—The Tribune's special London correspondent says:

The raid of Botha's forces into Natal is a serious matter for the Government. It shows that the war is certainly not over, and even some of the Unionist papers are blaming the Government for the manner in which the country has been deluded into the belief that the Boers were at the end of their resources. Botha, no doubt, is acting in co-operation with the other Boer leaders in his Natal raid. Whether he has enough material at his command to enter upon a campaign on a large scale in northern Natal, is open to doubt; but, at the same time Lord Kitchener may not have enough men to successfully oppose the Boer Commandant-General unless he considerably reduces the number now employed in chasing the raiding commandoes throughout the length and breadth of Cape Colony.

Natal is almost the only portion of South Africa which is beginning to recover from the misfortunes of the last two years; and it offers tempting prey to the raider. A fresh invasion of the colony, which has not had fair Boer opposition since Gen. Buller cleared the passes in June, 1900, would be regarded here as a real calamity.

The financial outlook is also far from satisfactory. On the stock exchange rumors are current that the Chancellor of the Exchequer will ultimately have to float another large issue of consols.

A NOBLE EXAMPLE.

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy's Telegram to His Aged Parents in Milwaukee.

Montreal, September 27—Milwaukee is the birthplace of Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, and the newspapers of the city, in common with their Canadian confreres, warmly congratulate the President of Canada's great transcontinental road, upon the honor conferred by the King.

Sir Thomas, according to the Milwaukee Sentinel, immediately upon reception of the news, sent the following telegram to his father, Mr. Thomas Shaughnessy, 97 Twentieth street, Milwaukee: "You may be gratified to know that His Majesty has conferred upon me the honor of knighthood. One owes a good deal to a good father and mother.

"T. G. SHAUGHNESSY."

What pleased Mr. and Mrs. Shaughnessy most of all was the unselfish acknowledgement by their son of the debt he owed them for his bringing up at their hands.

Mr. Shaughnessy, Sr., is 84 years old, his wife being two years his junior. The paper goes on to say:

"The story of the life of Thomas G. Shaughnessy reads like a romance, and illustrates to what heights one can rise from the lowest positions. He was born in Milwaukee in the third ward, and there are lots of men in Milwaukee today whom he had distanced in the race for position and influence, who can remember "Tom" Shaughnessy running about the streets like any lad destined to spend his life in the ordinary trades. Young Shaughnessy seemed to take naturally to railroads. He received his education in the public schools and at St. Galls public school and finally took a course at the Spencerian Business College. Upon leaving that institution he took a position as clerk in the stock room at the West Milwaukee yards of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad. He stayed there until he was 29 years old, and then he secured a position in Montreal with the Canadian Pacific Railroad. That was nineteen years ago, and step by step he rose in the service until three years ago he was made president of the road."

ALLIANCE PLEASES ENGLAND

Experts Only Good From Franco-Russian Combine.

London, September 27—During the past week England has been so occupied with thinking of other things that the visit of the Czar to France has passed almost unheeded, but after the speeches of yesterday interest has reawakened in the affairs of Russia and France. Hitherto the Franco-Russian alliance has been considered unimportant or not seriously binding upon either country, but the significance of the utterances of President Loubet and the somewhat more cautious statements of the Czar regarding friendship have created a lively interest here.

It has always been felt in England that somewhat friendly understanding into a France has been anxious to convert the genuine alliance, but Russia has hitherto held back. The best informed observers consider the present entente as the result of the recent French activity in the Far East, which Russia could not afford to overlook.

While there is naturally much comment, there is not much real apprehension felt concerning the alliance. So far as the alliance may concern Germany is another matter, though the opinion is held in the highest quarters here that the Czar went to France via Kiel merely for the purpose of assuring the Kaiser that Russia's attitude toward Germany would not be affected by the French alliance.

On the whole, the proceeding finds favor in English eyes, as it is thought that it is paving the way for a better understanding generally among the Powers of Europe and a more lasting peace among the nations of the world.

Pain in the Joints.

may be muscular or rheumatic. The joints are hard to get at, and it requires a powerful, penetrating remedy to reach the affected parts. Polson's Nerviline exactly meets the requirements, for it is both powerful and penetrating. The pain is expelled as if by magic, for one drop of Nerviline equals in strength five drops of other remedies. You won't often call the doctor if Nerviline is in the house. Price 25 cents.

NOT LEFT ALONE WITH HIS FATHER

Dr McNeill Gave Instructions Respecting Gerald Sifton.

McFAREANE GIVES TESTIMONY

London, Sept. 27.— Gerald Sifton's trial for murder proceeded this morning. Dr. MacNeil, the physician who gave the death certificate as one of accident, said he still believed death was accidental, although he had had suspicions at one time. In cross examination he stuck to his relation of how Gerald, while his father lay dying wanted to give him strychine to "end his sufferings." Witness said he gave instructions that Gerald should on no account be left alone with his father.

Mary MacFarlane, the girl of twenty years, who was to become the third wife of Joseph Sifton, said she had been engaged to marry Joseph Sifton two months previously. She said she saw blood on the collar of the shirt and on the lapel of the coat. After the tragedy she went to Gerald Sifton's where on the next day after the accident Gerald told her she was to live in his house as a sister and do no work, that if she married the would give her a thousand dollars.

SENSATIONAL EVIDENCE.

London, Sept. 26.—The conclusion of Walter Herbert's evidence at the Sifton trial yesterday afternoon contained the sensational statement that the prisoner said the doctor had little hopes of his father getting around, but Gerald Sifton would see that he would not; he said he had stuff that would fix him if he did.

Jonathan Decker and J. Sinker testified to helping to carry the body into the house. Jacob Burgess swore that Gerald Sifton had told him that he felt very bad because Herbert had "given him away" and "squealed" on him, after Gerald had put up $375 for his lawyers. Susie Bathurst testified to hearing the prisoner say that Joseph Sifton had fallen from the barn.

Dr. McNeil described the wounds in the deceased and told of Gerald Sifton suggesting that something be done to put an end to his father's sufferings, Gerald stating that he had some strychnine. The doctor, continuing, said that one day in his coffee he asked Gerald whether he had administered anything to Joseph Sifton during his absence. Gerald replied that he might as well tell the truth, that he did. Gerald did not say what he had given. The blood-stained axe and three bricks with red spots upon them were identified by the doctor. Witness said that on Monday, July 22, 1900, Gerald told him that he had offered Edgar Morden $500 to give up the will.

Cross-examined by Mr. Johnston, Dr. McNeil said that the wounds might have been caused by a fall, and the did not think they would be caused by the flat side of an axe. From their general appearance at the time of the accident he thought they had been produced by a fall and therefore signed the death certificate "Accidental."

THE RACE DECLARED OFF.

First of a Series of Championship Yacht Races a Fizzle on Account of Lack of Wind

New York, Sept. 26.

One of the largest crowds that ever put to sea went down to the Sandy Hook Lightship today to witness Sir Thomas Lipton's second challenger, Shamrock II., and the white flyer, Columbia struggle for the yachting championship of the world, in the first of the cup races for 1901, but the excursion fleet returned disappointed. The great single stickers went out yesterday morning fresh for the battle, but the sea refused them the field of conflict, the wind never more than 9, sometimes as low as 3 knots, and too late in shifting light to carry the contestants over the thirty mile course within the time alloted by the rules. At the end of five and a half hours (the prescribed time), the race was officially declared off, and the yachts were towed back to their berths inside of Sandy Hook. When the guns aboard the committee boat were fired to call attention to the signal, declaring the race off, the Columbia was still seven miles from the finish, with the Shamrock three-quarters of a mile astern. The Columbia was headed, but won in the twenty-three miles covered, and then only for five minutes in windward work. The Columbia beat the Shamrock by seven minutes and fifteen seconds to the outer mark, and increased her lead somewhat in the broad reach for home.

SOME HARD WORDS.

Police Magistrate Dennison of Toronto on Christian Science.

Toronto, Sept. 26.—Police Magistrate Denison committed H. Lewis, Christian Scientist, at Toronto for trial charged with neglecting to call in medical aid for his child, who died recently. "I think fakes of this kind ought to be exposed," said the magistrate. "If a grown up man wants to try the thing on himself, I see no objection, but to practice tomfoolery on a child who has nothing to say in the matter is an outrage.

Crown Attorney Curry had one of Mrs. Eddy's books in court and read copious extracts therefrom. "I have been reading the book," said he, "and I have no hesitation in saying it is the most damnable blasphemy I have ever heard of or read."

"Is this womman still at large," said the magistrate who was surprised when told that she was.

Pilot Was Drunk, Captain in Liquor.

Victoria, Sept. 26.—At the session yesterday of the Islander investigation Mr. Green of Tacoma said he saw Pilot Leblanc and Captain Foote go aboard at Skaguay, and the gang plank was too narrow for the first named. The captain did not seem to be intoxicated, but he had been drinking. He saw him in the bar several times during the course of the evening before the vessel struck. Allegations as to the fact that the two officers named had been drinking were also made by the passengers, while a number of them stated that absolutely no alarm was given.

BRITAIN DEPRESSED BY BOER SUCCESSES

Gen. Botha Has 300 Prisoners Held as Hostages

THE OUTLOOK VERY DARK

No General Rising in Cape Colony Likely to Occur at Present

Old Battle Fields Likely to be Fought Over Again—More Reinforcements Likely to be Sent to the Seat of War.

London, Sept. 27.

The newspapers are asking the Government to send substantial reinforcements to South Africa, in order to crush the Boers. The Post argues that the country would be in pocket by so doing.

The fact that Botha has captured nearly three hundred British officers and soldiers since Kitchener's proclamation of banishment and confiscation came into force is not inspiring. Whether Botha will disarm and return them as heretofore, or hold them as hostages for England's observance of the laws of civilized warfare, is causing some natural anxiety.

When Mr. Chamberlain has adopted the contention of the jingo press that the Boers are merely banditti, Boer generals will undoubtedly need some security against their being treated as such.

The South African situation is persistently becoming worse. De Wet is believed to be heading for Cape Colony and in the present state of widespread revolt throughout that extremely rough country, his advent would mean that war could be carried on for five years, with De Wet in Cape Colony, Botha harassing the British on the Natal border and Delarey and Viljoen capturing artillery under Kitchener's very nose at Pretoria.

The Boers enter upon the third year of their campaign in marvellously advantageous position. This is felt here and depression is general, especially as the war chest is rapidly exhausted. An extra session of Parliament to vote more money seems unavoidable.

The situation is singularly like the opening of the war, two years ago, the names of the same places recurring in the despatches. Utrecht, where Major Gough was entrapped, was the scene of a similar ambush eighteen months back. Acton Homes, where the Boers yesterday reappeared, is eighteen miles southwest of Ladysmith, prominent in the early hostilities, and the Natal Colonials are mustering for the defence of the Tugela, as when Gen. Joubert invaded Natal in 1899.

The vast warfield is continually recruited from the rebel Dutch and supplied out of British convoys or by rebel sympathizers. In the meanwhile only the disasters disturb the Government's normal lassitude, occasioning spasmodic efforts, when it ought long ago to have realized that far larger and better equipped and trained forces were essential to terminate the war.

BERATING A KING.

An American Girl Calls Down the Spanish Monarch.

Paris, Sept. 27.—King Alphonso, of Spain recently aroused the ire of Miss Colford, a pretty American girl, at San Sebastian, by repeatedly taking snapshots of her while on the beach.

Miss Colford, who is reported to be well known in New York society, and who has just arrived here from Pau, was promenading on the beach with her aged French maid, and the youthful monarch was also taking a morning walk, accompanied by Col. Lorgia, his military instructor. As usual Master Alphonso carried a camera slung over his shoulder, and every time he passed the pretty American girl he took a snapshot of her.

Miss Colford for a time was unaware of this. When she discovered what the lad was doing she became intensely angry. At this time she had no idea of the identity of her persecutor. She rushed up to Alphonso just as he was preparing to take another picture, seized his camera and threw it upon the ground exclaiming: "How dare you!"

Col. Loriga picked up the kodak and placed himself between the King and the excited American girl, saying in English. "Madam, this is the King of Spain."

"It makes no difference who he is," retorted Miss Colford, angrily. "This is the seventh time he has photographed me. I call that gross, insulting insistence, and I want him to know it."

"Tell her we thought her remarkably pretty," put in the King. "That's our excuse. Beg her pardon and say that after this the pictures shall not be developed."

Miss Colford now began to apologize for her outburst, but the royal boy evidently thought the conversation had lasted long enough for he turned his back upon Miss Colford and walked away, leaving her under the embarrassing gaze of the beach promenaders.

THE PETERBOROUGH AGRICULTURAL FAIR

Third Day of the Big Central Exhibition.

THE ATTENDANCE IS VERY LIGHT

The third and last day of the Central Exhibition opened with glorious weather, but even this did not bring out the crowd that should have been on the grounds. THE BOARD OF TRADE AND WATER POWER

Stirring Discussion at a Well-Attended Meeting Last Night.

TWO NON-COMMITTAL RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED

One Perhaps a Little For, the Other Perhaps a Little Against Otonabee Company—Some Speakers Were Unkind to Each Other.

The meeting of the Board of Trade last night to consider the matter of the Government leasing water power was well attended and the discussion was protracted and lively.

The President Mr. D. W. Dumble, said that he had called the meeting on the request of a number of citizens who had spoken of the desirability of opening for consideration the large question of manufacturing interests as affected by water power. It was hoped that some result might accrue of benefit to the town. He understood that the town some years ago applied for the water power of dam No. 6. This application was before the Government when the power was granted to a private company. The town might still have consideration for, say, dam No. 4. Or it might be right for the town to ask the Government to fix a maximum rate for power as rented out by private companies. He understood that Stratton & Co. have dam No. 5 and Meldrum & Co. say they get it on such easy terms as to place Meldrum & Co. at a disadvantage. (A voice—That's not true. It was not for the Board of Trade to take action for or against one company or another. It must consider first of all the interests of the town. What is wanted first of all is cheap power, whether or not supplied by private companies. It had been objected that the Burleigh Company got its privilege too cheap; but he said to Burleigh bring on your power.

The Secretary read a letter from Rev. J. C. Davidson, rector of St. John's, regretting that the harvest Thanksgiving service prevented his attendance at the Board meeting and favoring public ownership of water powers.

Mr. J. H. Burnham said that the meeting was not for the purpose of discussing sectional interests. The great question of public ownership of public utilities is being threshed out the world over. Any man or any body of men has the right to acquire power and develop it, but they should not hold it in monopoly until the public require it, and then let it out at exorbitant rates. Speculation in regard to water power should be done away with.

Mr. Burnham moved the following resolution:

"That the Government of the Dominion and of this Province be memorialized by the Board of Trade and by the Municipal Councils regarding the public ownership of water powers for public and general use."

Mr. George Ball seconded the resolution. He quoted the Toronto Globe in support of municipal ownership of public utilities. He presented to the Board a memorial signed by 200 taxpayers, members of the Federation of Labor, expressing strong disapproval of the lease to the Otonabee Company.

Mr. James Stevenson opposed Mr. Burnham's motion as not sufficiently definite. The late Government gave a lease of the power in question for $1500 a year. This lease was canceled by the present Government on the ground that the rate was too low. Now they were willing to let it for a great deal less. Nevertheless, he wanted to see the power used and the Government should let it to anyone who wanted to use it.

Mr. George A. [illegible] said the fact seemed to be lost sight of that the power is a national asset, and does not belong to any locality. The Government acts as trustee of the whole community. He did not believe the town would embark in what is undoubtedly a speculation, and he believed the Government was right in letting the power to private corporations that would develop it.

Mr. James Kendry, M.P., arose to take a rise out of the President. He believed Mr. Dumble holds land all over the country for the highest price and thought it inconsistent for him to oppose monopoly. He believed the Government has no right to build dams and compete against individuals who build their own dams.

Mr. Stanley of the Piano Company, spoke strongly in favor of municipal ownership.

Mr. J. B. McWilliams put in a word for the Burleigh Company. Their power was the best on the river. He sold it to Mr. Culverwell in 1899. He had put in no claim for damages on account of the canal construction, hence the Government has no claim whatever on the Burleigh Power.

At this juncture the President introduced an invitation from the Montreal Board of Trade to participate in the banquet to Mr. Tarte. On motion of Mr. Meldrum, seconded by Mr. Matthews, it was resolved that regrets, coupled with eulogy of J. Israel, should be forwarded.

Mr. W. H. Meldrum renewed the discussion by remarking that the Government would be getting 10 per cent. on investment from the Otonabee Company which was a good investment.

Mr. R. M. Dennistoun said that he was one of the deputation to Ottawa to oppose the lease of the dam. Both sides were represented and they talked the matter over for about two hours. He believed that Mr. Blair understood it thoroughly and had confidence that his judicial mind would lead him to proper action. The lease was not to the Otonabee Power Company, but to W. H. Meldrum, R. R. Hall and W. A. Stratton, who might or might not as they chose relet to the Otonabee Power Company. He had no objection to the lease if a fair rental were given. Three or four dollars per horse power would be fairer than 60 cents.

Mr. Culverwell spoke a few words for the Burleigh Company. Mr. McWilliams' explanation showed that they were not in the position of getting favors from the Government. They do not condemn the Government for making the lease under consideration, but they do condemn the misrepresentations of the men who have applied for the lease.

Mr. Meldrum interrupted and some unparliamentary language followed.

Mr. Culverwell concluded by saying that if he was goaded much longer he would give the whole affair to the public.

Mr. J. B. McWilliams said that he was in the Town Council in 1898-99, when the Government asked $4 per horse power for this dam. Now it was proposed to grant it for 60 cents per horse power. Mr. McWilliams gave figures showing that huge profits would accrue to the town if it owned the power on such terms. He made a personal reference to Mr. Meldrum and the latter retorted sharply and each said that the other was another.

Mr. George Matthews made a motion to the effect that in case the Government granted a lease of the power in question, there should be a proviso that the lease be canceled in case the lessees entered into a combination with any other company.

Mr. A. L. Davis speaking as a member of a corporation that owned $500,000 or $600,000 worth of property in the town, supported the letting of water power to private corporations. He did not believe that the people would vote money to buy the dam, and to have the power utilized it was necessary to encourage private enterprise.

Mr. Matthews' resolution was put to the meeting and carried. Mr. Burnham's was also carried upon submission. A good many refrained from voting either way on either motion.

BOTHA DECEIVED HIS RURGHERS

Recent Operations Made Merely to Detect Their Attention

THE RINDERPEST IS VIRULENT

London, Sept. 26.—The Times says that the opportunity for a serious invasion of Natal by Commandant General Botha has passed, if indeed the Boer commandant ever had such a move in contemplation. Not only are the Buffalo and Tugela rivers in high flood, but General Lyttleton's troops are now especially on the alert and are amply sufficient to repel the enemy should an attempt be made to cross the border.

Botha's object in seeming to threaten Natal is thought to have been to keep the Boers busy about the time of the expiration of Lord Kitchener's term of grace, and so divert their attention from the consideration of the advisability of surrendering.

At a recent meeting of the Cape Town Chamber of Commerce, says the Times' correspondent, the members decided that they were willing if necessary to submit to whatever inconvenience might accrue from the placing of the entire Cape peninsula under under martial law. No specific action was taken in the matter, however.

MEAT SUPPLY THREATENED

Pretoria, Sept. 26.—The whole country is threatened with a disastrous epidemic of rinderpest. The first case of the disease was noticed about September 4, and since that date it has spread like wildfire through the herds. Vigorous measures have been adopted to check the epidemic. The cattle still in the hands of the fighting burghers are likely to suffer heavily.

A number of Boer leaders who were recently captured have been permanently banished by Government proclamation.

FRAZERVILLE.

—Who does not like Rubies?

—Miss R. Pue went to Peterborough last week. Judging from the number of enquiries she is greatly missed here.

—Batching has not seemed to injure the cheese factory.

—It is rumored that Mr. Wm. Bothwell has sold his farm and that he thinks of the North-West.

—Last week Mr. Wm. Pue found a well developed bunch of apple blossom in his orchard.

—Miss E. Fisher went to Belleville about a week and a half ago, but was not long away when she was called home, her sister, who has been sick for a long time, having suddenly become dangerously low. She has now been improving for a few days, yet Miss E. is not likely to leave her for a while. The family has the sympathy of all at this time. We hope for the best.

OTONABEE COUNCIL.

All members present except Councillor Deyell.

Councillor Deyell and the clerk, who were appointed at a special meeting held in the town of Peterborough to compare the petition for the construction of a drain from the 11j con. to the Otonabee river, with the assessment roll to see if a majority of the persons interested had signed the petition, reported that a majority had not signed it. A petition was also received requesting the council not to take any action, nor incur any expense in connection with the above drain.

Councillor Weir was empowered to purchase a pair of boots and cap for J. Kain.

The following communications were received:—

From the Attorney General, enclosing a copy of a bill to amend the Assessment Act. Under the old Act real and personal property was to be assessed at its actual cash value, as it would be appraised in payment of a just debt from a solvent debtor It is proposed to make it the actual cash value omitting the debtor clause, it is also proposed to assess real estate and buildings separately.

An expression of opinion by the council on the above was requested. The clerk was directed to reply as follows:—

That this council approve of the first change. With regard to the second, assessing farm buildings separate from the real estate, do not approve of it, as they consider them inseparable.

From the county clerk, that a special meeting of the county council would be held this fall to consider the expenditure of the county's share of the Legislative grant for the improvement of public highways. The notice was sent to give the council an opportunity of sending a representative to discuss the best mode of spending the grant.

The reeve was appointed to represent this council.

Robert Carey was present requesting that the road allowance through the east half of lot 18, con. 9, be opened for public travel.

The clerk was instructed to notify the Jas. Miller Estate, and J. A. Drummond, the owners of the lots through which the road runs that it would be considered at next meeting of council. The clerk was instructed to bill Mr. Davis, of Dummer, $2.50, for the use of the two wheeled scraper.

A petition was received from T. Slattery's road beat to have their statute labor commuted.—Granted.

A by-law was passed to levy the following rates: 2 7-10 mills county rate to raise $5,234.70; 1 9-10 township rate; 1 2-10 township: general school rate for the schools; No. 1, 1 4-10 to raise $220; No. 2, 2 3-10 $300; No. 3, 1 8-10, $200; No. 4, 2 8-10, $500; No. 5, 1 5-10, $225; No. 6, 8-10, $65; No. 7, 1 6-10, $325; No. 8, 1 mill, $125; No. 9, 1 6-10, $124; No. 10, 8-10, $120; No. 11, 2 3-10, $104; No. 12, 2 mills, $115; No. 13, 1 2-10, $200; No. 14, 1 9-10, $185; No. 15, 1 4-10 $46.99; No. 16, 2 5-10, $300, No. 17, 9-10, $50; No. 118, 1 7-10, $730; Peterborough S. S., 2 mills, $30; $432 for dogs and $34 for bitches.

The following accounts were passed: M. Weir, making culverts, $6.22; John Smith, plank, $36.90; Curtis, tile, $4.50; P. Walker, water trough, $3.75; J. Palling, taking stones off roads, $2.50; Wm. IRON FOUND IN WISCONSIN.

Ashland, Wis., Sept. 25.—This city and vicinity are in a furore of excitement over the discovery of the first vein of iron ore ever found in Ashland county, and land values in the new mineral section have greatly appreciated. For some time past Jas. Guest has been prospecting on the Penokee range, and last week his efforts were rewarded by the encountering of a body of specular ore of great promise. A company has now been organized at Mellan to develop the property, while numerous others have been formed to conduct exploratory operations elsewhere on the Penokee range, particularly along the western end.

Advice to Mothers.

If your little boy or girl comes home with a sore throat, the first thing to do is to rub the throat and chest with Polson's Nerviline. Don't be afraid to use Nerviline freely—a whole bottle full wouldn't burn or blister the tenderest skin. Rub in until all taken up by the pores, and just before the child goes to sleep give him a glass of hot water in which 30 drops of Nerviline has previously been stirred This is a sure pleasant and speedy cure. Large bottles 25 cents.

A Mother To Mothers.

"I am the mother of five children," writes Mrs. S. E. Rose, of Big Otter, West Va., "and have been as high as eight days in the doctor's hands, and never less than two days with any child until the last. Then I had used two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and was only two hours in the hands of the doctor."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a woman's medicine. It cures diseases of the womanly organs. It is a wonderful medicine for mothers, making the baby's advent practically painless and giving [illegible]

TO CROSS THE CHANNEL

London, Sept. 25.—The British rival to M Santos-Dumont was interviewed yesterday at his temporary residence in Marda Vale.

William Beedle leaves for Paris tonight in connection with his invention and will have a consultation with Wilfred de Fonville, president of the French Aeronautical Society, who has expressed satisfaction that an Englishman is to enter for the Deutche prize.

The course to be sailed for the ex-merchant's $22,500 prize is one of fourteen miles, from the society's clubhouse round the Eiffel tower and back.

Mr. Beedle is a resident of Cape Town and an engineer who has been seven years in perfecting his machine. He claims to have reached the high-water mark in aerial navigation, and the fact that the well-known firm of experts, Messrs. Spencer & Sons, is identified with him is a proof of the merits of his invention.

So far the trials have been made with a thirty foot model. Naturally Mr. Beedle requires a fair sum of money before he can complete the full ship, but he is steadily progressing with the work.

The motor is now being made in Paris, the frame is ready, and Messrs. Spencer & Sons have made arrangements to put the whole together in their baloon factory, whence the trial trip may soon be looked for.

The challenge prize is open until the year 1905, so that Mr. Beedle has plenty of time. A French expert is taking an especial interest in his progress.

The plan of the ship is that of a car suspended from a cylendrical baloon, holding 18,000 feet of hydrogen. The length of the balloon is 001 feet and the diameter sixteen feet. The untearable balloon skin is attached to hte inside of six aluminium hoops, which placing renders the baloon collapsible a provides a ready vacum when refilling, which increases the foot power by forty-two pounds.

Driving an airship is an accomplished fact, but where Mr. Beedle scores over his rivals is in the steering and lifting. His steering fan is at the front and turns the nose of the draft while his driving is done from the rear with a twenty-eight horse power motor cooled with four air cylinders.

The whole machine is portable and marks a distinct advance upon Santos Dumont's, Renard's or Deutch's ship.

Mr Beedle hopes to travel at the rate of forty miles an hour.

"Is that faster than Santos-Dumont?" asked your correspondent.

"Oh, yes," replied Mr. Beedle, "the machine is much stronger."

"Why did Santos-Dumont fail?"

"His steering apparatus is deficient," replied the Cape Town inventor. "He uses a rudder which steers to the right and left and does not possess the fine points of steering which I claim to have invented."

"Where did you learn your aeronautics?"

"At the Cape," replied Mr. Beedle, "where I have been experimenting for some years. I am trying to form a syndicate to complete the building. Several hundred pounds have already been spent, and not much more is required. At the very latest I shall sail for the Deutsch prize next year."

The weight of the machine is 1,260 pounds, and the loss of gas during an ascent will be overcome by compressed gas carried in a tube. The lifting power is just sufficient to raise the vessel from the ground when the fan comes into play. The nose of the craft cants upward and away it goes in any wind.

The machine carries two men. Mr. Beedle proposes to cross the channel when ready. Who'll take the second seat?

PETERBOROUGH FAIR.

Contrary to past records the Peterborough Central Exhibition was yesterday favored with superb weather. On many former occasions rain or unfavorable weather usually interfered with the fair, and when yesterday morning broke clear and bright, there was a look of genuine satisfaction on the faces of the directors and friends of the exhibition everywhere.

The fair has rallied from its low financial condition of two years ago, when rain almost wiped out the gate receipts, and made it impossible for the directors to pay the full amount of the prizes. This year the old-time crowds are present, with largely increased entry list. The grand stand was packed to overflowing during the afternoon, while several thousand persons wandered around the grounds, and took in the other attractions.

Amiability and sunshine exuded from all present; it was a love-feast, with all manner of compliments passed. The ticket agent and gatekeepers were kept busy all day, and Secretary W. J. Green was overwhelmed with enquiries from agitated exhibitors, who perchance had got things mixed up, or forgotten their tickets, or done something wrong. The main hall contained a good display of the usual articles. The domestic manufactures, roots, grain, fruit, fancy work, and fine arts, were especially good. The hall was always crowded with ladies, who examined and discussed minutely all the exhibits.

Outside the hall the grounds presented a gay and festive scene. The 57th Regimental band, led by Professor Gliddon, played chaste melodies. The horses neighed, the cattle lowed, bleated and squealed, the poultry squawked; everybody was gorgeously upholstered and talked gaily, and Old Sol shone brightly over all. The excitement was such that a dignified Plymouth Rock hen among the poultry pens laid an egg to celebrate the day, to the scandal of a family of bantams and a brace of discordant guinea hens adjoining.

The special attractions before the grand stand were the best we have ever seen in connection with the exhibition. The programme will be repeated to-day.

THE FORMAL OPENING.

The formal opening took place at 1.30. In the unavoidable absence of Hon. Dr. Borden and Hon. J. R. Stratton, the opening ceremony was performed by Warden Fitzgerald.

The president, Mr. F. H. Dobbin, welcomed everybody to the exhibition after accounting for the absence of Hon. J. R. Stratton and Mr. James Kendry, M.P. He then called on the other notabilities on the platform to address the assembled throng.

Mayor Denne was pleased to see such a large attendance, and the large exhibits of agricultural products, and stock, on the grounds. He had visited the Glasgow exhibition only a few weeks ago, and he spoke with pride of the showing made there by Canada. Outside of England itself no country made a better display than did Canada, and he felt that the effort was a fine one, for the millions who saw the Canadian exhibit would not fail to be impressed with Canada and its possibilities. He referred to what had been done by cold storage, which made limitless our trade with Great Britain. If shippers were careful about the products they sent forward and made sure that they were all in prime condition and properly labelled it would work wonders for Canada. In concluding, he expressed his pleasure at the exhibition, and wished it success and all a pleasant time.

The next speaker was Dr. Willoughby ex-M.P.P., who disclaimed any ambition to make a speech, but had come to work. In the absence of the oratorical "big guns," however, he was filling the gap. The Grits are all away said the doctor, and you only have the Conservatives left here. He thought the local men should have been here. He made reference to the proud record Canada is making. He eulogized the work of the directors, but thought the people of Peterborough were not properly supporting them. The exhibition should have had a larger attendance from town. The fair, he hoped, would be a success.

Mr. Thos. Blezard, M.P.P., said he would let Dr. Willoughby know there was one Grit there, anyway. He was in favor of country and district shows, which should be supported by all, because they were the shows of the people themselves. Mr Blezard, amid a salvo of applause and laughter, assured the audience that although Mr. Stratton and Dr. Borden were not here, it didn't matter, as he and Dr. Willoughby were just as good men as they were, and could tell more about agriculture then either of them. The doctor had bred some of the best horses in the country, and he had bred some of the best cattle and sheep. (Applause.)

Warden Fitzgerald was loudly applauded on rising to speak, but said he did not deem it prudent to take up much time. He hoped that the exhibition would be marked by a large attendance, for it certainly deserved it. He then formally declared the exhibition open.

This concluded the formal proceedings, and the programme commenced in front of the grand stand.

SPECIAL FEATURES.

Gough Bros., the Wonderful Cheap Men, as usual occupied the "same old stand" as in former years. The neat and comprehensive display of ready made clothing, manufactured in the most advanced styles known to the trade, attracted thousands during the day by the originality and skill shown in its exhibit. Gough Bros. endeavored year after year to make their exhibit an attractive advertisement for their mammoth clothing establishment, and they have succeeded this year, beyong all proceding ones. Gough Bros. exhibit included an interesting display of medium and high-class ready-to-wear suits, overcoats and ulsters for fall and winter wear, marked in plain and convincing figures. Men's, youths' and boys garments were shown in satisfactory variety. Light fall overcoats, heavy winter ulsters, men's round and square cut coats, youths' and boys' suits and reefers, in all the various new styles of the season. There was also seen the new Raglan overcoat, the swell long overcoat of the season, which is enjoying so much popular favour now; also the "Raglanette," and standard short box coat, with full back, in all the most up-to-date styles of fabrics. The display was effectively decorated with white and blue bunting, attractively designed price tickets, and appropriately lettered show cards. The dressing bore evidence of a carefully prepared plan to give an artistic effect, such as is frequently seen in the massive show windows of the firm on George street. To Mr. W. T. Merrill belongs the credit of designing and decorating the exhibit, which entitles him to all the praise so liberally bestowed on it. Emmet Dougherty was in charge of the display and was industriously engaged handing out Gough Bros. pretty "Duke and Duchess" cards to the crowds of admirers.

The man with the long-haired wig who was running the knife board and cane racket did a big business, and roared continuously. Small boys swarmed around this guileless diversion.

The feature of the crowd yesterday was the noticeable absence of townspeople, the great majority of those on the ground being from the surrounding townships.

Grafton & Co., although not making an exhibit on the grounds this year, nevertheless kept the assembled thousands aware, though a plentiful use of printer's ink and sign-boards and posters exhibited profusely at every possible point of vantage, that they were still doing business on a larger scale than ever, and had as well-assorted a stock of ready-made clothing of every description as can be found in Central Ontario. Visitors to the fair have not been slow to recognize the opportunity of getting the best, most durable, and at the same time cheapest clothing to be found in no other town but Peterborough, men's clothing, boy's clothing, light fall overcoats, heavy winter ulsters—in short, anything in the way of clothing. No one should fail to call and inspect the magnificent stock, now that the cool season is setting in, and heavier clothing is the order of the day. The manager, and his obliging assistants, will always be pleased to show goods to callers, no matter whether you intend to purchase at the time or not.

One of the prettiest exhibits in the main hall was that made by Mr. C. B. Routley, the enterprising George street fancy goods dealer. It consisted mainly of wall papers of the neatest and most modern design; jardiniere flower pots, rare and antique china, etc., etc. The display made by Mr. Routley this year surpasses in excellence anything seen in the building for years, yet nevertheless it gives but a faint idea of the endless variety of well assorted goods to be seen in Mr. Routley's store on George street, which at this season is daily thronged with customers who are able to procure in their establishment goods at a price that no similar house in Ontario can approach.

The old established house of Messrs. J. C. Turnbull & Co., had a special carpet exhibit, and the profusion of patterns shown was a study of ingenuity and beauty. The moderateness of the prices, too, was a matter of surprise to many who examined the choice of designs, embracing elegant velvets, Brussels, tapestries, all wools and unions. The richest weaves have been unrolled and spread out, forming the walls, floor and ceiling of the effective display. The beautifully decorated interior shows rolls of the brightest favourites, as well as handsome art squares, novelties in rugs, fancy doormats, rich bed comforters, etc. Rich lace curtains, portieres and drapes lend additional embellishments to the display. Mr. Might, who was in charge, is confident that the sterling qualities offered by the firm will influence the biggest fall trade in this line ever experienced.

An artificial broken tree, made of Bedford free stone, and manufactured by Coughlin Bros., was one of the prettiest sights in the building and the design was exceedingly beautiful, calling forth expression of admiration from all beholders. This monument is the work of an artist of rare ability, and is very natural—the knots, the rough bark, and the shape of the tree being brought out with wonderful effect. To any one requiring monuments of any kind a visit to the Messrs. Coughlin's warerooms on Hunter street would repay inspection.

The New Ontario advertising tent was under the direction of Mr. Thomas Southworth, Director of Colonization for the Ontario Government, assisted by Mr W G Fee, representing the great Clergue Syndicate. Hundreds visited the tent for information during the day.

The Schneider Challenge Cup for 100 yards race was won in two straight heats by Taylor, over Rutherford, of Norwood, his only opponent. Mr. Rutherford protested the race on account of a horse and buggy being driven across the track, but as he finished the heat, the committee decided that the heat should count. This was fair the judges offering to have the race run over on Thursday afternoon at the same place, but Mr. Rutherford would not agree to this. Taylor now holds the cup subject to a challenge from any amateur in the county. He has to hold it for three years in order to become possessor of it.

Considerable interest was shown in the open trotting race, which resulted as follows: Fred S., 1 1 1; Little Diamond 2 2 2; Harold E. 3 3 3, and Gladstone (drawn)

THE MURDERER SEES RELATIONS

Buffalo, N. Y. Sept. 26.—Paul, Waldeck and Victoria Czolgosz, father brother and sister of Leon Czolgosz, the convicted assassin of President McKinley, were granted an interview with the prisoner in the Erie County jail at noon. Assistant District Attorney Frederick Haller and Assistant Superintendent of Police P. V. Cusack were present, under instructions of District Attorney Penney, throughout the interview. No other person will be allowed to see the prisoner until after the sentence of death is imposed to-morrow afternoon.

VERDICT OF MURDER.

Buffalo, Sept. 25.—Leon Czolgosz was yesterday found guilty of the murder of President McKinley, the jury deliberating on the evidence for a little more than half an hour. The actual time taken up with the trial of the anarchist was eight hours and twenty-six minutes, extending over two days.

Throughout the entire afternoon session yesterday the prisoner manifested absolute indifference. He sat with one leg crossed over the other and his hands resting on the arms of his chair. Even when the verdict of the jury was announced the vacant stare which has characterized him from the commencement never left his eyes.

Mr. Quackenbush, one of the Pan-American officials, resumed his evidence after recess. In answer to a question of the prosecuting attorney, the witness said that during his confession the prisoner discussed his crime freely, and claimed to have acted entirely alone. He had not used the term "anarchy" at all.

Secret Service Officers Gallagher and Foster described the circumstances surrounding the crime. John Branch, a colored employe of the Exposition, swore that he thought he heard the President say: "Be easy with him, boys."

Judge Lewis, the counsel for the prisoner, in a short address, pointed out the peculiar position in which he had been placed. In some communities, he said, a case of this kind would be disposed of by mob law. It was a hard matter to pick up a newspaper today and find nothing about some case of mob or lynch law, but this spirit did not exist in this community. "This man," he said, "has declared that he is an anarchist. We all feel that organizations of this kind are dangerous, but I don't think that they are nearly so dangerous as the doctrine of lynch law. That is something that will sweep aside the strongest of our institutions if allowed to grow at its present rate of progress. Every man charged with a crime, no matter how heinous its nature, should get a fair trial in a court of justice."

The White Plague Advances.

Consumption is gaining headway. Why? Bad colds are allowed to run on neglected. Catarrh sets in, is not checked and Consumption is the result. Why not use Catarrhozone regularly? It cures colds in a few hours, and no case of Catarrh can withstand it. Catarrhozone cures by the inhalation of medicated air which goes to all parts of the lungs, throat and breathing organs. A pleasant, certain quick cure follows the use of Catarrhozone, which is guaranteed under all conditions to cure Catarrh, Bronchitis and Consumption. 25c. and $1.00.

A TORONTO LADY'S STORY

Suffered From Backache So Severe She Could Hardly Raise Herself in Bed.

SHE THANKS DR. PITCHER'S BACKACHE KIDNEY TABLETS FOR COMPLETELY CURING HER AND GIVING HER NEW LIFE AND ENERGY.

There are hundreds of women in Toronto and thousands in Canada to whom life is an absolute burden on account of the unceasing ache in the back, the dragging pains in the loins, the headaches and sideaches.

MISS A. DEFOE.

Many, too, are suffering from kidney irritability, bladder and urinary troubles, who are reticent about mentioning their ailments to anyone.

To all these kidney and backache sufferers Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets come as a veritable boon and blessing. They clear out the clogged-up kidneys, cure the backache and urinary troubles, roll away the burden of pain, and give health, strength and energy.

Miss Anna Defoe, a young lady whose address is 355 King street west, Toronto, recently wrote as follows:

"For a number of years I have had kidney trouble and backache, so bad that in the morning I could hardly raise myself. A severe dragging pain would catch me in the small of my back, and I had no appitite, and often suffered from severe headaches, and a general breaking down of the entire system was the result. But, thanks to Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets, they put new life and energy in me, relieving me of that awful pain and soreness gently and easily, so much so, that I continued to get better, until I was entirely cured. I am in condition now to make known to the world what Dr. Pitcher's Tablets have done for me and for whose future welfare I have the best wishes."

Dr. Pitcher's Backache Kidney Tablets are 50 cents a box at all druggists. The Dr. Zina Pitcher Co., Toronto, Ont.

American Newspaper Directory.

Tells the circulations of all American newspapers. Revised, corrected and reissued every three months. Sixteen hundred pages: Price Five Dollars a volume or $20 a year.

BUFFALO.

We should hardly know how to get along without the American Newspaper Directory. We regard it by all odds the most complete and reliable guide that the advertiser can make use of; in fact we use no other.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 24, 1901.
R. V. PIERCE, M.D.,
President World's Dis. Med. Ass'n.

VERMONT.

The American Newspaper Directory stands, as it has always stood, the first and best of newspaper directories—the only one which cannot be ignored, the only one which every advertiser must have. No other can take its place; no other is needed.—Joseph Auld, in the Burlington (Vt.) News of July 3, 1896.

ADVISOR.

The Advisor accepts the American Newspaper Directory as the standard in newspaper ratings. The obstacles which obstruct its efforts to get true and reliable information are many.

* * *

The directory question is one which interests every publisher in the country—nay, the entire world. But in the United States directories are becoming altogether too numerous. In this, as with other books of reference, it is necessary to have one which may be relied on as being an authority on the matter of newspaper circulations. There can be no question about the fact that at this time, as for many years past, the American Newspaper Directory is that authority. The Advisor is not paid to make this announcement. It makes the statement in the interest of advertisers and publishers because it is true. One thing the advertiser is almost cock-sure of when he refers to the American Newspaper Directory is that the circulation figures he sees therein are not overstated to any great extent. In most other directories they are. Only the publisher himself is to be blamed for not securing a proper rating in that publication, and every advertiser of consequence knows it. Thus the publisher who refuses to furnish a statement places himself under a reasonable suspicion.—The Advisor for June. New York, June, 1901.

CHICAGO.

Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co's American Newspaper Directory has long since earned the reputation of being the best of its character. It contains the result of patient, expensive and systematic effort to secure all attainable information of interest concerning American newspapers. The work has been honestly done. This will not be questioned by any unprejudiced examiner. The most important question is circulation. In attempting to give this information the Editor of the Directory encounters his most difficult work. It is the aim and necessity of the Directory to give the truth. The American Newspaper Directory is to-day the dependence and guide in a greater or less degree, of every large advertiser in the country.—Chicago (Ill.) Daily News.

BATES.

The American Newspaper Directory is the only reliable guide for the advertiser.

No man who advertises can afford to do without it.

What Bradstreet and Dun are to the mercantile world, The American Newspaper Directory is to the world of periodical publications.

A new advertiser will get from the American Newspaper Directory a better idea of the greatness of his country, and the tremendous possibilities in newspaper advertising, than from any other source.

If an advertiser spends only $100 a year he should have the American Newspaper Directory. For his business may grow and his right expenditure of his money become increasingly important. The time to learn how to spend $10,000 a year, is before it is spent, otherwise the spending may be disastrous.

Many times the best paper in town costs the advertiser no more than the poorest. The American Newspaper Directory tells which is which.

The paper that was the leader in its town five years ago may lag behind to-day. Even one year may witness astonishing changes. If you are spending money for publicity, it is vastly important that you should know where to get the most of it for the price. The American Newspaper Directory gives not only the present circulation rating of every paper in America, but shows their history by quoting past ratings.

The book costs five dollars a copy, and a single reference to it may readily save or make many times its cost.

All newspaper directories but one are erroneously optimistic about circulations. The American Newspaper Directory may occasionally err on the other side, but that makes it all the safer for the advertiser.

My advertising experience began in 1866, and one of the first things I did was to buy a copy of the American Newspaper Directory.

For sixteen years Rowell's "The American Newspaper Directory" has had a place of honor and usefulness on my desk.

Many a publisher is ready to prove by other directories that "Rowell's is wrong," but few indeed can be induced to prove it by opening their circulation books to the advertiser.

Among publishers who are not willing that their real circulations be known, it is the best hated book in print. The moral is not far to find.

CHARLES AUSTIN BATES.
New York, June 24, 1901.

PABST.

If the improvement of the American Newspaper Directory continues in the future as it has during the past twenty years I do not think I shall live long enough to see any other directory take its place. There will, however, be the usual crop of directories just as every other good thing is imitated. Your long years of experience in dealing with evasive circulation reports have most admirably fitted you for placing a proper valuation upon such statements. Advertisers have come to know that the Rowell estimates are nearer the proper figure than can otherwise be obtained. The American Newspaper Directory is therefore indispensable in every well regulated advertising department. Lines are being more tightly drawn every day; it is difficult to collect for twenty thousand when you print only eight. If the advertiser were buying barley he would not accept three pecks for a bushel, although the quality might at all times be open for discussion.

The American Newspaper Directory is the guide and companion of the advertising man, and it is to the interest of all concerned to help perfect it, support it, and hurrah for it.

PABST BREWING CO.

SAPOLIO.

A growing need created it—the advertising agency system. One of the earliest and most successful workers, Geo. P. Rowell, is still in the field. He originated methods. Others followed. His publication of a list of all the papers—the American Newspaper Directory. He has never ceased to love it, and labor for it. Soon out of the gross stupidity of imitation, it became a rule that every agency down to those of Oshkosh or Oklahoma must issue its own directory. An awful waste, for not more than one out of ten was worth shelf room. If the National Association of Advertising Agents could agree long enough to buy Mr. Rowell's Directory, publish it officially and drop all the others, it would accomplish something.

ARTEMAS WARD,
Advertising Manager for Sapolio.
—In Fame, March, 1901.

WASHINGTON.

Every page of the American Newspaper Directory breathes the desire of its publishers that it shall be absolutely correct in every statement it makes.

Truly yours,
FRANK ROE BATCHELD,
Clerk of the Committee on Banking and Currency, House of Representatives, U. S.
Washington, D. C., Jan. 17, 1899.

SOUTHERN.

We subscribe to and pay cash for the American Newspaper Directory, and find it of great value in our advertising department. We have 6,892 miles of railway, extending from Washington, D. C., all over the South, and in advertising this system we use more than 1,000 publications, and in selecting this list we find that we get a correct idea of circulation from this Directory that can not be obtained from any other similar publication. We receive other newspaper directories gratis; but the fact that we pay cash for this one in addition shows that we can not place the same dependence upon the "free list."

We thoroughly appreciate the careful manner in which this Directory is compiled.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13, 1900.
JOS. H. HANNEN,
Adv. Dept. Southern Railway.

I am looking forward to receiving the new edition with a great deal of anticipation, as, although the American Newspaper Directory seemed to have reached a high state of perfection several years ago, there is always something new and of value in each succeeding edition. It is regarded as the standard authority with the Southern Railway.

S. H. HARDWICK,
General Passenger Agent,
Washington, D. C., May 21, 1901.

BALTIMORE.

We have used the American Newspaper Directory for many years and find it more valuable to us than any other similar publication. Much of the information given we cannot obtain in any other way. The book is not only a great help, but a necessity to our business, and we think its way of stating circulations is the ideal one.

Permanent Cures of Cancer

We here give a few cases, where the efficacy of our Constitutional treatment in curing Cancer, is established beyond all question. We have plenty on fyle.

There is ample proof that where our remedy cures, it cures to stay and saves people from the torture of knife and plaster.

CANCER OF THE BREAST—A lady had Cancer of the breast, which rendered her right shoulder and arm almost helpless. Our remedy cured her over five years ago, and there is not the slightest return of the trouble.

CANCER OF THE FACE—This case of a gentleman who was so bad that his right cheek was almost eaten off with the disease. Plasters aggrivated his trouble. Our treatment cured him five years ago and he has been all right since.

CANCER OF THE STOMACH—Doctors pronounced the trouble cancer of the stomach. There was vomiting of material that looked like Coffee grounds. Great weakness and prostration. Cured over four years ago and well to-day.

CANCER OF THE NOSE—A severe case which was cured by our remedy in 1891 and has never returned to this day.

Full accounts of the above cases, together with the names and addresses of the persons, are given in our new book, "Cancer, Its Cause and Cure," sent to anyone, in plain wrapper on receipt of 2 stamps. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont.

Yesterday morning the electric light had again to be shut off on account of another break in the raceway. The loose gravel and filling which was put in a day or two previously, was not of sufficient strength to hold the water and it broke away. The result was that most of the stores were in darkness. The Times managed to get along with coal oil lamps which we had taken the precaution to provide ourselves with some days ago. It is expected that the damage will be repaired by this evening.

BOTH MEN ACQUITTED.

The Charge Against Doig and Stevenson was That of Receiving Copper Wire Stolen From the C. G. E. Co.

David Doig, one of the junk dealers charged with having received a quantity of the wire stolen by the boy Robert Smith from the Canadian General Electric Co., was before His Honor Judge Weller yesterday for trial. The evidence of Smith was taken and of several others who figured in the circumstance leading up to his arrest and the apprehension of others involved. No evidence of any importance was added to that taken before Magistrate Dumble at the preliminary hearing, and upon hearing the statements His Honor found Doig not guilty and acquitted him. The evidence of the principal witness, he pointed out, was that of an accomplice, who had given himself unreliable and untruthful, his evidence in great part not having been corroborated. The prisoners, his honor held, were entitled to the benefit of the doubt.

From a similar view-point did his honor consider the case against C. W Stevenson, the charge against whom was similar to Doig's. The defendant, therefore, was found not guilty and was honorably acquitted.

Doig was defended by Messrs. Stratton & Hall, and Stevenson by Mr. E. B. Stone, Mr. R. E. Wood, County Crown Attorney, conducted the prosecution.

Rev. Mr. Archibald, Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, Rev. Mr. Seaborn and the Rector, Rev. J. C. Davidson. Special music was provided by the choir, assisted by professor Gliddon's Orchestra.

A SEPTEMBER WEDDING

Rev. J. W. Fox, of Gilford, United in Marriage to Bertha Kidd.

A very pretty wedding took place yesterday afternoon at the residence of the bride's father, 33 Dennistoun avenue, when Miss Bertha Laura, youngest daughter of Mr. A. R. Kidd was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Rev. J. W. Fox, B.A., of Gilford, Ont.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Wm. Buchanan, of Markdale, assisted by Rev. J. P. Wilson, and Rev. Thomas Fox, father of the groom, in the presence of a number of invited guests.

The bride was handsomely gowned in white organdie, trimmed with chiffon and white ribbon, and was attended by her cousin, Miss Edith Kidd, who was attired in a like manner. The groom was supported by Rev. Mr. Moore, B. A., Richmond Hill.

The newly married couple left on their honeymoon trip to the Pan-American, and will on their return take up their residence at Gilford.

MARRIED IN ENNISMORE

Nuptials of Miss Sarah Harrington to Mr. D Sullivan.

An event of considerable local interest took place in Ennismore on Tuesday last, when Miss Sarah Harrington was united in marriage to Mr. Daniel Sullivan, of Peterborough. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father McColl.

The bride, who was charmingly gowned in a suit of blue trimmed with white satin, was assisted by Miss Mary Sullivan, sister of the groom, who was prettily attired in grey silk. The groom was assisted by his brother, Mr. Francis Sullivan.

The bride was the recipent of a large number of elegant and costly wedding presents from her many friends. Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan will reside in Peterborough. Their many friends wish them a long life of wedded happiness, a sentiment in which The Times cordially joins.

Opening of the Y. M. C. A. "Gym"

The reception at the Y.M.C.A. hall last night, to mark the opening of the gymnasium for the winter season, was largely attended, over 150 being present. The program was a select one, and was thoroughly enjoyed. Instrumental and vocal selections were given by members of the Association, including several well rendered banjo solos by Mr. Johnston, lately returned from South Africa, ably accompanied on the piano by Miss Dobbin, whose brilliant playing was a feature of the evening. The outlook for the Association work for the coming season is more hopeful than at any time in its history. The gymnasium has now forty-eight members, an increase of twenty-eight over last season. Much of the credit for this bright outlook is certainly due to the genial physical instructor, Mr. Horace Ayers, who has been indefatigable in his efforts to enlist the sympathy and co-operation of the young men in the good work. Mr. Williamson, the popular Secretary, is the right man in the right place, and to his untiring energy the success which has attended the work of the Y.M.C.A. in this town for some years is largely due.

GREAT JAR SALE

China Hall will sell 500 dozen Quart Crown Fruit Jars, all best selected goods at 50c. per dozen while they last. Buy quickly.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Peel and core two and a half pounds of apples, chop one pound of onions very finely, and one pound of stewed raisins. Boil all together with two quarts of best vinegar for two hours, then add a quarter of a pound of powdered ginger, one pound of coarse sugar, two teaspoonfuls of cayenne pepper, quarter of a pound of salt, one pound and a half of mustard seed. Mix the ingredients well together, and the chutney is fit for use at once.

Take the smallest onions that can be got. They must be quite ripe and dry. Be careful not to use a steel knife in peeling them, or their color will be spoiled. Take off the two outer skins with a silver knife. Put the onions as fast as they are ready into perfectly dry jars, and cover them with cold vinegar and two spoonfuls of all-spice and two spoonfuls of pepper to each quart of vinegar. Tie them down closely. In a few weeks they will be ready.

—Prick three pounds of small tomatoes with a silver fork and lay in a deep preserving pan, sprinkling salt over each layer, cover closely and allow them to stand for three days. Then strain the juice and add one quart of vinegar and a quarter of an ounce each of powdered sugar, mustard seed, cloves and white pepper and half a teaspoonful of ground mace. Boil all these ingredients together in an enamelled vessel, pour over the tomatoes, and when cold put in wide-mouthed jars. In about ten days the pickle will be ready for use.

Mushroom Sauce

Place one tablespoonful of butter in a saucepan and when it is brown add one tablespoonful of flour. Add salt, pepper and one and one-half cups of stock. Cook five minutes, stirring constantly, then add one-half cup of fresh mushrooms, but in small pieces. Allow the mushrooms to cook until well heated, take them from the fire and stir in the yolk of one egg and a teaspoonful of butter. When the egg is set add a sprig of chopped parsley and serve.

The Brides Sofa Pillow.

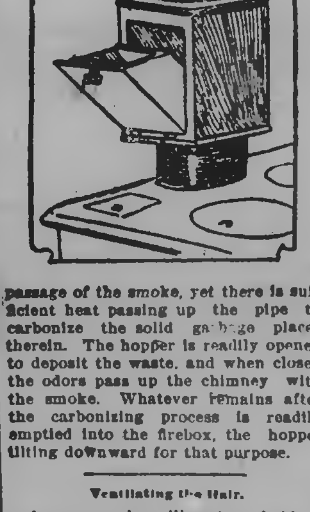
The latest idea in the sofa-pillow craze is intended for a bride, and will be sure to occupy a prominent position on the hall seat of her new home.

It is made of bits of ribbons and silk left from the trousseau. The smallest pieces may be used and a very rich effect produced. It should be made on the old-fashioned patchwork pattern of our grandmother's.

Dispose of Your Garbage at Home.

No more gathered garbage standing round, no more flies, no more waiting the janitor's pleasure. Charles R. Harris, of Williamsport, Pa., has invented a clever device for disposing of refuse at once and without odor.

It takes the place of a link of pipe, and while it does not obstruct the passage of the smoke, yet there is sufficient heat passing up the pipe to carbonize the solid garbage placed therein. The hopper is readily opened to deposit the waste, and when closed the odors pass up the chimney with the smoke. Whatever remains after the carbonizing process is readily emptied into the firebox, the hopper tilting downward for that purpose.



Ventilating the Hair.

A woman who will make a habit of brushing and combing the hair at night and vigorously rubbing the scalp, rubbing till the blood tingles, may be sure, if she inaugurates this habit before her hair has begun to fall, that her hair will keep its color and useful quality. Even falling hair will often be brought back to vigor by such treatment.

A good deal is said in favor of brushing the hair. Brushing cleans the hair itself, but it does not invigorate the scalp as does combing, and neither is half so good as vigorous rubbing. When one begins she will find it takes a lot of rubbing to make the head tingle, but in a few weeks the first rub will start the blood. That tells its own story, for where the circulation is sluggish there deterioration of vitality has begun. Where the blood runs freely, there life renews itself.

It is good to let the hair hang loosely at night, especially if one sleeps in a room in which outside air circulates freely. The roots need air. Twice a week braid the hair into little braids all over the head. Hair thus treated will keep a glossy look, yet not hang together, and it will turn back prettily in a pompadour with better effect than as if the curling irons are used. Besides, curling irons are ruinous to the health of the hair

Sauce Hollandaise.

Mix one tablespoonful each of butter and flour in a saucepan; add gradually half a pint of boiling water. Stir until it just reaches the boiling point; take from the fire, add the yolks of two eggs. In another saucepan put a slice of onion, a bay leaf and a clove of garlic; add four tablespoonful of vinegar and stand over the fire until the vinegar is reduced one-half. Turn this into the sauce, stir for a moment, strain through a fine sieve.

KRUGER TALKS AGAIN.

Brussels, Sept. 26.—According to a report credited here as having emanated from former President Kruger the bulk of the raiders at recent contending against the British are now operating in Cape Colony. It is said that the rebels in Cape Colony number 15,000 men, while the force in the Transvaal numbers about 5,000 men. It is undoubtedly exaggerated.

NEVER HEARD OF GOD.

A Girl Reared in the Heart of Churchly Baltimore Astounds the Court.

Baltimore, September 27—Emma Paul was called in court here to-day as a witness as to charges preferred by Peter Paul, her father, against her mother. The ordinary preliminary questions put to witnesses disclosed the astonishing facts that the young woman did not understand the nature of an oath, had never been to a church or Sunday-school, had never heard of God or heaven, and did not know of the promise of immortality.

It was discovered that the young woman had lived in the churchly city of Baltimore all her life; that her home was at No. 1012 Salisbury alley, in the heart of a densely populated section, and not in some out-of-the way corner difficult to reach with the news of the Gospel.

Notwithstanding that the girl said she did not know that she would be punished if she told an untruth, Judge Wickes allowed her to testify, saying that she was an extraordinary and unsatisfactory witness.

A SMALLPOX SCARE.

The Dread Disease Breaks Out in Ottawa Many Cases Reported.

Ottawa, September 26—The Citizen says: One of the most prominent medical men in Ottawa said yesterday: "Ottawa is reeking with smallpix. Unless immediate and stringent measures are taken the city will be scourged with it."

There is grave suspicion that smallpox is more rife than the press or public have any idea of. The serious character of the outbreak has, we have reason to believe, been concealed in view of the royal visit. That reason, if it was a reason, has now disappeared and it behooves the board of health to get down to business at once. A meeting of the Board was called for yesterday afternoon, but there was no quorum. The Citizen has no desire to pose as an alarmist, but the serious statement of the medical gentleman referred to and the facts that have come to light within the past 24 hours warrant the most stringent measures.

Hay Fever Can be Prevented.

Don't seek other climes at "Hay Fever Season," don't destroy your stomach and nerves by drugs—prevent the disease. Hay Fever is caused by germs that float about in the air and finally find lodgement in your throat and lungs. Medicine won't reach them there, but Catarrhozone will. Catarrhozone is sure death to germs. Start now to use Catarrhozone. Inhale it into the throat, lungs, nasal passages, and bronchial tubes; it goes wherever the air you breathe goes, and it will prevent and cure Hay Fever. Endorsed by not less than one thousand doctors in Canada and U. S. Sent to any address for $1.000 forwarded to Polson & Co., Hartfford, Conn., U. S. or Kingston, Ont.

CZOLGOSZ COLLAPSED IN AUBURN PRISON

Had to be Dragged up the Stairs and Evidenced the Most Abject Terror.

HE WAS SHAMMING TO A CERTAIN EXTENT

Doctor Ordered Him Removed to the Cell For the Condemned—Expressed Sorrow for Mrs. McKinley

Auburn, N.Y., Sept. 28— Czolgosz, President McKinley's murderer, in the custody of Sheriff Caldwell of Erie County and 21 regular and special deputies, arrived in Auburn at 3.15 a.m. The prison is just across the road from the depot, the distance which the party had to walk after alighting from the car being less than fifty yards. Awaiting the arrival of the murderer was a crowd of only about 200 people, but either from fear of the crowd, which was not very demonstrative and which made no attempt to harm the man, or from the sight of the prison Czolgosz's legs gave out and two burly deputy sheriffs were compelled to practically carry the man into the prison. Inside the gate his condition became worse and he was dragged up the stairs and into the main hall. He was placed in a sitting posture on the bench which the handcuffs were being removed, but he fell over and moaned and groaned, evidencing the most abject terror. As soon as the cuffs were unlocked the man was dragged into the principal keeper's office. As in the case of all prisoners the officers immediately proceeded to strip him, and put on a new suit of clothes.

HE CRIED AND YELLED.

During this operation Czolgosz cried and yelled, making the prison corridors echo and re-echo with evidence of his terror. The prison physician Dr. John Gerin, was summoned and on his arrival he examined the man and ordered his removal to the cell in the condemned row, which he will occupy until he is taken to the electric chair. The doctor declared that the man was suffering from fright and terror, but declared that he was shamming to some extent.

The collapse of the murderer was a surprise to every one. En route from Buffalo he showed no indication of breaking down. He talked a little and expressed his regret for his crime. Mrs. McKinley." He reiterated his Mrs. McKinley." He reiterated his former statement that he had no accomplices and declared that he never heard of the men under arrest in St. Louis who claimed to have tied the handkerchief. He says the handkerchief was not tied. He went behind the Temple of Music, arranged the handkerchief so as to hide the weapon and then took his place in the crowd.

ANGRY MOB HAD ROPE ABOUT NEGRO'S NECK

The Wretch Barely Escaped Hanging by Lynchers.

BULLETS FLEW THICK AND FAST

Sharon, Sept. 28.—A riot which nearly ended in a lynching occurred in Grove City to-day. Albert White, Jos. Wright, and several other negroes employed in the construction of a railroad, went into a livery stable to hire a horse. Upon being refused Wright shot at Ed. Horseman, the proprietor, but the bullet went wild. An officer attempted to arrest Wright, but was struck a terrific blow in the face. Dr. L. D. Shaffer and several spectators came to the assistance of the policeman, and the former rendered Wright unconscious by a blow upon the head.

White and his companion opened fire on the crowd who had Wright in charge, but none were injured. They then ran down the main street, firing at every one who came in sight. One hundred determined men, heavily armed, started in pursuit of the negroes, and shot after shot was exchanged, and two men received slight injuries. White was shot in the leg, and took refuge in an untenanted house. The mob surrounded the place, and called on him to surrender, but he stoutly refused. The doors were battered down, and the negroe, crouching in a corner, fired his revolver at Dr. Shaffer, and the bullet grazed his cheek. The next instant the negro was dragged out on the floor, and someone called for a rope. Cries of "Lynch him,!" "Hang him!" and "Kill him!" were raised. White fell upon his knees sobbing, and begged them to spare his life. A rope was placed about his neck, and he was dragged to a tree. When the rope was thrown over a limb cooler heads in the crowd prevailed, and the prisoner was brought to the county jail. The other negroes escaped.

A PECULIAR WAGER.

In Which This Great Family Jour. S. is Somewhat Interested.

Two young men went into a well known hotel yesterday, and while talking to the wine clerk the subject of the Public Library came up. One of the young men said: "I will wager the cigars that more people are acquainted with the location of any one of the three local newspaper offices than they are with the home of the Public Library." "Oh, no, you are mistaken," the other answered, and the young man made a bet that they would go up George street, and, selecting ten persons at random, would ask each where the Public Library was, and, second, where the leading newspaper of the town was to be found. The young men went out and interrogated ten men, first as to the location of the library, and only three of the ten were able to answer the question; two referred to the evening papers when asked where the leading press of the town was to be found, and seven directed the young men to the office of this great family journal. Nuffsed; this g.f.j. scoops in the whole pancake.

PRESIDENT ROOSVELT AND THE BOER WAR

Kruger to Formally Ask the United States to Interfere.

IT IS TOO LATE TO INTERFERE

Washington, Sept. 27—The report that Paul Kruger will ask the intervention of the United States on behalf of the Boer republics, through President Roosevelt, is likely verified. It seems unlikely that Mr. Kruger should hope for any action on the part of this country that was not taken by President McKinley, who observed the laws of neutrality in placing himself in readiness to mediate provided mediation was desired by both Great Britain and the Boers. As for intervention, involving the possibility of war on behalf of the Boers, it could not be considered by any country at this time. Even those European powers least friendly to Great Britain and most sympathetic with the Afrikanders, have never—with the exception of Germany—seriously considered the policy of interference.

Germany might have stepped into the breach at one time, but only on condition that in case of war with Great Britain and a victory for Germany and the Boers the Emperor should be given suzerainty over all South Africa. Such an outcome would have met the cherished ambitions of Emperor William and several of his predecessors to establish a home for emigrants from that country—a home in which these emigrants would find scope for development and yet would not be lost wholly to the Fatherland. This ambition is really the principal cause for Germany's resentment of the Monroe doctrine as applied to South America, for in that country German colonies of vast extent long since would have been established but for the barrier of the exclusive Pan-American policy.

But aside from all other considerations the fact that the McKinley administration on the Boer question was clearly defined would practically preclude President Roosevelt from initiating any personal plans with reference to the South African situation. Doubtless in this, as in other lines of conduct, he will be governed by the McKinley precedent, which is in accordance with the consensus of nations and in harmony with American sentiment.

THE TRENT VALLEY CANAL

Facts in Regard to the Project That Everybody Should Know.

In reply to a request of a subscriber, the following information is given in regard to the Trent Valley Canal: This waterway of 200 miles in length can be completed for $3,500,000. When complete it will give continuous barge navigation of 600 tons burden—and of twice the capacity of the Erie canal—from Montreal to Sault Ste Marie. It will shorten the distance between all the great western lake ports and Liverpool by 727 miles. It is capable of being operated during a season of seven months in a year, and of transporting 200,000,000 bushels of grain per annum. By means of the numerous lakes and rivers which it utilizes and intersects, it will give a shore of 1000 miles and lay under tribute 6,000,000 acres of agricultural, forest and mineral lands capable of yielding from 50 to 100 tons of freight per acre. It will utilize the finest continual system of water powers on the globe. 140 miles of this waterway is now completed, but bottled up at both ends, yet it is giving employment for internal commerce and tourist travel to 50 steamboats, besides numerous small craft.

They Leave To-day

A jolly Rochester party, who have for seven consecutive years spent several weeks each season at Chemong Park Hotel, leave to-day for home. They are Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Kelly and family; Mr. M. Kondolf and wife; Mr. King and wife. The party think that there is no place like Chemong.

ATHEISM FIRST ANARCHY NEXT

Bishop Doane Endeavors to Trace Anarchy to Its Source

LICENTIOUS SPEECH HARMFUL

New York, Sept. 28.—Bishop Doane, in his discourse from the text. "No man can serve two masters," said that the whole thought of riddance from rule and abolition of authority and destruction of government, and escape from law and independence in the sense of freedom from control was godless and unhuman, and idiotic and impossible, but was the mad conceit of Anarchy!

Continuing, the Bishop said:—

"The doubt, the distress, the impatience, the resistance which rise up and trouble our hearts are in themselves symptoms of intellectual and spiritual anarchy. This is the Anarchist's first thought. Before he has hatched his plots of foul conspiracy against earthly government, before he has defiled the air of Heaven with the bombast and bitterness of his contempt of human authority, before he has lifted his treacherous hand against the Civil Magistrate or laid his underground mines to break up social order, he has dethroned God. He is an atheist before he is an Anarchist, he is an Anarchist because he is an atheist. With the resistless force of the progress from a premises of unbelief to a conclusion of crime, the unrelenting and infernal logic runs there is no God to ordain powers, there are no powers ordained by God, there are not powers at all. God save us from this spiritual anarchy of the atheist and from this other anarchy of men who call themselves and count themselves above and beyond and independent of authority and law. I have spoken of the too prevalent tendency in our time to violent personalities of speech, presuming to assign motives, to condemn character, and to assail the individual under pretence of criticizing methods and opposing policies. There can be no question that in an atmosphere of embittered violence the murderer gets the inspiration which chooses a bullet or a dagger instead of the weapons of tongues which are spears and arrows and sharp swords. Out of the reek of all this licentious and unbridled speech come the spawn and sputum of the Anarchist and the assassin."

RAT TRAP EXPOSITION.

Queer Kind of an Exhibition Just Closed in Copenhagen.

Copenhagen, Sept. 22.—The first International Exposition of Rat Traps has just closed at Copenhagen after a most successful display of rodent exterminating devices. As might have been supposed in such a momentous affair America would not be overlooked and it is equally certain that Yankee ingenuity would be suitably recognized in gold medal awards. As a matter of fact two gold and one bronze medal did actually go to American exhibitors. In all there were 100 foreign exhibitors, to whom five medals were awarded in addition to the American awards, while all the makers of rat traps in Denmark, as well as numerous inventors, took this unusual opportunity to exhibit their contrivances.

Rats have become such a pest in Denmark, as well as in Sweeden, and parts of Germany, that an exposition was decided upon as the only adequate way in which the public could be made acquainted with the latest appliances. That it was no second-class exhibition is proved by the royal patronage of Prince and Princess Christian, of Denmark, and the visit of an official representative of Germany, Count Schwerin.

Preparations for this curious gathering have been under way for over three years. It was organized by the "Committee for the Rational Extermination of Rats in Denmark," which for a number of years has carried on a crusade against the rodents. The most successful measure has been the payment of bounties amounting to about three cents for every rat killed. In the course of 18 weeks, 102,000 rats were destroyed in Copenhagen by the bounty claimants. Sweeden offered a similar Government bounty beginning the first of last March, and in five months 103,000 rats have been killde and paid for in Stockholm alone. The alarming multiplicity of rats is evidenced by the record of some of the smaller towns in Denmark, where as many as five rats per inhabitant have been destroyed in less than two years

Incidentally the object of the Copenhagen shoew was to arouse public interest in the matter of bounties in an endeavour to have them paid out of Government instead of local funds. To this end is to be introduced, with good chances of being passed, too, into the Danish Parliament this fall providing for an equal division of the bounty payments between the State and local authorities.

But as to the traps. The most sought-for feature was that of catching a large number of rats at one time. In addition to devices for catching the rodents there were exhibits of rat-killing animals Among these were the familiar dogs, the red, rough-haired Irish terriers, black and tan terriers and red badger dogs. The Copenhagen Zoo sent a collection of other natural rodent enemies including martens, owls, cats etc. Conspicuous for their novelty were machines for blowing carbolic acid, sulphuric acids and similar materials into rat holes and cremating furnaces for destroying their dead bodies.

EXPEDITIONS SET OUT FOR THE SOUTH POLE

Four Expeditions to Explore the Southern Seas This Year

VERY INTERESTING OCCUPATION

Boston, Sept. 27—The present year is to be notable for expeditions to explore that huge icecap of the earth within the Antarctic circle. With the Arctic zone so well cared for by explorers, most of whom aim for the north pole, it was time, because of the very superfluity of venturesome spirits, that the great ice cap at the South receive its due share of attention. It seems unlikely that popular interest in the South pole will ever be aroused to such an extent as it has been in the case of the North, yet from now on the one field of exploration promises to be worked as much as the other.

Four expeditions are now being fitted out for the Antarctic, one in England, one in Scotland, another in Germany and the fourth in Sweden. Each expedition will attack the ice cap on a different side of the earth, and thus avoid interference with one another's labors. The British expedition will enter the south of Australia, and New Zealand, having its base on Victorialand. The Scottish expedition will work to the southeast of Cape Horn, and the Swedish expedition directly south of the Horn. The Germans will penetrate the area between Australia and Cape Colony, with their base at Kerguelen Island. The four stations thus to be established will be from 1500 to 2000 miles apart, and at least one beneficial result of the joint labors of the four parties should be the practical commercial charting of the navigable seas in the southern hemisphere immediately outside of the ice fringe.

The British expedition in the government ship Discovery will leave London in July, and will enter the ice, it is expected, in November. A land party, with provisions for three years and all the paraphernalia for sledging, is to be left at some spot between Cape Adair and McMurdo and Wood bays, while the ship moves along the outskirts of the ice barrier, charting, sounding the depths, and exploring any land that may be found. The primary object of this expedition, it is stated, is simply geographical exploration. Its directors propose to discover what land there is in that part of the Antarctic circle and what its extent may be. Of course, science will be benefited as much as possible by the various observations customary on such journeys. For the first time in this kind of exploration, the British party will go out provided with a balloon apparatus. The Scottish expedition, under the leadership of W. S. Bruce, will leave in September on a whaler, and expects to reach the ice in December. A party under Mr. Bruce will be landed directly to the south of the route taken in 1823 by Weddell, whose early exploration in that quarter is of particular interest to Scotland, since Weddell sailed from the Scotch port of Leith. In the spring of 1902 the Bruce party expect to take extensive sledge journeys, while the ship does oceanographic work.

The Germans will go out under the direct patronage of their government, and with ampler funds than any of the other expeditions. Their ship has been newly designed and built for work in the ice on somewhat different lines from Dr. Nansen's Fram, which was deficient in seagoing quality, and would not be suitable for the long preliminary voyage to the South. Prof. Drygalski, the head of this expedition, has recently said of the work to be done that "no one even knows whether there is a continent or merely detached pieces of land in the south polar seas, and all that has been advanced on this subject is pure hypothesis. Nansen's view, that the land is in the form of islands, conflicts with the opinions advanced by others—that there is a connected mass of land or ice; but the meteorological observations tend to the belief that the latter is more probable. To judge by the specimens found in the sea, bed geological reasons also point to this, but direct exploration alone can settle the point, and it is with a view to determining this finally that the imperial German government is making such extensive preparations." The Swedes will go out under the patronage of private persons and under the leadership of Otto Nordenskiold, and in a general way their efforts will be like those of the other parties, without, however, attempting land exploration.

While none of the expeditions have the south pole as an objective, there will undoubtedly be a keen rivalry among three of them to return with the honor of having gone farthest South. It is in the plan of none to be back north before 1903. If the Antarctic does not yield up some of its mysteries before this combined onset the venturesome explorers will not be at fault.

Croswell Has Fled.

Rolla, Mo., Sept. 28.—J. S. Croswell, an Instructor at the School of Mines and Metallurgy, shot Miss Mollie Powell, of this city, through the heart last night, causing her death almost instantly. The motive for the crime was jealousy. Croswell has fled, and a mob of citizens is in pursuit.

Croswell came from Boston, where he was graduated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and entered the employ of the School of Mines and Metallurgy as instructor in shop work and drawing. All of last year he paid devoted attention to Miss Powell, a daughter of the late W. J. Powell, editor of the New Era of Rolla. She lived with her mother and was a great social favorite.

Croswell last evening attended a birthday party given at the home of Miss Powell, and while left alone with the girl a moment shot her and fled. As soon as the students of the school learned of the crime they armed themselves and started in search of Croswell. Had he been captured last night he would have been lynched.

Captain of the Columbia Makes Makes Alterations in Sails

PESSIMISM IN ALL ENGLAND

New York, Sept. 27.—The cup defender Columbia, and the challenger Shamrock II., are lying quietly at their moorings in the bay at Sandy Hook this morning. A light breeze from the northeast of ten miles an hour straightened out the flags on the Erin, the Porto Rico, the tender Park City, and the Columbia. The latter flew the stars and stripes, but the Shamrock had no flags at either her masthead or taffrail. E. D. Morgan, of the Columbia, after some inquiry as to the prospects for a breeze for tomorrow's race was asked if the Columbia would go out for a spin today. He said: "No I think not. It is not likely we shall leave our moorings."

The captain of the Columbia had his crew at work after breakfast overhauling some of the light sails. At 8.15 they began unbending the foot of the mainsail. After the cover was off for about thirty feet the clew of the sail was unshackled and taken on deck, and some sailmakers were put to work on it making alterations.

Captain Barr says he thinks the Columbia is going as fast as she ever did and that when a breeze comes she will give a good account of herself.

Everything was quiet on board the Shamrock. The crew were out early, but nothing was done beyond washing decks up to 8 o'clock, when they all went to breakfast on board the tender Porto Rico.

NOT VERY HOPEFUL.

London, Sept. 27.—Sir Thomas Lipton this morning cables to his friends here:

"Am very hopeful," but the feeling is not reflected by public opinion, which foresees defeat for the Shamrock II. in her races with the Columbia for the American Cup. The afternoon newspapers similarly derive scant comfort from the stories of yesterday's contest. As the St. James' Gazette points out in spite of all suggestions that the conditions prevent accurate judgment of the comparative merits of the two yachts, "the plain fact stands out that under a condition of weather which was the same to both, the American boat got a good bit nearer the winning line than our own."

WILL WIN IN A BREEZE.

London, Sept. 27.—The Pall Mall Gazette is practically alone in thinking that the American experts are easily satisfied if they are already convinced convinced that the Columbia is the better boat. The paper's comment is probably based on the conclusion of its own correspondent's long account of the race, which commences:

"The Columbia did much to shatter the Lipton hope yesterday," and concludes:

"The day's sailing did nothing to suggest that the Shamrock will not win in a good breeze. I think she will."

SHAMROCK MEN WERE ANNOYED

New York, Sept. 27.—From an authentic source it was learned today that there was a very strong feeling on the part of Captain Sycamore and those in charge of Shamrock at what they term crowding of the Shamrock at the start yesterday by Captain Barr. "If he is going to continue these tactics there will be serious trouble," said the writer's informant. "What he did yesterday would not be tolerated for an instant in a race in British waters. He must not expect us to stand it, and we won't. Our relations with the New York Yacht Club and with the principals in this event have been so extremely pleasant that it is to be hoped one man's action shall not be permitted to mar them."

Sir Thomas said to an Associated Press representative today: "While yesterday's race was not at all a fair test of the Shamrock's speed, I was very well satisfied with what she did. What we want is a good strong breeze from the northwest or any other quarter, for that matter, but plenty of it, and then I'm sure the Shamrock will give a good account of herself. We are all very pleased at the excellent manner in which the course was kept clear. It could not have been better done, and I hope it will be so through all the races."

Captain Sycamore and his crew overhauled the Shamrock's sails this morning.

A HANDSOME STORE

The Extensive Improvements to Ormond & Walsh's Drug Store.

The improvements which have been going on for some time to the drug store of Ormond & Walsh have been completed, and the place is now one of the handsomest in town. Mr. Dickson Davidson, the popular and progressive proprietor can pride himself on having a store that is second to none of its kind anywhere.

The old shelving has been removed and and beautiful new fixtures erected in its place. The walls have been very artistically papered in a pretty shade of green, the ceiling has been decorated to match, while the neat little electric fixtures combine to present a most luxuriant appearance.

The beautiful new counters and show cases are of quartered oak, and finished in the best possible style. The work was done by the Peterborough Canoe Company, while the show cases are the work of the Dominion Show Case Company. The painting was done by Mr. John Watson.

Mr. Davidson has been receiving the congratulations of his many friends on the great improvements which have taken place, which are in keeping with his progressive and enterprising nature.

Heaven Enough.

An editor who died of starvation was being escorted to heaven by an angel who had been sent for that purpose. "May I look at the other place before we ascend to eternal happiness?" "Easily," said the angel. So they went below and skirmished around, taking in the sights. The angel lost track of the editor and went around hades to look for him. He found him sitting by a furnace fanning himself and gazing with rapture upon a lot of people in the fire. There was a sign on the furnace which said: "Delinquent subscribers." "Come," said the angel, "we must be going." "You go on," said the editor. "I'm not going. This is heaven enough for me."

SAID TO FINISH HIM WITH A FEW DROPS

Sensational Evidence Produced at the Sifton Trial in London Friday.

GERALD'S PRODUCTION OF A VIAL SUSPICIOUS.

Said the Substance in That Bottle Would do—Martin Morden's Evidence Was Corroborated

London, Ont. Sept. 27.—More startling evidence was deduced at this morning's continuation of the Sifton trial. Marden Morden, brother of Jas. Morden, who told such a sensational story yesterday, was on the stand. He testified that on the night of June 30 Gerald Sifton went to his house in this city, six miles from his own house, and demanded a confidential conversation with him. Gerald then said that his father and Mary McFarlane, to whom witness had been engaged, were to be married, and he wanted witness to use his influence to prevent it.

"He wanted me to come out and see if I could pursuade the girl," witness said, "but I said under the circumstances I would have nothing whatever to do with her. He asked me if money would have anything to do with it, and I told him it would not."

Gerald said: "We are going to put up a hayfork," and asked me if I would help to put it up. He said: "We have set a trap for the old man and if he falls into it it would only take two of three raps on the head with a hammer to finish the old man" I told him I would have nothing to do with it. I told him that if she knew as much of the old man as I did and was foolish enough to marry him, let them go ahead. Gerald said: "He has already killed one woman, and set another crazy."

"Who were the women he was referring to?"

"His two wives," answered the witness.

"What did he say when you said you would have nothing to with it?"

PRODUCED A PHIAL.

"He put his hand in his pocket and drew out a phial. It was crystal-like. He said: "If one thing would not work, another would."

Gerald said if I would not go with him he would have to go alone, though it was a risky thing for a person to tackle alone.

After the old man's death witness had a conversation with Gerald. Witness said. "He asked if we were not paid were we going to squeal on him. He said he would willingly give $1,000 to be divided equally between us to keep us quiet. He said Edgar had told him it would take the price of a fifty-acre farm to do so. I said as far as I was concerned, I would not accept a solitary cent if I was bordering on starvation. I said I thought my brother was of the same opinion as myself, but I would see him and let Gerald know. I saw my brother and then saw Gerald and told him my brother said that he would not accept anything and had no intention whatever of not keeping quiet. This was on the Sunday following Joseph Sifton's death."

It now looks as if the trial will be one of the lengthiest in the criminal courts of Canada.

JAMES MORDEN'S EVIDENCE.

London, Sept. 27.—The Sifton trial was continued yesterday afternoon by the evidence of Mrs. McFarlane, mother of the girl who was to have married Joseph Sifton. On the morning that the marriage was to take place she saw Gerald and his wife and Herbert at their house, and told them how Mary and Joseph Sifton had been at her house on the previous night. She said that Mary was bound to marry Joseph Sifton, although she tried to urge her not to do so. She told Gerald to call at Rev. Mr. Cooper's house and see if they were married and he said that he intended to call anyway, and if they were not married he would put his father so he would not be married. The witness told him to be careful what he said.

Rev. W. H. Cooper stated that on the day of the funeral he was visited by Gerald Sifton, who told him that when he had called to get the death certificate from Dr. McNeil he was told by the doctor that Gerald's uncle and Mr. Cooper were pressing to have the circumstances of the death investigated. Dr. McNeil had told him that unless he was given $1,000 he would stop the funeral procession that afternoon, and order an inquest. Gerald said that he had lost sleep for several nights grieving over his father's death, and that this threat of fresh disgrace made him feel very badly indeed. If Mr. Cooper and his uncle wished an inquest he would have been very glad to have had one held the preceding Saturday night, but to have the funeral stopped after notice of it had been given would mean a scandal that he would not have for $1,000, so he had reluctantly consented, under the circumstances, and signed the three notes, one being for $500 and the two others for $250 each, in favor of Dr. McNeil.

MORDEN'S TESTIMONY.

James Morden swore that on the night preceding Sifton's death, Gerald Sifton had said to him: "There is hell to pay at our house. I'll give you $1,000 to help me out. I want you to go with me and we'll catch the old man on the road and smash his head in with a club. He is going to marry Mary MacFarlane to-morrow night. Father has been the means of killing two women, and things are going from bad to worse, and they have to be stopped." Elsewhere in the conversation Gerald had said:—"I'll tell you what we can do. We can go down and jump in on the old man and choke him to death, and then we can hang him to a rafter in the barn, and people will think he has committed suicide." The witness warned Gerald that he would be in danger of being hanged, and that he might get some innocent person hanged with him, and Gerald replied that his father was not liked well enough to make anyone care what happened to him, and, having secured the address of his brother in London, Sifton left.

In the cross-examination, Morden admitted that after he had heard the proposition to aid in the murder of his avowed friend he had refused the offer, but had given the name of his brother as one who could be asked to do the deed, and that when he knew that Gerald Sifton was intent on murdering the old man he took no steps to prevent the murder. After the death of the elder Sifton he remained on friendly terms with Gerald, although he admitted that he believed him to be a murderer, and continued to visit at his house.

A LITTLE GIRL'S REQUEST.

How a Little Peterborough Tot Wanted to Change Places.

The following has been handed to the Times for publication:—

A little west end Peterborough girl who has not yet seen her seventh summer, objects seriously to going to bed evenings before the rest of the family, on the ground that it is so lonesome upstairs, when everybody else is downstairs. Her mother, to console her, recently told her that it could not be lonely upstairs, because God was always there. Last Wednesday night the little girl went to bed with the thought busy in her little brain, and about a half-hour after she had been put to bed, the family gathered in the sitting-room, heard a small voice at the head of the stairs, say:

"Mamma, mamma!"

"Well dear, what is it?" asked the mother. The little one replied.

"Mamma, you come upstairs and stay with God awhile, and let me come downstairs."

Hay Fever Germs are Now Floating About

They are in the air everywhere, too minute to see, but just waiting for chance to get into your lungs. Then they will play havoc with your breathing apparatus, and you'll wonder what to do. The doctor will say you had better inhale Catarrhozone for it kills Hay Fever germs and moreover is dead certain to reach them. Catarrhozone, cures every time, and absolutely prevents the disease from returning. You inhale Catarrhozone with the air breathed; it goes directly to the source of the trouble and cures it by removing the cause. At druggists, or sent with guarantee of cure, to any address for $1.00 forwarded to Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

A Boy Injured.

While a number of boys were amusing themselves around a bonfire of leaves on Cedar street, a cartridge, which was in the burning debris, exploded. Fred Dunnett, one of the boys, was struck in several places by flying bits of brass from the cartridge. Dr. McClelland, who attended him took three pieces of brass out of the boy's leg, and he is now progressing as favorably as might be expected.

A BOY KILLED

A Lad at Westwood Caught in the Wheels of a Wagon

Westwood, Sept. 27.—About three o'clock on Thursday afternoon, shortly after being dismissed for the day, Roy Nelson, six years old, one of the "juniors," attending S.S. No. 1 Asphodel, while climbing on a wagon which was being driven through Mr. John Brackenridge's farm gateway, adjoining the school, fell between the back wheels and the body of the wagon. His head was crushed, causing almost instant death

Forgetful Fishermen.

The Lakefield News says that the Reeve of the village, who is an ardent desciple of Izaak Walton, while fishing in the canal the other day, in a fit of mental aberration, went home to tea and left his rod standing up against the canal. When he returned it had vanished. This great family journal is not at all surprised at this. We have known men to fish and fish all day, and when the shades of the evening fell on the landscape, they departed without even taking their bait, which for convenience' sake they carried in a black bottle, with them, and on their return next day found that some lurking villain had partaken of their bait to the last drop. If you don't believe this, just ask John Holmes.

Annual Harvest Festival

The Salvation Army will celebrate the annual harvest festival on Saturday, Oct. 5th, to Tuesday, Oct. 8th, inclusive. The officers in charge of the local corps solicit from the public a tithe of the bountiful blessings of field and store, in kind or cash, as a thank-offering to God. Anything received will be turned to good account, and it is more particularly to help its officers in this and poorer corps, who toil incessantly for the good of humanity, that this effort is being made. Staff Capt. Archibald, who is in charge of our work among the men at the Central Prison, Toronto, comes to lead meetings on Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 5 and 6. Gifts can be sent to the barracks on Simcoe street, where Ensign and Mrs. Bloss will be there to receive them.

HOW TURKS PAY DEBTS

It is expected that more Armenians are about to be massacred, from the fact that eight Turkish battalions have been sent into that country to "maintain order." Although various causes have been given by travellers for these annual massacres, according to Al Nouri Bey, an ex-official of the Turkish Government, now in Paris, they all amount to this:—The Turks, who are land-owners or tenants, are obliged to borrow money, either for improvement or to tide them over a bad harvest The Armenians, who are merchants and money-lenders, loan this money The Turks, finding it inconvenient to pay, send secret messages to Kurdish tribes in the vicinity, who swoop down and wipe out the creditors of the Turks The Armenians are not a fighting people and little resistance is offered. The survivors are then taken in hand by the local Turkish authorities and frightened into making a written statement that "a dispute having occurred among themselves, they had fallen upon and killed one another, and but for the interference of the authorities nobody would have remained alive." This document is then presented to the Governor, who sends a long telegram to the Sultan about the matter, and the usual answer is that "he forgives the Armenians if they promise not to begin again," and at the same time he orders the Governor to take energetic measures to protect the Kurds against the Armenian brigands.

THE BOARD OF TRADE MEETING

The meeting of a public character held by the Board of Trade for the purpose of allowing the public to discuss the disposition of franchises in the gift of the people, was a decided success There was a large attendance of influential and prominent men. The question of franchises, public and private was touched upon, but the treatment of the question of water-power franchises in the vicinity of Peterborough and under governmental control, was most thorough and explicit. If at time the speakers overlooked the etiquette of debate, the same may be said of portions of the audience, who interrupted at will. Mr. Kendry's proposition that a private owner should not suffer loss by the sale of a competing franchise by the Government without compensation is sound. It merely involves the taking back by the people at a fair rate of what they should never have given away unconditionally and the starting again on the right track. Henceforth, whether the state owns or operates, the rights of the people must be protected and not left to the mercy of monopolists and non producers. Everything must be done to facilitate manufacturing development. The cross-firing of Mr. McWilliams, Mr. Meldrum, Mr. Dennistoun Mr. Matthews and others resulted in the making public of much interesting material. Mr. McWilliams pertinently asked, "What has the Town Council been doing?" and we are inclined to ask the same question. The speech of Mr. A. L. Davis was well worthy of close attention, and demonstrated the necessity of the town's having cheap power at its disposal. He remarked that if the Government sold power as it did on the Welland Canal for $1 per h.p., it should certainly not ask any developers here more, or what would amount to more than that amount, provided that the developer were not speculators, but users. Otherwise the competitive price would be all in favor of the Welland Canal. We approve strongly of Mr. Burnham's resolution requesting the Government to look into the whole question of franchises, in view of the extreme importance of it.

It will be a long time before we shall have another meeting of such educational value. Mr. Ball's representation of the position taken by the workingmen in their union was clear and definite. It is gratifying to find that the rank and file are becoming aware of the importance of assisting intelligently in the movements of the great army of the people. With regard to the Burleigh power, it is inconceivable that a group of mere speculators should have a legal right to the monopoly of an immense power. We shall probably find that the Governmental control of the dams is the lever by which the public will open the purses of these gentlemen.

Advice to Mothers.

If your little boy or girl comes home with a sore throat, the first thing to do is to rub the throat and chest with Polson's Nerviline. Don't be afraid to use Nerviline freely—a whole bottle full wouldn't burn or blister the tenderest skin. Rub in until all taken up by the pores, and just before the child goes to sleep give him a glass of hot water in which 20 drops of Nerviline has previously been stirred. This is a sure pleasant and speedy cure. Large bottles 25 cents.

Ruby Lips and a clear complexion, the pride of woman. Have you lost these charms through torpid liver, constipation, biliousness, or nervousness? Dr. Agnew's Liver Pills will restore them to you—40 little "Rubies" in a vial, 10 cents. Act like a charm. Never gripe.—29

"WHIZ!! WALK A MILE"

Is a laconic definition of a toboggan ride. It's quick work going down the slide, but it's a long climb back to the starting point. It is very much that way with health; it is quickly lost and slowly regained.

When the first symptoms of failing health appear, proper care may prevent the descent to utter weakness and debility. Usually the complication of disorders known as general debility has its origin in a diseased condition of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. These diseases are perfectly cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures through the stomach disorders which have their origin in a diseased condition of the stomach.

There is no alcohol in the "Discovery," neither opium, cocaine nor other narcotic.

"I was all run down; had no strength; had sharp darting pains all through me; head and back ache every day," writes Mrs. Frank Caswell, of Salamanca, N. Y. "I was also troubled with a distressed feeling in the stomach and pain in front of the hip bones. I had a severe cough and it nearly killed me to draw a long breath, I was so sore through my lungs.

"I wrote to Dr. Pierce, telling my symptoms as near as I could. He sent me a very kind letter, advising me to try his medicines, which I did, and before I had taken them a week I was decidedly better. I took two bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and two of the 'Favorite Prescription,' and am sure I never felt better in my life than when I quit taking them."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a cure for biliousness.

THE PETERBOROUGH AGRICULTURAL FAIR

The third and last day of the Central Exhibition opened with glorious weather, but even this did not bring out the crowd that should have been on the grounds. The citizens of the town do not appear to give the exhibition the attention and patronage it should get. The special attractions were, as usual the drawing card, while the fine band of the 57th Regiment supplied the choicest music.

The baby show was a success, fully a dozen entries were made. The prize which was a ten dollar gold piece donated by Messrs. Gough Bros., was won by Mrs. W. H. Allan, of Douro.

London, Sept. 27.— Gerald Sifton's trial for murder proceeded this morning. Dr. MacNeil, the physician who gave the death certificate as one of accident, said he still believed death was accidental, although he had had suspicions at one time. In cross examination he stuck to his relation of how Gerald, while his father lay dying wanted to give him strychine to "end his sufferings." Witness said he gave instructions that Gerald should on no account be left alone with his father.

Mary MacFarlane, the girl of twenty years, who was to become the third wife of Joseph Sifton, said she had been engaged to marry Joseph Sifton two months previously. She said she saw blood on the collar of the shirt and on the lapel of the coat. After the tragedy she went to Gerald Sifton's where on the next day after the accident Gerald told her she was to live in his house as a sister and do no work, that if she married he would give her a thousand dollars.

SENSATIONAL EVIDENCE.

London, Sept. 26.—The conclusion of Walter Herbert's evidence at the Sifton trial yesterday afternoon contained the sensational statement that the prisoner said the doctor had little hopes of his father getting around, but Gerald Sifton would see that he would not; he said he had stuff that would fix him if he did.

Jonathan Decker and J. Sinker testified to helping to carry the body into the house. Jacob Burgess swore that Gerald Sifton had told him that he felt very bad because Herbert had "given him away" and "squealed" on him, after Gerald had put up $375 for his lawyers. Susie Bathurst testified to hearing the prisoner say that Joseph Sifton had fallen from the barn.

Dr. McNeil described the wounds in the deceased and told of Gerald Sifton suggesting that something be done to put an end to his father's sufferings, Gerald stating that he had some strychnine. The doctor, continuing, said that one day in his coffee he asked Gerald whether he had administered anything to Joseph Sifton during his absence. Gerald replied that he might as well tell the truth, that he did. Gerald did not say what he had given. The blood-stained axe and three bricks with red spots upon them were identified by the doctor. Witness said that on Monday, July 22, 1900, Gerald told him that he had offered Edgar Morden $500 to give up the will.

Cross-examined by Mr. Johnston, Dr. McNeil said that the wounds might have been caused by a fall, and the did not think they would be caused by the flat side of an axe. From their general appearance at the time of the accident he thought they had been produced by a fall and therefore signed the death certificate "Accidental."

THE RACE DECLARED OFF.

First of a Series of Championship Yacht Races a Fizzle on Account of Lack of Wind

New York, Sept. 26.

One of the largest crowds that ever put to sea went down to the Sandy Hook Lightship today to witness Sir Thomas Lipton's second challenger, Shamrock II., and the white flyer, Columbia struggle for the yachting championship of the world, in the first of the cup races for 1901, but the excursion fleet returned disappointed. The great single stickers went out yesterday morning fresh for the battle, but the sea refused them the field of conflict, the wind never more than 9, sometimes as low as 3 knots, and too late in shifting light to carry the contestants over the thirty mile course within the time alloted by the rules. At the end of five and a half hours (the prescribed time), the race was officially declared off, and the yachts were towed back to their berths inside of Sandy Hook. When the guns aboard the committee boat were fired to call attention to the signal, declaring the race off, the Columbia was still seven miles from the finish, with the Shamrock three-quarters of a mile astern. The Columbia was headed, but won in the twenty-three miles covered, and then only for five minutes in windward work. The Columbia beat the Shamrock by seven minutes and fifteen seconds to the outer mark, and increased her lead somewhat in the broad reach for home.

Pilot Was Drunk, Captain in Liquor.

Victoria, Sept. 26.—At the session yesterday of the Islander investigation Mr. Green of Tacoma said he saw Pilot Leblanc and Captain Foote go aboard at Skaguay, and the gang plank was too narrow for the first named. The captain did not seem to be intoxicated, but he had been drinking. He saw him in the bar several times during the course of the evening before the vessel struck. Allegations as to the fact that the two officers named had been drinking were also made by the passengers, while a number of them stated that absolutely no alarm was given.

THE BOER SUCCESSES

London, Sept. 27.

The newspapers are asking the Government to send substantial reinforcements to South Africa, in order to crush the Boers. The Post argues that the country would be in pocket by so doing.

The fact that Botha has captured nearly three hundred British officers and soldiers since Kitchener's proclamation of banishment and confiscation came into force is not inspiring. Whether Botha will disarm and return them as heretofore, or hold them as hostages for England's observance of the laws of civilized warfare, is causing some natural anxiety.

When Mr. Chamberlain has adopted the contention of the jingo press that the Boers are merely banditti, Boer generals will undoubtedly need some security against their being treated as such.

The South African situation is persistently becoming worse. De Wet is believed to be heading for Cape Colony, and in the present state of widespread revolt throughout that extremely rough country, his advent would mean that war could be carried on for five years, with De Wet in Cape Colony, Botha harassing the British on the Natal border and larey and Viljoen capturing artill under Kitchener's very nose at Pretoria.

The Boers enter upon the third year of their campaign in marvellously advantageous position. This is felt here and depression is general, especially as the war chest is rapidly exhausted. An extra session of Parliament to vote more money seems unavoidable.

The situation is singularly like the opening of the war, two years ago, the names of the same places recurring in the despatches. Utrecht, where Major Gough was entrapped, was the scene of a similar ambush eighteen months back. Acton Homes, where the Boers yesterday reappeared, is eighteen miles southwest of Ladysmith, prominent in the early hostilities, and the Natal Colonials are mustering for the defence of the Tugela, as when Gen. Joubert invaded Natal in 1899.

The vast warfield is continually recruited from the rebel Dutch and supplied out of British convoys or by rebel sympathizers. In the meanwhile only the disasters disturb the Government's normal lassitude, occasioning spasmodic efforts, when it ought long ago to have realized that far larger and better equipped and trained forces were essential to terminate the war.

A NOBLE EXAMPLE.

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy's Telegram to His Aged Parents in Milwaukee.

Montreal, September 27—Milwaukee is the birthplace of Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, and the newspapers of the city, in common with their Canadian confreres, warmly congratulate the President of Canada's great transcontinental road, upon the honor conferred by the King.

Sir Thomas, according to the Milwaukee Sentinel, immediately upon reception of the news, sent the following telegram to his father, Mr. Thomas Shaughnessy, 97 Twentieth street, Milwaukee: "You may be gratified to know that His Majesty has conferred upon me the honor of knighthood. One owes a good deal to a good father and mother.

"T. G. SHAUGHNESSY."

What pleased Mr. and Mrs. Shaughnessy most of all was the unselfish acknowledgement by their son of the debt he owed them for his bringing up at their hands.

Mr. Shaughnessy, Sr., is 84 years old, his wife being two years his junior.

The paper goes on to say:

"The story of the life of Thomas G. Shaughnessy reads like a romance, and illustrates to what heights one can rise from the lowest positions. He was born in Milwaukee in the third ward, and there are lots of men in Milwaukee today whom he had distanced in the race for position and influence, who can remember "Tom" Shaughnessy running about the streets like any lad destined to spend his life in the ordinary trades. Young Shaughnessy seemed to take naturally to railroads. He received his education in the public schools and at St. Galls public school and finally took a course at the Spencerian Business College. Upon leaving that institution he took a position as clerk in the stock room at the West Milwaukee yards of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad. He stayed there until he was 29 years old, and then he secured a position in Montreal with the Canadian Pacific Railroad. That was nineteen years ago, and step by step he rose in the service until three years ago he was made president of the road."

SOME HARD WORDS.

Police Magistrate Dennison of Toronto on Christian Science.

Toronto, Sept. 26.—Police Magistrate Denison committed H. Lewis, Christian Scientist, at Toronto for trial charged with neglecting to call in medical aid for his child, who died recently. "I think fakes of this kind ought to be exposed," said the magistrate. "If a grown up man wants to try the thing on himself, I see no objection, but to practice tomfoolery on a child who has nothing to say in the matter is an outrage."

Crown Attorney Curry had one of Mrs. Eddy's books in court and read copious extracts therefrom. "I have been reading the book," said he, "and I have no hesitation in saying it is the most damnable blasphemy I have ever heard of or read."

"Is this woman still at large," said the magistrate who was surprised when told that she was.

American Newspaper Directory.

Tells the circulations of all American newspapers. Revised, corrected and reissued every three months. Sixteen hundred pages: Price Five Dollars a volume or $20 a year.

BUFFALO.

We should hardly know how to get along without the American Newspaper Directory. We regard it by all odds the most complete and reliable guide that the advertiser can make use of; in fact we use no other.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 24, 1901.
R. V. PIERCE, M.D.,
President World's Dis. Med. Ass'n.

VERMONT.

The American Newspaper Directory stands, as it has always stood, the first and best of newspaper directores—the only one which cannot be ignored, the only one which every advertiser must have. No other can take its place; no other is needed.—Joseph Auld, in the Burlington (Vt.) News of July 3, 1896.

ADVISOR.

The Advisor accepts the American Newspaper Directory as the standard in newspaper ratings. The obstacles which obstruct its efforts to get true and reliable information are many.

The directory question is one which interests every publisher in the country—nay, the entire world. But in the United States, directories are becoming altogether too numerous. In this, as with other books of reference, it is necessary to have one which may be relied on as being an authority on the matter of newspaper circulations. There can be no question about the fact that at this time, as for many years past, the American Newspaper Directory is that authority. The Advisor is not paid to make this announcement. It makes the statement in the interest of advertisers and publishers because it is true. One thing the advertiser is almost cock-sure of when he refers to the American Newspaper Directory is that the circulation figures he sees therein are not overstated to any great extent. In most other directories they are. Only the publisher himself is to be blamed for no securing a proper rating in that publication, and every advertiser of consequence knows it. Thus the publisher who refuses to furnish a statement places himself under a reasonable suspicion.—The Advisor for June. New York, June, 1901.

CHICAGO.

Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co's American Newspaper Directory has long since earned the reputation of being the best of its character. It contains the result of patient, expensive and systematic effort to secure all attainable information of interest concerning American newspapers. The work has been honestly done. This will not be questioned by any unprejudiced examiner. The most important question is circulation. In attempting to give this information the Editor of the Directory encounters his most difficult work. It is the aim and necessity of the Directory to give the truth. The American Newspaper Directory is today hte dependence and guide in a greater or less degree, of every large advertiser in the country.—Chicago (Ill.) Daily News.

BATES.

The American Newspaper Directory is the only reliable guide for the advertiser.

No man who advertises can afford to do without it.

What Bradstreet and Dun are to the mercantile world, The American Newspaper Directory is to the world of periodical publications.

A new advertiser will get from the American Newspaper Directory a better idea of the greatness of his country, and the tremendous possibilities in newspaper advertising, than from any other source.

If an advertiser spends only $100 a year he should have the American Newspaper Directory. For his business may grow and his right expenditure of his money become increasingly important. The time to learn how to spend $10,000 a year is before it is spent, otherwise the spending may be disastrous.

Many times the best paper in town costs the advertiser no more than the poorest. The American Newspaper Directory tells which is which.

The paper that was the leader in its town five years ago may lag behind to-day. Even one year may witness astonishing changes. If you are spending money for publicity it is vastly important that you should know where to get the most of it for the price. The American Newspaper Directory gives not only the present circulation rating of every paper in America, but shows their history by quoting past ratings.

The book costs five dollars a copy, and a single reference to it may readily save or make many times its cost.

All newspaper directories but one are erroneously optimistic about circulations. The American Newspaper Directory may occasionally err on the other side, but that makes it all the safer for the advertiser.

My advertising experience began in 1886, and one of the first things I did was to buy a copy of the American Newspaper Directory.

For sixteen years Rowell's "The American Newspaper Directory" has had a place of honor and usefulness on my desk.

Many a publisher is ready to prove by other directories that "Rowell's is wrong," but few indeed can be induced to prove it by opening their circulation books to the advertiser.

Among publishers who are not willing that their real circulations be known, it is the best hated book in print. The moral is not far to find.

CHARLES AUSTIN BATES.
New York, June 24, 1901.

PABST.

If the improvement of the American Newspaper Directory continues in the future as it has during the past twenty years I do not think I shall live long enough to see any other directory take its place. There will, however, be the usual crop of directories just as every other good thing is imitated. Your long years of experience in dealing with evasive circulation reports have most admirably fitted you for placing a proper valuation upon such statements. Advertisers have come to know that the Rowell estimates are nearer the proper figure than can otherwise be obtained. The American Newspaper Directory is therefore indispensable in every well regulated advertising department. Lines are being more tightly drawn every day; it is difficult to collect for twenty thousand when you print only eight. If the advertiser were buying barley he would not accept three pecks for a bushel, although the quality might at all times be open for discussion.

The American Newspaper Directory is the guide and companion of the advertising man, and it is to the interest of all concerned to help perfect it, support it, and hurrah for it.

SAPOLIO.

A growing need created it—the advertising agency system. One of the earliest and almost successful workers, Geo. P. Rowell, is still in the field. He originated methods. Others followed his publication of a list of all the papers—the American Newspaper Directory. He has never ceased to love it, and labor for it. Soon out of the gross stupidity of imitation, it became a rule that every agency down to those of Oshkosh or Oklahoma must issue its own directory. An awful waste, for not more than one out of ten was worth shelf room. If the National Association of Advertising Agents could agree long enough to buy Mr. Rowell's Directory, publish it officially and drop all the others, it would accomplish something.

ARTEMAS WARD,
Advertising Manager for Sapolio.

WASHINGTON.

Every page of the American Newspaper Directory breathes the desire of its publishers that it shall be absolutely correct in every statement it makes.

SOUTHERN.

We subscribe to and pay cash for the American Newspaper Directory, and find it of great value in our advertising department. We have 6,89[illegible] miles of railway, extending from Washington, D. C., all over the South, and in advertising this system we use more than 1,000 publications, and in selecting this list we find that we get a correct idea of circulation from this Directory that can not be obtained from any other similar publication. We receive other newspapr directories gratis, but the fact that we pay cash for this one in addition shows that we can not place the same dependence upon the "free list."

We thoroughly appreciate the careful manner in which this Directory is compiled.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 13, 1900.
JOS. H. HANNEN,
Adv. Dept. Southern Railway

I am looking forward to receiving the new edition with a great deal of anticipation, as, although the American Newspaper Directory seemed to have reached a high state of perfection several years ago, there is always something new and of value in each succeeding edition. It is regarded as the standard authority with the Southern Railway.

S. H. HARDWICK,
General Passenger Agent,
Washington, D. C., May 21, 1901.

BALTIMORE.

We have used the American Newspaper Directory for many years and find it more valuable to us than any other similar publication. Much of the information given we cannot obtain in any other way. The book is not only a great help, but a necessity to our business, and we think its way of stating circulations is the ideal one.

Permanent Cures of Cancer

We here give a few cases, where the efficacy of our Constitutional treatment in curing Cancer, is established beyond all question. We have plenty on fyle.

There is ample proof that where our remedy cures, it cures to stay and saves people from the torture of knife and plaster.

CANCER OF THE BREAST—A lady had Cancer of the breast, which rendered her right shoulder and arm almost helpless. Our remedy cured her over five years ago, and there is not the slightest return of the trouble.

CANCER OF THE FACE—This case of a gentleman who was so bad that his right cheek was almost eaten off with the disease, plasters aggrivated his trouble. Our treatment cured him five years ago and he has been all right since.

CANCER OF THE STOMACH—Doctors pronounced the trouble cancer of the stomach. There was vomiting of material that looked like Coffee grounds. Great weakness and prostration. Cured over four years ago and well to-day.

CANCER OF THE NOSE—A severe case which was cured by our remedy in 1891 and has never returned to this day.

Full accounts of the above cases, together with the names and addresses of the persons, are given in our new book, "Cancer, Its Cause and Cure," sent to anyone, in plain wrapper on receipt of 3 stamps. Stott & Jury, Bowmanville, Ont.

C. Arthur Pearson, well-known publisher of London, Eng., after visiting the Pan-American said: "The lighting effects at night are simply marvelous. I never saw anything like them, which is hardly to be wondered at, as there has never been anything like them to be seen." Daily excursions are now run by the Grand Trunk Railway System. See advertisement on page four of this paper.

—Dr. Young on Thursday extracted the bullet from the knee of the lad Jack Fraser, who was accidentally shot on Saturday by a companion. Fraser is at the Nicholls hospital, and the doctor considers that there is a fair chance of no complications arising from the injury. The bullet had lodged in the knee cap and the operation attending its removal was a delicate one.

She Saw the Duke of Wellington

Lindsay Post: Mrs. Chamberlain, of Douro, is at present visiting her son, Mr. John Chamberlain, of Albert street Lindsay. Mrs. Chamberlain bears the weight of 98 years with surprising ease. Being in the full possession of her faculties, she is an entertaining talker, and can remember as if it were yesterday the Duke of Wellington's review of thousands of his troops before the battle of Waterloo was fought. Mrs Chamberlain is a native of Cork, Ireland, and has resided in Canada for 60 years. During this remarkable span of life sickness has been a stranger to her.

Guy Bros' Minstrels.

These popular ministrels are advertised to appear here tonight, and will no doubt be accorded a fair audience. If we were to make a suggestion to Mr. Guy, it would be that he should be a trifle more liberal in this newspaper advertising. The only advertising that has been done was a small ad in the local evening paper last night. This looks as if the show was going down hill, for live men always patronize a live newspaper. We sincerely hope that such is not the case, for the public have a kindly feeling for the old-time favorites and would be sorry to know that they are deteriorating.

A MOUNTAIN CLIMBER.

Gains 12 lbs. on Change of Food.

When a change in food can rebuild a man 77 years of age, it is evidence that there is some value in a knowledge that can discriminate in the selection of proper food to rebuild the body. A few months ago the physician attending Warren S. Johnson of Colfax, Cal., 77 years old, told him that death from old age would soon claim him. He suffered from general weakness and debility.

An old lady advised him to quit coffee, and drink Postum Cereal Food Coffee and to eat Grape-Nuts breakfast food every morning. He took the advice, and has gained 12 pounds. Says he is as well as he ever was, and can take long trips in the mountains, which he has been unable to do for a long time.

There is a reason for this; in the first place, coffee acts as a direct nerve destroyer on many highly organized people, both young and old and many people haven't the knowledge to select nourishing, healthful, rebuilding food.

Both Postum Food Coffee and Grape-Nuts breakfast food are made from selected parts of the field grains that contain delicate particles of phosphate of potash and albumen. These two elements combine in the human body to quickly rebuild the gray matter in the brain and nerve centers throughout the body.

Direct, sure, and certain results come from their use and can be proven by any person that cares to make the trial. Both the Postum Food Coffee and Grape-Nuts are kept by all first-class grocers.

A PRESENTATION.

To Miss Laura Martyn on the Occasion of Her Departure.

The home of Miss Lena Martyn, 196 Crescent street, was the scene of a pleasing event on Thursday evening last, when the young ladies connected with insulating department of the Canadian General Electric Company entered in a body and presented Miss Martyn with a handsome gold chain, and read the following address:

Miss Lena Martyn, Peterborough,

Dear Lena,—It is with anything but pleasure that we have heard of your intended departure from our town, and from our midst to make new friends and acquaintances abroad. Indeed you leave a vacant place which will not soon be filled by another.

You have for a long time been a warm and constant friend to us all, and your pleasant face and kindly bearing will long be remembered and cherished when you have ceased to appear among us.

Others have come and gone and been forgotten. Their places have been filled by others, and now we are forced to believe that you are to leave us.

We can only wish you every success and happiness in your new position, that your thoughts may often revert to the happy days we spent together.

We beg you to accept this chain as a slight intimation of our regard for you and of the high esteem in which you are held by us.

And once more wishing you a prosperous future, we will say, Good-bye.

Signed on behalf of the girls in the Insulating Department.

This popular health food is now used at the morning meal by millions of Ralstonites in Canada and the United States. It captivates all by its delicious taste, its nutritive qualities and ease of digestion. Young and old are delighted with it. At all grocers.

THE TOWN IN DARKNESS

The Damage to the Raceway Will Take Several Days to Repair.

The damage to the raceway, caused by the water undermining one of the piers, is greater than at first supposed, and it may take several days to repair the break.

There is a good deal of kicking being done by those who are wholly dependent on electric light.

For a time it was doubtful whether we could issue the Times, as good light is essential in the manipulation of our typesetting machines, but fortunately we are able to struggle through with some difficulty. Had it been otherwise, and the citizens compelled to endure the Ethiopian darkness which would follow the non-appearance of this great family journal, then indeed would the burden of discomfort be heavy to bear.

MOSS RESIGNS.

He is no Longer Superintendent of the Nassau Works.

The many friends in town of Mr. W. M. Mossm who has so agreeably filled position of superintendent of the work being done at Nassau by the Canadian General Electric Company, will regret to learn that he has been forced to resign his position on account of ill-health. He is succeeded by Mr. W. W. Wood, of Ottawa, who is highly spoken of.

Mr. Moss although only a few months here, has made many friends who will deplore his departure from town, and hope that he may soon recover his health.

PHILOSOPHER-AT-LARGE

Many cities smaller than New York congratulate themselves on having no cars but trolley. Many New Yorkers congratulate themselves on having a few horse cars left, and even look back wistfully to the time when the omnibuses used to traverse Broadway and you could take an uncrowded afternoon airing thereon, contemplating the pedestrians from the vantage point of height. That you can no longer do this, and that the multitudinous trolleys are crowded, prove how vastly the population has increased, and make one marvel what shape rapid transit will take when the population doubles. The few lingering horse cars jingle restfully through the great unrest. Their beasts of burden are a paradox of tranquility amid the insolent sweep of their electric rivals.

When Campbell wrote "The Pleasures of Hope" he was doubtless familiar with the pains of disappointment. Disappointment is merely the ashes of burnt out hope, and hope is disappointment's phoenix. They are each other's alter ego.

Everybody has some time asked of what use are mosquitoes. It now transpires that they exist for the purpose of conveying elephantiasis from one place to another. As the number of people suffering from this malady is extremely small, the mosquito cannot be warmly felicitated upon the conscientiousness and skill wherewith he fulfills the purpose of his being. If human creatures did their tasks as badly civilization would expire. And when the fuss the mosquito makes about it is remembered the hatred he inspires subsides into contempt.

The two farmers of Moncton, N. They may be said to have held their own pretty well, especially when each got her back again.

"She is now in Paris." Perhaps that tells the whole story of her husband's bankruptcy. "He is now in Paris." Possibly that is the solution of his mother's broken heart and his father's white hair, or perhaps no hair at all. "They are now in Paris," and there a good many of them will remain, parasites, battening on the best of what is worst in that beautiful city, and moving, the worst among the best of the American colony.

DID SIFTON DIE FROM A FALL

Doctor Anderson Said it was Possible But Not Probable

WHAT DR. BINGHAM HAS TO SAY

London, Sept. 30.—The principal evidence given at the Sifton trial on Friday and Saturday was that of medical men.

Dr. McNeil swore to the presence of a boggy, soft mass on top of the head and abrasions behind each ear. Dr. Anderson described the first fracture as a radiating fracture. He said that the injury might possibly have been caused by a fall, but it was only a bare possibility, a practical impossibility.

"You have heard the story told by Herbert, and you have read the post-mortem report. Do you think the condition of the skull is consistent with the story of Herbert?" "I do." Continuing, Dr. Herbert said that the principal injury, the fracture, "might have been caused by a blow from an axe, and the other conical injury might have come from the corner of an axe, or by the projecting corner of a stone or board. The crushing effect of a blow of an axe would depend upon the force of the blow, the position of the head, whether fixed or movable, the amount of hair on the head and the thickness and elasticity of the skull. The condition of this skull was consistent with a number of impacts rather than one. A blow from an axe would not cause the abrasions found behind the ears, but these might result from the body being dragged along the floor. The "boggy mass" found by Dr. McNeil on top of the head the witness thought, might be due to impact with some broad surface, such as an axe.

From the injuries the witness said he did not believe that the body could have moved after it struck the ground. There would be little trace of blood on the hay and chaff of the barn, especially if the search for it was made three weeks after the tragedy. He said that he had examined stains on the chip of wood handed him, and had found blood on one of the chips said to have been taken from the ladder in the barn. In cross-examination Dr. Anderson said that he believed the injuries to be quite consistent with the story of Herbert. He admitted, however, that if the blows described by Herbert were as heavy as they were stated to be by the counsel, the man's skull would have been smashed. He differed from Mr. Johnston in the interpretation of Herbert's description of the "top of the head" and said that Herbert did not confine himself to lateral margins.

The witness finally admitted that the injuries were possible from such a fall as was described by the counsel, that is, a fall in which the skull would receive several impacts by striking several objects.

Dr. George A. Bingham, of Toronto was the second medical expert for the Crown. He said that in his opinion all of the fractures could be produced by the fall, but he was at a loss to explain the injuries to the softer tissues in the same way. There were five separate injuries to the softer tissues, all of which could not result from a fall. The extent of the fractures depended upon the thickness of the skull, the location of the injury, the nature of the weapon, the degree of violence of the blow, and the shape of the skull. "Considering everything," said Dr. Bingham, "I am satisfied that all of the fractures could be produced by a fall, except a portion of the transverse fracture, which indicates a separate point of impact."

London, Ont., Sept. 30.—The evidence given on Saturday at the Sifton trial was wholly that of medical experts called to express opinions as to the possibility of Joseph Sifton's injuries being caused by a fall or by blows from an axe. It is the least interesting testimony from the layman's point of view, yet produced, but the court room remains crowded all the time. The jury asked this morning that they be allowed to revisit the Sifton home to get clearer ideas upon certain points, and his lordship decided to adjourn court for the afternoon to let them do so. The first witness called was Dr. Charles P. Jento, of London, a graduate of McGill College, Montreal, who has practiced eight years in London, and three on the Pacific coast. It was very possible, he thought, that the injuries described might have been caused by a fall. Taken with the fact that the body was lying on the left side, face downward when found, witness said the injuries were not compatible with a fall. The injuries taken in connection with the evidence were more consistent with two or more separate blows with an axe. Witness said he could not account for the abrasians behind the ear by fall. Witness could not take Herbert's evidence in its entirety, and as a medical man, say it accounted for the nature of the injuries found. The blows would have to be milder than described by Herbert.

To Mr. Riddell's question as to whether Herbert's evidence must be discounted, witness said that the blows as described by Herbert, would have fractured the skull more.

Dr. Gustin, a practicing physician of St. Thomas, thought there was a bare possibility that the injury could be produced by a fall. It was quite possible they were produced as described by Herbert.

One blow on the side of the head might be sufficient to produce all the fractures found, but there must have been contact at different angles to produce the wounds. Taking Herbert's evidence, witness would expect to find the skull smashed.

To Mr Riddell witness then said that taking all the evidence as heard he believed the wounds to have been produced by the axe.

Dr. McHarty and Dr. Eccles, of London, gave evidence of the same character. The latter was on the stand when court adjourned at 1 o'clock.

EUROPEAN POWERS MAY CARVE TURKEY

European Cabinet Are Considering Allied Action.

SICK MAN OF EUROPE THE CAUSE

Paris, Sept. 28—The Courier du Soir, which is usually well informed, makes the following sensational statement:

"One of the results of the conferences between Emperor Nicholas and President Loubet, M. Waldeck-Rosseau and M. Delcasse during the czar's visit to France is an exchange of views between European cabinets, now progressing, with the object of arriving at an understanding as to action against Turkey.

"Germany's concurrence is assured, as Emperor William has consented, but Count von Bulow has raised objection to some of the details of the action proposed, thus necessitating a further reference to the other governments before final decision can be reached."

Inquiries made in official quarters here elicited expressions of doubt that there was any such agreement between Germany, Russia and France as is referred to by the Patrie and no confirmation was obtainable regarding the alleged alarming situation, which is evidently built on the fact that three British warships happened to be at Koweyt and that it is reported the British are encouraging the local sultan to repudiate Turkish suzerainty.

LATEST DEAL OF YERKES.

London, Sept. 30—Charles T. Yerkes has contracted for 99 years with the Great Northern railway to take over its suburban business and franchise for the projected underground road to extend from Holborn to Finsbury park. Parliament will be asked to grant a franchise for a link less than a mile long to connect this line with Mr. Yerkes' Brompton and Picadilly line. Both lines connect with the District Underground railroad, giving Mr. Yerkes control altogether of forty-six miles of road.

THANKS KAISER FRANS JOSEF.

Vienna, Sept. 28—Emperor Francis Joseph to-day received in special audience the United States minister Robert S. McCormick, who thanked his majesty for sending the chief court chamberlain to represent him at the memorial service held here in honor of the late President McKinley.

MANY KILLED IN BATTLE.

Belgrade, Sept. 28—It is reported that Turkish and Albanian troops have come into collision at Belopolje, Old Servia, with the result that fifty-four were killed and wounded.

THE MARKET SCALES.

Still Another Sample of Official Incompetency.

At a late meeting of the Town Council a resolution was passed authorizing the Town Engineer to widen the public weigh scales on the market.

This recalls the fact that the "superstructure" was only built last year. It also reminds us that when this was under way the Times pointed out to the Engineer that the work was not being properly done—that the building over the scales was altogether too small for the purpose. It is now shown that we were right. After several months' use, during which much loss has been sustained by the market clerk, through farmers patronizing the Ashburnham weigh scales the Council has ordered the work to be done over again. Surely it is time that this fearful waste was put a stop to.

A USELESS APPEAL.

Kruger's Forlorn Hope That the United States Will Interfere.

Washington, September 29—The Post says: If the Boer representative approaches the United States Government to ask for intervention on behalf of his people, it will be as a kind of forlorn hope, and he will not be disappointed if his request is denied. The matter has been considered by the American people, and, while they have a feeling of sympathy for the Boers in the struggle for their rights, they do not feel impelled to undertake a costly war on their account. If they had any intention of intervening they would have done so long ago, while there was still a prospect that intervention might be successful.

PRINCELY ANARCHIST TAKEN.

Nackachidze and His Wife Arrested in Italy—He's Dying of Consumption.

Rome, Sept. 29.—Prince Nakachidze, a Russian who was banished from Italy as a Nihilist and a dangerous Anarchist, has returned, and has been arrested. He will be expelled again. He was expelled from France in 1886 for making bombs, and was condemned to death in Russia in 1887 for plotting to kill the Czar.

Prince Nakachidze's wife was arrested with him. They will be conducted to the Swiss frontier. Both are in a penurious condition. The Prince is dying of consumption. He said when he was arrested: "I am not harming anybody. Why can I not be allowed to die in peace?"

Guy's Minstrels

Guy Bros.' Minstrels gave two performances in the Opera House on Saturday. At the matinee the crowd was small, due no doubt to the fact that it was poorly advertised. In the evening, however, there was a fair attendance, but not as large as it should have been, or as the performance deserved.

GREAT SUFFERINGS IN KLONDIKE REGION

The Indions Are Threatened With Starvation.

NO RESULTS IN GOLD SEARCHING

Port Townsend, Wash., Sept. 29.—According to reports from Nome, brought by the steamer Oregon, the Indians in that section are threatened with starvation. During the past few months about 300 natives have visited Nome, bringing furs to trade for supplies. As soon as their goods were disposed of however, whisky peddlers got among them, and they changde the proceeds of their sales for liquors. The Indians again camped on the beach, generally in a drunken stupor, allowing the season to pass in which they could lay in supplies of fish for use during the long winter period. Unless they are assisted by the Government, it is said suffering and starvation will follow.

Destitute miners from outlying districts are arriving at Nome. The United States steamer Bear on August 31 landed eighteen men at Nome. These men were found on the beach at Kotzebue Sound, penniless and out of supplies. They had for some months been depending on what fish they could catch and game they could kill. This party joined in the rush to Kotzebue in 1898, and have been there ever since. They report that during three years they failed to find more than a few colors of gold.

The Nome banks have given out an estimate of the output of gold for the season. They place the amount at $5,000,000, which is only a half million more than last year.

SHOT HIMSELF THROUGH HEAD

Silas B. Card's Spectacular Suicide on a Warf at Swansea.

Silas Bert Card of 783 Queen street east committed suicide in a spectacular way at Swansea last night. He was seen by a young man named Heber Howard to walk out to the end of the dock which covers the intake pipe at Swansea, pull out a revolver, fire twice into the water, and then, raising the weapon, fire a bullet into his own head. He fell into the water and Howard, with the assistance of Mr. Nurse and others, recovered the body, life being extinct. Coroner Cotton examined the body, finding a bullet wound over the right temple, and that death had been instantaneous.

The body was that of a young man apparently about twenty, clean shaved, and becomingly dressed in a dark tweed suit, and a fine frieze overcoat, and patent leather shoes.

An examination of the contents of his pockets showed that the name of the young man was Silas Bert Card, 783 Queen street east. At the investigation instituted by the coroner it was shown that the young man entered Nurse's Hotel about 10 o'clock at night and asked if he could have a room. Mrs. Nurse asked him what he wanted it for, and upon his not giving any satisfactory answer, was told that he could not have one. He left about 10.15, and went out on the pier, where after a short time, he was seen to shoot himself as described above. The examination showed that his watch had stopped at 10.50 p.m.

The following letter was found on his person, dated Sept. 28, which would seem to give a clue to the motive of the deed:—

"Dear Friend—I am intending to go out to-night for good, so I will not have time for me to see. Enclose will find the ring, and you had better keep mine. Good-bye. BERT CARD."

There was no indication as to who "the friend" is. In the letter was found a gold ring which had originally contained six garnets, but two of them were missing. There was also photograph of the young man in one of his pockets together with a number of trinkets and an autograph album.

Another letter was found on the body, dated September 9, and signed Maude Turrell. It opened as follows: "I hope you will not think me bold in writing to you, but I feel so awfully lonely that I just got to say something to you and I have not had a chance for a long time." It contained protestations of love, and arranged for a meeting "to-night in Eastern avenue, near the Woodbine," when the girl promised to "try and get away from Mabel."

Coroner Cotton thinks an inquest unnecessary.

COLUMBIA WINS

New York, Sept. 28.

The second day of the great international yacht race for the historic America's Cup—or rather the first day in view of the abortive race of Thursday last—proved discouraging at first, as there was an almost total absence of wind. But when the boats crossed the line there was a good breeze, which was just what the Shamrock desired. When the outer mark was reached the Shamrock was 44 seconds ahead, but on the home stretch the wind died away and the Columbia forged ahead, winning the first race.

Lost and Found.

Mrs. K. S. Lech had the misfortune, while attending the market on Saturday morning, to lose her satchel, which was attached to her belt. In the satchel was $15 in money, four diamond rings, a diamond brooch and diamond ear rings. Naturally, when the loss was discovered, Mrs. Lech was in great distress until her sorrow was turned to joy by the recovery of the bag. It appears that it was picked up on the market square by a Miss Andrews, of Otonabee.

Men Wanted.

VICTORIA COMPANY CHEESE BOARD

All Factories Sold at 9 1-2c Except Palestine.

1482 BOXES WERE PUT UP

The Victoria County Cheese Board met in the Council Chamber Friday morning at 10 o'clock, President Robertson in the chair.

The buyers present were Messrs. Flavelle, Whitton and Fitzgerald.

Messrs. Staples and Hill, salesmen for Red Rock and Oakwood factories, complained about the inspector not inspecting the cans as well as other things. Mr. Whitton stated that the inspector was a first-class man and gave satisfaction down east. It appeared to him that the factories here seem to have an axe to grind. If they have a better man he suggested that they bring him along.

The following factories boarded the number of cheese set opposite.

Star	85
Cameron	87
Dunsford	109
Mariposa	100
Janetville	68
Omemee	115
Fenelon Falls	105
North Verulam	123
North Ops	75
Pine Grove	50
Reaboro	110
Bobcaygeon	160
Maple Leaf	100
Palestine	48
Red Rock	145
	1482

Mr. Fitzgerald started the ball rolling with an offer of 9 cents. Mr. Whitton raised to 9 1-8s., Mr. Flavelle jumped to 9 1-4c., Mr. Fitzgerald made it 9 3-8c., and Mr. Flavelle called 9 1-2c. This price was not raised, and Cameron, Fenelon Falls, North Verulam, Red Rock, and Reaboro were named and all accepted. Total, 572 boxes.

Mr. Fitzgerald offered 9 1-2c. for second selection and named Bobcaygeon, Mariposa and Dunsford, all accepting. Total, 369 boxes.

Mr. Whitton called 9 1-2 for third selection and secured Omemee, North Ops, Pine Grove, Star, Maple Leaf and Janetville. Total, 493 boxes.

Palestine was the only factory not sold. Mr. Fitzgerald offered 9 3-8c., but was refused. The reason a lower price was offered was on account of being so far from Lindsay.

The Board adjourned to meet Tuesday, Oct. 15th.

SHOOTING BOERS ISWARM WORK

This Soldier Got in a Tight Corner and Killed His Man.

The soldier's lot in South Africa seems to be traditionally rough, if one may judge from the following extracts from a letter just received by Mr. Alf Govette of Gibson's Davenport Hotel from Corp. F. Downes of the S. A. C., dated Springs, Transvaal, Aug. 21. The writer begins with the voyage out, as follows:

Talk about a rough house, when the ship started rolling it was a corker. I woke up one night when some sucker cut the hammock down and had tied five, or six bottles to my toes. This was a common occurrence for two or three days, then the men commenced to get sick, and before we arrived in Cape Town we buried five and 22 were sick. I never was so tired of a trip in my life. After we got off the boat we were loaded on open coal cars like a lot of sheep. Talk about Canada, why it is a heaven to this. However, we went up country 1400 miles in the same cars night and day.

BATHS WERE LUXURIES.

For over a week, rain or shine, we never even had a bath. When we arrived at our headquarters, a place called Heidelberg, our drilling started. This kept up for about one month, then we started for the front, where we have been ever since.

Two weeks ago to-day, we had a very lively time for about three hours. About 8 o'clock at night our dog started barking. Of course, that alarmed the camp. I went out to see what was the matter, but I soon got in again when the bullets commenced to sing. Just as soon as I got in the trench the fun started; about 20 or 30 made a rush for us, but they soon went back.

I got one, he rolled over and I shot him again to make sure. However, this thing kept up for about three hours, when we got help, then they retreated. None of our men were very badly hurt. This is a very common thing now. We have lost about five men altogether, and quite a lot are in the hospital, so you can judge for yourself what kind of a time we are having. I have just got a message that a column is starting from Springs that means more burning and killing.

BURN EVERYTHING IN SIGHT.

They burn everything in their way. I never saw so many dead horses, cattle and sheep—thousands of them. Everything smells rotten from their decaying. The country is all shot to pieces, and the Lord knows what it will be like before the war is over. As for myself, I am feeling well at present. The fever season is on now, so we have to be very careful. All the water has to be boiled before we can drink it. I often wish that I had a big lager. All we can get is a little rum which is issued to us twice a week.

There is lots of money here, but you can't spend it. I am making about $65 a month, board and clothes. That is not so bad, especially when a fellow can't spend any. If I get through I expect to have about $2,000 in three years, which is better than I can do in Canada. Please excuse this paper, but it is the best. I took it from a Boer house that I burned last week.

Where Medical Science Fails.

to cure rheumatism, and all the time you suffer dreadfully, why don't you get a bottle of Polson's Nerviline and try that? Rub it into your stiff joints, sore arms, lame back, bent shoulders—wherever the pain is. Nerviline has cured plenty of people in this way, and that ought to be proof enough that it will cure you too. It is an unusually strong liniment that cures rheumatism in unusually quick time. Best household liniment known. 25 cents.

WAR HONORS FOR CANADIANS

Seventeen Members of Canadian Contingent Decorated by Britain

C M G FOR CARTWRIGHT

London, Sept. 28.—Twenty-eight pages of the Gazette were taken up last night with the names of officers and men decorated for distinguished service in South Africa. The list included the following seventeen members of the Canadian contingent: Lieut.-Col. Cartwright to be Companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George; Major "Gat" Howard since killed in action, Major Sanders, Captain Stairs, Captain Macdonnell, Lt. Morrison and Lieut. Mason, Companions of the Distinguished Service Order, Sergt. Major Richards, Sergt. Neiks, Strathcona's Horse; Sergt.-Major Gimblett, Gunner Laidlaw, Canadian Artillery; Sergt. Miles, Corp. Callahan, Trooper Crawley, Canadian Mounted Rifles; Trooper Waite Canadian Mounted Infantry, and Pte. Mulloy, who lost his sight, to have the distinguished conduct medal. The American scout, Burnham, is appointed a Companion of the Distinguished Service Order.

ABOUT THOSE HONORED.

Lieut.-Col. Robert Cartwright, now inspector of Musketry, with headquarters at Ottawa.

The late Major A. L. Howard, of Gatling gun fame, who served in the North-West rebellion, and who, after the return of the Canadian contingents from South Africa remained with the Canadian Scouts. The manner of his death has not been definitely known, but he was recently killed, some reports said, "in cold blood."

Major Sanders, formerly a superintendent in the North-West Mounted Police, went to South Africa in command of a squadron in the second battalion of the Mounted Rifles. He is a graduate of the Royal Military College, Kingston, served in the North-West rebellion, and was wounded in South Africa on the 5th of September last.

Captain Stairs of Halifax was in command of "H" Company, R.C.R.I., and was mentioned in despatches March 1, 1900.

Capt Macdonnell is probably Capt. A. C. Macdonnell of the C.M.R., an inspector of North-West Mounted Police, who was wounded in South Africa on June 12, 1900.

Lieut. E. W. B. Morrison of Ottawa went out with "D" Battery, was mentioned in despatches for his work at Koomati Poort, and was given the brevet rank of Captain.

Lieut. J. C. Mason, 10th R.G., Toronto, went as a nofficer of "B" Company, R.C.R.I., and was wounded at Paardeberg, February 18th, 1900.

Of those who receive the distinguished service Medal Trooper Mulloy's heroic bearing of the loss of his sight has made his name a household word in Canada. Gunner Laidlaw is of Barrie, Ont.; Sergt.-Major Gimblett of the R.C.A.; Sergt. T. Miles of Pincher Creek, wounded June 22, 1900; Trooper Crawley of Pincher Creek; Trooper A. S. Waite, of the North-West Mounted Police, and Corp. M. J. Callahan of the Royal Canadian Dragoons.

THEY CROSSED THE BRIDGE.

Ennismore Citizens Force Their Way Over the Lake to Town.

The people of Ennismore do not wait on ceremonies. The formal opening of the new bridge over Chemong Lake has not yet taken place and the swing to allow steamers to pass through, was left open and the crank to work the swing [illegible] away, so that no one could [illegible] over.

On Saturday morning, an enterprising resident of Ennismore, whom we will call "Tim" for short, hitched a 600-foot line on the swing end of the bridge, and pulled it shut. He then formally pronounced the bridge open for traffic, and drove over to the Smith side of the pond.

Whether or not the Warden and County Engineer will regard the act as les Majesty, we do not know. At any rate it shows that the good people of Ennismore are not to be kept away from Peterborough for a trifle, like that.

LOCKING ON LINCOLN'S FACE.

Coffin of First Martyred President Again Opened.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 29.—Abraham Lincoln's casket was chiselled open a Saturday. Eighteen persons gazed upon the features of the long-dead first martyred President and great emancipator, and then the casket, holding all that was mortal of the "honored dead, was finally laid away for the thirteenth time.

Lincoln was a busy man through his life. His friends have been busy with his remains since his death. Previous to to-day the casket has been moved from its resting place twelve times, while this made the thirteenth. Each removal was thought to be the last. Now, it is declared, there can never again be any occasion for disturbing the resting place, which is inside an iron cage, imbedded in a huge block of cement beneath the tomb of the Lincoln Monument in Oakridge Cemetery.

It was found that the remains were in a good state of preservation. The casket was resealed and consigned to the place prepared for the same in the monument.

The Cause of Hay Fever

It's a microbe that floats in the air, gets into the throat and lungs, develops rapidly, excites inflammation, etc. The cause is as simple as a thistle in the finger. Extract the thistle, away goes the pain. Destroy the Hay Fever germ—you get well. That's why Catarrhozone acts so marvellously in Hay Fever. It's fragrant vapor to you brings cure, but to the microbe death. Catarrhozone is as quick to act on these microscopic organisms as lightning. Prevents as well as cures, and is always successful. Druggists, 25c. and $1.00, or Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

LORD KITCHENER'S GREAT SCHEME

He Explains in an Interview the Possibilities of Blockhouses

KEEPING AWAY THE ENEMY

London, Sept. 28.—The correspondent of the Morning Post, writing from Johannesburg, tells of an interview with Lord Kitchener. He says:

I was able to learn some interesting details of the great scheme now in progress of protecting the lines of communication by blockhouses. Lord Kitchener very kindly gave me a scientific proof of the value of the system. He showed me a chart, exhibiting the breaking of the railway, from which it was clearly manifest that the more frequent the blockhouses the less frequent the attempts at destruction by the enemy. In pursuance of the scheme, the trunk lines are now guarded at very short intervals by blockhouses, of all kinds of constructing, constituting an interesting study in fortification. There is no doubt of the great moral and practical effect upon the enemy. Following the example of the War Office, I had the temerity to ask the chief to censor a cable I had prepared, wherein I was somewhat optimistic of "the approaching end of the war." I was dissuaded from the phrase, as possibly misleading and elusive. Satisfactory progress was being made by harassing the enemy at all points. The army had been formed into small commands to cope with the present condition of warfare, and the whole army was kept at work, every available man being employed. If the Boer leaders could not unite to surrender, the end would come only when the last Boer was arrested. I may add that I have learned from other sources that Lord Kitchener, in his endeavor to keep the whole army employed, has taken a military census, and occasionally sweeps the large towns, when every officer must prove that he has a right to be where he is. Despite Lord Kitchener's disclaimer, there is a distinctly hopeful feeling among military men.

ANOTHER MURDER TRIAL.

Montreal, Sept. 30.—The second murder trial of the present term of the Court of King's Bench has commenced Mary Egan, wife of Pat. Bulger, of 49 Knox street, is charged with killing her brother-in-law, Timothy Corbett of Point St. Charles, on the night of Aug. 1. Corbett had been drinking and annoying the Bulger family. They kept a grocery and the deceased owed them money for goods. He wanted some things, and upon being refused went to the home of the Bulgers and raised a row. Mr. Bulger went to get a policeman, and Mrs. Bulger claimed that Corbett tried to get in through a window. She pointed a revolver at him, and she says that he struck out with his fist, that it went off and wounded him so that he died.

WHOLE TRAIN DERAILED.

Rolled Down an Eighteen Foot Embankment—Twenty Persons Injured

Omaha, Sept. 30.—A through passenger train on the Wabash from St. Louis to Omaha was wrecked to-day 11 miles southeast of Council Bluffs. The entire train, consisting of mail and baggage cars, two day coaches, a chair car and two sleepers, rolled down an 18-foot embankment and turned bottomside up. The engine alone remained on the track. The engine stopped with the forward trucks on the edge of the bridge over Indian Creek. The train carried nearly a hundred passengers. Three persons were perhaps fatally injured, 16 seriously hurt, and a score of other persons received minor bruises. The cause of the wreck is thought to be the spreading of the rails.

TRAN AWAITS EMMA GOLDMA

Citizens of Rochester, N.Y., Promise Anarchist a Feather Coat

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 28.—Emma Goldman will receive a warm reception upon her return to Rochester should she carry out her plans and come here and if the present ideas are carried out she will be treated to a coat of tar and feathers before she reaches the parental roof at 175 Joseph avenue. John F. Flint, a leading shoe merchant of this city with salesrooms at 90 West Main street, made use of the following advertisement this morning:

WANTED—500 able-bodied men with lots of tar and feathers to care for Emma Goldman upon her arrival here from Chicago.

The Goldman house is under police protection.

WEDDING BELLS.

Nuptials of Miss Annie Radden and Mr. John McMillan.

A very pretty wedding took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. James Raddon, Norwood, on Thursday, last, when their charming daughter, Miss Annie, was united in marriage to Mr. John McMillan, of that village. The ceremony was performed by Rev. F. J. Somerville, in the presence of a number of invited guests.

After the wedding dejeuner, Mr. and Mrs. McMillan left on the midnight train for Kingston, from whence they will go by steamer down the St. Lawrence to Montreal, returning by way of Ottawa. On their return to Norwood they will reside in the house lately occupied by Rev. Mr. Peter on Queen street. They have the best wishes of a host of friends.

Amongst those who attended from Peterborough were Mr. and Mrs. F. Raddon, and Mr. W. J. Raddon.

A COWMISSIONER FROM CAPE COLONY

Sir Charles Elliott Ex-Manager of Cape Gov't R'y Talks.

OBJECT OF MISSION TO CANADA

Montreal, Sept. 29.—Sir Chas. Elliott, special Railway Commissioner of the Cape Colony, is in Montreal, and was interviewed. He said:

"Yes, I feel sure that there will be a long reign of prosperity throubout South Africa at the close of the present war. You see the great mineral resources of the Transvaal district never been any way nearly properly developed, while the great gold mines of the district of Rhodesia are practically unexplored".

Sir Charles has been General Manager of the Cape Colony Government Railway since 1873, when the only railway was first taken over by the Government. At that time there were about forty-five miles of track in the country, while at the present time there are upwards of three thousand miles.

SOUTH AFRICA WILL PROSPER.

Sir Charles has been sent to Europe and America by his Government to inspect the various railways and see what improvements can be made in his own country. He has at all times been deeply interested in all questions relating to South Africa, especially those in which the native Boer is concerned.

"But what is your chief reason for saying that things will prosper in the country?"

"Well you see the great amount of plant that will be brought into the country, or is already in the seaports waiting till the war is declared off, in order to be forwarded, is a positive sign that the value of the resources of the country have been recognized, and with that known, it is impossible that there should be not general prosperity. The lines of the Government Railway at present run from Cape Town to Johannesburg, Bloemfontein, Pretoria and Kimberley, and the officers expect that the freight capacity of the road will even be overtaxed for some time to come carrying stock for the various mining companies.

"Do you think that the Boers will return to work for the English?"

"Yes, I think they will. While for many years to come they may entertain unfriendly feelings towards the English, which, perhaps, is not to be wondered at, still I do not think they will betray it by any of their actions. I have always gone a good deal among the people, and many of my relations have married Dutch people and my own experience has been that they are a very fine people, will likely always be loyal, and unlikely to have done many of the things that have been attributed to them."

THE CLOSE OF THE WAR.

"Is there much prospect of the war being brought to a close in the near future?"

"On that question I would almost prefer to remain silent. I have noticed that lately there has been some talk of further hostilities, but I do not expect that this will prove true."

"During you visit in England, France Germany and the United States, have you noticed that any wonderful progress has been made in the railway world?"

"What is, in my opinion, the greatest mark of the progress that has been made is what is known in England and the United States as the compound engine. Besides being more powerful and capable of attaining greater speed than any other engine, it saves between 10 and 15 per cent. in fuel, which will in time mean an enormous saving to railway companies.

"Next to it is the use of the electric wire signal at present in use in Germany. England still retains the use of the much more expensive electric rod, but with the means found to prevent contraction or expansion of wire, I do not see any reason why the electric wire may not be brought into general use."

CANADIANS MADE GOOD IMPRESSION.

"Did you find much difference in the roadbed of the railways in the different countries you visited?"

"Oh, yes, I certainly did. This difference was especially noticeable in France and England and the United States. In France you can even notice the movement over the joints, but in the other two countries the roads are too smooth to notice anything of the kind."

"As regards our Canadian troops, do you think that they made a favorable impression during the war?"

"Most assuredly so; perhaps it would be unfair to mention any particular corps, but the Strathcona Horse was considered one of the finest troops sent into South Africa."

A HANDSOME STORE

The Extensive Improvements to Ormond & Walsh's Drug Store.

The improvements which have been going on for some time to the drug store of Ormond & Walsh have been completed, and the place is now one of the handsomest in town. Mr. Dickson Davidson, the popular and progressive proprietor can pride himself on having a store that is second to none of its kind anywhere.

The old shelving has been removed and and beautiful new fixtures erected in its place. The walls have been very artistically papered in a pretty shade of green, the ceiling has been decorated to match, while the neat little electric fixtures combine to present a most luxuriant appearance.

The beautiful new counters and show cases are of quartered oak, and finished in the best possible style. The work was done by the Peterborough Canoe Company, while the show cases are the work of the Dominion Show Case Company. The painting was done by Mr. John Watson.

Mr. Davidson has been receiving the congratulations of his many friends on the great improvements which have taken place, which are in keeping with his progressive and enterprising nature.

From The Kingston Post Office.

comes word that Mr. James McGuire is again at work. He was laid up by corns on the soles of his feet, but was perfectly cured by Putnam's Painless Corn and Wart Extractor.

PETERBOROUGH, SEPTEMBER 30 1901

The question to be decided by the Schley court of inquiry is, briefly stated, whether when Schley executed his famous "loop" he intended to retire from the conflict or whether, like the belligerent billy-goat of the Uncle Remus fables, Admiral Schley "gets in his best licks jus' w'en it look ez if he were backin' out o' de fight."

The Boer forces remain at the 15,000 figure with irritating persistency notwithstanding Lord Kitchener's weekly inventories of wastage. This is particularly annoying in view of the fact that previous to hostilities the British intelligence department with that devotion to accuracy which characterizes its treatment of statistics placed the total strength of the Boer army at 12,346. If we remember aright several of these have been killed or captured and still there are 15,000 left. Of course the natural increase in three years must be allowed for.

THE CEMENT COMPANY

The Splendid Power Station Erected at Young's Point

Lakefield News: The work at Young's Point has reached a very interesting stage. We are indebted to Mr. Lillicrap, the Co's Superintendent, for the following particulars in regard to it. The flumes, the inside measurement of each of which is 21x33, are now completed Each flume is separated by concrete walls 4 feet thick and 28 1-2 feet high, and a 68 inch turbine wheel, of 200 horse power is being placed in each flume. The work of excavating for the coffer dam was commenced last October, and has been pursued under very great difficulties ever since, owing to the fact of the abnormally high water of last spring having rendered the Company's efforts up to that period almost valueless. It needs only a glance at the coffer dam to see by how tremendous a task the Cement Co. has been confronted. In this connection, it is gratifying to us to state that Mr. McCallum, the engineer of the Wm. Hamilton Co., Peterboro, has inspected the work and found it first-class in every respect, giving it as his opinion that the best results should be obtained therefrom. Lakefield has had worthy representatives in this undertaking, Mr. W. Baptie, of Lakefield, having had charge of all the carpentering work in connection with the dam which comprised the making of the flume casings, etc., and Mr. Jos. Watson the overseeing of the excavating and concrete work. Mr. Fred Lillicrap has, from the first, had the superintendence of the entire works at the Point.

A train load of blue clay from Lily Lake comes in regularly every day to Lakefield, and in a short time a full year's supply will be on hand in the Company's yards.

Eight train loads of marl also come in every day from Buckley's Lake.

A BISHOP'S VIEW

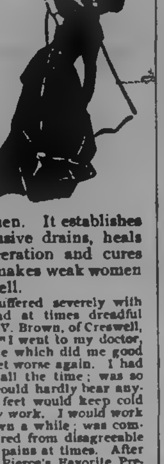
New York, Sept. 28.—Bishop Doane, in his discourse from the text. "No man can serve two masters," said that the whole thought of riddance from rule and abolition of authority and destruction of government, and escape from law and independence in the sense of freedom from control. was godless and unhuman, and idiotic and impossible, but was the mad conceit of Anarchy!

Continuing, the Bishop said:—

"The doubt, the distress, the impatience, the resistance which rise up and trouble our hearts are in themselves symptoms of intellectual and spiritual anarchy. This is the Anarchist's first thought. Before he has hatched his plots of foul conspiracy against earthly government, before he has defiled the air of Heaven with the bombast and bitterness of his contempt of human authority, before he has lifted his treacherous hand against the Civil Magistrate or laid his underground mines to break up social order, he has dethroned God. He is an atheist before he is an Anarchist, he is an Anarchist because he is an atheist. With the resistless force of the progress from a premises of unbelief to a conclusion of crime, the unrelenting and infernal logic runs there is no God to ordain powers, there are no powers ordained by God, there are not powers at all. God save us from this spiritual anarchy of the atheist and from this other anarchy of men who call themselves and count themselves above and beyond and independent of authority and law. I have spoken of the too prevalent tendency in our time to violent personalities of speech, presuming to assign motives, to condemn character, and to assail the individual under pretence of criticising methods and opposing policies. There can be no question that in an atmosphere of embittered violence the murderer gets the inspiration which chooses a bullet or a dagger instead of the weapons of tongues which are spears and arrows and sharp swords. Out of the reek of all this licentious and unbridled speech come the spawn and sputum of the Anarchist and the assassin."

Annual Harvest Festival

The Salvation Army will celebrate the annual harvest festival on Saturday, Oct. 5th, to Tuesday, Oct. 8th, inclusive. The officers in charge of the local corps solicit from the public a tithe of the bountiful blessings of field and store, in kind or cash, as a thank-offering to God. Anything received will be turned to good account, and it is more particularly to help its officers in this and poorer corps, who toil incessantly for the good of humanity, that this effort is being made. Staff Capt. Archibald, who is in charge of our work among the men at the Central Prison, Toronto, comes to lead meetings on Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 5 and 6. Gifts can be sent to the barracks on Simcoe street, where Ensign and Mrs. Bloss will be there to receive them.



The dizziness and faintness from which women suffer may be due to one of several causes. But the most common cause is disease of the delicate womanly organism. The story of Mrs. Brown, told in her letter below, gives a fair example of the conditions under which so many women work: "I had a sick headache nearly all the time, was so weak around my waist could hardly bear anything to touch me. I would work a little while and then lie down a while." Failing to obtain more than temporary relief from her doctor's treatment, Mrs. Brown began the use of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription, with the usual result—a complete cure.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best medicine for the cure of diseases peculiar to women. It establishes regularity, dries offensive drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong, sick women well.

"A few years ago I suffered severely with female weakness and had at times dreadful pains," writes Mrs. Mary V. Brown, of Creswell, Harford Co., Maryland. "I went to my doctor, and he gave me medicine which did me good for a while, but I would get worse again. I had a sick headache nearly all the time; was so weak around my waist could hardly bear anything to touch me. My feet would keep cold and I could hardly do my work. I would work a while and then lie down a while; was completely run down. Suffered from disagreeable discharge and also severe pains at times. After using five bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, three of his 'Golden Medical Discovery' and one vial of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, and following the advice you gave regarding the 'Lotion Tablets,' I can truly say that I am cured. The doctor said it was uterine disease I had."

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of customs and mailing only, or if cloth-bound volume is desired send 50 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

ROOSEVELT AND THE BOERS

Washington, Sept. 27—The report that Paul Kruger will ask the intervention of the United States on behalf of the Boer republics, through President Roosevelt, is likely verified. It seems unlikely that Mr. Kruger should hope for any action on the part of this country that was not taken by President McKinley, who observed the laws of neutrality in placing himself in readiness to mediate provided mediation was desired by both Great Britain and the Boers. As for intervention, involving the possibility of war on behalf of the Boers, it could not be considered by any country at this time. Even those European powers least friendly to Great Britain and most sympathetic with the Afrikanders, have never—with the exception of Germany—seriously considered the policy of interference.

Germany might have stepped into the breach at one time, but only on condition that in case of war with Great Britain and a victory for Germany and the Boers the Emperor should be given suzerainty over all South Africa. Such an outcome would have met the cherished ambitions of Emperor William and several of his predecessors to establish a home for emigrants from that country—a home in which these emigrants would find scope for development and yet would not be lost wholly to the Fatherland. This ambition is really the principal cause for Germany's resentment of the Monroe doctrine as applied to South America, for in that country German colonies of vast extent long since would have been established but for the barrier of the exclusive Pan-American policy.

But aside from all other considerations the fact that the McKinley administration on the Boer question was clearly defined would practically preclude President Roosevelt from initiating any personal plans with reference to the South African situation. Doubtless in this, as in other lines of conduct, he will be governed by the McKinley precedent, which is in accordance with the consensus of nations and in harmony with American sentiment.

A HANDSOME STORE

The Extensive Improvements to Ormond & Walsh's Drug Store.

The improvements which have been going on for some time to the drug store of Ormond & Walsh have been completed, and the place is now one of the handsomest in town. Mr. Dickson Davidson, the popular and progressive proprietor can pride himself on having a store that is second to none of its kind anywhere.

The old shelving has been removed and and beautiful new fixtures erected in its place. The walls have been very artistically papered in a pretty shade of green, the ceiling has been decorated to match, while the neat little electric fixtures combine to present a most luxuriant appearance.

The beautiful new counters and show cases are of quartered oak, and finished in the best possible style. The work was done by the Peterborough Canoe Company, while the show cases are the work of the Dominion Show Case Company. The painting was done by Mr. John Watson.

Mr. Davidson has been receiving the congratulations of his many friends on the great improvements which have taken place, which are in keeping with his progressive and enterprising nature.

THE TRENT VALLEY CANAL

Facts in Regard to the Project That Every body should Know.

In reply to a request of a subscriber, the following information is given in regard to the Trent Valley Canal: This waterway of 200 miles in length can be completed for $3,500,000. When complete it will give continuous barge navigation of 600 tons burden—and of twice the capacity of the Erie canal—from Montreal to Sault Ste Marie. It will shorten the distance between all the great western lake ports and Liverpool by 127 miles. It is capable of being operated during a season of seven months in a year, and of transporting 300,000,000 bushels of grain per annum. By means of the numerous lakes and rivers which it utilizes and intersects, it will give a shore of 1000 miles and lay under tribute 6,000,000 acres of agricultural, forest and mineral lands capable of yielding from 50 to 100 tons of freight per acre. It will utilize the finest continual system of water powers on the globe. 140 miles of this waterway is now completed, but bottled up at both ends, yet it is giving employment for internal commerce and tourist travel to 60 steamboats, besides numerous small craft.

EXPEDITIONS SET OUT FOR THE SOUTH POLE

Boston, Sept. 27—The present year is to be notable for expeditions to explore that huge icecap of the earth within the Antarctic circle. With the Arctic zone so well cared for by explorers, most of whom aim for the north pole, it was time, because of the very superfluity of venturesome spirits, that the great ice cap at the South receive its due share of attention. It seems unlikely that popular interest in the South pole will ever be aroused to such an extent as it has been in the case of the North, yet from now on the one field of exploration promises to be worked as much as the other.

Four expeditions are now being fitted out for the Antarctic, one in England, one in Scotland, another in Germany and the fourth in Sweden. Each expedition will attack the ice cap on a different side of the earth, and thus avoid interference with one another's labors. The British expedition will enter the south of Australia and New Zealand, having its base on Victorialand. The Scottish expedition will work to the southeast of Cape Horn, and the Swedish expedition directly south of the Horn. The Germans will penetrate the area between Australia and Cape Colony, with their base at Kerguelen island. The four stations thus to be established will be from 1500 to 2000 miles apart, and at least one beneficial result of the joint labors of the four parties should be the practical commercial charting of the navigable seas in the southern hemisphere immediately outside of the ice fringe.

The British expedition in the government ship Discovery will leave London in July, and will enter the ice, it is expected, in November. A land party, with provisions for three years and all the paraphernalia for sledging, is to be left at some spot between Cape Adair and McMurdo and Wood bays, while the ship moves along the outskirts of the ice barrier, charting, sounding the depths, and exploring any land that may be found. The primary object of this expedition, it is stated, is simply geographical exploration. Its directors propose to discover what land there is in that part of the Antarctic circle and what its extent may be. Of course, science will be benefited as much as possible by the various observations customary on such journeys. For the first time in this kind of exploration, the British party will go out provided with a baloon apparatus. The Scottish expedition, under the leadership of W. S. Bruce, will leave in September on a whaler, and expects to reach the ice in December. A party under Mr. Bruce will be landed directly to the south of the route taken in 1823 by Weddell, whose early exploration in that quarter is of particular interest to Scotland, since Weddell sailed from the Scotch port of Leith. In the spring of 1902 the Bruce party expect to take extensive sledge journeys, while the ship does oceanographic work.

The Germans will go out under the direct patronage of their government, and with ampler funds than any of the other expeditions. Their ship has been newly designed and built for work in the ice on somewhat different lines from Dr. Nansen's Fram, which was deficient in seagoing quality, and would not be suitable for the long preliminary voyage to the South. Prof. Drygalski, the head of this expedition, has recently said of the work to be done that "no one even knows whether there is a continent or merely detached pieces of land in the south polar seas, and all that has been advanced on this subject is pure hypothesis. Nansen's view, that the land is in the form of islands, conflicts with the opinions advanced by others—that there is a connected mass of land or ice; but the meteorological observations tend to the belief that the latter is more probable. To judge by the specimens found in the sea bed geological reasons also point to this, but direct exploration alone can settle the point, and it is with a view to determining this finally that the imperial German government is making such extensive preparations." The Swedes will go out under the patronage of private persons and under the leadership of Otto Nordenskiold, and in a general way their efforts will be like those of the other parties, without, however, attempting land exploration.

While none of the expeditions have the south pole as an objective, there will undoubtedly be a keen rivalry among three of them to return with the honor of having gone farthest South. It is in the plan of none to be back north before 1903. If the Antarctic does not yield up some of its mysteries before this combined onset the venturesome explorers will not be at fault.

RAT TRAP EXPOSITION.

Queer kind of an Exhibition Just Closed in Copenhagen.

Copenhagen, Sept. 28.—The first International Exposition of Rat Traps has just closed at Copenhagen after a most successful display of rodent exterminating devices. As might have been supposed in such a momentous affair America would not be overlooked and it is equally certain that Yankee ingenuity would be suitably recognized in gold medal awards. As a matter of fact two gold and one bronze medal did actually go to American exhibitors. In all there were 100 foreign exhibitors, to whom five medals were awarded in addition to the American awards, while all the makers of rat traps in Denmark, as well as numerous inventors, took this unusual opportunity to exhibit their contrivances.

Rats have become such a pest in Denmark, as well as in Sweden, and parts of Germany, that an exposition was decided upon as the only adequate way in which the public could be made acquainted with the latest appliances. That it was no second-class exhibition is proved by the royal patronage of Prince and Princess Christian, of Denmark, and the visit of an official representative of Germany, Count Schwerin.

Preparations for this curious gathering have been under way for over three years. It was organized by the "Committee for the Rational Extermination of Rats in Denmark," which for a number of years has carried on a crusade against the rodents. The most successful measure has been the payment of bounties amounting to about three cents for every rat killed. In the course of 18 weeks, 102,000 rats were destroyed in Copenhagen by the bounty claimants. Sweeden offered a similar Government bounty beginning the first of last March, and in five months 103,000 rats have been killed and paid for in Stockholm alone. The alarming multiplicity of rats is evidenced by the record of some of the smaller towns in Denmark, where as many as five rats per inhabitant have been destroyed in less than two years.

Incidentally the object of the Copenhagen show was to arouse public interest in the matter of bounties in an endeavour to have them paid out of Government instead of local funds. To this end is to be introduced, with good chances of being passed, too, into the Danish Parliament this fall providing for an equal division of the bounty payments between the State and local authorities.

But as to the traps. The most sought-for feature was that of catching a large number of rats at one time. In addition to devices for catching the rodents there were exhibits of rat-killing animals. Among these were the familiar dogs, the red, rough-haired Irish terriers, black and tan terriers and red badger dogs. The Copenhagen Zoo sent a collection of other natural rodent enemies including martens, owls, cats etc. Conspicuous for their novelty were machines for blowing carbolic acid, sulphuric acids and similar materials into rat holes, and cremating furnaces for destroying their dead bodies.

THE SIFTON MURDER

London, Ont. Sept. 27.—More startling evidence was deduced at this morning's continuation of the Sifton trial. Marden Morden, brother of Jas. Morden, who told such a sensational story yesterday, was on the stand. He testified that on the night of June 30 Gerald Sifton went to his house in this city, six miles from his own house, and demanded a confidential conversation with him. Gerald then said that his father and Mary McFarlane, to whom witness had been engaged, were to be married, and he wanted witness to use his influence to prevent it.

"He wanted me to come out and see if I could pursuade the girl," witness said, "but I said under the circumstances I would have nothing whatever to do with her. He asked me if money would have anything to do with it, and I told him it would not."

Gerald said: "We are going to put up a hayfork," and asked me if I would help to put it up. He said: "We have set a trap for the old man and if he fails into it it would only take two or three raps on the head with a hammer to finish the old man" I told him I would have nothing to do with it. I told him that if she knew as much of the old man as I did and was foolish enough to marry him, let them go ahead. Gerald said: "He has already killed one woman, and set another crazy."

"Who were the women he was referring to?"

"His two wives," answered the witness.

"What did he say when you said you would have nothing to with it?"

PRODUCED A PHIAL.

"He put his hand in his pocket and drew out a phial. It was crystal-like. He said: "If one thing would not work, another would."

Gerald said if I would not go with him he would have to go alone, though it was a risky thing for a person to tackle alone.

After the old man's death witness had a conversation with Gerald. Witness said: "He asked if we were not paid were we going to squeal on him. He said he would willingly give $1,000 to be divided equally between us to keep us quiet. He said Edgar had told him it would take the price of a fifty-acre farm to do so. I said as far as I was concerned, I would not accept a solitary cent if I was bordering on starvation. I said I thought my brother was of the same opinion as myself, but I would see him and let Gerald know. I saw my brother and then saw Gerald and told him my brother said that he would not accept anything and had no intention whatever of not keeping quiet. This was on the Sunday following Joseph Sifton's death."

It now looks as if the trial will be one of the lengthiest in the criminal courts of Canada.

JAMES MORDEN'S EVIDENCE.

London, Sept. 27.—The Sifton trial was continued yesterday afternoon by the evidence of Mrs. McFarlane, mother of the girl who was to have married Joseph Sifton. On the morning that the marriage was to take place she saw Gerald and his wife and Herbert at their house, and told them how Mary and Joseph Sifton had been at her house on the previous night. She said that Mary was bound to marry Joseph Sifton, although she tried to urge her not to do so. She told Gerald to call at Rev. Mr. Cooper's house and see if they were married and he said that he intended to call anyway, and if they were not married he would put his father so he would not be married. The witness told him to be careful what he said.

Rev. W. H. Cooper stated that on the day of the funeral he was visited by Gerald Sifton, who told him that when he had called to get the death certificate from Dr. McNeil he was told by the doctor that Gerald's uncle and Mr. Cooper were pressing to have the circumstances of the death investigated. Dr. McNeil had told him that unless he was given $1,000 he would stop the funeral procession that afternoon, and order an inquest. Gerald said that he had lost sleep for several nights grieving over his father's death, and that this threat of fresh disgrace made him feel very badly indeed. If Mr. Cooper and his uncle wished an inquest he would have been very glad to have had one held the preceding Saturday night, but to have the funeral stopped after notice of it had been given would mean a scandal that he would not have for $1,000, so he had reluctantly consented, under the circumstances, and signed the three notes, one being for $500 and the two others for $250 each, in favor of Dr. McNeil.

MORDEN'S TESTIMONY.

James Morden swore that on the night preceding Sifton's death, Gerald Sifton had said to him: "There is hell to pay at our house. I'll give you $1,000 to help me out. I want you to go with me and we'll catch the old man on the road and smash his head in with a club. He is going to marry Mary MacFarlane to-morrow night. Father has been the means of killing two women, and things are going from bad to worse, and they have to be stopped." Elsewhere in the conversation Gerald had said:—"I'll tell you what we can do. We can go down and jump in on the old man and choke him to death, and then we can hang him to a rafter in the barn, and people will think he has committed suicide." The witness warned Gerald that he would be in danger of being hanged, and that he might get some innocent person hanged with him, and Gerald replied that his father was not liked well enough to make anyone care what happened to him, and, having secured the address of his brother in London, Sifton left.

In the cross-examination, Morden admitted that after he had heard the proposition to aid in the murder of his avowed friend he had refused the offer, but had given the name of his brother as one who could be asked to do the deed, and that when he knew that Gerald Sifton was intent on murdering the old men he took no steps to prevent the murder. After the death of the elder Sifton he remained on friendly terms with Gerald, although he admitted that he believed him to be a murderer, and continued to visit at his house.

WITH YACHTSMEN OFF NEW YORK

New York, Sept. 27.—The cup defender Columbia, and the challenger Shamrock II., are lying quietly at their moorings in the bay at Sandy Hook this morning. A light breeze from the northeast of ten miles an hour straightened out the flags on the Erin, the Porto Rico, the tender Park City, and the Columbia. The latter flew the stars and stripes, but the Shamrock had no flags at either her masthead or taffrail. E. D. Morgan, of the Columbia, after some inquiry as to the prospects for a breeze for tomorrow's race was asked if the Columbia would go out for a spin today. He said; "No I think not. It is not likely we shall leave our moorings."

The captain of the Columbia had his crew at work after breakfast overhauling some of the light sails. At 8.15 they began unbending the foot of the mainsail. After the cover was off for about thirty feet the clew of the sail was unshackled and taken on deck, and some sailmakers were put to work on it making alterations.

Captain Barr says he thinks the Columbia is going as fast as she ever did and that when a breeze comes she will give a good account of herself.

Everything was quiet on board the Shamrock. The crew were out early, but nothing was done beyond washing decks up to 8 o'clock, when they all went to breakfast on board the tender Porto Rico.

NOT VERY HOPEFUL.

London, Sept. 27.—Sir Thomas Lipton this morning cables to his friends here: "Am very hopeful," but the feeling is not reflected by public opinion, which foresees defeat for the Shamrock II. in her races with the Columbia for the American Cup. The afternoon newspapers similarly derive scant comfort from the stories of yesterday's contest. As the St. James' Gazette points out in spite of all suggestions that the conditions prevent accurate judgment of the comparative merits of the two yachts, "the plain fact stands out that under a condition of weather which was the same to both, the American boat got a good bit nearer the winning line than our own."

WILL WIN IN A BREEZE.

London, Sept. 27.—The Pall Mall Gazette is practically alone in thinking that the American experts are easily satisfied if they are already convinced convinced that the Columbia is the better boat. The paper's comment is probably based on the conclusion of its own correspondent's long account of the race, which commences:

"The Columbia did much to shatter the Lipton hope yesterday," and concludes: "The day's sailing did nothing to suggest that the Shamrock will not win in a good breeze. I think she will."

SHAMROCK MEN WERE ANNOYED

New York, Sept. 27.—From an authentic source it was learned today that there was a very strong feeling on the part of Captain Sycamore and those in charge of Shamrock at what they term crowding of the Shamrock at the start yesterday by Captain Barr. "If he is going to continue these tactics there will be serious trouble," said the writer's informant. "What he did yesterday would not be tolerated for an instant in a race in British waters. He must not expect us to stand it, and we won't. Our relations with the New York Yacht Club and with the principals in this event have been so extremely pleasant that it is to be hoped one man's action shall not be permitted to mar them."

Sir Thomas said to an Associated Press representative today: "While yesterday's race was not at all a fair test of the Shamrock's speed, I was very well satisfied with what she did. What we want is a good strong breeze from the northwest or any other quarter, for that matter, but plenty of it, and then I'm sure the Shamrock will give a good account of herself. We are all very pleased at the excellent manner in which the course was kept clear. It could not have been better done, and I hope it will be so through all the races."

Captain Sycamore and his crew overhauled the Shamrock's sails this morning.

Forgetful Fishermen.

The Lakefield News says that the Reeve of the village, who is an ardent desciple of Izaak Walton, while fishing in the canal the other day, in a fit of mental aberration, went home to tea and left his rod standing up against the canal. When he returned it had vanished. This great family journal is not at all surprised at this. We have known men to fish and fish all day, and when the shades of the evening fell on the landscape, they departed without even taking their bait, which for convenience' sake they carried in a black bottle, with them, and on their return next day found that some lurking villain had partaken of their bait to the last drop. If you don't believe this, just ask John Holmes.

BUFFALO.

We should hardly know how to get along without the American Newspaper Directory. We regard it by all odds the most complete and reliable guide that the advertiser can make use of; in fact we use no other.
Buffalo, N. Y., July 24, 1901.
R. V. PIERCE, M.D.,
President World's Dis. Med. Ass'n.

VERMONT.

The American Newspaper Directory stands, as it has always stood, the first and best of newspaper directores—the only one which cannot be ignored, the only one which every advertiser must have. No other can take its place; no other is needed.—Joseph Auld, in the Burlington (Vt.) News of July 3, 1896.

ADVISOR.

The Advisor accepts the American Newspaper Directory as the standard in newspaper ratings. The obstacles which obstruct its efforts to get true and reliable information are many.

• • • •

The directory question is one which interests every publisher in the country—nay, the entire world. But in the United States, directories are becoming altogether too numerous. In this, as with other books of reference, it is necessary to have one which may be relied on as being an authority on the matter of newspaper circulations. There can be no question about the fact that at this time, as for many years past, the American Newspaper Directory is that authority. The Advisor is not paid to make this announcement. It makes the statement in the interest of advertisers and publishers because it is true. One thing the advertiser is almost cock-sure of when he refers to the American Newspaper Directory is that the circulation figures he sees therein are not overstated to any great extent. In most other directories they are. Only the publisher himself is to be blamed for no securing a proper rating in that publication, and every advertiser of consequence knows it. Thus the publisher who refuses to furnish a statement places himself under a reasonable suspicion.—The Advisor for June.
New York, June, 1901.

CHICAGO.

Messrs. Geo. P. Rowell & Co's American Newspaper Directory has long since earned the reputation of being the best of its character. It contains the result of patient, expensive and systematic effort to secure all attainable information of interest concerning American newspapers. The work has been honestly done. This will not be questioned by any unprejudiced examiner. The most important question is circulation. In attempting to give this information the Editor of the Directory encounters his most difficult work. It is the aim and necessity of the Directory to give the truth. The American Newspaper Directory is today hte dependence and guide in a greater or less degree, of every large advertiser in the country.—Chicago (Ill.) Daily News.

BATES.

The American Newspaper Directory is the only reliable guide for the advertiser.

No man who advertises can afford to do without it.

What Bradstreet and Dun are to the mercantile world, The American Newspaper Directory is to the world of periodical publications.

A new advertiser will get from the American Newspaper Directory a better idea of the greatness of his country, and the tremendous possibilities in newspaper advertising, than from any other source.

If an advertiser spends only $100 a year he should have the American Newspaper Directory. For his business may grow and his right expenditure of his money becomes increasingly important. The time to learn how to spend $10,000 a year is before it is spent, otherwise the spending may be disastrous.

Many times the best paper in town costs the advertiser no more than the poorest. The American Newspaper Directory tells which is which.

The paper that was the leader in its town five years ago may lag behind to-day. Even one year may witness astonishing changes. If you are spending money for publicity it is vastly important that you should know where to get the most of it for the price. The American Newspaper Directory gives not only the present circulation rating of every paper in America, but shows their history by quoting past ratings.

The book costs five dollars a copy, and a single reference to it may readily save or make many times its cost.

All newspaper directories but one are erroneously optimistic about circulations. The American Newspaper Directory may occasionally err on the other side, but that makes it all the safer for the advertiser.

My advertising experience began in 1886, and one of the first things I did was to buy a copy of the American Newspaper Directory.

For sixteen years Rowell's "The American Newspaper Directory" has had a place of honor and usefulness on my desk.

Many a publisher is ready to prove by other directories that "Rowell's is wrong," but few indeed can be induced to prove it by opening their circulation books to the advertiser.

Among publishers who are not willing that their real circulations be known, it is the best hated book in print. The moral is not far to find.
CHARLES AUSTIN BATES.
New York, June 24, 1901.

PABST.

If the improvement of the American Newspaper Directory continues in the future as it has during the past twenty years I do not think I shall live long enough to see any other directory take its place. There will, however, be the usual crop of directories just as every other good thing is imitated. Your long years of experience in dealing with evasive circulation reports have most admirably fitted you for placing a proper valuation upon such statements. Advertisers have come to know that the Rowell estimates are nearer the proper figure than can otherwise be obtained. The American Newspaper Directory is therefore indispensable in every well regulated advertising department. Lines are being more tightly drawn every day; it is difficult to collect for twenty thousand when you print only eight. If the advertiser were buying barley he would not accept three pecks for a bushel, although the quality might at all times be open for discussion.

The American Newspaper Directory is the guide and companion of the advertising man, and it is to the interest of all concerned to help perfect it, support it, and hurrah for it.

SAPOLIO.

A growing need created it—the advertising agency system. One of the earliest and most successful workers, Geo. P. Rowell, is still in the field. He originated methods. Others follow his publication of a list of all the papers—the American Newspaper Directory. He has never ceased to love it, and labor for it. Soon out of the gross stupidity of imitation, it became a rule that every agency down to those of Oshkosh or Oklahoma must issue its own directory. An awful waste, for not more than one out of ten was worth shelf room. If the National Association of Advertising Agents could agree long enough to buy Mr. Rowell's Directory, publish it officially and drop all the others, it would accomplish something.
ARTEMAS WARD,
Advertising Manager for Sapolio.

WASHINGTON.

Every page of the American Newspaper Directory breathes the desire of its publishers that it shall be absolutely correct in every statement it makes.

SOUTHERN.

We subscribe to and pay cash for the American Newspaper Directory, and find it of great value in our advertising department. We have 6,892 miles of railway, extending from Washington, D. C., all over the South, and in advertising this system we use more than 1,000 publications, and in selecting this list we find that we get a correct idea of circulation from this Directory that can not be obtained from any other similar publication. We receive other newspapr directories gratis, but the fact that we pay cash for this one in addition shows that we can not place the same dependence upon the "free list."

We thoroughly appreciate the careful manner in which this Directory is compiled.
Washington, D. C., Sept. 13, 1900.
JOS. H. HANNEN,
Adv. Dept. Southern Railway

I am looking forward to receiving the new edition with a great deal of anticipation, as, although the American Newspaper Directory seemed to have reached a high state of perfection several years ago, there is always something new and of value in each succeeding edition. It is regarded as the standard authority with the Southern Railway.

BALTIMORE.

We have used the American Newspaper Directory for many years and find it more valuable to us than any other similar publication. Much of the information given we cannot obtain in any other way. The book is not only a great help, but a necessity to our business, and we think its way of stating circulations is the ideal one.
